REPUBLICAN HANDS OUT FOR THE PLUMS.

Jersey G. O. P. Eager For the Fruits of Victory.

CLEAR WAY IN THE COURTS.

NO DEMOCRATIC COUNTY JUDGES WILL BE LEFT ON THE BENCH.

By the Time Governor-elect Voorhees Gets Through With His Appointments There Will be Nothing But Republican Judges—Chief Justice Magie May Secure the Chancellorship.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, December 1.—The Republican party is entrenched in power in State affairs for at least three years more. All the State officials, with the exception of the Quartermaster-General and the State Librarian, are already members of the dominant party and in a year or two the higher courts and all of the county courts will be under the same influence. The Republican leaders have declared a policy that the judiciary must exist on a non-partisan basis, and in proof of that declaration they point to the fact that the present Court of Errors and Appeals is equally divided as between the two parties, and the Supreme Court consists of five Republicans and four Democrats. That is all well enough as regards the higher courts of the State.

A different condition exists with regard to the county courts. There are now only four Democratic County Judges, those in Mercer, Monmouth, Somerset and Cumberland counties. Those will be replaced by Republicans, no doubt, during the term of office of Gov. Voorhees. He will also have the appointment of successors to seven Democratic Prosecutors of the Pleas, who are now serving in the counties of Bergen, Burlington, Camden, Cumberland, Essex, Salem and Somerset. In all probability these, too, must give way to Republicans. It seems pretty certain, then, that before the expiration of office of Governor Voorhees that all the county courts will have Republican Judges. Thus for the first time in a quarter of a century there will not be a Democratic Judge of the interior courts or Prosecutor of the Pleas in office in the entire State.

The Republican leaders are not offering any apologies for this anticipated condition of affairs. They say they have Democratic precedent to go by and, anyhow, their party has just as good, if not better, legal talent out of which to make Judges as the Democrats have. And, furthermore, they say the people of the State have twice in succession given the Republicans a vote of confidence, which is sufficient reason for the adoption of the policy they have outlined.

There is scarcely a doubt as to the reappointment by Governor Voorhees of Quartermaster-General Donnelly for another term of office. The National Guard of the State is entirely divorced from politics, and as General Donnelly has in every way proved himself a most competent official he will be retained in office. With regard to the offices of Quartermaster-General and Adjutant-General, the custom always has been for the incumbents to tender their resignations to the new Governor as soon as he was installed in office. Heretofore the resignations have not been accepted, and although General Stryker is a Republican, he has held office for over twenty years under Democratic Governors.

State Librarian Morris R. Hamilton's term will expire next February. This office is filled by a commission which consists of the Governor, the Chancellor, Chief Justice, Secretary of State, State Treasurer and State Comptroller. The only Democrat on this commission is the Chancellor. Colonel Hamilton is a Democrat, but it is believed politics will not interfere with the filling of the office, and he will be reappointed. The Colonel is peculiarly fitted for the place, and he has hosts of friends in both parties, especially among the Judges and lawyers, who will urge his retention in office.

There is already much speculation indulged in as to the successor of Chancellor McGill. His term will not expire for two years yet. Still, the names of several Republican judges and lawyers are being discussed in connection with the office. There seems a probability that, should Chief Justice Magie desire to become Chancellor, Governor Voorhees would be glad to elevate him to that office. He is one of the ablest jurists in the State and he was the preceptor of Governor Voorhees when the latter

MRS. HALL IS PRESIDENT

TALENTED PLAINFIELDER AT HEAD OF THE WOMAN SUFFRAGISTS.

Mrs. S. R. Krom, Also of This City, Honored by Being Elected Treasurer—May Join With Temperance Workers.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Camden, Dec. 1—Before adjourning the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association elected these officers: President, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Plainfield; vice-president, Mrs. J M. Pullen, of this city; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Alice C. Angell, of Passaic; recording secretary, Miss Mary Philbrook, of Jersey City; treasurer, Mrs. S. R. Krom, of Plainfield; auditor, Dr. Mary D. Hussey, of East Orange; chairman press committee, Mrs. G. Sexton, of Orange.

At the last session of the organization there was a lengthy discussion as to the relationship of the association to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. A complaint had been made that the temperance societies were not working in harmony with the association, while in reality it was the sense of the convention that only through woman suffrage can the object of the temperance societies be accomplished. It was explained that the women in the temperance movement were not in a position to understand the objects of the association, seeming to look with awe when such a thing as combining was suggested, but it was said that each year the temperance people were gradually falling in line, and with a view to further combining the two forces a committee was appointed to arrange plans.

FEARED TO WET HIS FEET

SO HE LET THE RUNAWAY HORSE GO BY WITHOUT HINDERANCE.

Fred I. Smith's Grey Mare Ran Away on North Avenue—Upset Mrs. Smith and Friend in Snow—Patrolman to Rescue.

The grey mare belonging to Fred I. Smith, of Leland avenue, came home in a hurry yesterday afternoon. On her way home she left Mrs. Smith and a friend in a snowdrift. She afterwards encountered Patrolman Saunders who ended the excitement by placing her under arrest.

Early in the afternoon, Mrs. Smith and her friend, a woman who is visiting her, drove downtown in a cutter behind the grey horse. They did their errands and started to return by the way of North avenue, where they thought they would find better sleighing. Beyond Berckman street they encountered some very deep drifts. The animal became unmanageable and dashed away, upsetting the sleigh and leaving the passengers behind.

The animal continued on her way unmolested. One man was in the neighborhood of the spill and Mrs. Smith urged him to catch the horse as the animal passed. But the man replied that it was wet and slushy there and he would certainly get his feet wet. Mrs. Smith doesn't know who he was.

Meanwhile the grey mare turned into Leland avenue and ran through to South avenue. Turning again, he came into the vision of Patrolman Saunders. With a great leap, the officer went through drifts and slush over his shoe tops but he caught the horse. Then he went back and collected the passengers and took them to their home. The sleigh and harness was but slightly damaged by the fast trip.

VOCAL CONCERTS.

Noted Soloists are to Appear to Please the Musically Inclined.

Music lovers will be glad to know that we are to have two really good vocal concerts this winter. The first one will take place next Thursday, and the tickets are now on sale at Armstrong's pharmacy and of Mrs. Pond. Great pains have been taken to have a thoroughly interesting programme.

The soloists are Mme. Anita Rio and Dr. Lou A. Jackson, both of whom sang here in the Irish concert last March, Miss Keys, the contralto at St Bartholomew's church, and Dr. Carl A. Dufft, the well-known concert and oratorio singer. One of the songs will have a mandolin accompaniment.

It is Mrs. Henry Staats Who is Dead.

George B. Staats, of 125 Columbia avenue, Netherwood, called at The Daily Press office this morning and stated that it is not his wife who is dead. Some of the friends of the family have received the idea that it was his wife and he wishes a statement made in correction. It was Mrs. Henry Staats, of North avenue, who died.

STRAINING GAME LAWS.

ACTION AGAINST HARRY GREENE WAS UNCALLED FOR.

State Game Warden Shriner Returns $40 of the $60 Fine After He Learned the Facts—Was No Need for Prosecution.

A few days ago The Daily Press made mention of the fact that J. H. Greene, Jr., of Verdon street, North Plainfield, had received $40, which amount was part of a fine imposed by Justice Mattison in the case of the Game Protective Association against Mr. Greene for the violation of the game laws in having in his possession rabbits when the season for them was not yet open in this State. The Press is now able to give further facts in the case which show that the whole proceeding was unreasonable, if not altogether illegal.

Shortly after Mr. Greene was fined $60, which was the amount for four rabbits, a woman living in the borough, who happens to be acquainted with State Game Warden Charles A. Shriner, of Paterson, wrote to him, giving him the clippings from the local papers with the account of the proceedings. Mr. Shriner at once determined to investigate the case and he did so, after which he communicated with Mr. Greene. He stated he was convinced that the prosecution should not have been instituted, and although Mr. Greene was technically guilty of a violation of the State laws prohibiting the possession of rabbits at certain seasons, he thinks the penalty inflicted altogether out of proportion to the offence. He then returned to Mr. Greene the one-third of the fine which he was entitled to by law, and instructed Warden Sebring to return the one-third which he received, and also instructed him to secure from the informants, Percy C. Ohl and Andrew Lutkins, the other thirds which they were entitled to. Mr. Shriner amended the record in the case to read that sentence was suspended on payment of costs.

Mr. Greene, in talking to a reporter of The Daily Press, said that he went to Centreville, Sullivan county, N. Y., this year, as usual to hunt game. He captured a bunch of rabbits, seven of which number he brought home, as well as some woodcock and partride. He made no attempt to conceal his game when coming home on the train. He had not been home two hours when Percy C. Ohl and Andrew Lutkins called at his home, and said that they heard he had been hunting and had had good luck. They asked to see the game, and he showed it to them. After looking over the rabbits, Mr. Ohl told Mr. Greene that he was liable to a fine for having the rabbits in his possession.

Mr. Greene says that he then began to realize what the trouble was, and he protested against any action. He was informed, he says, that he would probably not hear anything more about the matter.

In a few days Warden Sebring called at his home with a warrant for his appearance before Justice Mattison and answer to the charge. Mr. Sebring stated to Mr. Greene that he was compelled to do his duty, that the informants had urged that he be fined for the full number of rabbits, seven, but he objected, and he would be called to answer for four of them. Mr. Greene answered the summons and decided to pay the fine of $60.

A HUNDRED NEW MEMBERS.

Miantonomo Tribe of Red Men Will Nearly Double Its Membership.

There will be a hundred candidates to be initiated at the meeting of Miantonomo Tribe of Red Men tomorrow night. This lengthy list of candidates is the result of three weeks work. Through a special dispensation from the Great Chiefs, the candidates will be admitted to membership without paying the regular initiation fee. This is probably the largest addition ever made to any one secret organization of this city at one time. There are now about 160 members in the Tribe already and the new additions will almost double the membership. It will be a red-letter night with the Red Men tomorrow night.

WATER MAKES TROUBLE.

Melting Snow Covers Street Railway Switches—Water Being Drained Off.

The Plainfield Street Railway people have men out on the roads opening outlets through the snow so that the water which stands in great pools all along the route can run off. The switches give the motormen a great deal of trouble, for when they are covered by water it is impossible to see whether they are open or not, and wagons, drawn over the switches, often open them, and the car following will run into the open switch before the motorman realizes it.

SCHOOL BOYS MUSN'T THROW SNOWBALLS.

So Say the Members of the Board of Education.

RESOLUTION WAS PASSED.

IT HAS BEEN IN FORCE FOR SEVERAL YEARS.

The Boys Made Things Lively Yesterday Morning—Broke Glass Front of Baker's Wagon—This Morning Principal Travell Announced There Must Be No More Under Penalty of Suspension.

School boys shall not throw snowballs. Not when they are under the jurisdiction of the Plainfield Board of Education at any rate. That means at recess and just before and after school. Otherwise, the Board has nothing to say.

Yesterday was the first real good day for snowballing. The snow packed excellently and the snowballs were soon flying wherever there was a small boy in sight. Several years ago the Board of Education passed a resolution that there should be no snowballing in the vicinity of the schools. While there wasn't a member of the Board who doesn't thoroughly believe in the fun of an old fashioned snowball fight, they realize that there is a time for all things. There are so many non-combatants in the schoolyard that the members of the Board fear that any encounter with snowy missles is apt to cause trouble in the ranks of those who do not participate.

So it has been the custom since the resolution was passed to have Principal Travell announce at morning exercises after the snow fall that there is to be no snow-balling and that any pupil found guilty of it will be dealt with very severely. No announcement was made at the High School yesterday and at recess the boys began to take advantage of the snow.

The baker wagon of Klinsman was passing along Arlington avenue while the boys were out at recess. A well-directed snowball struck the glass window in front with such force as to break it. A man passed by in a road wagon and received a bloody faith on the cheek. As he turned to yell at the boys, a second struck his other cheek. Several boys were caught by members of the faculty just in the act of throwing snow. They were severely reprimanded.

This morning, Principal Travell announced at morning exercises that there must be no more throwing of snowballs in the vicinity of the school buildings under penalty of suspension.

SLEIGHING ALMOST GONE

STREETS ARE FULL OF SLUSH, MUD AND WATER.

Gutters Need Cleaning—Pedestrians Had to Wade Through Pools of Water—Street Department Busy Cleaning Crosswalks.

The streets are still in a deplorable condition with the combination of mud and slush and no relief is yet apparent. A gang of Street Commissioner Gavett's men have been looking after the crossings in the business section of the city and they are in better condition.

Very few of the gutters have been cleaned out, and so the water lies there in great pools at the crosswalks. In some places broad bridges span these icy pools, but in others the pedestrians are compelled to wade through the water, or else the slush and snow at the side.

The three inches of fresh snow that made its appearance yesterday morning has nearly disappeared. The snow melted fast yesterday and the prospects of sleighing went rapidly. The mercury fell below freezing during last evening, however, and froze the streets so there was some sleighing later in the evening.

There are a few sleighs out today, but the going is poor and some of the streets are bare in places. Others, however, have nearly a foot of soft, dirty slush in them that makes progression for carriages and cabs decidedly poor.

Attended Camera Club Exhibition.

Last Tuesday evening Otto Ahrens, Walter Freeman and J. Hervey Doane went to New York to attend an exhibition given at the rooms of the New York Camera Club. The exhibition consisted of painting in the old-fashioned way with up-to-date methods. The Plainfielders were much pleased and will no doubt introduce the method in the Plainfield club.

—Painters are busily engaged in decorating the interior of the North Avenue station. The outside of the building is also being painted.

A THANKSGIVING SOCIAL.

CHARMING AFFAIR AT SEVENTH-DAY BAPTIST CHURCH.

Clever Programme By Young Folks—Appropriate Decorations—Novel Style of Refreshments Follow Entertainment.

The snow and the sharp chilliness outside and the cheery warmth within gave more than the usual significance to the Thanksgiving sociable in the parlors of the Seventh-Day Baptist church last evening. It isn't often that such an affair in Plainfield is given such appropriate outdoor surroundings. Inside, the church parlors were gotten up in appropriate fashion. A great shock of corn occupied a prominent position on the platform. Around it were pumpkins and a scattering of other fall and winter vegetables. Several jack-o'-lanterns cast a lurid glow on the faces of the young folks who occupied the first seats in the audience.

The sociable was arranged by the Ladies Aid Society and was, as all their affairs are, decidely successful. It also had the advantage of being out of the ordinary. There was an entertainment, of course, mostly given by the little folk. Recitations were given by Nellie Williams, Edna Conde and Joe Miller. They all related to the Thanksgiving season. George Rogers, Joe Miller, Helen Rogers and Ethel Rogers sang a Thanksgiving song. Mrs. George Homan gave two solos during the evening.

One of the distinctively new features of the affair was the class of refreshments that followed the programme. They included real homemade pumpkin pie, dough-nuts and coffee, arranged under the eye of Mrs. Nathan Randolph and Mrs. Edward Randolph. There was a good attendance at the sociable and all partook of the good things with a heartiness that plainly told that they were decidely satisfactory.

The sociable was arranged by a committee composed of Mrs. J. G. Miller, chairman, Mrs. William C. Hubbard, Miss Lucy Dunham and Mrs. J. Everett Kimball.

The waitresses were the Misses Nellie Miller, Jennie Vanstickle, Edna Randolph and Bertha Mitchell. They were all arrayed in the sober gown of a Quaker maid, with dainty little cap and kerchief.

SPECIAL POLICEMEN NOT PAID.

Freeholders Cannot Pay Them for Attending the Polling Places.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, December 1st—At the meeting of the Board of Freeholders yesterday afternoon the Rahway members brought up the question of the county paying the bills for the service of special policemen at the polling places election day. They objected to such a procedure, claiming that Rahway did not ask the county to do this and that they believed no other town or city had a right to do so under the law.

County Attorney Codington was asked to look up the law in regard to the matter. He did so and found that there was no authority for the Board paying the bills of the special policemen. As a result the bills for the services of the special policemen in Plainfield were not audited.

Freeholder Tier, of this city, was seen by a Press reporter and he said that he regretted very much the action of the Board, but that it was strictly according to law. He expected to be able to distribute checks to the special policemen for their election services, but it would be impossible for him to do so now.

The special policemen, if they secure their money for the day's duty, will now have to look to the city for it. The decision of the Freeholders will probably result in dispensing with the services of the policemen to watch the polling places in the future. Under the election laws it is said that the members of the Boards of Election are empowered to make arrests.

Physical Degeneracy.

The lecture on "Physical Degeneracy" that Dr. Tomlinson was to deliver at the men's meeting in the Seventh-Day Baptist church last Sunday evening, was postponed until next Sunday on account of the storm. All men will be welcome at the meeting Sunday night.

—There will be an entertainment this evening in Grace M. E. church under the direction of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church.

That is one point that Scheuer always aims at and succeeds in—giving good quality. Look through the new advertisement in today's Press and you will see interesting news for the household.

QUIET IN SECOND WARD.

NEITHER POLITICAL PARTY IS PUTTING FORTH ACTIVE MEASURES.

Former Councilman Leonard Spangenberg Has Withdrawn From Active Service—Cuming Faction Faithful to Mellick.

After all the excitement attendant on the Republican primary in the Second ward, the political aspect there has suddenly become very quiet. The Republicans are working very quietly, and have not made much effort as yet to enthuse their supporters in the ward. The Citizens' have lost the active assistance of Leonard Spangenberg, since he bolted the meeting of the Committee of Forty. J. B. Mills, of Watchung avenue, the Citizens' candidate for ward Councilman, is probably the most active of the opposition.

If George P. Mellick, the Republican Councilmanic candidate, is taking an active part, it is not evident. He will, however, carry the commuter vote with him on election day as he stands well with them. He is also expected by the Republican managers to run well among the other citizens of the ward.

Thomas A. Cuming, L. B. Bromfield and most of the other supports of the attempt to upset the "ring" at the ward primaries, have stood faithful to their pledge to support the victorious candidate on the Republican ticket. Both Mr. Cuming and Mr. Bromfield were put under great pressure to serve on the Citizens' ticket but refused utterly to consider it.

CUSHING ROAD IS LOST.

MOUNTAINS OF SNOW HAS MADE TRAVEL IMPASSABLE.

Street Commissioner's Men Called on to Make the Highway Passible—They Expect to Find an Abandoned Wagon Somewhere.

Street Commissioner Gavett's men were sent this morning to the Cushing road, which runs along the city limits from the Terrill road to Leland avenue, and which has been blocked with snow and been impassable ever since the big storm last Saturday and Sunday.

The men are digging there for two reasons. Although there are only a couple of houses on the road, there is considerable travel over it, and the people are anxious to have it open. Another reason and a more important one is that there is said to be a wagon buried deep under the drifts where it was abandoned during the wild storm.

Noah Terry, the milkman, is authority for the statement. He is not very clear as to whose wagon it is, or just when it was abandoned, but the street commissioner believes enough of the story to undertake to dig it out. A man driving a team of horses to a farm wagon was seen driving along the road late Saturday night, and it is supposed he is the owner of the wagon.

He was struggling against the elements, and when last seen he was still fighting the storm. Where he went to no one knows, and it is thought that the driver finally unhitched his team and drove his horses away, leaving the wagon to its fate. As one looks over the white surface of the road, there is nothing to be seen except a wide expanse of snow, unbroken by anything that resembles a wagon. If the wagon is there it must be entirely covered by the snow.

Street Commissioner Gavett has had men out during the past few days cleaning off the crosswalks throughout the business portion of the city, but the work does not seem to amount to much because the snow melts so fast that it floods the crosswalks as soon as they are cleaned, and the traffic passing over them carries mud and snow, and in a short time after they are cleaned they look as bad as before.

Some of the walks in the business portion of the city, the one at Park and North avenues, Park avenue and Second street, Park avenue and Front street and many more, are cleaned several times a day. Some of the roads in the city limits are still blocked with snow. The street commissioner has a gang of men digging out Cole's hill and another one on the Cushing road.

Discharges at the Hospital.

Frank Mayhew, of the West End, who fell from Hetfield & Gallup's office some time ago while painting the building, was discharged from the hospital today, where he has been under treatment. He will be obliged to use crutches for some time.

Edward Mundy, of Metuchen, was discharged from the hospital yesterday. He has entirely recovered from the injuries he he received in a runaway some time ago.

—At an early date the Plainfield Camera Club will give an exhibition in their rooms.

CITIZENS' WERE AFRAID OF BEING MISQUOTED

MR. LOUNSBURY TALKED.

HE DWELT ON THE SUBJECT OF THE POOR MAN'S TAXES.

Said That the Assessors Had Not Done Their Work Faithfully and Well, and as a Result the Poor Men Had to Suffer—Charles Burnet Says That He is a Man for the People's Interests.

The Citizens' held the second one of their political gatherings last night in the Fourth ward polling place at the junction of South Second and West Third streets. The meeting was more like a reception to the nominees, at which Fred C. Lounsbury, the candidate for mayor, Winfield S. Angleman, candidate for city judge, and one or two others spoke briefly. George O. Stevens was host, and kept the men in a good humor with jokes and songs until the arrival of Mr. Lounsbury and a few others. To make things even more sociable a lunch of crackers and cheese was served when the hour had grown late.

The meeting was an informal one, in which each one present felt at liberty to air his opinins and to criticise the administration. There was not much "hot shot" poured into the camp of the Republican party, (the Union County Country Club,) or among the club car adherents, as they had something better to pick to pieces,—the News' account of Monday night's meeting, in which the Citizens' allege Editor Runyon grossly misrepresented what they had said, and contorted their speeches in a manner to hurt them in the eyes of the voters of Plainfield.

One or two of the leaders refused to speak last night for fear of being misrepresented in The News. Michael Higgins, for one, said that he used to think he could talk so as to be understood, but he had discovered now that he couldn't. James W. Davis, the candidate for Councilman in the Fourth ward, pleaded a headache as an excuse for not speaking.

Mr. Lounsbury was asked to say something to the voters and spoke on the schools, tax rates, etc. "I feel that the Fourth ward voters are particularly intersted in this campaign," said Mr. Lounsbury, "because they have so much at stake. The candidates for Mayor, City Judge and Collector are all from this ward, a thing very unusual; as I said Monday night, the Third ward may have furnished the brains to run the city in the past, but this year we of the Fourth will show them what we can do.

"The Fourth ward is made up of good, substantial working men, a few of whom own their own houses. The tax you pay upon your house is sure to be regulated by the tax rate. There has been a great deal of trouble in this ward through the last assessments. When the assessors take their oath of office they swear to assess property at its full value, but they don't do it.

"Now if you own a house worth $1,000 and it is assessed at half its value, $500, and another man owns a house worth $10,000, and that is assessed at half its value, $5,000, the rich man pays less taxes in proportion to the worth of his property than the poor man. I know property here held at $50,000 which is assessed at $14,000. I have six houses, one of which I will be glad to sell for $100 more than it is assessed at."

Mr. Lounsbury here spoke at length upon the schools, a subject with which he is familiar, having been for the last seven years a member of the Board of Education. Mr. Lounsbury said that any one who attends the Plainfield Public School can get as good an education as he needs for business life. "Not a college education," said the speaker, "but that is more of a detriment to the average business man than an advantage. The schools here should be in the hands of the people."

Mr. Lounsbury said that Tax Collector Martin made a good groceryman and a good chief of the fire department, but he didn't know he had any particular aptitude for his present position. He also said that Charles Potter was going to vote for Mr. Gallup. Mr. Lounsbury also named the good qualities of the other candidates on the ticket.

Mr. Angleman got up and said that there was a chance for any one to make money easily, for Roger Murray wanted to bet $50 on Will Runyon.

Charles Burnet said he was secretary of the Union County Country Club, but that he did not travel altogether

Judge for Yourself.

Which is Better, Try an Experiment or Profit by a Plainfield Citizen's Experience.

Something new is an experiment.
Must be proven to be as represented.
Be successful at home or you doubt it.
The statement of a manufacturer is not convincing proof of merit.
But the endorsement of friends is.
Now, supposing you had a bad back.
A lame, weak or aching one,
Would you experiment on it?
You will read of many so-called cures,
But they come from far-away places.
It's different when the endorsement comes from home.
Easy to prove that it is so.
Read this case:
Mr. P. J. Kreitling, Proprietor of Barber Shop & Cigar Store living at No. 253 W. Front street, says: "I had all kinds of pain in my back and loins for the last 5 or 6 years Standing all day long at a barber chair aggravated the difficulty very much. If I stooped and remained in that position a short time it was very hard to straighten up again and if I attempted to lift anything heavy twinges caught me in the back. I used different kinds of plasters but they did not relieve me. After reading several statements in my paper about Doan's Kidney Pills curing people similarly afflicted, I made up my mind to try a box and procured them and after a short time was entirely relieved. Doan's Kidney Pills not only cured the pain but they strengthened my back. My wife was troubled in a similar way and was also cured by Doan's Kidney Pills. We both consider them a good medicine and will gladly recommend them to anyone suffering from symptoms of disordered kidneys."

NO PEACE TREATY YET

PROGRESS OF THE WORK

Adjournment Until To-day After Discussing the Articles of Cession. Subjects Requiring Adjustment. Former Treaties to be Renewed.

Paris, Dec. 1.—The United States peace commissioners had a session at ten o'clock yesterday for the purpose of discussing the draft of the treaty articles made by Secretaries Moore and Ojeda.

The final preparation of those articles was concluded at 1.30 p. m., and the revised draft was then turned over to the typewriters, while the commissioners hastily took luncheon during the half hour intervening between the beginning of the typewriters' work and the hour fixed for the joint session. The typewriting, however, was not finished at two o'clock.

The Spaniards arrived first at the conference chamber.

They were quickly followed by the American commissioners, with the exception of Judge Day and Secretary Moore, who waited for the prepared copy of the articles, and who arrived at the conference half an hour later.

The two commissions then began the discussion of the formulated protocol agreements and the subjects for negotiation, all of which were presented to the joint commission in a form acceptable to the Americans.

The commissioners at the joint session devoted two hours and a half to the drafting of the three first articles of the treaty, dealing with the cession of Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines, upon which the commissioners agreed in principle.

A general discussion on the other articles followed, but no decision was reached, and at 4.30 p. m. the session was adjourned until to-day.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—Contrary to the expectation of many persons, a peace treaty was signed in Paris yesterday.

The commissioners are now proceeding with negotiations with a rapidity that is satisfactory to all concerned, but it is a physical impossibility for all of the subjects requiring adjustment to be closed up immediately.

Respecting the various matters that were covered by treaties by Spain which have been unsettled by the denunciation of those treaties at the beginning of the war, it is the present purpose to adopt the simple expedient of providing for the renewal of those treaties in general articles.

Nothing will be said, perhaps, in the treaty itself as to the institution of negotiations for new conventions, but at a convenient time such negotiations will be had, though it is not desired that the conclusion of the peace treaty be retarded by embarking at this time upon discussion of these complex and delicate questions.

Sampson Scores Shafter.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—Secretary Long yesterday made public a report from Admiral Sampson, in which the contentions between the admiral and General Shafter at Santiago are more fully set forth than they have previously been.

The admiral begins by attacking that part of Shafter's report in which he said that General Duffield, at the Aguadores rifle pits, was only able to hold his own against the Spaniards.

The admiral contends that there were only a handful of Spanish soldiers there and that his ships shelled the rifle pits several hours, driving the soldiers away.

This fact, he says, was signalled to General Duffield, who, in spite of it, replied that strong Spanish reinforcements had arrived.

The admiral declares that the bombardment of Santiago on July 2 served no particular end, because Shafter's attack had been postponed.

The admiral denounces as false the suggestion that the navy was unwilling to co-operate in forcing an entrance to Santiago. He says:

"I have been surprised to see published in the papers any statement of refusal on my part to endeavor to force my way into the harbor, and I cannot understand—in case the newspaper report be a truthful statement of what was sent by him—General Shafter's sending any report of this kind.

Continuing, the admiral said the navy "had been placed in such an invidious and false position before the country through the very unwise publication of General Shafter's telegrams" that he thought the matter should in some way be made clear to the public.

Carlists Very Active.

Madrid, Dec. 1.—The cabinet has considered the attitude of the Carlists, the repatriation of the Spaniards in the Philippines, and decided to continue the suspension of constitutional rights.

The minister of the interior, Senor Capdepon, in an interview, is quoted as saying that the Carlists have no chance of success. He adds:

"We are closely watching their proceedings in the Basque provinces, and in Catalonia and Aragon, and we are ready to repress the first sign of insurrection.

"Don Carlos only has a chance in the mountains of Catalonia, where the people suffered less during the last Carlist war. The Carlists are working desperately to win the support of some of our generals, but these attempts have failed. Not a single general has listened to their proposals."

South Carolinians Indicted.

Columbia, S. C., Dec. 1.—In the United States district court yesterday, upon indictments handed out by District Attorney Lathrop, the grand jury returned true bills against nine well known citizens of McCormick, S. C., upon the charge of conspiracy, the offense being the driving away from that town at the time of the recent Phoenix trouble of J. W. Tolbert, the husband and the assistant of the postmistress.

Ask your doctor how many preparations of cod-liver oil there are.
He will answer, "Hundreds of them." Ask him which is the best. He will reply, "Scott's Emulsion."
Then see that this is the one you obtain. It contains the purest cod-liver oil, free from unpleasant odor and taste. You also get the hypophosphites and glycerine. All three are blended into one grand healing and nourishing remedy.

FIGHTING EXPRESS COMPANIES.

Will Attempt to Compel Them to Pay War Stamp Tax.

St. Louis, Dec. 1.—Mr. William R. Corwine of the Merchants' Association of New York, who is here attending the Merchants' Anti-Scalping conference, tells of the crusade being made in New York to compel express companies to pay the war stamp tax.

"In addition to taking the question into the courts," Mr. Corwine said, "the association proposes to introduce and advocate a bill in the legislature this winter to place express companies under the control of the railroad commission of New York state and regulate their charges. The Merchants' Association will try to obtain the co-operation of every manufacturer and merchant in the state of New York and through them to appeal to the members of the Senate and Assembly to support the movement."

Mr. Corwine says that a project is being pushed rapidly into organization in the large cities of packing companies, virtually to take the place of express companies—not for making money, but to save it for merchants and others who are paying excessive express charges.

These new companies will accept packages for shipment which will be placed in large cases and sent to their destination by fast freight at about the same time made by express companies, with about half the cost.

Immense Iron and Steel Trade.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—One of the best indications of the great business prosperity of the country yet brought forward is furnished in the report of the United States Geological Survey, giving the steel and iron production of the United States for 1897. The activity of steel and iron foundries is always regulated by the general condition of the country and the fact that they did a bigger business in 1897 than during any previous year in the history of these industries is the best evidence obtainable that the nation is passing through an era of development and advancement.

The output of pig iron for 1897 was 9,652,680 long tons, which is the best record ever attained in this country, and which also eclipses the product of Great Britain for that year, which was 8,789,455 tons.

We made a material increase over the product of 1896, which was 8,623,127 tons.

The United States also passed Great Britain in the matter of the production of steel during 1897, our factories turning out 7,156,957 tons, against 4,585,961 for England.

The United States now leads all other countries in these two most important industries. The lead in steel production was only obtained through a great jump from the figures of 1896 which were but 4,927,000.

An Innocent Man Pardoned.

New York, Dec. 1.—After a year's imprisonment in the Tombs and a day in Sing Sing, to which he had been sentenced for ten years, on a charge of highway robbery, John Wallace of No. 111 Clinton Place, was released yesterday morning, having been pardoned by Governor Black.

Wallace was sentenced in December, 1897, to ten years in Sing Sing by Judge Cowing in general sessions, on conviction on a charge of highway robbery in the first degree.

He was accused of having been in a saloon in Clinton Place, with half a dozen other men, when William Loomis was beaten and robbed.

His counsel took an appeal and Wallace was detained in the Toombs pending the decision.

The case was allowed to drag until October of this year, when the court of appeals dismissed the appeal.

Assistant District Attorney Lebarbier then had the man taken to Sing Sing.

The district attorney had been informed that the man was undoubtedly innocent, and he and Judge Cowing made an investigation of the case, afterwards placing the facts before Governor Black.

Col. Roosevelt Snowbound.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Dec. 1.—Colonel Roosevelt had intended to go to New York yesterday morning, but when he drove to the station he found the railroad blocked by snow and travel temporarily suspended.

He was to have delivered a lecture in Boston last evening, but when he found that trains were not running he sent a telegram saying that it would be impossible for him to appear.

He also sent telegrams to several friends in New York telling them that he would not be in the city again until Saturday.

Another Mine Strike.

Massillon, Ohio, Dec. 1.—President William Morgan of the District Miners' Association, has issued a call for a convention of miners of four counties, to be held in Massillon on December 12.

This call, coming just after the meeting of the national officers of the union in this city, is causing local operators no little alarm and there are rumors of another strike.

THE DEATH LIST GROWS

FIFTY-SIX TOTAL WRECKS

The Victims of the Wreck of the Steamer Portland More Than 150, The Great Number of Minor Wrecks. Many Places Yet to Hear From.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 1.—The news of the loss of the Boston and Portland Steam Packet Company's steamer Portland off Cape Cod, and the death of more than one hundred and fifty persons, who, according to the latest reports, comprised the passengers and crew of the steamer, and news from other ports on Cape Cod, showing that at least thirty-five vessels were wrecked along that shore, with the loss of a dozen lives, have greatly increased the total of lives lost during Saturday evening's storm.

There are still other places to be heard from on both sides of the cape, which have not been reached by train on account of snow blockades, and are cut off from other means of communication by broken wires, blockaded highways and broken bridges.

Yesterday morning, while the total loss of life cannot be estimated with any degree of accuracy, it is known that more than two hundred persons perished.

This estimate is made on the basis of only one from each crew reported to be missing, and each of which would include at least three, while the large schooners would have seven or eight men on board.

Attempts to estimate the property losses sustained by shipping interests are equally difficult from the facts in hand, but it appears that the bulk of the damage was done between Cape Ann, where a score or more of vessels were lost, and Cuttyhunk, where the steamer Warwick is on the rocks.

From present reports it is known that fifty-six vessels have been totally wrecked, while forty-nine are ashore with hardly a chance of being saved.

Of the fifty-six total wrecks, barges not included, forty-three craft aggregate 12,202 gross tonnage. Of those in perilous positions twenty-eight aggregate 7,159 tons.

The stranding of the large Wilson line steamer Ohio and the ocean tug Tamaqua is not included in the estimate given, nor many of the big coal barges ashore in Boston harbor.

The position of the latter craft is now dangerous.

The number of schooners which have been driven ashore in fairly safe berths damaged by collision or dismasted, can be reckoned by the score, and many of them are likely to be included in the list of total wrecks before the day ends.

Ireland for the Philippines.

Rome, Dec. 1.—It is stated here that the pope intends to establish a papal nuncio in the Philippines and has summoned Archbishop Ireland to Rome to offer him the office.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 1.—Archbishop Ireland was seen at his residence yesterday afternoon and questioned respecting the report from Rome that he was to receive the offer of the post of papal nuncio in the Philippines. He said:

"I know absolutely nothing about it. I have received no such message or call."

"Do you think such a thing is in contemplation?" was asked by his interviewer.

"I think I have answered the question just as fully as it is possible to answer it," was the archbishop's reply.

Hoar Against the Treaty.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 1.—Senator Hoar has announced himself as positively opposed to the treaty which would acquire the Philippines. He said:

"We have not, so far, any news which is absolutely trustworthy of what they are doing in Paris. But if the report is true that it is proposed to buy of Spain the 'sovereignty of the Philippine islands,' and to pay twenty million dollars for it, I do not believe that such a treaty will be agreed to, and I do not believe it ought to be agreed to."

Mitchell After Sharkey.

London, Dec. 1.—Pony Moore, father-in-law of Charles Mitchell, the pugilist, has deposited two hundred pounds at the office of the Sporting Life to bind a match between Mitchell and Tom Sharkey for five hundred or one thousand pounds a side, and the best purse offered for the contest by any club in England or the United States.

It is announced by Moore that the match can be ratified immediately by Sharkey covering the two hundred pounds and forwarding articles for Mitchell's signature.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—Ex-Queen Lilioukalani has reached Washington and is at the Ebbitt House, where she spent last winter.

She is accompanied by Dr. English, her physician, and secretary; Mrs. Heleuhe, Miss McGuire and a maid.

She is here to present to Congress a claim to about one million acres of land in Hawaii.

Germany and Our Meats.

Paris, Dec. 1.—Professor Stiles, the scientific attache of the United States embassy in Berlin, is here for the purpose of consulting with Senator Davis in the latter's capacity as chairman of the Senate committee on foreign relations in regard to the pending bill in the German reichstag against the importation of American meats.

BOSTON PHYSICIANS TESTIFY.

War Investigators Taking Testimony About the Porto Rican Campaign.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 1.—The war investigating commission began its session at 9.30 o'clock yesterday morning and after a brief executive session Dr. J. Booth Clarkson of Boston, who went to Porto Rico as medical agent for the Massachusetts Volunteer Aid Association, was called as the first of the witnesses.

He noticed, he said, a shortage of supplies and of some medicines, but thought that the reason for this was that there were not enough transports. He thought that any neglect on the part of nurses was due to ignorance and not to wilfulness.

He recommended a change in rations for volunteer soldiers who go to the tropics and that they should not be called upon for any unnecessary labor.

Major Charles K. Darling of the Sixth Massachusetts volunteers testified that his troops sometimes lacked food, and said that he believed this was due to lack of transports and to bad roads in Porto Rico.

His command was transported from Charleston to Porto Rico on the Yale, and the major said he thought that that vessel was not fit to be used as a transport.

Lieutenant Jeremiah G. Fennessey, quartermaster of the Ninth Massachusetts volunteers, complained of a lack of transport facilities for the troops and for supplies at Santiago, and said that on the way home proper food was not provided for the men who were sick.

Dr. F. M. Johnson of this city, who attended Lieutenant William Tiffany of New York, who died in this city after his return from Santiago with the Rough Riders, on the Olivette, told the story of his patient's sickness and death.

He said that death was the result of protracted fever and starvation, explaining that by starvation he meant inanition.

The doctor believed that Lieutenant Tiffany either could not get proper food or else could not assimilate it.

Dr. Henry Lamont, surgeon of the Rough Riders, testified that Colonel Wood did not at first allow him enough nurses. He was also unable to get essential medicines on the start from Tampa.

He charged that the officers of the transport Yucatan, especially the captain, displayed a disposition to do as they pleased.

It was with great difficulty that he got his medical supplies on shore and to the front, because of a lack of transportation facilities.

Dr. Lamont said that great inconvenience was caused at El Caney battlefield by the lack of litters and ambulances, his application for which Colonel Wood refused to grant when the command left Tampa.

"When I was suffering from a wound and was a patient in the hospital at Siboney," said Dr. Lamont, "I did not receive proper attention, receiving no medicine in the six days that I was there. I came back on the City of Washington, which was not properly prepared for carrying sick men. There was not proper food for sick men and no medical stores. No medical officer had charge of the embarkation of the wounded men."

Likely to Become Very Bright.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 1.—Computations made at the Yale observatory show that the new Chase comet is about 230,000,000 miles away from the earth, or about two and one-half times as far as the sun.

It shows on the photographic plate some elongation. Its orbit corresponds with that of no periodic comet known, but whether or not it is itself a periodic comet cannot yet be determined, though it has apparently no connection with the Lenoid meteors.

The time of its perihelion passage is April 22, 1899, and it must constantly grow brighter until that time, and be visible for several months, possibly to the naked eye.

The computations at Lick observatory show that it is nearer to the sun than is shown by the computations at Yale, and if the Lick computations are correct the comet will be a very bright one.

The time of perihelion passage, as computed at both places, very nearly corresponds.

Defeated Candidate Weds.

New York, Dec. 1.—The wedding of Elliot Danforth, recent Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, to Mrs. Richard Mott Laimbeer took place at two o'clock yesterday afternoon in the parlor of the bride's suite at the Hotel Savoy.

Rev. I. M. Haldeman of the First Baptist church officiated.

The bride and groom took the Congressional limited for Washington. They will be gone about three weeks, visiting Atlanta, Asheville, Richmond, Raleigh and Savannah.

When they return they will give a reception in the public parlor of the Savoy, which they will make their future home.

New Torpedo Boat Failed.

Philadelphia, Dec. 1.—The official trial of the torpedo boat Mackenzie, which took place over the government course at Deepwater Point, below Wilmington, Del., was not a success and another trial will be made about December 10.

The contract for the Mackenzie calls for twenty knots an hour, but the highest rate attained on her full speed trial was 18 knots.

Improved Health of Soldiers.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—A great improvement in the health of the army has taken place within the last two months, as shown by the last reports of the surgeon general from the field and general hospitals.

ALDRIDGE MUST RETIRE

Gov. Black's Decision on Judge Countryman's Report.

CASE FOR THE GRAND JURY

Superintendent is Held Only Technically Responsible. About $1,000,000 Was Paid for Work Never or Partially Done. Assistant Engineers and Surgeons Were in League With Contractors.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 1.—Judge Countryman's report on the canals technically holds Superintendent Aldridge and State Engineer Adams responsible for the expenditure of about $1,000,000 which was paid from the state treasury on bills which either called for payment for work never performed, or for excavating rock instead of earth.

The payments for work not performed was made possible by the subordinates of the state engineer's department and the public works department swearing to bills which were false.

The heads of these departments in auditing bills were compelled to rely upon their subordinates as to the amount and quality of work accomplished, and it was contemplated by the law that they should so rely.

In any event it was a physical impossibility for either Mr. Aldridge or Mr. Adams to know that some of their subirdinates were in league with the contractors in swearing falsely to bills presented, and it is believed that any prosecutions which may follow the publication of Judge Countryman's report will not affect Mr. Aldridge or Mr. Adams but will rather seek to punish the assistant engineers and inspectors and contractors who originally certified to the bills submitted for payment, thereby misleading their superior officers, who were depending on them alone for the certification of the amounts due contractors.

Attorney General Hancock went into conference with Governor Black yesterday to consider what action should be taken on Judge Countryman's report. If the attorney general has his way the report will be held until he can determine in what direction any criminal action will lie against the cana' officers, from the highest to the lowest.

Governor Black said yesterday that it was a question whether the state superintendent of public works and state engineer should be held responsible for the acts of their subordinates, and that he was of the opinion at present that both should retire from office voluntarily pending a determination of Judge Countryman's findings by an Albany county grand jury.

Judge Countryman's Report.

Judge Countryman's report is voluminous in detail, containing more than twenty-four thousand words, and as soon as it was received by the governor from the attorney general it was made public.

Countryman's report and findings may be summarized as follows:

That Campbell W. Adams, the state engineer and surveyor, is guilty of malfeasance in office, and recommends that his case be presented to the grand jury for criminal prosecution by indictment.

That George W. Aldridge, the state superintendent of public works, is guilty, at least technically, of the misapplication of public money in unauthorized expenditures on canal contracts, and that his also is a proper case for presentation to the grand jury for criminal prosecution by indictment.

That some subordinates in the state engineer and the public works departments are guilty of illegal practices, but are not named, in the belief that they may condone, to some extent, their offenses by offering their knowledge to the prosecution, to be used against the principal offenders.

That at least one assistant engineer was dismissed for no reason except that he had refused to make a false return of work alleged to have been performed by a contractor.

That special oral contracts, amounting roundly to $825,000, were paid for under the original contracts without going through the form of a special contract or obtaining the approval of the canal board.

That the certification of the work done under these special contracts was, practically, a matter of compulsion upon the engineers on the several sections. Some conscientious men asked to be excused from certifying to them or to certify that "earth" excavated was "rock," or that the amount excavated was greater than it really was. Their requests were denied and they had to leave the service. If they did not do so voluntarily they were removed peremptorily.

Immediately on the receipt of these conclusions made by Judge Countryman, Governor Black directed Attorney General Hancock to proceed at once with the criminal prosecutions recommended. The governor designated Judge Countryman as an associate counsel in the proceedings, and requested Governor-elect Roosevelt also to name an attorney to assist.

Deadly Foot Ball.

Oswego, N. Y., Dec. 1.—Lying at death's door in his home in Pulaski, Oswego county, is Edward Doneburg, left half back for the Pulaski High School football eleven, whose spine was injured seriously in a scrimmage on Saturday, November 5, in a game between Doneburg's eleven and a team from the Oswego Normal School.

Physicians declare that Doneburg can live only a few days longer, and that even should he survive, he never will be able to use his limbs and will be compelled to spend the rest of his life in bed.

No Race Discrimination in Alton Schools.

Edwardsville, Ill., Dec. 1.—The jury in the Alton school case, after being out all night, returned a verdict yesterday morning finding for the defendant, to the effect that the negro school children of Alton were not discriminated against nor kept out of the public schools on account of their color

TROOGS FOR GARRISON DUTY.

Possible Result of a Speedy Regular Army Increase.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—If Congress early in the session should make provision for the increase of the regular army, it is quite probable that none of the volunteer regiments now in the service will be sent to do garrison duty in Cuba.

The troops first to be sent to Cuba will be composed largely of regular regiments so far as they are available. Plans are maturing for the muster out of as many volunteers now in the service as possible.

The demand of the enlisted men to go home and leave the service is growing greater and greater every day. This is true in nearly every garrison and the arrival of senators and representatives with requests for the muster out of regiments or men in the regiments has largely increased during the last three days.

It is well known that the volunteers at Manila desire to come home, and the war department is considering the question of sending regular regiments to replace these volunteers as soon as arrangements can be made.

There is a disposition to have the regulars recuperated and recruited to their full strength before sending them to Manila.

MORE GOLD IMPORTS.

A Million and a Quarter Dollars Taken in London.

London, Dec. 1.—More than seven hundred thousand pounds in German and American gold coin was withdrawn from the Bank of England yesterday, and of this two hundred and fifty thousand pounds was taken by Morton Bliss & Co., and the Chaplins for New York.

There is the greatest interest and discussion here as to the reason for this shipment to New York.

The question of a possible change in the discount rate of the Bank of England to-day mainly turns on whether this shipment is a special and exceptional transaction, or whether it is the commencement of a genuine demand. Some operators say that the gold is required for Cuba, as it is known that large amounts of gold have been shipped recently from Cuba to Spain.

Troops for Manila.

San Francisco Dec. 1.—General Merriam, in charge of the department of the Pacific, said yesterday in regard to the reported orders for sending regulars to the Philippines to relieve volunteers:

"The reports are based on a dispatch sent to Commissary Long to provide a full tropical equipment for six thousand troops. Long has already advertised for tents, and will soon let other contracts.

"Nothing official has come, however, to show the plans of the war department, but the inference is strong that a large force of regulars will soon be sent to Manila."

Still Fighting at Pana.

Pana, Ill., Dec. 1.—After fifty days' continuous night and day riot duty in Pana, Troop B of Bloomington, First Illinois cavalry squadron were relieved yesterday by Company K, Fifth regiment, of Delavan.

Desultory shooting continues nightly, the provost guard having but little success in effecting captures.

Another consignment of negroes has arrived. They were met at the train by a squad of soldiers, who relieved them of their arms before permitting them to march to the Springside mine barracks.

The white miners are remaining steadfast for the scale and union recognition. They received $1,600 yesterday from the state union.

Central American Troubles.

Washington, Dec. 1.—No official dispatches have reached Washington respecting the turbulent condition of affairs in Salvador and the presage of the dissolution of the newly formed "United States of Central America," contained in the reported refusal of Nicaragua to aid Salvador with her troops to suppress the rebellion.

Up to this point the United States government has not recognized the "United States of Central America," and the impression is growing that it will not be called upon to do so.

Colorado's Heavy Snow Storm.

Denver, Col., Dec. 1.—Advices received here are to the effect that the storm south and west of Denver is the worst known in years.

At Como the snow is between two and three feet deep and between Como and Leadville and as far as Gunnison ten feet of snow has fallen.

The South Park road is tied up and trains on the Denver and Rio Grande are greatly delayed. Snow slides are reported on all roads.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 1.—The Hon Timothy B. Blackstone of Chicago, who presented to the town of Branford a four hundred thousand dollar library, and one hundred thousand dollars for an endowment fund in 1896, has given the town one hundred thousand dollars more for a library endowment.

Navigation Closed at Montreal.

Montreal, Dec. 1.—Ocean navigation from this port has been closed for this season, the steamship Guildhall, with a large general cargo for Antwerp, being the last vessel to leave.

The Guildhall is a powerful steamer and well able to break her way out of the ice.

Austria and Japan.

Vienna, Dec. 1.—The upper house of the reichsrath has approved a treaty of trade and navigation between Austria and Japan.

The minister of commerce announced that the exchange of ratifications would take place to-day.

To Debate With Yale.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 1.—Debating circles at the university are jubilant over the practical certainty of a debate with Yale, to be held either in Milwaukee or Madison, probably Madison, some time this winter.

A Matter of Imagination.

The imagination is apt to play us tricks at times when we least realize it. Now there is no doubt but that, at times, an odor that is not pleasing to the nostrils rises from the sewer beds. The following paragraph from the Scientific American suggests, however, that it is possible that some of the terrible odors claimed to arise from the city sewer disposal beds may originate in the imaginations of those who distinguish them rather than in the sewer beds themselves:

At Stoke Newington, England, the local vestrymen recently rearranged part of the drainage system and constructed a ventilator in one of the streets. They failed to connect the ventilator with the sewer and quietly awaited developments. To their great delight the result was entirely satisfactory. Letters of complaint regarding offensive odors were numerous, and when public resentment reached a climax the local authorities complimented the writers on the strength of their imaginations.

At this season of the year there would be no improvement more welcome to the suburban population than the sight and privilege of using a monster bridge across the North river. The tedious ferry boats, plowing their way through fog, storm and ice, are everlasting causes of delays in arriving in New York in the morning and at home in the evening for the commuter element.

New Jersey discloses many curious things in the course of human events, and none are more odd than the report that comes from Burlington where a veracious newspaper chronicler avers that "John Wonderlin, nearly 100 years old, has committed suicide because he had outlived the natural span of life and nature wouldn't cut the thread for him."

As our thoughts turn to city election affairs we wonder if the soldiers who enlisted from Plainfield, and are now on their way to Cuba, are entitled to vote for municipal officers under the same plan as prevailed in the State and county election. So far as we know, if they are entitled to such suffrage, no provision has been made for sending their votes.

Did you ever notice that the biggest local advertisers in every line of business are the ones who complain least of poor trade. There's a healthy moral in that fact, and it doesn't need a chart to explain it.

Confident Citizens' party men predict that the Fourth ward will roll up 200 plurality for their men next Tuesday.

Today is the first day of winter, but the weather beat the calendar by five days.

THE ISLAND OF PANAY.

The insurgents under Aguinaldo have captured the island of Panay, the principal city of which is Iloilo, second only to Manila in the Philippines. The city was defended by 800 Spanish soldiers, but they could not withstand the insurgents. The American forces were restrained from interfering against the insurgents by the rules of war in force while peace negotiations are pending.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Senator Charles A. Reed, of Somerset, is making a canvass for the office of President of the Senate that has practically side tracked Senator Johnson, of Bergen, and caused the contest to narrow down to himself and Senator Ketcham. Mr. Reed is serving the last year of his first term as Senator, and expects a re-election. While young, he is regarded as one of the most able lawyers, debaters and parliamentarians in the Senate, and is considered by his friends as the one best equipped to handle an aggressive minority without friction. He served one year in the House of Assembly and made such a record there that at the conclusion of his term he was chosen to succeed Lewis A. Thompson, now Clerk in Chancery.—Newark Town Talk.

When he goes out of office Chancellor McGill will have served two terms, or fourteen years altogether. He was first appointed by Governor Green, and was reappointed by Governor Werts.

with the kid glove crowd. "I go with all the people," he said, "and if I am placed on the board of education, you will never have occasion to be ashamed of me."

Mr. Moy also spoke briefly, and urged all to support the Citizens' ticket.

There will probably be another meeting this week. Tonight the candidates will meet in W. S. Angleman's office for a conference.

CURRENT HUMOR.

"We are mad," exclaims the editor of a paper in the backwoods of Tennessee. "Darn the people! How can they expect us, out here, twelve miles from a railroad, twenty-five miles from a river, millions of miles from heaven, about two miles from the devil and about two hundred yards from a whiskey shop to get out a lively newspaper!"

"You was in the minstrel business, wasn't you, Mr. Marigold?" "Why, no, Johnny. What makes you ask that?" "Pa said that, if you could only be corked up, you wouldn't be such a bad sort of fellow."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Said the married man who likes to be sympathized with: "My wife is never happy unless she has a grievance." "How happy she must be!" said the pretty girl, and then the married man grew strangely silent.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"It's a cur'us fack," said Uncle Eben, "dat de man who is onwillin' to rest on Sunday is equally onwillin' to labor de yuthuh six days."

—The Republicans have arranged a little gathering for this evening, when the members of the city executive committee of the party will meet the candidates.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Marie Wainwright comes to Music Hall tomorrow night in "Shall We Forgive Her," a new English play that is highly spoken of. It comes from the Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York, where it was given for four weeks and attracted large audiences. The play is new to this country, although it is two years since it was produced in London, where it made an emphatic hit. It is a drama of domestic life, the chief scenes being laid in England, although the opening scene is in Australia. The story has to do with a woman whose early life has been marred by an alliance with a man who afterwards proves to be a scoundrel. Her efforts to right herself and her struggles to escape from what seems to be the Nemesis that pursues her make an interesting part of the story, which is said to be well put together and cleverly written. Marie Wainwright, one of the cleverest actresses in America, has made a great success in the leading role. Miss Wainwright has starred for years and is an actress of rare ability.

Washburn's Big Double Minstrel Company, who perform at Music Hall next Monday night, has met with unbounded success this season. They appeared at Johnstown, Pa., last month and the leading paper of that city in speaking of the performance says: "It was a very large and well pleased audience that greeted Washburn's white and colored minstrels at the Cambria Theatre last night. During the overture the members of the company won much hearty applause, the singing being particular pleasing. The comicalities of Law Benedict and Sam Horner are irresistible. Frank Hilliman, one of the vocalists, made a hit. He has a rich, pure voice, and he sang "Only Me" in a finished and artistic manner. Frank Berry, in his song, "Tell All the Coons Goodbye," was liberally applauded. In the specialty line the company presented several strong numbers. LeClair, the contortionist, gave one of the most wonderful performances ever seen on a stage. Frank Berry and Jack Hughes are a musical team very hard to beat. They made a pronounced hit last night. Eight colored members of the company, in buck and wing dancing, also won hearty applause. The performance concluded with the wonder of the age, the bioscope, the great projecting machine, showing mostly life like scenes of every day familiarity."

James K. Hackett, regarding whose engagement in this city in "Rupert of Hentzau," Anthony Hope's sequel to "The Prisoner of Zenda," much interest is felt, is quite the youngest star now before the American public. He is not yet thirty years old, but his dramatic future under Daniel Frohman's management seems at once secure.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

A good idea has been suggested in regard to cleaning cross walks. Instead of cleaning them just the width of the walk, clean a place six feet wide and then the walks will stay comparatively dry.

Alfred Pearsall's entertainment, which was to have been given in the Presbyterian church Tuesday night, was postponed indefinitely on account of the storm. There were only thirty present.

Captain William Thompson, who is so ill, has lost nearly 100 pounds in weight since his illness, having dropped from 200 to about 100 pounds.

John Eder, of Chicago, who has been visiting friends in the borough, has gone to Harrisburg where he will stop a few days on his way home.

William A. Cole, the coal merchant, has received a fresh shipment of coal, the cold weather having made business brisk.

Several of the young people were going on a sleigh ride last night, but deferred the fun until a better night.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, December 1.—Rev. Frank Fletcher will attend the one-hundredth anniversary of the Baptist church at Nannet, Rockland county, New York State, Sunday where he will make an address.

The exclusive story published in last night's Press concerning the Schuer family, eight of whose children are sick with diphtheria, caused quite a little talk in town last night. Several women have expressed their horror that such a state of things should exist and that human beings should be expected to live as that family are said to live, in two rooms away from every one, out in the country. Dr. Nelson, who is attending the children, says that there is no change. One of them had a bleeding at the nose Monday, which is a bad sign, but he thinks that with good care, and the application of good remedies, they will recover.

Some of the commuters who take the trains for New York every day, are finding fault with the recent change in the timetable because some of the trains which used to accommodate them have been changed.

Miss Cottrell spent yesterday in New Brunswick.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Dec. 1st—With no snow ordinance the sidewalks of Westfield are in very bad condition, and it is impossible to go far without getting into snow and slush up to one's knees. The crosswalks are also covered with snow, no cleaning having been done since the first fall Sunday.

Rev. James Danforth, D. D., the new pastor of the Congregational church, has moved into town and will occupy the pulpit at his new church for the first time Sunday morning.

The postponed entertainment and lecture for the benefit of the Westfield members of the 71st New York Regiment, will take place Saturday evening.

Wm J. Jones, formerly of this town, is now on the editorial staff of the New York Morning Telegram.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

"Madam, can I sell you this complexion wash?"

"No; I need a shampoo mixture, and I must save my money to buy medicine for this dreadful cold."

"This complexion wash is an excellent hair tonic, madam, and if taken in small quantities it will cure your cough."

"That may be, but it is such a light color it won't do for shoe polish. I guess I won't take any."

"Very well, madam, but step to the front door a moment and let me show you what a valuable oil you will find it for your bicycle."

"It really made me indignant, Henrietta," said Mr. Meekton, "when you intimated that I had not accomplished much in this life."

"Indeed!"

"Yes. I don't like to dispute your opinions. But to suggest that a man who succeeded in becoming your husband hasn't achieved much does seem just a little bit unjust."—Washington Star.

Mrs. Brown—I'm sure you have a good husband.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

Jewels Made from Alum.

A very pretty and amusing way of making jewelry to be used in the production of charades or in juvenile amateur theatricals is here shown. Dissolve a pound of alum in a quart of hot water and suspended in the saturated solution a crown or some other shaped form made of wire and covered with strips of flannel or wound with woolen threads. In order to obtain the very best results it is necessary to select a vessel of glass with an even, highly polished inside surface, which must remain undisturbed for twenty-four hours in a quiet place after the solution of alum has been poured in and the article to be covered with crystals has been suspended so long as to hang free in the solution without touching on any side. A cool room is preferable, for the crystals covering the wire will then be larger and more brilliant.

After remaining twenty-four hours in the solution the article, now covered with crystals, can be withdrawn, and will keep indefinitely in a dry place. The addition of some chemicals will result in very fine color effects; thus the use of iron alum will bring forth very fine blue crystals, and chrome alum equally fine yellow ones. The simplest additions for coloring the crystals, while not bringing about such fine results, are a few drops of ordinary blue-black writing ink or of a solution of litimus, which can easily be obtained in any drug store.—Indianapolis News.

Efficacy of Water Drinking.

A health expert claims drinking freely of pure water is a most efficacious means not only of preserving health, but often of restoring it when failing. The majority of people find it hard to realize that the body should be kept clean inside as well as outside.

Cleanliness of the tissues within the body is as necessary to health and comfort as cleanliness of the skin, and water tends to insure the one as well as it does the other. It dissolves the waste material which would otherwise collect in the body, and removes it in the various excretions.

These waste materials are often actual poisons, and their retention is the cause of many a headache, many rheumatic pains, many sleepless nights, and many attacks of "the blues." There has not been enough water in the body to wash them away, and consequently the system has become clogged and demoralized.

If these few facts about the importance of water to the human body were widely known and generally put into practice, they would do more to promote the health of the human race than all the drugs in the pharmacopoeia of the physician and the pharmacist.

Massage the Eyes.

"Whenever your organs of sight feel weak do not claw at them with the knuckles, so to express it. You must not massage your eyes the same way you would the stronger parts of the body. They need help from the hands," says Healthy Home, "but this help must be administered in a very gentle and delicate method.

"John Quincy Adams had a way of treating his eyes which, it is said, preserved their vision to old age without the help of spectacles.

"This was to place his thumb and forefinger each upon an eyelid and gently rub them toward the nose a number of times each day. The action encourages circulation of the blood in that locality, does away with the tiny spots that sometimes float before the vision, and prevents that flattening of the lenses which causes dimness of sight at a certain focus.

"It is wonderful how much good can be done the eyes of people of all ages by using this simple exercise ten or fifteen minutes each day."

Remedy for Poison Ivy.

In practice it is not desirable to use strong alcohol, which is apt to be too irritating to a sensitive surface, but a weaker grade of from fifty to seventy-five per cent. should be preferred. To this powdered sugar of lead is to be added until no more will easily dissolve. The milky fluid should then be well rubbed into the affected skin, and the operation repeated several times during the course of a few days. The itching is at once relieved, and the further spread of the eruption is checked. The remedy has been tried in a large number of cases and has always proved successful. It must be remembered, however, that the lead solution is itself very poisonous if taken internally.

Shield the Eyes of Goldfish.

It is not generally known, says the Rambler, that there is cruelty in the keeping of gold fish. Half of such captives die from sheer want of rest.

As fish have no means of shielding their eyes by a lid, they cannot endure continuous light, and suffer in a glass vessel, where they are entirely exposed, as is evident from the way in which they dash about, and go round and round, until fairly worn out.

This can be avoided by placing in the aquarium a grotto of rocks, or causing plants to grow sufficiently dense to allow the fish to hide their heads, at least, in the grateful shadow.

A Stylish Toilette.

A novel and handsome costume turned out recently by a well known dressmaker is of checked velvet in two shades of violet. The bodice is a sort of double breasted bolero, cut in an elaborate manner and fastening with two large jeweled buttons. This is outlined with plain satin and is worn over a vest and yoke of violet velvet, made with high crush collar. The sleeves also represent the elaborate scheme employed on the waist. A violet velvet toque adorned with a wired velvet bow and a fluffy plume completes this stylish toilette.

Buying Table Linen.

The young housekeeper buying her outfit of table linen will find it an economy to provide a generous supply of tray cloths and carvers' cloths. These for general use need not be embroidered, and are preferable, indeed, of hemstitched finish or fringed. They are a genuine saving to the large cloth beneath, and, being much more easily laundered, can be renewed with great frequency. It is the practice of an old housekeeper, who is an adept at fine hemstitching, to cut up the best parts of a fine tablecloth which shows signs of wear into a set of cloths. Where the art of such decoration is unacquired, the cloth may be neatly hemmed and finished with an edge of linen torchon.

To Clean the Bearings.

Many riders make the mistake of thinking that in order to clean out bearings it is necessary to take these to pieces. This is a most egregious error, and acting upon it nearly always causes more harm than good. Balls get lost or misplaced, and many accidents are clearly traceable to the tinkering with a machine indulged in by some incompetent person. Much the preferable plan is to fill the oil-can with kerosene, and thoroughly syringe out the bearings without taking them apart. A strip of soft cloth wound round the outside ends of the bearings will prevent the paraffin from running down the spokes, and making an unpleasant mess round the tires.

An Old Fashioned Stitch.

The old-fashioned cross-stitch, somewhat enlarged and done over a stamped design rather than on canvas, is very popular this season. A new floss, too, that is heavy and silken in appearance, but is not so expensive as the silk floss, is used to work out these simple but artistic and effective designs. In table-centers and tea-cloths the Oriental effects, new last season, are in still greater vogue. These cloths when circular have an inverted and broken scallop or scroll which is worked in a different but harmonizing color. A curious pattern seen on one such cloth strongly suggested a Turkish rug, the angular lines cleverly brought, however, into a circle.

Origin of the Barber Pole.

It was formerly customary for barbers to perform the minor operations in surgery, and it was usually to a barber that anybody wishing to be bled, applied.

To assist in the operation is was necessary for the patient to grasp a pole firmly in order to distend the vein in the arm from which the blood was to be taken.

When the pole was not in use it was placed outside the door as a sign that bleeding was done within.

Woman's Diet.

When her liver is sluggish and her complexion is not all that she could wish it to be, a woman will find a few weeks' diet an excellent means of restoration. If her nerves are run down, tea and coffee should be abjured for a while, and stimulants left severely alone. Plenty of oranges should be eaten, especially early in the morning.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Pennsylvania has begun the building of a new $500,000 State House, which she hopes to complete at a cost of not more than $3,000,000.

The Czar will notice that the United States understands the act of disarmament. After disarming Spain it is rapidly reducing its own military establishment.

Poor old Spain now proposes a national lottery as a means of replenishing her exhausted treasury. It is as if a father should seek to repair the fortunes of an impoverished family by asking his sons to join him in setting up a gambling establishment with themselves as the sole patrons.

A forestry department in Cornell University is to be given charge for thirty years of 30,000 acres of woodland in the Adirondacks. This is higher education of the most enlightened and practical kind.

The United States has sent to China, Japan and the Philippines an "Agriculture explorer," charged with arranging for the introduction in those regions of American agricultural products, especially butter and cheese. Our Indian corn missionaries have been a success, and the idea will bear enlargement.

The express companies have found it more profitable to own their cars and pay mileage for having them hauled than to use cars run by the railroads, and it seems as though the government should do the same thing. Then there could be no opportunity for the frauds which, it is alleged, are practiced by the railroad companies at each annual weighing of the mails in transit, the government would know definitely what it is paying for, and its payments to the railroads could be compared with charges made for similar services to individuals and corporations.

It is one of the contrasts of history that a suggestion looking to the gradual reduction of the armies of the great powers comes from the most despotic of them all, Russia, just at the moment that the most democratic, the United States, is about to largely increase its permanent military force. Yet it is easy to draw false conclusions from the coincidence and antithesis. It does not necessarily mean that the great absolutism is a friend of the cause of peace and the great republic its enemy. Nor does it, of itself, cast any doubts on the Czar's sincerity. Young potentates are often idealists and enthusiasts. Caligula, who, in the latter part of his reign, said he wished the people of Rome had only one neck, so that he could cut their heads off with one blow, was a liberal monarch at the beginning of his reign. So were his fellow-tyrants, Nero and Domitian.

The Editorial Association of the State of New York appointed a committee to confer with the Governor in regard to measures to end the illegal use of street and other cars for advertising purposes, which, it is truly remarked, is but one of the branches of a great evil. The association further says, and with perfect accuracy, that "The whole business of advertising by printed posters, defacing not merely the street cars but our towns and villages and the face of nature, is miscellaneously—vulgarizing the taste of the community and making all our public places hideous—is a direct diversion of legitimate business from the newspapers and magazines." It is added that in France and Italy a large sum is derived from a stamp tax on poster advertising, and that Congress makes a mistake by not including such a tax in the war revenue bill. All of which is quite correct. The newspaper men of New York will unite to put an end to a flagrant imposition on the public, and an aggressive raid upon a legitimate business.

Secretary Long and the technical experts of his department, in their desire to formulate a general policy of naval construction which shall enlist the prompt co-operation of Congress, have reached an agreement which should and doubtless will command the immediate and unquestioning support of that body. The Naval Board of Construction, acting under the direction of the Secretary, has unanimously decided that the battleships and cruisers hereafter added to the navy shall be at least equal to the largest and speediest vessels of their respective types in existence. The Board has therefore ordered that designs be prepared for three battleships, each with a displacement ranging between 13,000 and 14,000 tons, with a speed of not less than nineteen knots an hour. In addition to these, it proposes the building of three first-class cruisers, each with a displacement of 12,000 tons and a speed rate of not less than twenty-two knots. It also recommends the building of additional cruisers, like the Olympia, of Admiral Dewey's fleet, but with a greater speeding capacity, together with others of smaller type, having a displacement of 2,500 to 3,000 tons.

Berlin. In der Reichshauptstadt sind jetzt alle öffentlichen Gaslaternen mit Auer'schem Glühlicht versehen. Wie groß diese Umwälzung ist, geht daraus hervor, daß die ersten etwas zaghaften Versuche mit Gasglühlicht erst im Jahre 1895 unternommen worden sind, und daß es in Berlin über 20,000 öffentliche Laternen mit über 25,000 Flammen gibt. — In diesem Wintersemester haben sich an der hiesigen Universität 160 Frauen einschreiben lassen. Der Nationalität nach gehört die größte Mehrheit dem preußischen Staate an. Es studiren nicht weniger als 102 Preußinnen; aus dem übriger Deutschland widmen sich nur eine Sächsin und eine Mecklenburgerin dem Studium an der Berliner Universität.

Mittenwalde. Ein seltenes Schauspiel bietet gegenwärtig der Schenkendorfer Grund. Dort steht seit mehreren Wochen das Torfmoor in Flammen. Mehr als ein Morgen ist bereits in Asche verwandelt. Während meist nur eine dichte Rauchwolke die Gegend erfüllt, schlagen hin und wieder auch helle Flammen aus dem Erdreich hervor, und aus entfernter liegenden Mäuselöchern steigt der Rauch wie aus Schornsteinen auf.

Züllichau. Mittelst einer aus Jerusalem datirten Kabinettsordre hat der Kaiser bei dem siebenten Sohne des Steinsetzermeisters Wilhelm Faustmann dahier Pathenstelle angenommen und die Eintragung des kaiserlichen Namens in das Kirchenbuch genehmigt.

Lehe. Bei der hiesigen Matrosen-Artillerieabtheilung wird eine Stammkompagnie für Kiautschau gebildet. Dieser Tage wurden 65 Ersatzrekruten und 50 Dreijährig-Freiwillige eingestellt. Nach beendigter Ausbildung sollen sie nach Ostasien in See gehen.

Osnabrück. Bei der Station Greven fand man die Leiche eines Holzschuhmachers, der zuvor sich auf einer Hochzeit befand, vom Zuge überfahren. Es liegt, den näheren Umständen nach, ein Verbrechen vor. Der Holzschuhmacher soll getödtet und die Leiche nach der That auf die Schienen gelegt worden sein, um die That zu verdecken.

Frankfurt. Der 39jährige Fuhrknecht Jordan hatte sich auf eine Anzeige des Gendarmen hin vor Gericht zu verantworten, weil er auf seinem mit Backsteinen beladenen Wagen während der Fahrt geschlafen hatte. Er wurde deshalb zu 3 Mark Geldstrafe verurtheilt und ging dann fort, um noch eine Fuhre Backsteine abzuliefern. Seiner Gewohnheit gemäß legte er sich auf das Fuhrwerk und schlief wieder ein. Dabei fiel er vom Wagen, die Räder gingen ihm über die Brust, und drei Stunden nach seiner Verurtheilung war der schlaftrunkene Fuhrmann eine Leiche.

Provinz Pommern.

Stettin. Nachdem sich die Stadt Grabow und die Gemeinden Bredow und Nemitz für die Eingemeindung in die Stadt Stettin unter den von dieser aufgestellten Bedingungen erklärt haben hat sich der Magistrat nunmehr ebenfalls für die Eingemeindung der drei Gemeinden bereit erklärt. Ferner haben die Gemeinden Pommerensdorf und Züllchow der königlichen Regierung den Wunsch zu erkennen gegeben, ebenfalls Stettin einverleibt zu werden.

Swinemünde. Wegen unbefriedigten Ehrgeizes hat sich der Kand. phil. Walter Zielke aus Berlin das Leben genommen. Er war hier unter dem Namen „Dr. Sigurd Henrichsen aus Bremen" abgestiegen, hatte sich im Hotel durch Revolverschüsse in den Kopf getödtet und war auch unter dem falschen Namen beerdigt worden. Da man aber zuletzt in seine Angaben Zweifel setzte, so photographirte man seine Leiche und konnte so seine Persönlichkeit ermitteln.

A TRAPPIST ABBOT.

FATHER OBRECHT CONSECRATED AT GETHSEMANE ABBEY.

But Two Trappist Monasteries in the United States, One in Kentucky and the Other in Iowa—Habits of the Monks—The Burial Service.

With the impressive ceremonies that accompany an event so rare, Right Rev. Edmund M. Obrecht, O. C. R., recently received the solemn blessing that accompanies the consecration of an abbot of the monastery of Gethsemane. Right Rev. William George McCloskey, D. D., bishop of Louisville, presided over the ceremonies and conferred the blessing, assisted by members of the Catholic clergy and monks of the abbey. The ceremony began at 9 o'clock, in the large chapel connected with the abbey and did not reach an end until after noon.

The procession was headed by all the monks, chanting a Latin hymn. Following came the five visiting abbots, all but one coming from abroad. Next was the bishop of Louisville, who followed the new abbot. The abbot prostrated himself before the bishop and offered the customary two lighted candles and two measures of wine. He was then given his ring of authority, the miter and the wooden crosier of the Trappist band, the ring signifying the wedding to the monastery, the crosier the staff of the shepherd. When he had assumed the full robes, the abbot ascended the throne, where the monks filed by, each kissing his hand. Then came the celebration of pontifical high mass. Father Edmund is the third abbot of this monastery to be consecrated in the United States since its foundation in 1848.

There are but two monasteries of this (the Trappist) order in the United States—this one at Gethsemane and the other called New Mellary, near Dubuque, Ia. As long ago as 1775 a Trappist colony was established in Kentucky, but it was not until 1848 that the present abbey of Gethsemane was erected in the hills of Nelson county, 48 miles from Louisville. It is an offshoot of the famous abbey of La Meillerage, in France, and the cowled monks whose first footfalls broke the silence at Gethsemane came direct from there.

Gethsemane is a little world in itself. There are about 1,700 acres of land in the domain, this land being under cultivation. Within the stone walls that surround the buildings and the property all that is needful for the wants of the hundred or more monks is raised or made, so that they are practically independent of the outside world, and these wants are severely simple. One meal and one lunch satisfy their wants. With the sun they retire to rest or meditation. There is no converse between them at any time, and many among them are said to have almost lost the power of speech through long enforced silence.

The daily routine of the monk's life is interesting to read about, yet it seems monotonous enough. He rises at 2 a. m., goes to chapel and chants his breviary until 4 o'clock. Then follow private devotions, and at 8 a. m. breakfast. He works in the fields or vineyard until 11 o'clock, then stops for a three hours' rest, which in summer usually includes a nap. Work is resumed until 6 p. m., when lunch is served. Then comes an hour of leisure, followed by devotion, and at 8 o'clock he retires. His is a peaceful, silent life, with ample leisure for reflection.

When the end comes for one of the brothers—as it comes for all men—it is not an occasion for sorrow, but rather for rejoicing that the earthly pilgrimage has ended and heaven has been won. At the obsequies all attend, dressed in white robes and cowls. No coffin is used, but with a spotless white robe for a winding sheet the body is committed to Mother Earth, the grave is marked with a small black cross and the solemn faced brothers who have just covered the body of the dead at once mark off the space for the next grave. It is not true that the monk day by day and inch by inch digs his own grave, as has been asserted in several books written about Gethsemane, but it is a fact that when one grave is filled the next is marked off.

Of course, many romances, many life tragedies, attach to these recluses buried from the world, but their lips never reveal them. One story that has an element of sadness is told of Father Joseph, whose last resting place is marked by the customary black cross. He was known among men as Lucien Marius Colliere. He was a designer at Bern, Switzerland, but poetry and music drew him away from the more prosaic pencil. Next he shone in the gay salons of Paris as a singer. Then he became a star in grand opera. He left France and came to New Orleans, where he sang in French opera. Then he went to Cincinnati, New York and Louisville, where he taught drawing and music. At last, his wife dead, his daughters in a convent, he sought refuge in the monastery at Gethsemane. Father Joseph at one time numbered among his pupils Nellie Grant, now Mrs. Sartoris.—Special Washington Post.

The New General of the Olivetans.

As the serious illness from which the Most Rev. Father Seriolo, general of the Olivetan congregation, has long been suffering places him in the impossibility of attending to the arduous duties of his position, the holy father by a decree of the sacred congregation of bishops and regulars has appointed Very Rev. Father Benedict Benedetti of the monastery of Settignano, vicar general of the Olivetans. Father Benedetti is well known and universally beloved in his order, having already occupied several important posts with great credit. He has a special talent for sacred oratory, to which he has almost exclusively dedicated himself, and many striking conversions are attributed to his eloquence and fervor.—London Catholic Times and Opinion.

CHILDREN AND PRAYER.

How Parents Should Teach Their Little Ones to Pray Aright.

Most children are apt to perform the duty of prayer in a careless, superficial manner which is owing to their natural giddiness and inattention to everything serious. Wherefore it is the duty of parents to teach them how to pray. They should instill into them a high idea of this essential duty and show the necessity of it from our total dependence on God as to the goods both of this life and the next. For example, let them often say to their children: "We must never forget to pray to Almighty God, because he is the giver of all good gifts. It is he alone who can supply us with all things necessary both for soul and body." At other times: "We can never arrive at the eternal happiness of heaven unless God help us by his grace. Now he will help us by his grace if we ask it by humble and fervent prayer."

Let them often admonish their children of their duty when going to prayer as follows: "Remember you are now going to speak to God himself, the sovereign Lord of heaven and earth. See that you do it with great reverence, modesty and attention." In order to impress on the minds of children a due sense of the presence and majesty of God they must first say their prayers aloud, in a mild, humble and moderate tone, upon their knees and with downcast eyes and their hands joined, and they should never be allowed to huddle over their prayers as is often the case, nor to look about here and there while saying them.

After prayer, say to them occasionally: "Did you think on Almighty God? Was your heart raised up to him, to adore him, to praise him and to beg his blessings? Without attention your prayers, instead of pleasing God, will only offend him." Parents should, as much as possible, hear their children say their prayers morning and night, and in hearing them should not be employed about the business of the house.

If they cannot themselves perform this duty, they ought to intrust it to such servants only as are truly pious and who will see that the children perform it in a proper manner. It cannot be expected that children should be duly impressed with the importance of this duty if allowed to perform it in a careless manner, or if they see their parents equally indifferent about so essential a point.

EMPEROR WILLIAM'S GIFT.

The sultan recently presented to the kaiser the house which, according to tradition, was the abode of the Blessed Virgin Mary. The emperor subsequently presented the same to the German Catholics. Emperor William telegraphed to the holy father, Leo XIII, on the occasion:

"I am happy to be able to inform your holiness that, thanks to the benevolent intervention of his majesty the sultan, who has not hesitated to give me this proof of his personal friendship, I have been able to acquire at Jerusalem the abode of the Holy Virgin. I decided to place this ground, consecrated by so many pious memories, at the disposal of my Catholic subjects. It rejoices my heart to be able thus to prove how dear to me are the religious interests of the Catholics whom Divine Providence has placed in my care. I beg your holiness to accept the assurance of my sincere attachment."

Sonnet on the Portiuncula.

Over the signature of Blanche Lindsay the following sonnet on the Portiuncula has appeared in The Athenæum. The Portiuncula, or "little portion," was a name very dear to St. Francis, who loved to think of this spot as the little portion which God had from all eternity assigned to him:

O little house within a house of prayer—
Thyself a sanctuary! We softly tread
Thy time worn floor. We stand with bended head
Before thy walls where every stone's more rare
Than precious gems, for living pilgrims there
Have planed it smooth with kisses. Lies he dead,
Or lives he yet, Assisi's saint who led Christ's barefoot band the Master's toil to share?
Here oft spake Francis, and his voice yet rings
That called the swallows "little sisters dear."
Hard by his cell with memories teems, and near
Is the gray cave which saw him weep and pray.
Where his soul wrestled, to the rosebush clings
A stain of blood, as though of yesterday.

Catholic Notes.

The pope has sent the Emperor Francis Joseph a Latin ode, in which he expresses his horror at the assassination of the empress.

The Right Rev. W. B. Kelly, bishop elect of Geraldton, is the first native of Western Australia to be elevated to the episcopate.

The Rev. J. Anatole Police, who died recently in Pittsburg, was the priest from whom Cardinal Manning took the temperance pledge.

Prince Philip, a cousin of the present chancellor of the German empire, has found admission to the Benedictine monastery of Seckau, in Styria, where he is now plain Brother Constantine.

Archduchess Gisela of Austria, wife of Prince Leopold of Bavaria and eldest daughter of the murdered Empress Elizabeth, will be the recipient of the pope's golden rose this year.

Father Francis Barnum, S. J., former missionary to the Indians in Alaska and now librarian of Georgetown university, has been appointed lecturer in history of the postgraduate course.

Cardinal Lucido Maria Parocchi, who is mentioned as one of the most probable candidates for the papal chair, was once a journalist. It is related of him that he could take the pith out of 100 exchanges in an hour, and that, in spite of this rapid, diagonal perusal, nothing of any importance escaped him.

NEW YORK LETTER.

Special Correspondence.

New York and all its surrounding territory is now bottle fed. The "dipper" has vanished. Even milk is now served in glass jars. There is nothing about which the New York board of health is more particular than the city's milk supply. The benefit of this stringent supervision is shown in the lower death rate and the lessening of those diseases of which bad milk is so fruitful a source. No one can sell milk in New York without a license from the board of health. Every wagon distributing milk must show conspicuously the number of the dealer's license. If stopped by one of the numerous inspectors who roam about at all hours of the day and night, and the milk fails to come up to the legal standard, the milk is poured into the nearest sewer and the dealer is at once arrested. Heavy fines and forfeiture of the license to sell may follow. The magistrates have no mercy on this class of offenders. Dealers have been made to see that it does not pay to sell adulterated or impure milk. The experience of the milk supervisers here leads them to approve of the bottle system of delivery as the cleanest and safest method. An advocate of the return to the ancient "dipper" plan would be regarded as quaintly archaic in his ideas. The whole trend of the business now is to have the bottle brought directly from the farm. The bottling has mainly been done at the wholesale depots. Milk bottles are washed several times; first by the householder, then twice at the dealer's, where special steam appliances have been invented and are used for this purpose. The latest bottle discards the old-fashioned tin lid. In its place is one of vitrified ware with a paper cap under it that keeps the mouth of the bottle clean and airtight. An ordinance prohibiting the distribution of milk in glass jars would fill New York with amazement even with all the queer things we do here in disregard of public health and comfort.

The Aquarium at Castle Garden.

One of the most popular places in New York, although it is rarely noticed in the newspapers, is the Aquarium, which occupies the old Castle Garden, in the Battery. Here, between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m., there is a constant stream of men, women and children, passing in procession before the countless specimens of the fish tribe from almost every quarter of the globe. It seems a pity that the hours the Aquarium is kept open are so short. Thousands of people who might otherwise be glad to visit the collection are prevented from doing so by reason of the limited time. No stranger to the city should fail to visit this attractive place. There is no other fish collection equal to it in this country, except, perhaps, the one in Washington. Whatever may be the evils of the "paternalism" that provides these places of entertainment for the people at the expense of the city treasury, there is certainly no other investment of public funds that yields so large a dividend of public pleasure and instruction, except, of course, the money that is spent on the public schools. The Aquarium, the Art and Natural History Museums, the parks, the playgrounds for children, the free baths, the recreation piers, roofed over and opened as breathing places for the inhabitants of the crowded tenement houses, the Botanical and Zoological Gardens that are to be, and the great public library, which only awaits the official action of the Board of Estimate, all free gifts of the people to themselves, serve to make life in the city broader, happier and safer. The city money that is put into them is as well spent as if put into aqueducts and docks.

Cornelius Vanderbilts.

The name Cornelius in the Vanderbilt family has not been attended with great fortune when handed down from father to son. Cornelius I. was father of thirteen children, one of them being Cornelius II., who inherited but a small portion of the Commodore's millions because the latter regarded him as a youth of narrow intellect. He was nearly disinherited, as a matter of fact, and the larger part of his fortune was derived from his brother, William H. It appears now that Cornelius III. has disinherited his son, Cornelius IV., not on account of mental weakness, but for, to the father, good and satisfactory reasons, no matter how the world may view it. There is a diminutive Cornelius V., who, to follow precedent, must have his share of paternal dislike.

On the other hand, the sons of the Corneliuses who have not borne that name, and the Corneliuses who have been sons of other sires than the Corneliuses, have led an entirely satisfactory line of existences. Note, if you please, William H., son of the Commodore, Cornelius I.; Cornelius III., son of William H.; Alfred, son of Cornelius III. It would appear fateful to the Vanderbilt family for Cornelius to succeed Cornelius.

Wanted To Make It Reach.

He was a genuine son of Ireland, and as he worked painting the fence his face wore a troubled look. Suddenly a smile shot across his countenance, and hastily dipping his brush into the paint pot he began to paint faster and faster.

"Why are you painting so fast?" asked a bystander. "You're in a rush all of a sudden to finish the job."

"Sure, an' thot's all right," was his reply. "I haven't much paint left, an' it's finishing the job I'm afther before it's all gone."—Philadelphia Call.

WINNIE DAVIS' SUCCESSOR.

By the recent death of Miss Winnie Davis, Lucy Lee Hill, of 101 Lincoln Park Boulevard, Chicago, becomes the only daughter of the confederacy, by reason of a preferment formally bestowed upon her four years ago at Birmingham, Ala. The daughters of the two great confederate leaders were the only children thus honored.

Miss Hill is the daughter of the late distinguished General A. P. Hill, goddaughter of General Lee and niece of General John Morgan. Her father was killed while crossing from one wing of his army to the other. His body was recovered by General Lee and hastily laid in an ambulance. His wife and two babies were seated beside him, and went through all the horrors of that awful retreat from Petersburg. The oldest child had scarlet fever, and Mrs. Hill held her out of the door of the ambulance while a surgeon on horseback lanced her throat, a scar she proudly displays to her friends.

But through all the misery and discomfort of the journey little Lucy Lee Hill never uttered a murmur, and in her infancy met disaster as bravely and uncomplainingly as she has in later life. She is a beautiful and accomplished woman, and her name is being prominently mentioned as one of the women commissioners to the Paris exposition.

At the southern camp fires of confederate veterans this fall Miss Hill will wear the most unique ornaments that ever graced a woman's toilet.

The set consists of necklace, bracelets, earrings, breastpin, cuff buttons and comb made of buttons cut from the garments of former confederate officers.

The gentleman who owns them has spent years collecting his treasures and every button has its historic value. Each one is a souvenir of a brave man and has been baptized in the lifeblood of the wearer.

He recently wrote Miss Hill offering her the use of them at special reunions, as he knew of no woman more worthy to christen them than the fair daughter of his old commander, General Hill.

They are beautifully set and linked together with gold, the cross on the necklace and the comb being artistically designed of vest and coat buttons.

HOUSE ON A FIVE FOOT LOT.

Four Stories High and Less Than a Yard for Inside Space.

Philadelphia may not be able to boast the tallest buildings in the world, but she surely has her share of the narrowest. On the corner of Chestnut and American streets is located a building that at first glance would seem to reflect seriously on the sanity of the projector, but the multitude of prosperous tenants form a monument to the financial shrewdness of the owners.

From outside to outside of the walls the structure is exactly five feet wide. It is 150 feet deep, and there are four stories. Every room in it is occupied by a shop of some kind or by families, who seem to be contented with their lot. The walls are over one foot thick, and this leaves less than one yard for the inside space. Therefore, it is a physical impossibility for the tenants to occupy a full sized bed. If they desire to sleep it must be on a cot, and the sleeper extends his body from north to south. Among the numerous industries in this contracted building are a tailor shop, a restaurant, a printing office, a sign-painting establishment and a cigar store.

Another narrow building is at Market and Letitia streets. It is five stories high and six feet and three inches wide. In its original state this building was six feet wider than at present, but a city improvement cut it down to the present size.—Philadelphia Record.

An Intelligent Mule.

For more than ten years a very sensible mule has been working in the mines near Blossburg, Ala. He will pull his usual load of six cars of coal from bottom to top without a murmur, but if you put on an extra car he will kick and bray and refuse to go until relieved. When the cars are unloaded at the top he will always mount an unloaded car and lie down to ride to the bottom of the slope, a distance of half a mile. On one occasion as he was drawing up a load a train of empty cars got loose and went down the slope at a break-neck speed, and the men thought the mule would be killed by the collision, but as the empty cars were about to rush on him he jumped on the first one and rode back to the bottom with the whole train.—New York Tribune.

BOUND BROOK PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH 210TH ANNIVERSARY.

Appropriate Services Held in the New Church Yesterday Afternoon and Evening—Historic Address by Pastor.

Bound Brook, December 1.—The two hundred and tenth anniversary of the Bound Brook Presbyterian church was celebrated in that church yesterday with appropriate exercises. Services were held in the afternoon and evening.

At the afternoon service, Rev. T. E. Davis, pastor of the church gave a historical sketch, telling of the early history of the church, how it was formed by the exiles from Scotland and France and first ministered to by Rev. Mr. Romine in 1688, who died in 1742. Rev. Israel Read was pastor from 1750 to 1794. There were eleven pastors in all, who were briefly referred to by Rev. Mr. Davis.

At the evening service addresses were made by several of the "Sons of the Church." They were Rev. Dr. N. H. VanArsdale, one of the editors of the Christian Intelligencer; Rev. Dr. Joseph S. VanDyke, formerly of Cranbury, N. J.; Rev. James W. VanDyke, for many years a missionary in Siam and now pastor at Stockton, N. J., and Rev. Peter G. Hegeman, pastor of the Reformed church of Middletown, N. J.

The present new edifice is the fifth one that has been used by the congregation in its long history. The first was merely a log but in the wilderness.

WOODEN WEDDING.

Pleasant Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Boice Last Night.

The fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Boice, of Washington avenue, was celebrated last evening in a pleasant manner, when about one hundred of the relatives and friends gathered to join in the festivities of the occasion. The bride and groom were showered with the best wishes of all, and everyone brought a useful or ornamental present as a token of esteem for the popular couple. During the evening there was vocal and instrumental music, games were played and the guests listened with pleasure to an exhibition of a gramaphone, while not the least of the features was the dancing, which was indulged in by a large number of those present.

At midnight the host and hostess provided a bountiful supper for their guests, and after the inner man was attended to, dancing was resumed until nearly 3 o'clock, after which the guests departed leaving their wishes for many happy returns of the event.

An enjoyable part of the affair was the congratulatory speech made by Rev. B. W. Hand. He spoke words of wisdom and good advice to the bride and groom, and the remarks were loudly applauded by all. Guests were present from New York, Brooklyn, Newark, Somerville, New Brunswick, Bound Brook and Plainfield.

Among the handsome gifts received was a large chiffonier from the firm of Woodhull & Martin and the employes of the store, where Mr. Boice is employed. The gift is thoroughly appreciated by the recipients, as were all the other presents.

DIED OF HEMORRHAGES.

Louis E. Burgmiller, of Berkeley Heights, Died This Morning.

Louis E. Burgmiller, of Berkeley Heights, died this morning from hemorrhage of the lungs. His death is startling to his friends because he was in his usual good health up to yesterday noon when he was in consultation with the principal and one trustee of Berkeley Heights School about the propriety of closing the school, as one of the scholars had died of diphtheria.

After the departure of the School Board he was suddenly taken with a hemorrhage of the lungs. Dr. Wescott, who was at once called did what he could to relieve him.

Mr. Burgmiller was born in Germany about sixty-two years ago, coming to this country when a young man.

—Tomorrow afternoon the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church will meet at 3 o'clock and an interesting Thanksgiving programe has been prepared for the meeting.

DAUGHTERS OF '76 MEET.

Miss E. Ellen Batcheller Talked of for the Next State Regent.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Dec. 1.—The general fall meeting of the New Jersey Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution was held in the Y. M. C. A. building yesterday. There was a large representation.

The response and welcome from the Trenton Chapter was by Mrs. Isaac Weatherby. Miss Anna Beaston, of Camden, spoke of the value of colaboration of men and women in patriotic movements. Miss Josephine L. Baldwin, of Nova Caesarea Chapter, Newark, read a paper on "Non-Combatant Heroes of the Revolution."

A brief paper on "The Washington Memorial Association," prepared by Mrs. Washington A. Roebling, was read by Mrs. Charles B. Yardley, and a paper entitled "The Legend of the Wissahickon" was read by Mrs. Hughes Oliphant.

An elaborate luncheon was served in the banquet hall of the Trenton House.

There is considerable discussion among the members over the successor to Mrs. Depue as State Regent. The consensus of opinion is that Miss E. Ellen Batcheller, regent of General Frelinghuysen Chapter and vice-president of the Revolutionary Memorial Society of New Jersey, will be the next State Regent.

The Regent will be named in Washington when the National meeting is held in February.

Good Goods, Well Advertised.

Going the rounds of the press is an item stating that the Royal Baking Powder Company is the largest advertiser in America. Of course, the business itself must be an enormous one to justify so great an expenditure in publicity. There is no fallacy more dangerous than that success can be gained by advertising an article of indifferent merit. But, given an article of the highest quality like Royal Baking Powder, which when the housekeeper has once used she finds if she desires the best food she cannot do without, then the greatest measure of success is attained by keeping it continually before the public. Great merit and good advertising are both essential to make a product a great success. The Royal Baking Powder possessing the first, its proprietors have wisely used the second, and the result is apparent throughout the land. The Royal company believe that there is no medium for advertising like the newspapers, since in these enlightened days everybody reads them. c

FOR VISITORS IN MEXICO.

A Few Points Worthy of Note to the Traveler.

Don't attend bullfights on Sunday and then find fault with the morals of the native populace.

Don't buy a rubber plantation of a man on the street. He also has gold bricks that come cheaper.

Don't sit in Mexican draughts. Don't cash American drafts. Both are dangerous south of the Rio Grande.

Don't expect your meals to be put on the table all at once or twice or three times. Each thing you order will be served as a separate course.

Don't forget to shake hands with your Mexican friend, both at meeting and parting, no matter how often you meet or how brief the interview may be.

Don't try to convince the Mexican that they don't know how to make coffee. They have been burning it for several centuries, and the present generation prefers it black.

Don't think the newsboys are crazy when they offer you "to-morrow morning's paper" at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. It isn't their fault. The afternoon papers are dated a day ahead.

Don't try to convince an Indian street pedler that if a dozen bananas sell for 12 cents, two dozen ought to amount to 24 cents. You can't do it. He knows that one real is 12 cents, but two reals are 25 cents, and eight make a dollar.

Don't expect an appointment to be kept on the minute or the hour. If your Mexican friend should rush past half a dozen friends on the street without stopping to shake hands and pass the compliments of the day, they would think he had lost his mind and his manners; so you must wait.—Modern Mexico.

"IT WON'T HURT."

A Vast Difference When the Old Doctor Was at the Other End of the Knife.

The old doctor was very irritable if a patient made an outcry or bother over the lancing of a felon. "Put your finger down there," indicating the edge of the table, "and keep still!" he commanded; and truth to tell, patients, as a rule, make little fuss.

Time passed on, and in the mutations of life Dr. S. had a felon on his left forefinger, and it was a bad one. He poulticed it and fussed with it for about a week, and walked the floor with pain at night. At last it became unendurable, and he went to his assistant surgeon and said, nervously:

"I say, doctor, will you take a look at my finger?"

The assistant surgeon looked, and remarked gravely, "That ought to have been lanced before."

"Possibly—but——" said Dr. S.; and then, with a long breath, "Perhaps you'd better lance it now."

"Certainly," said the assistant surgeon. "Put your finger on the table."

Doctor S. complied, and with a face as white as paper watched the knife. "Be gentle," he cautioned; "that's an awful sore finger!"

"It won't hurt," remarked the assistant surgeon, and the sharp steel descended.

There was a howl of agony from Doctor S., and with his finger in his other hand he danced about the room crying, "Oh! oh! oh!"

"Why," remarked the assistant surgeon, "I have heard you tell patients hundreds of times that it didn't hurt to lance a felon."

"No doubt, no doubt you have!" groaned Doctor S. "But that depends on which end of the knife a man is at."—Youth's Companion

SPECIAL BUYING and EXTRAORDINARY PRICE CUTTING in

at 214 W. Front St., Plainfield, N. J.

Clothing manufactures are compelled to confess from the weather standpoint that October and a part of November has been a serious disappointment to them. They counted on cold weather to create a demand for the surplus stock they had made up. From two manufacturers we were able to buy a large stock of winter suits, overcoats and trousers at about 40c. on the dollar for what they could ordinarily make the goods for. It is an ill wind that blows nobody good. The present cold weather brings you now at the proper time for your winter clothing at cut prices that you could otherwise not secure and for the values read them careful they are worthy of anyone's attention for we can say without contradiction, that strictly high-class, well-made and absolutely first-class suits, overcoats, ulsters and reefers for men and boys', were never sold at such prices at any other store in all the land.

ILLNESS AND HUNGER AWAIT THEIR VICTIMS.

The First Was the Mother Who Died Yesterday.

THEY LIVE IN A COTTAGE.

IT WAS OBTAINED THROUGH KINDNESS OF MR. NIXDORF.

Father and Three Children Are Very Ill—Exposure and Lack of Proper Nourishment the Cause—Neighbors Have Been Kind to Them—No Physician—Roads Impassable With Snow.

The moon's silvery radiance lights up the scene. There, surrounded on every hand by the undulating plain of snow, stands a little cottage looking dark and grim against the whiteness of the surrounding landscape. There is no sound save the rattling of the bare limbs of the great oaks not far away. Out through the queer panes of glass in the window, some are missing and the opening left has been filled with paper and rags, looks a man with pale and haggard face. It is Lemuel Jackson, who has made a hard fight against sickness and starvation. It has been a hard struggle and he is slowing losing ground. But for his neighbors, Jackson and his loved ones would have fallen victims long ago. Yesterday, his wife gave up the fight and passed away.

Jackson once lived in New Providence. While never wealthy nor anything approaching it, he had enough to live on, and when he married a fair country maid his prospects were bright. Things have changed lately, Jackson's prospects lost their brightness. He began to sink deeper and deeper into the horrors of poverty. Illness came and he could not work.

George N. Nixdorf, the overseer of the roads in Morris county, who is also a man of kindly nature, had charge of a small farm near Union Village and gave Jackson permission last summer to live in the little farmhouse. Jackson moved his family, which consisted of a wife and three small children, into the house, which is really only a small cottage of a few rooms. It answered the purpose, however, and protected Jackson and his little ones from the fury of the elements.

Even with a roof to shelter their heads, the Jackson family were little better off and the gaunt spectre began to haunt the place once more. Then the neighboring farmers came in. While many of them had little to spare, they gave willingly what they could and drove away hunger. Something to eat and something to wear were left there and Jackson continued the battle. Another kindly hearted old man brought a load of wood for the use of the unfortunates.

Now, however, the crisis of it all is at hand and Jackson's thin face has assumed a look of dispair. He is so ill that he is bearly able to move about. Exposure and lack of proper food and rainment is the cause. The three little children, they look more like living skeletons than human beings, are also ill. They are too young to aid the father even if they could.

Mrs. Jackson has been ill for many weeks. Of late she grew rapidly worse. There was little in the surroundings to aid her in battling against disease and weakness. The neighbors saw that she was beyond what simple remedies they had to offer. A physician was needed badly. Then came the blizzard that blocked all the roads in that vicinity. None of the neighboring physicians could reach her on account of the drifts in the road that made them impassable. It was with difficulty that any of the interested neighbors could reach the place.

Another appeal was made for a physician, but without success. Yesterday the dying mother breathed her last. As there was no physician present during the illness there will probably have to be an inquest.

Father and children are growing weaker and weaker every day. The poormaster of New Providence township was appealed to and today he will take Jackson and his children in charge. They will probably be conveyed to the poorhouse, where they can be cared for better than at their present home.

MAY NOT GO TO CUBA.

THIRD REGIMENT MAKES PREPARATIONS FOR A WINTER CAMP.

It is Reported That the Next Move of the Third Will be Back to New Jersey to be Mustered Out of Service.

The Third New Jersey is still at Camp Haskell, Athens, Ga., and information from there indicates that there will not be an early start for Cuba. The winter preparations for the camp have not ceased, and there is a rumor that there is to be a change in the brigade arrangements.

It is quite probable that the next move of the Third will be back to Jersey to be mustered out. News from Washington is to the effect that the Administration has decided to send as few volunteers as possible to Cuba in the near future, the hope being that Congress will promptly act on the President's forthcoming recommendation for a large increase of the regular army. If favorable legislation is passed very soon, it is probable that none of the volunteer regiments now in the service will be sent to do garrison duty in Cuba. The troops first to be sent to Cuba will be composed largely of regular regiments so far as they are available. Plans are maturing for the muster out of as many volunteers now in service as is possible.

The demand of the enlisted men to go home and leave the service is growing greater every day. This is true in nearly every garrison, and the arrival of Senators and Representatives with requests for the muster out of regiments or men in the regiments has largely increased in the last three days.

PIGS AND HENS TO BLAME.

They Cause Neighbors to Quarrel and Go to Court.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, December 2—The differences between Clarence Hallett and Frederick Crouse, two neighbors, broke out again a few days ago, and Tuesday resulted in a trial at New Brunswick, in which Crouse sued Hallett in tort for $60 damage done to his garden by Hallett's pigs.

The trouble between these neighbors began last summer. Crouse keeps chickens and Hallett keeps pigs. The two men live so close together that the pigs and chickens visited back and forth. Crouse's chickens would go into Hallett's garden and scratch up the radishes, turnips and beets, and Hallett's pigs would creep through a hole in the fence and root around among Crouse's vegetables.

It got so after awhile that there was a regular feud between these men. They refused to speak, and finally it ended by Hallett suing Crouse before Justice Storms for the damage done by the chickens. This case came up last week and the jury couldn't agree on a verdict, so the case will have to be re-tried.

Crouse's suit against Hallett was held yesterday and Crouse was more fortunate than Hallett, for he secured a verdict for $10. Now that the gardens are gone the excursions of the pigs and chickens will do no harm, but the two men have gone to law and there is no telling where they will stop. Justice Wm. Newcorn, of Plainfield, represented Hallett.

OUR LOCAL CANADA A MANY-SIDED SUBJECT.

Discussion About Consolidating City and Borough.

BOARD OF TRADE FATHERS IT

BUT THEY ARE UNABLE TO GET A QUORUM OF COMMITTEEMEN.

An Informal Meeting Held in the Board of Trade Rooms Last Night—Former Mayors Gilbert and Saunders Believe in Making the Consolidation Even if the County Lines are Not Changed.

An attempt was made last evening to hold a meeting of the joint committees from this city and the borough who have under consideration the subject of annexing the two places, but the attempt failed on account of there not being a quorum present. Messrs. Alex. Gilbert, Charles A. Reed, Wm. L. Saunders and Editor Runyon, together with Lawer Harry C. Runyon, comprised a list of those present, and when it was learned that nothing definite could be done, a discussion of annexation was indulged in, during which many suggestions were offered whereby it was thought that the desired result could be brought about.

This idea was evident, as a result of the discussion, that annexation is a thing that has a political phase to it. There is an opinion among the commuter element of the city and borough that if the two places should be annexed they would then be able to control the politics of the place.

It was stated that annexation could only be brought about properly by having the county lines changed by the Legislature. Those present who favored annexation without a change of the lines gave out the impression that the arrangement would be so unpleasant to the majority that the Legislature would be besieged with petitions to change the lines.

It was said that with annexation accomplished and no change of county lines, the affairs of the city and the borough would be carried on exactly as they are now. All cases of appeal in legal matters across the brook would go to Somerville as they do now, and from this city they would go to Elizabeth as at present. No claim could then be made for a district court.

If Plainfield should go to North Plainfield it is likely that Somerville would make a big kick, for it would mean a loss of power to that county seat, and then again they are afraid that they would lose the county seat.

If consolidation was accomplished it is proposed to have three wards across the brook and five wards in this city. Some of these wards would have to extend across the brook to give satisfaction. If they did not there would be constant friction as to representation.

One thing in favor of annexation for Plainfield is that it would give this city a bigger repreeentation in county politics.

REFORM CLUB ELECTION.

Determination to Conduct Club Affairs on Better Business Basis.

The annual meeting of the Reform Club was held last night at which officers were elected as follows for the coming year: President, William C. Smith; first vice-president, M. F. Markley; second vice-president, Michael Armstrong; recording secretary, J. Q. Miles; financial secretary, B. W. Hand; treasurer, J. D. Spicer.

Mr. Spicer, who was elected treasurer, agreed to accept the office if the affairs could be conducted hereafter in a systematic, business-like way.

There was a discussion about renting out the hall to different organizations. Mr. Smith said that $1 a meeting was just what it cost the club to heat and light the hall, and that they couldn't afford to rent it out for a cent less than that sum.

The new officers will be installed in office at the next monthly meeting, which will be held the first Thursday in January. At that time the executive and auditing committees will be appointed.

Runaway Boy Heard From in Cuba.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Roselle, December 2.—Early in October a young man residing in this place, named Charles Westerberg, suddenly disappeared. He was attending school at the Plainfield High School and used to commute every day as do several other Roselle lads. Only recently his family have heard from him. Westerberg is now in Cuba as a soldier in the United States Army. When he ran away he went to New York and enlisted and was sent to Cuba. He is reported to be in good health and enjoying himself.

CHATTED AND SIPPED TEA

AND INCIDENTALLY ASSISTED TREASURY OF WOMAN'S EXCHANGE.

Guild Room of Grace P. E. Church Tastefully Decorated for the Affair—Mrs. O. T. Waring Gave a Talk.

The guild room of Grace P. E. church was the centre of attraction yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock, when the members of the Plainfield Woman's Exchange gave a social tea and sale of cakes, fancy articles and dainties. The rooms were prettily arranged for the event, and during the appointed hours there was a large attendance of members and friends of the exchange.

Tea was served during the afternoon and those who poured were Mrs Hugh Hastings, Mrs. Frank Bushnell and Mrs. Thomas Minford. They were assisted by Miss Stephanie Krom, Miss Maude VanBoskerck, Miss Lizzie VanBoskerck, Miss Minnie Wood and Miss Clara Finley as waitresses.

Mrs. Howard Tracy had charge of the fancy work and she was assisted by several members of the exchange. The department of dainties were in charge of Mrs. Lemuel W. Serrell, assisted by Miss Yerkes, Miss Boice and Mrs. Craig A. Marsh.

Those present availed themselves of the opportunity to purchase articles and thus help the excellent work of the exchange along. During the afternoon, the president, Mrs. O. T. Waring, gave an informal talk of the work of the exchange for the past six months, and a report of the money received from all sources was read as follows:

Fancy work, $339 36; preserves, $43.63; pies, cakes and bread, $1,706.06; maple syrup, $2.50; consignors' tickets, $26.80; employment bureau, $1.80; trip tickets, $82.40; telephone, $7.90; package sales, $12.65; ice cream, $3.20; commission from a member, 82 cents. Total amount received from all sources, $2,227.12.

This report is considered to be an excellent one, inasmuch as it represents the dullest part of the year, February 1st to August 31st. The sales in the fancy work department during the past four months have doubled the figures given above, and in the other departments greater things are expected. There are now 78 members in the exchange and about 63 consignors. The management want it distinctly understood that every consignor is a person who is worthy and needs the revenue received from contributing to the exchange. Commencing December 9th and continuing for three weeks there will be a Christmas sale, and the patronage of the Plainfield people is solicited.

BEEF COMPANY WINS.

Justice Mosher handed down his decision yesterday in the case of the Union Beef Company against Mrs. Henry Ruppert. Mrs. Ruppert was sued by the Beef Company for about $125 for meat. Murphy & Blatz represented the plaintiffs and Codington & Swackhamer appeared for the defendant. Their defense was that Mrs. Ruppert was not responsible for the bill, as her husband carries on the business. The plaintiffs claimed that they charged the meat to Mrs. Ruppert because they would not give credit to her husband, who then asked them to trust his wife. Justice Mosher sustained Murphy & Blatz.

"FROM SUNSET RIDGE."

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe's New Volume of Poems to be Issued.

The many personal friends of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, of Boston, and friends of her daughter, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Madison avenue, will be interested in the announcement made by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., in their holiday calendar, that Mrs. Howe has gathered a volume of her poems under the suggestive title of "From Sunset Ridge." The book notice says of this volume that it may be regarded as her poetic legacy to mankind. It opens with her majestic "Battle Hymn of the Republic," followed by poems previously published and many not before included in any book.

Consultation of Physicians.

Mrs. Rudolphus MacDonald, of East Front street, who is detained to the house by illness, has invited a consultation of a Newark physician with Dr. Zeglio, the attending physician. Her illness is not of a serious nature, but it is thought best to examine thoroughly into her illness. The consultation will be held today.

TROLLEY MAGNATES MET CITY OFFICIALS.

Important Conference in Mayor's Office Last Evening.

THE MAYOR WAS PRESENT.

NO ACTION TAKEN, BUT CONFERENCE WAS SATISFACTORY.

Street Committee Met Messrs. Riker and Serrell—Transportation Committee of Board of Trade Arranged the Conference—Its Chairman, E. M. French, Present—Ordinance Will be Introduced.

The project to extend the lines of the Plainfield Street Railway to Scotch Plains is not dead. On the contrary, there is every prospect that the Common Council will again be asked to grant the required franchise on terms more satisfactory to the citizens of Plainfield than those of the first attempt.

Last night there was a conference of the interested ones in behalf of the movement. It was brought about through the transportation committee of the Board of Trade of which Elston M. French is the chairman. The conference was held in the Mayor's office. The city of Plainfield was represented by the members of the street committee, Councilmen E. T. Barrows, chairman, John VanHerwerden and J. F. Buckle. On behalf of the Plainfield Street Railway, Chandler Riker, of the firm of Riker & Riker, of Newark, one of the principal stockholders, and L. W. Serrell, Jr., were present. E. M. French was in attendance as representing the Board of Trade. During the conference, Mayor Fisk dropped in and took part in the discussion.

Nothing definite was done at the conference. It really was nothing but a discussion and the exchange of opinions on the part of the city and railroad officials. Nothing was given out for publication, but it was learned on good authority that the Street Railway Company will go forward in its attempt to get the franchise. There is no doubt but that the city will be accorded better terms in the new franchise that the street committee is framing. Mr. VanHerwerden, as leader of the opposition to the old franchise, will strongly object to anything that does not grant the city its rightful demands. After the expression of opinion by the citizens at the last hearing there is no doubt but that the other members of the committee will also insist on better terms.

It is likely that the ordinance granting the franchise will be introduced Monday evening on terms agreeable to both sides, if the rumors of last night's meeting are true.

Councilman Barrows, when interviewed this morning by a Daily Press reporter, refused to say anything of what was done last evening, except that the result was very satisfactory to the committee and to the city.

SOCIABLE AT PARSONAGE.

Members of Ladies' Aid Society Entertained Congregation of M. E. Church.

There was a gathering of the congregation of the First M. E. church at the parsonage on Central avenue last evening at the sociable given there by the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church. The rooms of the parsonage were crowded with old and young and a delightful evening was passed.

A programme was rendered during the evening and was much enjoyed. It opened with a vocal solo by Mrs. E. T. Douglass. Then followed a violin solo by Clarence Mills, accompanied by Miss Gertrude Sharp. Miss Susie Davies read several selections from the works of Eugene Field. After another solo by Mrs. E. T. Douglass, it was announced that J. W. Jackson would give a solo and the audience was requested to join heartily in the chorus. It proved only a novel manner of asking for a collection, but was effective and a goodly sum was taken. Charles H. Lyman acted as master-of-ceremonies.

The affair was arranged by a committee composed of Mrs. W. C. Snodgrass, chairman; Mrs. D. E. Davis, Mrs. G. H. Whitney, Mrs. Charles H. Lyman, Mrs. N. W. Pike, Mrs. L. M. French and Miss Susie Jackson.

Passed Resolutions of Condolence.

Wednesday night there was a meeting of the K. A. E. O. at which a committee, composed of Will N. Runyon, Clarence Teel and Frank Smith, drew up a set of resolutions of condolence to be sent to the family of the late City Judge DeMeza. Another committee was appointed to make arrangements for a banquet to be held soon.

HIGH SCHOOL IMPROVED.

STUDY OF LATIN TO BE STARTED EARLIER.

Will Be Taught in First Grammar Grade—Class Started This Week by Mr. Meredith—A Coming Improvement.

The Plainfield public schools have long been pointed out through the State as being among the best of which Jersey can boast. A high standard is maintained here and every effort is made to constantly improve the present system. Another notable improvement was tried for the first time Wednesday.

According to modern school methods, it has been found very advantageous to take up the study of Latin early in the course of the public school pupil as being of particular advantage to him or her in connection with their other studies. Heretofore Latin has been first taught at the Plainfield High School in the Fourth class, or first year of the High School. A class has now been started among the members of the first grade below the High School, commonly known as the First Grammar or High School preparatory. Wednesday morning, Mr. Meredith, one of the High School instructors, gave a class of thirty their first instruction in the subject. The class is composed of those who intend to enter the High School next year and take up the classical or general course.

At present, plain geometry is only taught in the Senior year. Solid geometry and trigonometry have not been taken up. In the modern High School course, both of the latter subjects are considered part of the regular instruction and it will probably only be a matter of a few months before a change is made in the Plainfield High School criculum and these two subjects added. Geometry will then be started at an earlier point in the course.

THE SAME MAN.

Plainfield Offender and Vineland Robber Answer Same Description.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Vineland, N. J., Dec. 2—The authorities here recently arrested a colored man who gave the name of Ward Hamilton. He is now in jail under eight charges of robbery. Upon him, when he was arrested, was found a collection of original stories in manuscript portraying tramp life.

His discription answers to that of a colored man who was arrested in this city over a year ago for vagrancy. This man was committed to the county jail by Judge DeMeza for a term. He was very impudent to the Judge, and received a heavy sentence as a consequence. When he was searched a great mass of paper, covered with closely written matter, was found stored away on his person, which, when read, proved to be a long account of a tramp's wanderings. The matter read like a romance, and was well composed. The police think that he and the Vineland robber are the same man.

Combined Business With Pleasure.

There was a regular business meeting and social of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church last evening at the home of Mr and Mrs. D. M. Runyon, of Arlington avenue. Mrs. W. S. Lowry, president of the society, was in charge, and the first half of the evening was devoted to a general committee conference, in which work for the winter months was planned. The last half of the evening was devoted to transacting routine business, after which refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed by all.

Scenes of the Cuban War.

H. Theordore Chamberlain gave a series of stereoption views on the the Cuban and Civil wars last night in Washington Hall, under the auspices of Martha Washington Council, No. 23, D. of A. Mrs. Tillie S. Riker was chairman of the entertainment committee, which was a successful one. The views were fine and seemed to be enjoyed by the audience very much. The prize, consisting of a $2.50 gold piece to be given to the one holding the lucky admission ticket, was won by Mrs. Fred G. Walsh, the lucky number being 112. After the entertainment was over a dance was indulged in.

Entertainment Repeated.

Last evening at Grace M. E. church there was a repetition of the entertainment given last week under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church, and the attendance was equally as large. The entertainment passed off without a hitch and was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present.

CITIZEN CANDIDATES HELD A CONFERENCE.

Talked Over Their Chances of Being Elected.

ALL WERE CONFIDENT.

BELIEVE THAT A MAJORITY OF THEM WILL BE ELECTED.

Gathering Held at Office of W. S. Angleman—Lasted Until Midnight—All Candidates But One Present—Plans Laid for the Few Days Remaining—Citizen Will Appear Again Monday.

The leaders in the Citizens' movement are quite confident now that a majority of their candidates will be elected. While they consider it rather too much to say that they will elect everything, they are hopeful of doing so and certain of a victory if not a complete one.

Last night the candidates met in the law offices of Winfield S. Angleman on East Front street to talk over the campaign and lay plans for the few days that remain. The conference began at 8 o'clock and it was midnight before the gathering broke up. All the candidates except J. B. Mills, candidate for Councilman in the Second ward, were present and advised their colleagues of what they had done to advance the ticket.

Considering the odds that they had to work against, they considered the progress made very satisfactory. All were cheerful and hopeful of a successful finish of the campaign.

As the conference was held behind closed doors and those present are reticent about saying what happened, it is difficult to find out exactly what plans were laid. The Citizen will make its appearance again Monday with a new load of arguments and will be distributed broadcast. There will be workers and carriages at every election district. The campaign funds of the Citizens' are low but what there is will be used carefully.

One of the prominent candidates present at the conference last evening, said that it was merely a gathering of the candidates to talk over the campaign. It was practically the executive committee of the Citizens' movement, he explained.

FOUR HOURS IN A DRIFT.

Unpleasant Experience of Max Wiertz and Frank Linke While Sleighing.

Max Wiertz and Frank Linke had an unpleasant experience in the snow Tuesday morning. They were out sleighing in a cutter near South Plainfield, when in crossing the country from South Plainfield to Ellis Campbell's, they struck a drift and got caught in the snow.

It took the men four hours to get out of the drift with their horse and sleigh, and when they were finally out they were so wet and tired that they had to go into Campbell's and change all their clothes before they could proceed home.

Died at Her Brother's Home.

The death of Madame K. H. Daux, formerly of Paris, occurred last evening at the home of her brother, W. W. Howland, 76 Rockview avenue, after an illness of pneumonia. Mrs. Daux has been residing with her brother for several months past, having come here from Paris, where she resided for twenty years. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the home of W. W. Howland. Interment will be at Tarrytown, N. Y.

Want the Walk Cleared Off.

Complaint is made by people who have occasion to use the sidewalk on East Front street, between Leland avenue and Terrill road, because it is at present drifted waist deep with snow and no attempt is made to shovel a path through. Fanwood township has scraped the sidewalks from Terrill road to Scotch Plains, and made a good, wide path, and they think that the Plainfield officials should do as well and clean off their walk.

Will Hold a Mock Trial.

A meeting of the Plainfield Law Debating Society was held Wednesday night at which it was decided to hold a mock trial next Wednesday night at J. P. D. Kirch's law offices. Mr. Kirch will act as judge. The case will be one on contract in which the parties will be Willie Nash and Charles McCann. Edward Bellis will act as attorney for the plaintiff and Edward Duck for the defendant.

Col. Scott Has Recovered.

Col. Julian Scott, of West Front street, was discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital today, where he has been under treatment for pneumonia. The many friends of Mr. Scott were glad to greet him when he appeared on the street.

PECULIAR POISONS.

GENERATED IN THE HUMAN BODY.

The Result of Imperfect Digestion of Food.

Every living thing, plant or animal, contains within itself the germs of certain decay and death.

In the human body these germs of disease and death (called by scientists Ptomaines), are usually the result of imperfect digestion of food; the result of indigestion or dyspepsia.

The stomach, from abuse, weakness, does not promptly and thoroughly digest the food. The result is a heavy, sodden mass, which ferments (the first process of decay), poisoning the blood, making it thin, weak and lacking in red corpuscles; poisoning the brain, causing headaches and pain in the eyes.

Bad digestion irritates the heart, causing palpitation, and finally bringing on disease of this very important organ.

And this is so because every organ, every nerve depends upon the stomach alone for nourishment and renewal, and weak digestion shows itself not only in loss of appetite and flesh, but in weak nerves and muddy complexion.

The great English scientist, Huxley, said the best start in life is a sound stomach. Weak stomachs fail to digest food properly, because they lack the proper quantity of digestive acids (lactic and hydrochloric) and peptogenic products; the most sensible remedy in all cases of indigestion, is to take after each meal, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they supply in a pleasant, harmless form all the elements that weak stomachs lack.

They increase flesh, insure pure blood, strong nerves, a bright eye and clear complexion, because all these result only from wholesome food well digested.

Nearly all druggists sell Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at 50 cents full sized package or by mail by enclosing price to Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., but ask your druggist first.

QUAY TO STAND TRIAL

All Motions Against the Several Indictments Dismissed.

CASE TO BE CALLED DEC. 12

Judge Finletter at First Refuses Counsel's Request for More Time, but Reconsiders His Decision. The Defendants Were Not in Court.

Philadelphia Pa., Dec. 2.—Judge Finletter in the court of quarter sessions yesterday overruled all the motions of objection entered by defendants' counsel to the five indictments found by the grand jury against United States Senator M. S. Quay, his son, Richard R. Quay, and ex-State Treasurer Benjamin J. Haywood.

The defendants were not in court, but Rufus E. Shapley, their senior counsel, on announcement of the decision of the judge, moved the court to instruct the clerk to enter pleas of not guilty.

This being done, District Attorney Graham stated that the commonwealth was ready to proceed to trial at once and asked the court to fix an early date for the trial.

Mr. Shapley stated that the books and accounts presented at the magistrates' hearing were voluminous. These matters ofevidence, he and his colleagues had not had an opportunity to examine. They desired to have an expert go over these accounts carefully before they would be ready to combat the allegations of the commonwealth, and he asked that a date not earlier than December 12 be fixed.

He said, furthermore, that his colleague, A. S. L. Shields, had an important case in the United States court on Monday next which would probably occupy his time several days. He would, therefore, be obliged to conduct his trial alone should the date be fixed for next week.

Judge Finletter in reply to Mr. Shapley stated that he would treat this case as that of any other ordinary criminal proceeding on the docket, and he could not therefore grant the time asked for by defendants' counsel.

He had intended fixing Monday next as the date for the trial, but in deference to Mr. Shields's personal engagement on that day he fould appoint the following day, Tuesday, December 6, for the opening of the trial. He stated that he considered that ample time for the counsel to prepare their defence.

Four of the five bills of indictment found by the grand jury charged the defendants with conspiracy to misuse the funds of the state on deposit in the People's Bank for their own benefit and profit, and the fifth indictment charged Benjamin J. Haywood with illegally loaning one hundred thousand dollars of the state funds over which he had control.

Demurrers were entered by counsel last week to the first four indictments, but Judge Finletter declared these demurrers not sustained.

A motion to quash the fifth indictment was also overruled by Judge Finletter.

Judge Finletter later in the day reconsidered his decision and fixed Monday, December 12, as the day for the trial.

The Gould Blackmail Case.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 2.—The defence opened its case yesterday in the trial of Mrs. Margaret E. Cody for an alleged attempt to blackmail George J. Gould and Helen Gould.

Mrs. Cody was placed on the stand and testified that the effort to prove that marriage had taken place between Mrs. Sara Ann Brown Angel and Jay Gould in 1853, was not the result of a conspiracy on her part.

She said that she had first learned of it in the Rocky Mountain News of Denver, Colorado, where she resided in 1894. She was employed as a detective by Mrs. Pierce, who was the supposed daughter born of the marriage.

She also testified that the letters written to George J. Gould and Helen M. Gould in 1896, on which the indictment was based, were not written for blackmailing purposes.

The Maria Teresa Inquiry

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 2.—Captain Chittenden, chief of the wrecking force; John Johnson, expert; Captain Davis and John Lindenblock, engineer, all employes of the Merritt Chapman Wrecking Company, testified yesterday before the court of inquiry into the loss of the Infanta Maria Teresa as to how the cruiser was abandoned.

The investigation is dragging along slowly, and the findings of the court may not be announced for several weeks.

Naval Constructor Hobson, Lieutenant Commander Harris and Lieutenant Blow have not yet testified.

It is reported that the Merritt Chapman Wrecking Company has closed a contract with the government to raise the Spanish vessel Reina Mercedes, sunk at Santiago, and that an expedition will soon sail for that point.

Increasing Money Supply.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—The monthly statement of the comptroller of the currency shows the total circulation of national bank notes on November 30, 1898, to have been $242,702,028, an increase for the year of $13,152,331, and for the month of $3,155,757.

The circulation based on United States bonds was $213,928,343, an increase for the year of $12,192,971, and for the month of $3,883,087.

The circulation secured by lawful money was $28,773,495, an increase for the year of $959,360, and a decrease for the month of $727,320.

Cubans Starving by Hundreds.

Havana, Dec. 2.—Hundreds of persons are dying of starvation in Havana province, and in the towns of Casilda, San Antonio, Rio Blanco, Jibacoa and Guanabacoa the situation is pitiful beyond description.

Food from the supply vessel Bratten has been delivered at Bariano, Matanzas and other places, but the supply is not adequate by far. More supply ships are urgently needed.

SEVENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY.

The Monroe Doctrine Celebrates Its Third Quarter of a Century.

Washington D. C., Dec. 2.—It was on December 2, 1823, that President Monroe, after long and heated cabinet debates, in which the immortal John Quincy Adams, the secretary of state, took no small part, sent to Congress the famous message which promulgated what has since that day been known as "The Monroe Doctrine."

It was in 1822 that the president recognized the independence of Mexico, and also the provinces in South America, formerly under the dominion of Spain, and to emphasize this action, in his message of December 2, 1823, he promulgated the policy that the people of the United States should not suffer themselves to be entangled in the broils among European nations, nor permit the powers of the old world to interfere with the affairs of domestic economy of the countries of the new world.

JAMES MONROE.

He declared that "any attempt on the part of the European powers to extend their system to any porion of this remisphere would be regarded as dangerous to our peace and safety, and would accordingly be opposed." This utterance has always been accepted by the American people as an unwritten but vital law for their guidance.

"It is not alone a written statute nor a section of the international code that governs or conrols the destinies of a great nation," says Lawyer Frederic R. Coudert. "The Monroe doctrine has not been incorporated in the code, but there is an unwritten law, the first article of which provided that self defence is always legitimate, either for the individual or the nation. The American people have been educated by practice and principle to believe that when they were started as a nation there were two cardinal principles which they must observe and support if they proposed to govern themselves as George Washington and the founder of the republic intended that they should.

"The first of these cardinal principles was that we should not interfere in the internal and interminable broils among European nations concerning their domestic affairs, or international quarrels. This principle has been strictly adhered to, despite the many provocations for a different course of procedure. The second principle laid down by the founders of our republic was that no European nation should be permitted to compromise our national tranquility by seizing territory or increasing its territorial possessions in the new world. The Monroe doctrne, as enumerated by the fifth president of our republic is a simple assertion o the instructions of our forefathers.

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

"The fact is that though the Monroe doctrine is an unwritten law, being uncodified, it has become part and parcel of our foreign policy, and during the seventy-five years since it was uttered the American people have grown accustomed to consider it as sacred as the national constitution. It may, therefore, be considered a traditional policy which we, as a nation, are bound to support and defend.

Appeal from Alaska.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—The annual report of Governor Brady of Alaska, briefly summarized in Secretary Bliss's report, makes a strong plea for congressional action in Alaska's needs at the coming session, and begs Congress to treat Alaskans as American citizens, and not to classify them with Kanakas, Filipinos and Cubans.

It points out that Alaska is thirteen times larger than Cuba.

Governor Brady declares that "it would seem as impossible to prevent smuggling of liquor into Alaska as it would be to prevent the clouds from rolling by or the tide from ebbing or flowing."

Forced to Resign.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 2.—James B. Keenholtz of Albany, J. H. Mohgan of Seneca, W. C. Hackett of Utica and John M. Hinkle of Elmira, employes in the insurance department, resigned yesterday at the request of Superintendent Payn.

All are Republicans and were classed among the most ardent champions of Colonel Roosevelt prior to and during the Saratoga convention.

Reforms in Spain Favored.

THE CANAL SCANDALS

Prosecutions Likely to Be Delayed For Some Time.

SUSPENSION FOR ALDRIDGE

No Programme Yet Settled. Attorney-General Hancock Not Anxious to Conduct Proceedings. Work May be Left for the Newly Elected Attorney-General.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 2.—Now that Governor Black has made public ex-Judge Countryman's findings upon the canal investigation commission's report, popular interest centers in the developments likely to grow out of the governor's action in ordering prosecutions.

It may be stated for a certainty that no haste will be displayed in starting the prosecution of Superintendent of Public Works Aldridge or of State Engineer and Surveyor Adams.

The matter will be considered with deliberation by the state's legal representatives, and for the present no conclusion will be reached as to what course shall be adopted.

The preliminaries incident to the preparation of the criminal prosecution will be intrusted probably to Judge Countryman.

Neither Judge Countryman nor Attorney General Hancock will give any intimation as to the programme to be adopted by them in relation to prosecuting all involved in the canal scandal.

It is known, however, that Judge Countryman is unable to devote much time to its consideration at present. Furthermore, Attorney General Hancock is not desirous, it is believed, of setting the prosecution in motion, in view of the fact that his term of office expires on January 1 next.

The case will involve much work and will require careful treatment. As it is understood that General Hancock is averse to handling the prosecution unless he can carry it through during his administration, the outlook is that the matter will not be laid before the Albany county grand jury until next month.

John M. Davies of Oneida county, who at present is one of the state's deputy attorney generals, will become attorney general on the first of next year. He is a Republican, and one of the stalwart sort. As affairs are shaping themselves, it appears probable that it will devolve upon Mr. Davies to begin the legal proceedings asked for by Governor Black as a result of Judge Countryman's findings.

State Engineer and Surveyor Adams scoffs at the idea of being impeached. He says that he does not apprehend any personal discomfort following a legal inquiry into conduct by his department of the canal improvement work, and he believes that whatever happens he and his office subordinates will be vindicated.

State Superintendent Aldridge late yesterday afternoon sent a letter to Governor Black requesting that he be suspended from his office pending an investigation.

The governor will comply with Mr. Aldridge's request.

In fact he informed Mr. Aldridge that if he did not voluntarily ask to be suspended the governor would suspend him summarily.

Here is the letter:

Albany, Dec. 1.

Hon. Frank S. Black, Executive Chamber, Albany, N. Y.:

My Dear Sir: As a result of allegations of mismanagement and dishonesty in connection with the improvement of the canals under the so-called $9,000,000 improvement act last January 1, I asked that a full and complete investigation should be held.

In compliance with this suggestion the commission was appointed by you, which rendered its report August 4 last. The conclusions and statements contained in said report so far as they relate to this department and to my own official acts are not warranted by the facts, in a statement which I prepared immediately after the report was given to the public, but which was not given out until the heat of the recent political campaign was at its height, thus rendering it impossible that it should be received by the public in an unbiased manner.

I sought to meet the strictures placed upon my acts.

I did not appear by counsel before the commission, and was not heard there except upon such matter as the commission saw fit to ask me about. The inquiry up to the present time has been purely ex-parte in its character. I have from the beginning courted the freest and fullest investigation, and to this end I placed at the disposal of the commission every facility within my power, being conscious of neither dereliction of duty or dishonesty in connection with the management of the canal improvement work. I still court the freest inquiry at the hands of such body as will accept all evidence, whether for or against, and weigh it fairly and judicially.

I believe that the public will suspend its final judgment as to my acts in connection with this most important matter until such time as an open and judicial determination may be had, and that is all I ask.

However, in view of the fact that the special counsel, appointed by you to examine the testimony and report to the commission for the purpose of ascertaining if they contained basis for judicial proceedings without going beyond the testimony taken by the commission, has reported that the conclusions of that body are warranted by the testimony and that I am technically guilty of violations of the law, in justice to myself and to the public, which I have endeavored to serve honestly, I ask that I be relieved from the performance of the duties of my office until such time as my responsibility for alleged wrongdoing may be judicially determined.

Very truly yours,
GEORGE W. ALDRIDGE,
Superintendent of Public Works.

Aldridge's term of office expires January 1. State Engineer Adams says he will not resign under fire, and both he and Mr. Aldridge declare that they welcome a legal inquiry into their official acts.

A TREATY IN SIGHT.

Believed at Paris That the Commissioners Will Sign Within a Week.

Paris, Dec. 2.—The work of the peace commissioners is proceeding rapidly, and unless there is an unexpected hitch the treaty will be signed within a week.

The commissioners did not hold a joint session yesterday, because certain clerical work was not completed. The presidents agreed to defer the meeting until two o'clock this afternoon.

General Wesley Merritt, who has arrived from London, was in consultation during the morning relative to the conditions and necessary measures in the Philippines.

General Merritt expects to sail for New York on December 10, and hopes to resume his duties in California or New York until his retirement, eighteen months hence.

Major Hale, of General Merritt's staff, who is now here, believes that the United States, having taken the Philippine islands, will now have no trouble in securing the release of the Spaniards who are held prisoners by Aguinaldo.

Shafter Will Not Talk Back.

Brooklyn, Dec. 2.—In the Montauk Club last night the U. S. Grant Post, G. A. R., gave a dinner for its associate organization, composed of one hundred prominent civilians of that borough. Nearly every one of note in Brooklyn was present, the guests of honor being Major General Shafter and Captain Cook of the Brooklyn.

It was thought to be probable that General Shafter would take this opportunity afforded by his toast, "The Unwritten History of the War," to answer the statements of Admiral Sampson in his official report to the navy department, published yesterday.

General Shafter, instead refrained from alluding to the navy except to praise it most warmly, and said in closing his address that he felt that "we should be so happy and so proud at the successful termination of the war that we should be patting each other on the back instead of calling each other names."

Peace Treaty is Safe.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—The president and cabinet are not disturbed over the statements that the peace treaty will not be ratified by the Senate.

All speculation in this regard is based on opinions expressed by senators weeks before the treaty was decided upon.

In fact, senators now in the city refuse to discuss the matter, saying no one can tell what will be done with the treaty until it is drawn and signed.

By the time the document reaches the senate, senators now quoted as opposing some of its provisions will have had a chance to acquaint themselves not only with its contents, but the president's policy in regard to the new territory as outlined in his message in regard to the new territory.

Gov. Tanner Indicted.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—The grand jury of Macoupin county, sitting at Carlinville, yesterday indicted Governor John R. Tanner in connection with the riots at Virden, in which several miners and deputies were killed. Governor Tanner, who, by the aid of troops, prevented the men sent to take the places of the strikers from staying in Virden, is held responsible for the fatal riots through contributory negligence.

O'Brien Leaves Supreme Bench.

New York, Dec. 2.—Justice Morgan J. O'Brien of the appellate division of the supreme court, has announced his resignation from the bench, to take up the practice of law again.

Justice O'Brien declined to discuss his resignation, saying that he preferred to say nothing before it had reached the governor.

FILIPINOS WILL RESIST

Alleged That They Will Refuse to Recognize American Rule.

PRISONERS WILL FIGHT US

Spanish Reports Claim that 70,000 Troops Will be Required to Suppress Rebellion. Rios Reports a Victory. Dewey Likely to Stay at Manila for Some Time Yet.

Madrid, Dec. 2.—Advices from the Philippine islands say that the insurgents there have decided not to recognize the cession of the islands to the United States and that they will resist to the last.

It is also claimed that the United States will require seventy thousand troops to put down the rebellion, and it is alleged that the insurgents hold ten thousand Spanish prisoners whom they will force to serve against the Americans.

An official dispatch from General Rios, the Spanish commander at Iloilo, island of Panay, Philippine islands, says the Spanish troops there have made a successful sortie against the enemy, inflicting heavy losses upon the insurgents.

The insurrection, it is added, is now spreading in the Visayas and it is asserted that the movement is not directed against the Spaniards, but the Americans.

The premier, Senor Sagasta, denies the report that General Rios is negotiating with the insurgents for the surrender of Iloilo to them.

A delegation from the Spanish chambers of commerce has presented a petition to the queen regent, asking her to intercede for the release of the Spanish prisoners in the Philippine islands and to pardon the Filipinos who have been transported to Spain.

The Philippine insurgents demand seven million pesetas for the release of the forty friars imprisoned since the commencement of the war.

Washington D. C., Dec. 2.—The Cuban evacuation commissioners are rapidly finishing their work and will be prepared to return to the United States in a short time.

Secretary Long said yesterday that Admiral Sampson would be home before long. In regard to Admiral Dewey the secretary said that he did not see how Dewey could return to the United States this year.

"He will remain at Manila for some time yet," he said.

NOVEMBER DEBT STATEMENT.

Receipts for Month Aggregated $38,900,915.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—The monthly comparative statement of the government receipts and expenditures shows that during the month of November the receipts aggregated $38,900,915, as compared with $43,363,605 for November of last year.

In the latter month, however, is included about $18,000,000 received on account of the Pacific Railroad settlement.

Independent of these payments the receipts exceeded those for November, 1897, by about $12,900,000.

The receipts from customs last month were $15,325,200, an increase of about $5,500,000; from internal revenue sources $21,336,743, an increase of nearly $3,000,000.

Disbursements during last month amounted to $49,090,980, an increase on account of the war of nearly $11,000,000.

Since July the receipts have aggregated $204,557,096, as compared with $148,113,875 for 1897.

The Keely Motor.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 2.—The will of the late John W. Keely, the inventor, was admitted to probate yesterday. It bequeaths the entire estate, which has a value of about ten thousand dollars, to the widow, and also appoints her executrix.

No reference is made in the will to the mysterious motor upon which Mr. Keely had been working for so many years. The absence of mention was a disappointment to the stockholders of the Keely Motor Company. They must now await the pleasure of Mrs. Keely for an explanation of the motor, there being generally entertained a belief that the inventor imparted to his wife information on the mystery which will be of value to the company.

Postal Bids Opened.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—Bids for all the star route and screen wagon mail routes in the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota, Michigan, Missouri, Wisconsin and Iowa were opened at the post office department yesterday.

There are about 5,400 contracts to be let. They cover a four-year period, beginning July 1 next.

The bids were much fewer in number than in past years, largely resulting from the war tax on each proposal, many speculators heretofore having submitted bids in large numbers indiscriminately.

Parkersburg, [illegible] men, four hundred strong, marched to the jail at midnight [illegible] to lynch Wade Grant and George Malat, negroes, accused of assaulting white women.

A few shots were fired, but no one was hurt, and at 1.30 a. m. the mob dispersed.

Amnesty to Austrians.

LOAN TO PAY CUBAN ARMY.

Cuban Delegation Hope to Reach an Understanding at Washington.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—General Calixto [illegible], who heads the Cuban delegation [illegible] by the convention of Santa Cruz del Sur, which reached here Wednesday night, was indisposed yesterday.

Senor Quesada, the representative of the Cuban junta, is at work on arrangements for audiences at which the president, Secretary Hay and other cabinet officers will be present. The first call will be upon Secretary Hay, but the time has not yet been set.

The visit of the delegation has a double purpose. First, it bears from the Santa Cruz del Sur convention resolutions thanking the American government for its interposition for the liberation of Cuba and for the proclamation made in the congressional war resolutions that it was not the intention of the United States to assume sovereigny over Cuba.

But the more important purpose of the delegation is to confer with the United States authorities relative to the general siuation in Cuba, and to arrange if possible, some way by which the insurgent army can be paid and disbanded.

The insurgent forces are clamoring for their pay, which was guaranteed to them by the insurgent government as soon as the independence of the island was achieved

In the present anomalous situation with reference to the future of the island, it is impossible for the insurgent government to float a loan, but such a loan might be floated if the government were officially recognized by the American authorities. Thus far it has been the policy of the United States government to refuse recognition of the Cuban insurgent government both before, during and since the Spanish-American war.

General Garcia and his associates, however, hope to reach an amicable understanding with the American authorities and to make some arrangement by which the United States will advance money or guarantee a loan for the payment of the Cuban soldiers.

FRANCE BARS OUR FRUIT.

An Official Decree Prohibiting Its Importation. Also Plants.

Paris, Dec. 2.—The Journal Officiel yesterday published a decree forbidding the admittance into rance of fruit and plants from the United States.

On November 28 it was announced that the French charge d'affaires at Washington, M. Thibeaut, called at the state department to advise Secretary Hay that the French government was on the point of adopting "precautionary measures" against the introduction into France from the United States of the San Jose scale, adding that decrees would be issued prohibiting the importation of trees, shrubs and plants from the United States, and requiring an inspection of all fruits, fresh and dried, at the point of their landing on French soil.

M. Thiebaut pointed out that these measures were quite immaterial as affecting the general trade from the United States to France, as the shipments of trees, plants and shrubs last year aggregated only $328 and those of fruit $40,000.

Large Amount for Special War Tax.

New York, Dec. 2.—The first money to be paid to the government by the express companies has begun to come into Collector of Internal Revenue Treat's office. This is in payment for taxes on express receipts issued for money to be carried in packages, the express companies having neglected at first to have such receipts stamped because money packages were not distinctly mentioned in the law.

During the period from July 1 to August 25, inclusive, the stamps were not affixed and then the commissioner of internal revenue ruled that express packages of money were taxable as "goods."

The express companies have to pay the tax on all packages carried during that time.

The American Tobacco Company and a number of brokerage houses having branches also paid their taxes.

The result was that Wednesday's receipts were the largest on record, being $98,737.68.

A Pennsylvania Mine Deal.

Scranton, Dec. 2.—The Mount Pleasant mine in this city has been sold by the William T. Smith estate to a company headed by Edward L. Fuller. Mr. Fuller is the only member of the corporation who lives in Scranton; the others are New York capitalists.

The Mount Pleasant tract covers two hundred and thirty acres, running from the Lackawanna river to Keyser Valley Creek.

The mine contains an immense supply of coal of first class quality, and two veins that have never been touched with a drill. Six hundred hands are employed and 1,000 tons of coal are prepared each day.

For a Detroit Exposition.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 2.—Mayor Maybury and the representative citizens and leading business men are laying plans for the celebration in 1901 of the 200th anniversary of the founding of Detroit by Pere Marquette.

It seems the general opinion, after much discussion, that the best method of celebrating will be the holding of an exposition, representative of the progress of the Middle West.

Plans are being discussed for the raising of funds necessary, and all are pledged to work for the success of the idea.

Two Costly Steamships.

San Francisco, Dec. 2.—C. P. Huntington, it is stated here, will build two fine steamships of eleven thousand tons each for the China trade.

Each will cost in the neighborhood of $2,000,000.

Central American Union Ends.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—Minister Marry has reported to the state department that the government of Costa Rica has received official notice of the dissolution of the United States of Central America.

Chicago Gets the Convention.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—The conference committee, having in charge the location of the next quadrennial Methodist convention, yesterday decided upon this city as the place.

Will Senator Reed Get It?

The fact that United States Senator Sewell has expressed casual preference for Senator Ketcham, of Essex county, as the next president of the State Senate, is regarded by the political wiseacres as a blackeye to the candidacy of the other aspirants, and especially to Senator Reed. Senator Sewell, who is the biggest gun of the G. O. P. in New Jersey, is always looked upon as deciding the success of any candidate or policy dependable upon the action of Republican officeholders.

"If Essex county wants the position," the Senator was quoted as saying, "she ought to have it, and judging from the earnestness of the canvass being made by Senator Ketcham, and the support he is receiving from Franklin Murphy, Major Lentz and other influential Republicans in the county, there appears to be little doubt of the attitude of the county."

The editor of the Jersey City News comments upon this affair in a humorous vein by saying:

When this remarkable utterance reached the ears of Mr. Reed, who was in the State House at the time, his knees began to smite each other, and cold chills ran up and down his spinal column. He soon pulled himself together, however, and hurried to General Sewell, who was in the Governor's room consulting with the Acting Executive. He asked the General if he had declared himself in favor of Senator Ketcham.

Now mark the foxy old campaigner. He said that he had not exactly said he was for Mr. Ketcham, as he did not consider the office of president of the Senate as a part of the patronage to be given to this county or that. It was a position of honor to be filled by the majority of the Senate and neither he nor any of his friends would attempt to influence the selection of any of the aspirants for the office.

"But,"—and here is where the General signed the death warrants of Messrs. Johnson and Reed—"were I in the Senate," he went on, "I would vote for Mr. Ketcham."

Mr. Reed, it is said, went away satisfied that the General had no choice and his chances were as good as ever. If Mr. Reed really feels that way, he is not the wide-awake, astute man his career in the Legislature has led many to believe he is. The Senators from South Jersey, where a great part of his strength lies, will make no mistake. They will understand that Senator Sewell favors Mr. Ketcham and will vote for him.

In this manner the General tells his followers what to do without directly ordering them, and at the same time ostensibly keeps his word to Mr. Reed that he will not influence any one in favor of Mr. Ketcham. For ways that are dark and tricks that succeed Camden's big boss is peculiar.

It is a long ways off, but if Senator Reed is selected as president of the State Senate at the approaching legislative session he will be in direct line for the G. O. P. Gubernatorial nomination three years hence; providing, of course, that he is re elected to the Upper House next year and again chosen presiding officer, which he probably would be if he is successful in his present aspiration.

Sloppy Slush is the natural successor to the Storm King under the present prevailing atmospheric conditions. The failure of Jack Frost to remain with us is the responsible agent for the horrible condition of affairs underfoot.

The trolley motormen of New Jersey possess regular "snaps" at this time of the year in comparison with the head-end men of transit companies in other States. The vestibuled platform is a veritable God send to them.

Camden, with 60,000 people, is unable to support a Y. M. C. A. The loss of the best church in Plainfield would not be missed as greatly as the Y. M. C. A. in this city.

The "red hot" campaign seems to have been frozen by the blizzard.

MR LOUNSBERY'S REASONING.

George H. Goddard Comments on His Talk About Equal Taxation.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The Daily Press yesterday reported that the candidate for Mayor on the Citizens' ticket said Wednesday night at a political meeting:

"The Fourth ward is made up of good, substantial working men, a few of whom own their own houses. The tax you pay upon your house is sure to be regulated by the tax rate. There has been a great deal of trouble in this ward through the last assessments. When the assessors take their oath of office they swear to assess property at its full value, but they don't do it.

"Now if you own a house worth $1,000 and it is assessed at half its value, $500, and another man owns a house worth $10,000, and that is assessed at half its value, $5,000, the rich man pays less taxes in proportion to the worth of his property than the poor man."

What a grasp this would-be-Mayor has on the theory and practice of taxation!

Let us look at this statement. Suppose, for convenience, that the entire annual expenses of the city are to be $220, and that the entire property in the city consists of two houses, one costing $10,000, and one $1,000, making a total, if assessed at full value, of $11,000. To raise the amount required a tax of 2 per cent. would be laid, and the rich man would pay $200, and the poor man $20. If the assessors made the valuations one-half of the cost, because they might think that would be all the properties would fetch at auction, or for some other honest reason, then the total valuation would be $5,500, and to raise the required amount a tax of 4 per cent. would be laid, and the rich man would pay, as before, $200, and the poor man $20. The proportion which each man would pay is unchanged, and no injustice is done. The man who tries to win votes by making it appear otherwise is either an ignorant babbler unworthy of any office, or a dishonest demagogue unworthy of any confidence.

Sheriff Schoonmaker's First Jury.

Somerville, Dec. 2.—Sheriff Schoonmaker drew his first petit jury at the Court House Tuesday. He took hold of his new duty without the least vestige of awkwardness, though ex-Sheriff Wyckoff was near at hand to prompt him in case of necessity. The following were the jurors selected from North Plainfield: Herbert Cleaves, Fred E. Smith and John T. Case.

Took a Cold Bath.

Three young lads, Thomas Mullen, Grover Schuck and Bertie Hansen, took a cold bath in Tier's lake yesterday afternoon. They were playing on the ice which was too thin to hold them, and they went through. The water was not very deep, so they soon got out with the help of some older boys, none the worse for their ducking, but with clothes wringing wet.

Pleasant Social Time.

A very pleasant and social time was spent at the residence of Mrs. L. Coles, of 78 Duer street, last night in honor of her neice, Miss Katharyn Hoagland, of Flemington. Instrumental and vocal music, games and other various amusements were the features of the evening. At a late hour bountiful refreshments were served and enjoyed by all present.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Marie Wainwright, who has starred in the legitimate for several seasons, will appear at Music Hall tonight in "Shall We Forgive Her." It is an English play and will be brought out here under the direction of Jacob Litt. The story opens in the interior of Australia, where the first act takes place, and the scene is then transferred to rural England. It is the old, old Magdalen story, but in this case the author is credited with having turned out a very interesting play. It is a melo drama without mechanical effects—a play which gets its strength from the dramatist and not from the stage carpenter. It has many scenes of strong emotional intensity and it has an abundance of excellent comedy. Manager Jacob Litt has had a lot of new scenery gotten up and the cast is an able one.

Washburn's Big Double Minstrel Company will undoubtedly attract a great crowd at Music Hall Monday night. The weekly dramatic papers and press of cities wherein they have lately appeared teem with praise over their performances, and they will in all probability repeat their success here. Both companies appear in a grand street parade at noon Monday. They have new, first-class scenery and accessories, and their specialties are of the best in the profession.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Next Tuesday evening Rev. J. W. Richardson, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will hold a reception at the church. A fine programme has been arranged.

—A special meeting of Miantonomo Tribe, I. O. R M., was held last evening to arrange for the big meeting tonight when one hundred new members will be received.

—It is barely possible that there will be no whist match at the Park Club, December 7th, as the New Jersey Athletic Club team has not been playing regularly through the series. It is thought that they may drop out.

"BLACK DRESS GOODS."

About the only thing we need say about these is that almost all other shade of dress goods that, soiled and faded, have outlived their present usefulness, can be converted into black dress goods by having us dye them. Our method produces a rich, glossy black.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 2—The work of starting the Y. M. C. A., although seemingly slow, is progressing nicely. The board of directors have not held a meeting this week, notwithstanding the report to the contrary. A neat sign has been placed on the building, the contract for electric light wiring will soon be given out, a well is to be dug upon the property and a number of other improvements are being talked of. Rev. J. S. Baker, who was appointed trustee of the piece of land donated over a year ago to the then proposed association by John R. Marsh, has turned the deed over to the board of directors. Quite a sum of money has been subscribed and altogether the association has a very favorable future before it and an early opening of the building is looked for.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

"OLD GINGER FINGERS."

Gen. Meade's Narrow Escape from a Kicking, and Poor Snicker's Feelings.

"The artillery fire at Gettysburg said a drummer of the old war, "was simply magnificent. I was in an Ohio battery, posted on Cemetery Hill. We were running short of ammunition, when Gen. Mead, dismissing his staff below, rode with a single orderly to our exposed position. The boys were all at white heat and in a state of mind bordering on frenzy because the ammunition called for had not come. They heard the quiet man on horseback say repeatedly to the captain that the hill must be held at all hazards, ammunition or no ammunition. This vexed them, but they knew that the officer, whoever he was, spoke the truth, and they began to collect the unexploded shells that had been fired at them by the Confederate batteries.

"There were a good many of these scattered over our part of the hill, and when Mead comprehended what the boys were doing he was greatly pleased. He dismounted, and in a quiet sort of a way, proceeded to supervise the collection of shells. He was in fatigue dress and wore no shoulder straps, and none of the men recognized him. They thought he was some ordinance officer, and finally when he turned his horse over to his orderly and proceeded to carry shells himself, they did not resent his supervision. As a rule the shells were heavier than the General expected, and he did not compare in efficiency with the stalwart artillerymen rushing about with the recklessness and energy of madmen.

"John Snicker was one of the best men in the battery, but was rough in speech and action. Seeing, as he supposed, a lieutenant or captain from the outside stooping to pick up a shell, he pushed the officer aside with the remark, 'Get out of this, old Ginger Fingers; your mind's willin', but your body's weak, and you are in the way.' Mead, surprised and amused, stood aside. A few minutes later Gen. Warren and staff rode up for a conference with Mead, and the cat was out of the bag.

"Snicker was so overcome with confusion that he almost had a fit. The sergeant tried to comfort him with the assurance that Gen. Mead would excuse informality under such circumstances, but John insisted that what scared him was that he never came so near kicking a man in his life without doing it as he did Gen. Mead when he stooped to pick up the shell. He was grieved to think he had't recognized Mead, and was in a panic whenever he thought what might have happened had he acted on the impulse and kicked the general commanding the army.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

The Common Person—So you are wedded to your art?

The Artist—Dear, no! I am in love with it!—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A RED CROSS ANGEL.

Annie Laurie Wheeler, the Brave Daughter of the Southern General.

The fourth member of Gen. Wheeler's family to go to the front was Miss Annie Laurie Early Wheeler, who, though not immune, joined the Red Cross expedition to Santiago, and engaged in work in the hospital there, soothing the wounded and fever-stricken. She had sole care of ninety patients, many of whom owe their lives to her constant attention and her services in securing for them cots, medicines and better food. She came North on the Olivette, nursing the sick and dying soldiers which it carried. Here is the testimony of Albert Shaw, an immune nurse on the Olivette:

ago Miss Wheeler was the angel of the Olivette. She was untiring, full of nervous energy, always kind. But she did more than nurse the sick—she said prayers for the dead, and she said them as reverently as any chaplain that ever was commissioned.

A STORY TOLD OF GEN. MEADE.

How He Rewarded the Sentry for Helping Fix the Stovepipe.

At a little village on the Susquehanna River I met an old soldier, who related this incident of his experience with Gen. Meade in the late war. I have forgotten his name and the place where it occurred. It was a raw night in October, the wind was rather strong, and Meade had fixed a stove in his tent. The soldier was the sentry for the General. A puff of wind knocked down the improvised stovepipe, and soon the tent filled with smoke. The General came out and asked the sentry to help him to rearrange it. The soldier replied that he was under orders and could not leave his post.

"Yes, yes," said Meade. "that is true, but I would like to have that stovepipe fixed. You are right," and the General went at the job himself.

"I kept pacing my beat," said the soldier, "and enjoyed Meade's efforts to get the pipe back in its place. He made a sorry mess of it. Finally he turned to me and said: 'Sentry, you will have to help me; I will be responsible for you, and if there is any trouble about your leaving the beat I will explain to the officer.'

"In a few minutes we had the pipe in position. Meade disappeared into the tent without a word of thanks, but he soon came out with a jug of applejack and asked me to take a drink. Once more I reminded him I was on duty. 'Yes, yes,' he answered, 'I know; but you helped me to fix the stovepipe.'

"He turned on his heel and re-entered the tent, leaving the jug outside. After a time he came out.

"'Did you drink?' he inquired. I nodded.

"'I knew you would; but I did not see it.'"—Philadelphia Dispatch.

Caper Sauce Capers.

The caper, familiar in caper sauce and used also as a garnish for salads, is imported from Spain and France. Capers are grown in Italy, but none is imported from there into this country.

Capers are sorted into four sizes, of which the smallest are known commercially as nonpareils, and the next larger as surfines. The next larger in French capers are capucines, and the largest capotes, while the next to the largest and the largest of Spanish capers are known respectively as capotes No. 1 and No. 2. The smallest capers are the most desirable and bring the most money. French capers sell for more than Spanish. Capers are imported almost wholly in bulk in kegs of fifteen or sixteen gallons, and barrels of about forty gallons in brine or vinegar. A few capers are imported in glass, but they are mostly put up in this country. Capers grow on a bush.—New York Sun.

A Pitcher Not a Bottle.

Native wine is so cheap in San Francisco that many restaurant keepers serve it with meals in lieu of tea or coffee, if their patrons prefer it. The clause in the war tax requiring a stamp to be affixed to each bottle of wine disturbed them seriously for a while, until the plan was hit upon of serving it in pitchers instead. As the internal revenue department has ruled that a pitcher is not a bottle, these caterers get off free of the tax.

"That boy of mine has taken apart my $500 watch just to see what it was made of. I don't know what I shall do with him."

"Make him a legislator. He has just the knack for expensive investigations."—Philadelphia North American.

Posen. Die von polnischen Blättern verbreitete Nachricht, Krupp habe in dem hiesigen Vororte Wilda Terrain für eine Maschinenfabrik angekauft, ist erfunden.

Ostrowo. Im Nachbardorfe Korytnica ist im rüstigsten Mannesalter der Schmied Peter Kunze von seinem Schwager, dem Wirth Zientek dasselbst, ermordet worden. Kunze hatte sich in Geschäften zu einem Nachbarwirthe begeben. Als er aus dessen Wohnung herauskam, wurde er von Zientek, der auf ihn lauerte, erschossen. Zwischen beiden Verwandten bestand wegen eines Ausgedinges bittere Feindschaft. Um den Anschein zu erwecken, als habe Kunze einen Selbstmord verübt, hatte Zientek neben die Leiche einen Revolver gelegt. Dieser war aber verstopft, und schon aus diesem Grund war ein Selbstmord ausgeschlossen.

Pillau. Es wird beabsichtigt, in Alt-Pillau ein Grundstück zur Erbauung eines katholischen Gotteshauses zu erwerben. Bisher wird der katholische Gottesdienst von Zeit zu Zeit in der von der evangelisch-lutherischen Gemeinde zur Verfügung gestellten Garnison- und Stadtkirche abgehalten.

Elbing. Ein Besitzer aus Käsemark erschoß seine von ihm gerichtlich geschiedene Ehefrau bei deren Eltern und dann zu Hause sich selbst.

Sensburg. Ueber den Stand der Arbeiterverhältnisse und Arbeiterwohnungen werden zur Zeit landräthlicherseits Erkundigungen eingezogen. Groß ist gegenwärtig der Arbeitermangel in den meisten Ortschaften unseres Kreises. Die verschiedenen Kasernen- und Bahnbauten, sowie der stete Fortzug nach den größeren und Fabrikstädten des Westens haben das platte Land stark von Arbeitskräften entblößt, und viele Besitzer haben kaum so viel Leute, um die nöthigen Arbeiten verrichten zu können.

Köln. In geheimer Sitzung erklärten sich die Stadtverordneten gemäß dem Vorschlag der Verfassungskommission damit einverstanden, daß die Schulräthe nicht von der Stadtverordnetenversammlung zu wählen sind, sondern deren Anstellung, gleich der der städtischen Beamten, durch den Oberbürgermeister nach Anhörung der Stadtverordneten zu geschehen hat.

Provinz Sachsen.

Erfurt. Nicht geringes Aufsehen erregt ein hier kürzlich stattgehabter Raubanfall auf einen Kassenboten des Bureaus der Güterabfertigung auf dem Güterbahnhofe. Als dieser mit einer Geldtasche, in welcher sich 10,000 Mark Baargeld befanden, auf dem Rücken die Schmidtstedterstraße entlang ging, sprang ein Mann aus einer Nische hervor und entriß dem Boten die Tasche. Nach längerer Jagd warf der Dieb die Beute von sich. Er ist erkannt worden.

Stendal. Die geforderte Garantieübernahme der Stadt Stendal für den Rhein-Weser-Elbe-Kanal im Betrage von 75,000 Mark wurde von den städtischen Körperschaften abgelehnt mit der Motivirung, daß die Stadt Stendal keinen Nutzen von dem Kanal habe. Andere Städte wie Tangermünde, Schönebeck u. s. w., die eher ein Interesse für den Kanal haben müßten, hätten die Garantie gleichfalls abgelehnt.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic.—"Systematic and proportionate giving."—Mal. iii, 7-12.

Life is a continual receiving and giving. We receive from God, directly and indirectly, great blessings and gifts. We are expected in return to give, and even to give to God. Not that God needs our gifts, but that we need to make the gift. There is a feeling in every thoughtful soul that we must render something unto God for all His benefits. David's exclamation, "What shall I render unto the Lord for all His gifts to me?" finds an echo in every heart. Even the idol worshiping heathen in all ages has felt the operation of this same inward feeling and has responded to it. Freely we have received from God, freely we should give to God.

But how shall we give? What is the divine law upon this subject? It is undoubtedly systematic and proportionate giving. This method is Scriptural, practicable, effective and has the promise of God's blessing.

1. Systematic and proportionate giving is Scriptural. In the Old Testament dispensation a tenth was the demand of God. Abraham probably gave a tenth of his substance to God. Jacob vowed to do so, and it may have been before this that he had failed to do what was required and customary. In Lev. xxvii, 30, it is directly and plainly asserted that a tenth shall be given to God. "All the tithe of the land, whether of the seed of the land or of the fruit of the tree, is the Lord's." In the typical reference the prophet Malachi fearfully arraigns God's people for not having given the tithe and declares that in withholding it they have robbed God. There can be no question about the law as regards giving in Old Testament times. In the New Testament Paul asks a stated weekly offering for a special purpose, and in another place declares that as God blessed the people they were to give.

2. Systematic and proportionate giving is just. It is right. It asks of no one what he is not able to give. It requires the least of those who receive the least and the most of those who receive the most. It sets aside so much as belonging to the Lord. It makes it His and not ours and removes the temptation to use it for ourselves.

3. Systematic and proportionate giving has the promise of the blessing of God. In giving regularly to God and in proportion as He blesses us we are filling a plain duty that is owed to God. Every duty brings its blessing. But God has promised a blessing for the fulfilling of this duty. "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse that there may be meat in Mine house and prove Me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." If we fulfill the conditions of this promise, we may also have the blessings.

Bible Readings.—Gen. xxviii, 20-22; Lev. xxvii, 30-34; Num. xviii, 20, 21, 24; II Chron. xxxi, 5, 6; Neh. xiii, 10-12; Math. vi, 1-4; John iii, 16; Acts ii, 44, 45; xx, 35; I Cor. xvi, 1-3; II Cor. viii, 9-15; ix, 6-11; Phil. iv, 15-17; Math. x, 7, 8.

Enviousness.

Possessing wealth is not necessarily sinful. That may depend upon the way it was gained, the way it is being used or hoarded, and whether it ought to be any longer retained or immediately, properly, gladly, fully diffused for the greatest good of the greatest number; but wealth is always dangerous. It is apt to beget love for its present holdings, which "love of money is the root of all evil," or to beget desires for more, which is the root of all covetousness, but covetousness has nothing to do with what a man has, for if he has it how can he covet it? But it is craving what he has not. Hence the poorest may be more covetous than the richest. He who has nothing may be wishing he had what belongs to some one else, which may be the root of robbery.—Christian Standard.

Religious Liberty.

In America the bitterness of religious prejudice has in great measure died out under the softening influence of perfect freedom of conscience, but this does not mean that we are sunk or are sinking into indifference and spiritual apathy. Our history has shown far more clearly and on a far greater scale than ever had been or could have been shown before or elsewhere that the less a man is forced by law to say he believes as to things unseen the more he will believe, and in so showing it has given a new hope to the world.—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Blessing of Work.

Thank God every morning when you get up that you have something to do that day which must be done, whether you like it or not. Being forced to work and forced to do your best will breed in you temperance, self control, diligence, strength of will, content and a hundred virtues which the idle will never know.—Charles Kingsley.

Army of the Future.

In line for peaceful marching,
Once we saw our boys enroll;
All the captains and the privates
Showed the grace of self control.
Every patriot in the nation
Of our manly boys was proud,
Loudly swelled the martial music,
And the drums were beating loud.

Now the bloody wars grow fewer
As faith and hope increase,
And foreign lands are learning
The happy arts of peace.
Boys, if you're fond of warfare
And really want to fight
Enroll yourselves together
Upon the scroll of right.

The country that has reared you
So tenderly and long
Can't see her sons enlisted
Upon the side of wrong.
So quick, my boys, be ready!
Your soldier's armor don;
The smoke of battle thickens,
Your line is marching on.

THE SUNDAY LESSON.

INTERNANIONAL SERIES, WITH COMMENTARY BY DR. STEARNS.

Golden Text.—Blessed are they that keep His testimonies, and that seek Him with the whole heart.—Ps. cxix: 2. Dec. 4, '98.

8. "I have found the book of the law in the house of the Lord." By comparing II Chron. xxxiv, 14, it looks as if it might have been an original copy of the law, Josiah was the last good king of Judah, and he reigned 31 years. In the thirteenth year of his reign Jeremiah began to prophecy, and continued a prophet of the Lord for 40 years (Jer. i, 2, 3). It is written of Josiah in II Kings xxiii, 25, that there was no king either before or after him who like him turned to the Lord with all his heart and soul and might. Hezekiah excelled all others in his trust in the Lord (II Kings xviii, 5). Josiah began to reign at the age of eight years. When he was sixteen he began to seek God. When he was 20 he began to cleanse the land of idols. When he was twenty-six he repaired and cleansed the temple, and kept the greatest passover that had been kept since the days of Samuel (II Chron. xxxiv, 8, 8; xxxv, 18, 19). It was while they were working at the temple that they found this book of the law.

9. Shaphan, the scribe, reported to the king that the money which had been gathered in the house of the Lord had been delivered to the overseers of the work, and it is said that they were so faithful that no reckoning was made with them of the money (verses 4-7). We do not read of any lack of funds for the work, for the blessing of Elshaddai (the mighty God who is all sufficient) was upon His faithful people.

10, 11. Shaphan told the king of the book that had been found, and read it to him, and when he heard it he rent his clothes. Josiah was possessed of a poor and contrite spirit and trembled at God's word (Isa. lxvi, 2; lvii, 15). It is written in Ez. ix, 4, "Then were assembled everyone that trembled at the words of the God of Israel because of the transgression." Many are indifferent to the word of God and never read it or hear it read. Many who read it do not give heed to it. Many, even of those who are supposed to be preachers of the word, dishonor it by doubting it and questioning it, while but few comparatively tremble at it like Josiah.

12, 13. "Go ye, inquire of the Lord for me and for the people, and for all Judah, concerning the words of this book that is found." The priest and scribe and others were thus commissioned by the king. It may have been such passages as Deut. xxviii, 15-37; Lev. xxvi, 14-46, that so stirred Josiah, but whatever portions specially affected him he evidently believed what many professing Christians do not today believe, that there is such a thing as the wrath of God, and that it is a very serious matter not to believe and obey the works of the Lord. To set one's heart upon and observe to do the words of the law was said to be their life, but if one would not hearken God had said that He would require it of him (Deut. xxxii, 46, 47; xviii, 19). A common form of unbelief now is that God is too good to punish any one and that there is no place of fire and brimstone either for the devil or his followers.

14. "They went to Huldah, the prophetess who dwelt in Jerusalem, and they communed with her." So there were at other times a Deborah and an Anna who knew the Lord better than others (Judges iv, 4; Luke ii, 36). God has His hidden ones to whom He reveals Himself and whom He uses to instruct others when His time comes. It may be a Joseph in a prison, or a Daniel who has been crowded out by a younger and more progressive party, an Elijah at some cherith, or a Stephen or a Philip ready for any manner of service. Wherever you are be sure that you are learning to know God, for in due time He will call you.

15. "Then saith the Lord God of Israel, Tell the man that sent you to me." She had no words of her own for them, no opinions or suggestions, no words of peaceful flattery, but only a faithful message from the Lord, regardless of what they might think of it or of her. When God has a messenger whom He can use He always gives a message. He said to Moses, "I will be with thy mouth and teach thee what thou shalt say."

16. "Behold I will bring evil upon this place—all the words of the book which the king of Judah hath read." Every purpose of the Lord shall be performed, for hath He said and shall He not do it? Or hath He spoken and shall He not make it good? (Jer. li, 29; Num. xxiii, 19). All that God purposes to do is as good as done, for He is able to carry out all His plans; there is nothing too hard or wonderful for Him. He cannot err, neither can he fail nor be discouraged. He did not fail to lay upon His dear Son all our sins. He will not fail to let His wrath fall upon all who despise His Son and His love.

17. "My wrath shall be kindled against this place and shall not be quenched." This because they forsook God and worshiped the works of their own hands. They forsook the fountain of living water and made themselves cisterns which could hold no water (Jer. ii, 13).

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week Beginning Dec. 4—Comment by Rev. W. J. Yates, A. M.—Topic, Witnessing For Christ.

Scripture Reading.—Luke xii, 8, 9; Rev. iii, 5.—"Whosoever shall confess Me before men, him shall the Son of Man also confess before the angels of God."

What is it to confess Christ? How can it be done? Who have the opportunities? Why is such stress laid upon it by the Master? Of what value is this confession to the cause of God? What makes it so difficult for many to do it? Do not all who really love God feel the impulse to acknowledge Him? What form should this confession take? All these and many more questions arise in the mind as soon as this subject is announced. It is well to arrange them in some kind of order and undertake to find an answer to some if not to all of them. Each person should make a personal application of the text and lesson to himself. It will be helpful if arrangements can be made to have several persons briefly speak at some devotional meeting of the League upon different phases of the topic. Much clearer understanding of the duty and need of this work can thus be acquired.

It will readily be recognized that when one is living close to God the impulse to tell others of His love and try to induce them to seek and serve Him rises spontaneously and with strength in the soul. It seems a necessity to free the soul. "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." In proportion as one loses the sense of nearness to the Lord the impulse to speak of spiritual experiences decreases. If the sense of duty is recognized, the whole thing becomes a task more and more difficult as the heart life grows cold.

There are obstacles often in the way which come from a person's own timidity and fear lest others will resent or ridicule our speaking or lest we fail to make them understand us. Christians are often acquainted with people, even meet them frequently and intimately for years, and yet never speak a word to show their interest in God or in the spiritual welfare of their friends. This may begin in timidity, but unless it is corrected it ends in forgetfulness and indifference. This indicates spiritual coldness and may lead to loss of all religious life.

Whatever God might have done, we cannot say. Sure it is that He now intends to have men saved through the help of men. He reveals His will and the good news of salvation in Christ to His followers and sends them into the world to tell it. This gospel then becomes "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

We should confess Christ by speaking in private on every suitable occasion to the unconverted as well as to Christians. Courteously but firmly we should impress on the minds of all we can their duty and privilege of loving service of Jesus. In the services of the church we should frequently give public testimony to the grace and power of the Christ.

Our actions in business and society as well as at home should be constantly consistent with the profession of Christian life. "Actions speak louder than words." Both forms of language should be habitually in use.

Let the spirit of holiness pervade the soul and the speech and acts will exhale the perfume of gentleness and godlikeness.

A Silent Witness.

The great obelisk of On, or Heliopolis, as the Greeks called the place, still remains one of the most interesting objects to the traveler in Egypt. It is situated a few miles northeast of the city of Cairo, in the midst of cultivated fields. All other evidences of the great city which once stood here have long since disappeared. Originally it stood in front of a temple and probably had a companion column. It was one of a great number erected by Pharaoh Usertesen I of the twelfth dynasty. It was a symbol of the sun, which was worshiped at this place. It was ancient when Abraham came into Egypt. It must have been a familiar sight to Joseph, who married the daughter of the high priest of the city. Moses was very likely familiar with its appearance. Through all these long ages, for more than 40 centuries, it has stood amid the shock of warring empires, as a silent witness of the ancient faith of the people in the deity of the sun god.

Most people dislike to be mixed up in any disagreeable matters, especially if it requires them to be unpopular. For this reason the temperance cause makes slow headway. Multitudes are convinced that total abstinence is the only right principle of action who yet lack moral strength to adhere to it, and so in company drink lest they be thought peculiar. They believe prohibition to be the only right way to deal with the traffic, but refuse to vote that way because of the harm it would do their business if it was known they voted against the saloon, or because party ties are stronger than moral convictions.

at 214 W. Front St., Plainfield, N. J.

Clothing manufactures are compelled to confess from the weather standpoint that October and a part of November has been a serious disappointment to them They counted on cold weather to create a demand for the surplus stock they had made up. From two manufacturers we were able to buy a large stock of winter suits, overcoats and trousers at about 40c. on the dollar for what they could ordinarily make the goods for. It is an ill wind that blows nobody good. BOROUGH SETTLES WITH MR. SPENCER.

BOROUGH IS PAID $94.05.

OTHER MATTERS OF FINANCE ALSO TRANSACTED.

W. J. Buttfield Asks to Have $500 Returned That He Loaned to Macadamize Rockview Avenue—E. S. Hooley Resigns as a Member of the Consolidation Commission—Other Business.

There was little business of importance transacted at the regular meeting of the Borough Council last evening, but owing to the fact that an executive session was held, it was late when the members concluded the business on the programme. During the executive session the following resolution was presented and adopted unanimously: "Resolved, That the Mayor and Clerk be and are hereby authorized to accept $94.05 from H. N. Spencer in payment of the items of taxes shown on the accompanying statement and receipt therefore."

This action virtually settles all difficulties between the borough and Mr. Spencer, and is considered as final settlement to which all interested parties have agreed. The other business considered is given below.

The report of Clerk Arnold showed that $1,936 44 had been paid county and State, leaving a cash balance of $608.06. He also reported $32 29 received from licenses and subscriptions for macadamizing.

Collector George F. Brown reported that to date $6,419.94 had been collected, and $41.70 as interest money from the County Collector, also $427.50 as license money from the same source. Mr. Brown reported a balance on hand to December 1st of $7 968.41.

W. J. Buttfield, of Rockview avenue, asked the Council to return to him $500 money loaned in connection with the proposed macadamizing of Rockview avenue. This money was loaned in anticipation of the collection of the money to macadamize the avenue, and was done as a guarantee of good faith. Failing to collect the whole amount Mr. Buttfield wants his money returned.

E. S. Hooley, as a member of the borough and city consolidation commission, resigned his position, owing to his inability to attend the meetings. Charles Bock, now resident of the borough, stated in a communication, that he had paid 1896-97 taxes on his property, under protest, as he is entitled to $500 exemption as an exempt fireman. He asked that the $500 be credited to him on his 1898 taxes. The matter was referred to the Borough Counsel for his opinion.

Mr. Ball presented the report of the street committee for Mr. Woolston, who was absent from the meeting. The report shows that $305.75 was expended for street work, and $10.50 was received for dirt sold. The report also shows that it cost $391.40 to macadamize Summit avenue.

Mr. MacLaughlin offered several resolutions which provided for the settlement by the committee on assessments and taxation of several tax amounts, some of which were not collectable and some had been paid in part.

Mr. Rogers stated that on January 1st next the contract between the borough and the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company for five years would expire.

This matter was referred to the proper committee for due consideration.

Mr. MacLaughlin offered a resolution providing for the return of $2 06 to Stephen Beeching, which amount was received in excess in payment of taxes. Resolutions were offered by Mr. Valiant providing for the drawing of warrants to meet a $3,100 note and two notes of $1,556 25, with interest, now due, also a resolution providing for the drawing of a warrant for $4,638 on account of the county tax. Still another resolution offered by Mr. Valiant provided for the drawing of a warrant for $650 to pay the fire department note now due. The last resolution offered by Mr. Valiant called for a loan of $6 500 for one month, to be charged to borough account.

Mr. MacLaughlin offered a resolution that after January 1st next that the borough collector allow 10 per cent interest instead of 12 per cent. as is now the rule in the case of collection of taxes.

William N. Pangborn, who was present in the lobby, was given the privilege of the floor and he asked the Council to allow him $500 exemption this year for the fact that he is an old

HERO OF EL CANEY HERE

CAPTAIN EDWARDS, OF THE 25TH INFANTRY, VISITING IN PLAINFIELD.

Captain and Mrs Edwards are the Guests of Mr. and Mrs George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin Place—Was Wounded.

Plainfield is particularly honored in having as a visitor one of the heroes of the charge at El Caney in the recent war with Spain. Captain Eaton A. Edwards, of the Twenty-fifth U. S. Infantry, arrived in Plainfield Thursday afternoon in company with his wife. They are now the guests of Captain Edwards' brother, George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, the well known artist-author, where they will remain for sometime. The Captain is now on sick leave.

Captain Edwards is a veteran of the Civil War. He was wounded and left for dead at the Battle of the Wilderness. A companion carried him off the field and he finally recovered. When the war was over, he stood high in the volunteer army. With many other officers he accepted a commission at the close of hostilities and went into the regular army.

When the war with Spain broke out, Captain Edwards was stationed at Fort Missoula in the west. His regiment was immediately ordered to the front. He went to Tampa and remained there until July when he sailed with his regiment for Cuba. He took part in the attack on Santiago and was at the head of his company when they took part in the famous charge at El Caney. When they reached the trenches he sprang on the top, only to fall, shot through the thigh with a Mauser bullet. He was carried to the field hospital by his men and remained there until the Olivette made its first trip back. He was taken on board the Olivette to the hospital at Fortress Monroe.

Recovering from the effects of his wound he went to Washington where his wife was ill with typhoid fever. She has now recovered and they will visit in this city for a time. Captain Edwards' original three months' leave of absence has been extended. At its close he will return to duty at Fort Grant.

As a man, Captain Edwards is exceedingly modest, but as brave as a lion, knowing no fear and no regard for personal danger when on the field of battle. He is very popular with the men of his company.

MAYOR WOULDN'T BE JOLLIED.

Disorderly Prisoner's Complimentary Remarks Not Appreciated.

James Wilkinson, a man of respectable appearance, was arrested yesterday on North avenue by Chief Grant charged with being drunk and disorderly and using obscene language. The man was held until 5 o'clock last evening when he was given a hearing before Mayor Fisk. Wilkinson pleaded for leniency, telling the court that he was a Christian man, and one that always traveled in the best of society. He stated that he had come to Plainfield to see about buying a piece of property upon which to build. His wife had heard that Plainfield was a healthy place, and they wanted to move here. Mayor Fisk told the stranger that such as he were not wanted in Plainfield if they could not keep straight, and he then imposed a fine of $10 or twenty days in the county jail. The man paid the fine and was glad to get away, promising not to come here again.

Nominations Made.

A meeting of the Catholic Benevolent Legion was held Thursday Nominations were made for the officers which will be held next month. As only one set were nominated, they will, in all probability be elected.

Monday Afternoon Club Lecture.

Next Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock Rev. James D. Murray, of Princeton University, will lecture before the Monday Afternoon Club on the subject, "The Minor Dramatists of the Elizabethan Age." It is earnestly hoped that all will note the change in the hour for the meetings from 3 to 3:30. This change has been made to accommodate the local school teachers who desire to attend.

Third To Be Mustered Out.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, December 3—There is considerable joy in New Brunswick over the announcement that Congressman B. F. Howell has received information from the War Department that justifies him in the belief that the Third New Jersey Volunteers, now at Camp Haskell, Athens, Ga., will not go to Cuba, but will be mustered out in a few days.

WILD STEER LOOSE IN THE MOUNTAINS.

Escaped From Newark Stock Yards a Month Ago.

HE WAS ONCE WOUNDED.

DRIVEN OUT OF THE WOODS BY PANGS OF HUNGER.

Stock Yard Man Shot Him at Springfield—Tracked Him By the Blood on the Snow—Men Hunted Him on Horseback and in Sleighs—The Steer Has Gone Toward the Passaic Valley.

All New Providence is aroused. Men armed with rifles and shotguns have been scouring the surrounding country on horseback and in sleighs for the past few days. The pursuers are numbered by the dozen, the pursued is only one. Nevertheless he has managed to make his influence felt as far away as Newark, from whence he came. The cause of all this trouble and excitement is a steer that escaped near Newark nearly a month ago and has successfully hidden himself away until Thursday morning when hunger drove him into the haunts of civilization.

A month ago three steers broke away from the herd while being transferred from the cars to the Newark stock yards. They rushed down the street causing consternation everywhere. The stock yard authorities immediately sent a dozen men out on their track and two of the huge animals were shot before twenty-four hours were over.

The remaining steer, a magnificent specimen of his race, could not be found. He was traced to Springfield and there disappeared into the mountains and made his home in the fastness of the woodlands that cover the hillsides there. Two men were sent by the stock yard officials with orders to find and kill the steer no matter how long it took. They were also instructed to tell the farmers that whosoever shot the animal could keep the carcass.

The hunt was continued without cessation. Frequent traces were discovered, but the hunters could not get a glimpse of the wandering steer. He occasionally ventured into the open, but never stayed long enough to permit a shot. He lived on the moss and undergrowth in the woods. When the snow came the hunters went out as soon as the weather permitted sure that they would be able to locate him.

Thursday morning the animal entered the village of Springfield and trotted down the main street. It was evident that the pangs of hunger had driven him out of the woods. One of the hunters was in town at the time and hastily opened fire with his shot gun at the steer. The load of buckshot struck the beast in the quarter and sent him scampering away. The stock yard man mounted a horse and went in pursuit.

The steer took a course toward Baltasrol hill and rushed over the golf links there. The horse was unable to keep up with the frightened bovine and the pursuer went back for his companions. The chase was then continued on horseback and in sleighs, the track of the steer being easy to follow from the drops of blood. The hunt was continued until 10 o'clock Thursday night and the trail followed as far as the Feltville pond. The hunters then desisted for the night.

In the morning it was found that the wild bovine had spent part of the night in the cornfield belonging to a farmer named Xeners, back of New Providence, and done considerable damage to the crop. The steer followed the roads closely but ran in the gutter leaving a plain trail.

The trail led to Berkeley Heights and thence to Union Village. After that the steer laid his course toward the Passaic valley. There were half a dozen men in pursuit, two were from the stock yard and the rest from that neighborhood, anxious to shoot the steer so as to possess his carcass. Among the latter was Samuel Clark, of New Providence, mounted on horseback and armed with a rifle.

Dave Won the Cake.

A party from this city had planned for a sleigh ride to Westfield last Tuesday night but owing to the stormy night they decided to go by train. They went to the North Avenue Hotel, where supper had already been engaged, and had a jolly time in dancing and other amusements. During the evening several couple participated in a cake-walk. After walking for fully an hour the cake was finally awarded to David Angerbauer and Miss Delia Doyle. The music was furnished by Frazee.

FIRE BUGS WERE SUCCESSFUL AT LAST.

After Many Attempts They Destroyed Reid's Barn.

THE HORSES WERE SAVED.

RESCUERS WERE TOO BUSY TO SEND IN ALARM.

Robt. Guttridge Saw the Illumination and Sent in an Alarm—Department Had to Plough Through Mud and Slush—When They Arrived the Barn Was Gone—Loss Does Not Fall on Reid.

John Reid has enemies. Last night they succeeded in doing what they have been trying to do for several months, burn down the barn in the rear of his residence on Leland avenue. Reid is the proprietor of a brickyard on Leland avenue, near Berkeley avenue. Last year his house close by burnt down but has since been rebuilt. He doesn't live there anymore, however. His home is on West Front street and one of the employes at the brickyard lives in the house as care-taker.

Fred I Smith lives opposite. Shortly after 8:30 o'clock last evening Mrs. Smith looked out of the front window of her home. She saw the flames shooting out of the door to the hay loft in the barn opposite. She screamed fire.

There is a little settlement at the corner of Leland and Berkeley avenues. Besides Mr. Smith, there are the houses of James B. Guttridge, David Hand and Henry Hand. They were all aroused by the screams of "fire" and hurried to the scene of the conflagration. When they arrived the interior of the barn was nearly all ablaze. The barn is composed of a basement and two stories. The first story is of brick and the second of frame construction. The fire evidently started in the second story where the hay was stored.

It was with great difficulty that the two horses in the basement could be brought out. Then the rescuers went for the wagons. They dashed into the flames and dragged forth two wagons. The fire, however, consumed the remaining one with a quantity of harness. There were so few of the rescuers that none could be spared to send in an alarm.

They had been working at it for nearly twenty minutes when they heard the sonorous tones of the fire-alarm. Robert Guttridge, of South avenue, had seen the illumination and sent in an alarm from box 28, corner of South and Woodland avenues.

Just seven minutes after the first blow sounded Chief Doane's wagon reached the fire. The two hose wagons were close behind. They came down South to Leland avenue and had to plough through a foot of mud and slush. But for the precaution of Chief Doane to put two horses to each hose wagon, they never would have reached the place. The truck would have been stranded in the mud.

The fire was nearly burned out and little was left. As the wind was blowing away from the house and brickyard sheds, the fire was allowed to burn itself out. The nearest hydrant was 1,800 feet away. The department had nothing to do and departed homeward as soon as it was evident that their services were not needed.

There is not the slightest doubt that the fire was of incendiary origin although there is no absolute proof to that effect. Twice before in the last thirty days, the barn has been discovered all ablaze. Before that, there were several other attempts made. Reid had some trouble with several of the Italian laborers employed about the brickyard and the suspicion points toward them.

The fire really did not effect Reid in the slightest. The house and barn are owned by the First National Bank of this city. The barn is valued at $900 which was fully covered by insurance. The contents, horses, wagons and harness, were the property of J. B. Guttridge and were only used by Reid. The loss to Mr. Guttridge is in the neighborhood of $50, which is covered by insurance.

Pleasant Event.

A pleasant event in the history of the Epworth League of Grace M. E. church was the entertainment and social of last evening held in the church. As usual there was a large attendance of the members and their friends, and a profitable and interesting time was had by all. The entertainment consisted of phonograph selections given by George Voehl, piano solos by Miss May Conroy, readings by Miss Lizzie Hoagland, and a vocal solo by Mrs. Gardner, wife of the pastor of the church.

PLAINFIELD BOYS PLAY BASKET BALL.

Second Match for Local Y. M. C. A. Campionship.

THE B TEAM WON GAME.

THEY PLAYED WELL AND WON BY SCORE OF 14 TO 2.

The B Boys Have Now Won Two Games and Lost None—Lively Struggle Between Regular Team Men on Opposite Sides—Knew Each Others Tactics—Other Boys Did Well—The Line up.

The second match for the basket ball championship of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. was played last evening in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The team known as the B team found no difficulty in defeating their antagonists of the C team by a score of 14 to 2.

Both teams are composed of members of the association with two of the first team on each to coach the others and give them the benefit of their training in the game. The captains were George Proctor Smith, of B, and Walter L. Long, of C. Both played centre for their respective teams and it was a struggle from start to finish between them. Knowing each others tactics so well, it made their playing particularly interesting.

Of course, it was to be expected that the other boys would not put up quite as brilliant a game as the regular players. The contest was a hot one, however, and it was very evident that the association has plenty of good material in it aside from the regular team, that only needs development to bring it right to the front. Of the new players, Roy Radford and Fred Overton particularly distinguished themselves, and played a hot, snappy game from start to close.

For the first five minutes neither side showed any superiority and the score stood 2 to 2. Then the B boys began to improve. Max Moraller seemed to be everywhere at once and played a remarkably pretty game. Fred Bonny followed him closely and gave Max a lively time of it.

The passing was fair and goal throwing, except on the part of Moraller, not particularly accurate. Of the new men, Radford and Overton showed the most aptitude in team play, which was probably owing to the fact that they had more practice in that work than the rest. At the end of the first half the score stood 8 to 2. In the second half C braced up on the defensive game, but was unable to score at all. The teams lined up as follows:

"B."		"C."
M. Moraller	right forward	Wilson
Radford	left forward	Radford
Smith	centre	Long
McDonald	right guard	Terry
Overton	left guard	Bonny

Politicians in Conference.

There were two gatherings last night. One was in the office of J. B. Coward and the other in the law offices of Winfield S. Angleman. The conference in Coward's office was that of the members of the Republican city executive committee and the candidates on the Republican ticket. There was a general discussion of the coming election and everybody expressed their opinion that the Republican ticket would win by a comfortable majority.

The gathering in Angleman's office was of the candidates on the Citizens' ticket. They smoked cigars and expressed their opinion that the Citizens' ticket would be elected by a comfortable majority.

Columbia Lodge Elects.

At the meeting of Columbia Lodge, A. O. U. W., last night, two new members were initiated, and two propositions for membership received. The election of officers was held in which the following were elected: Past master workman, Henry Nischwitz; master workman, R. V. Kinney; foreman, Fred C. MR. LOUNSBURY'S REPLY.

ANSWERS THE COMMUNICATION OF GEO. W. GODDARD.

Says He Never Made the Statements Referred to By Mr. Goddard—Told What He Did Say at the Meeting.

To The Editor of The Daily Press:—It would seem that Mr. Goddard in his communication in last evening's issue of your paper had forgotten his earlier education and the natural instincts of a gentleman, and I feel that his letter demands a reply.

I never made the statement referred to by Mr Goddard. What I did say was, in brief, as follows: First, that the State law required that all property should be assessed at its actual or true value. Second, that under the present system the percentage of assessed valuation to real valuation varied from 25 to 70 per cent, and that the smaller properties were assessed much nearer their actual value than the larger and more extensive were; thus working injustice to to the former and compelling the owner of a small home to bear more than his just share of the burden. Third, that the only way to equalize taxation was to assess as the law required, each property at its actual worth; then in that case, the larger and more valuable properties, assessed now in many instances at 25 per cent of their actual worth, would be increased 75 per cent, and the smaller and less expensive ones, assessed now in many cases at 75 per cent of their actual value, would only be increased 25 per cent and thereby larger properties would be so largely increased in compasion with the smaller ones that the smaller ones would pay less tax than at present, which would be more equitable and just.

Very respectfully.
Fred C. Lounsbury.

A PRAISE SERVICE.

Interesting Meeting Held by Young Woman's Mission Band.

The Young Woman's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church held an interesting praise service in the lecture room of the church yesterday afternoon. The programme, consisting of responsive readings, songs, etc., was one prepared by the Woman's Executive Committee Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed church of America, and was adopted for the meeting by a committee from the Mission Band. Mrs. F. E. Woodruff, president of the Mission Band, was in charge and conducted the service. A report was read during the meeting by Miss Emma Gillem telling something of the anniversary exercises of the Woman's Board of Domestic Missions which was held in New York a short time ago. Another feature was the vocal solo given by Miss Blanche Fellows during the offertory.

The officer placed him in the lockup and he was arraigned before Mayor Fisk yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, the man previously not being in condition to appear. His Honor decided to impose a fine of $5 or 15 days. The man not having the money he was committed to the county jail.

Change of Date.

MANY BRAVES JOIN MIANTONOMO TRIBE.

One Hundred and Fifteen Young Men Adopted.

ALL RECORDS ARE BROKEN.

GREAT GATHERING OF RED MEN AT MEETING LAST NIGHT.

There Were so Many Candidates That the Adopted Degree Could Not be Worked on Them All—Two Were Selected and the Ceremonies Worked on Them—A Collation Followed Addresses.

Last night was a memorable one in the history of the Red Men of Plainfield. Miantonomo Tribe held a meeting at which it nearly doubled its membership. One hundred and twenty five pale-faces were entitled to become wild and woolly Red Men and one hundred and fifteen of that number were present and were converted into accomplished braves through the ministrations of the mighty chieftains of the tribe in question. Altogether, it was a great event.

Four weeks ago at a meeting of the Miantonomo Tribe, two great chieftains of the Indian fraternity rated the members soundly for their slowness in bringing new recruits into the ranks. They were Grand Junior Sagamore Newcorn and Senior Sagamore Nash, of the Paughnaughcaughsinque Tribe. As a result, the members decided to make an extraordinary effort, the results of which have already been seen.

To attract many to the order, the rule regarding the initiation fee was suspended to all who were 35 years or younger. So the increase is composed of all who are under that age and most of them between 21 and 30 years of age.

The increase is the largest ever made at one meeting in the history of the order in New Jersey. There are few other fraternal orders in the State, if any, who can boast of such a record.

It was simply impossible to perform the adoption ceremonies on all the candidates, so two were selected from among the many who volunteered, and the regular adoption team went through the work with characteristic thoroughness and excellence.

The adoption degree team was composed of the following: Sachem, William A. Westphal; senior sagamore, Joseph Johnson; junior sagamore, David C. Allen; prophet, Andrew J. Stiglitz; first sannap, Joseph Neuman; second sannap, John Green; first scout, Charles Holdstein; second scout, George Houseman; first warrior, William Staats; second warrior, Fred Sawden; third warrior, Harry Dreier; fourth warrior, Louis Alpaugh; first brave, Robert Slorah; second brave, David Morning; third brave, Charles Fulmer; fourth brave, Edward Vail; guard of the wigwam, N. C. Mague; chief medicine man and rain-maker, William Newcorn; assistants to the chief medicine man and rain-maker, Peter C. Blimm and John Cashman.

In addition to the candidates, there were over 150 Red Men present from the home tribe and from Paughcaughnaughsinque and Indianola tribes. After the adoption ceremonies, a collation was served by Mine Host Spiegel. Then came addresses by Great Sagamore Smyth, of Long Branch, Great Junior Sagamore William Newcorn and Senior Sagamore V. W. Nash.

Mr. Martine to Democrats.

To the Editor of The Daily Press.—As is well known I was in favor of a straight Democratic ticket in the approaching city election, and still believe that with a Democratic ticket, of good, representative Democrats as candidates, we could have won, but at a meeting of the Democrats held in the city it was decided that we should not present a party ticket. Regretable as this was, I feel it now the wisest and best for the interests of our city that the Citizens' ticket be elected. As a Democrat, who for long years has been honored by the Democrats of Plainfield, I most respectfully urge upon Democrats to vote the Citizens' ticket. It is a step in the right direction and well deserves support.

ALDRIDGE SUSPENDED

Gov. Black Complies With the Superintendent's Request.

DEPUTY TO ACT MEANTIME

Believed that the Prosecution of the Cases Will Go Over to the Administration of Gov. Roosevelt. Text of the Order Issued by Gov. Black.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Governor Black yesterday afternoon announced that he had complied with Mr. Aldridge's request and had relieved him from duty pending the judicial inquiry of tht findings of Judge Countryman.

"Charges of misconduct in office having been presented against George W. Aldridge, superintendent of public works, and he having requested to be relieved from further performance of the duties of his office pending judicial investigation of such charges, and it appearing to my satisfaction that the public interest requires it; therefore, in compliance with such request, and in pursuance of the authority vested in the governor by section 3 of article 5 of the constitution, it is "Ordered, that the said George W. Aldridge be and he is hereby suspended from the exercise of the duties of the office of superintendent of public works."

It is believed that no appointment will be made to fill the vacancy, but that Deputy Patrick McQueeney will administer the affairs of the department during Mr. Aldridge's retirement.

Attorney General Hancock is devoting considerable time to an examination of Judge Countryman's findings. He is not disposed, however, to say how speedily it will be possible to enter upon the prosecution in earnest.

Much work must be done, and it seems improbable that the canal charges can be presented to the Albany grand jury, which convenes next week. No advices have been received at the executive chamber to indicate Colonel Roosevelt's choice of counsel to be associated with the attorney general in the prosecution.

Unless the situation changes materially it may be stated as a practical certainty that the prosecution of the canal cases will not be begun before the next state administration comes into office.

The Portland Disaster.

Orleans, Dec. 3.—Two more bodies have come ashore from the wreck of the Portland, making twenty-three in all.

One of the latest has been identified as that of A. Gosselin, assistant city clerk of Montreal, Canada, and the other as that of a deck hand.

The three bodies which were reported as having been recovered at Chatham last night are those of Ansel Dyer, quartermaster of the Portland; Walter L. Bemis of Auburn, Me., and Edwin Dunbar of Boothbay, Me.

Provincetown, Mass., Dec. 3.—One of the bodies that came ashore here from the steamer Portland has been identified as that of Willard E. Mosher of Gorham, Me.

The Wreck Near Plymouth.

Plymouth, Mass., Dec. 3.—It has been impossible yet to identify the wreck which was discovered on Rocky Hill Ledge last Tuesday, and reported last night.

The evidences of a wreck were first discovered by a moss gatherer named Glynn, of Elisha's Point, near the ledge.

The stump of a mast protruded from the water at low tide, and between the trough of the waves occasional glimpses of the stern and quarter of the vessel could be seen.

Glynn was of the opinion that the wreck was that of a good sized vessel, and others who have sighted the hull say the same.

A Cycle Show in New York.

New York, Dec. 3.—Bicycle riders will have a cycle show to attend this winter, one which is likely to be even more interesting than the national shows that were once a fixture, but which were finally given up on account of the adverse stand taken by the National Cycle Board of Trade, now extinct.

As the result of a thorough canvass of the trade, it has been decided to hold a cycle dealers' exhibition in the Grand Central Palace during the entire week from March 23 to April 1.

The show will be local in character, and it is understood that nearly all of the local dealers have promised to exhibit.

First New York's Return.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 3.—Bids for the transportation of the First New York regiment of volunteers, due to arrive here from Honolulu soon, have been opened by Depot uartermaster Long.

The bids for carrying twelve companies, numbering about forty-six officers and 1,270 men, from this city to New York, range from $9.90 to $40.06 for each passenger.

The contract for the work has not yet been awarded.

Cubans Buying Arms.

Havana, Dec. 3.—It is reported here on good authority that the Cubans have recently and secretly acquired a formidable supply of arms, the ulterior object of which is not known.

They have purchased more than eight thousand rifles within the last ten days, and the fact that they are continuing to purchase arms and ammunition is causing considerable speculation here.

Quick Time to Havana.

New York, Dec. 3.—The Southern Railway announces that their first through service to Havana, via their line and the Florida East Coast Steamship Company, began last night, making the time two days, fourteen hours and fifty-five minutes, the fastest time on record.

ALASKA'S GREAT VOLCANO.

Light Enables Miners to Work Through the Long Arctic Night.

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 3.—Further information of the active volcano discovered in the Atlin gold district in British Columbia, is to the effect that the volcano furnishes the miners a light by which to work their claims during the long darkness of the Arctic winter.

The glare from the spouting lava, reflected back against the sky, gives an almost continuous twilight to the upper end of the Atlin district.

All the passengers of the steamer Cottage City, arriving from Alaska, have stories to tell of the volcano, but from Dr. W. B. Kinslowe and T. H. James, mining men of Denver, who have been making an examination of the Atlin country, comes the best and apparently most authentic description of the Alaskan Vesuvius.

"The mountain in eruption," said Dr. Kinslowe, "is the second in the range of four towering peaks, lying about fifty miles due south of Lake Gladies, and a slightly shorter distance from Atlin City. These mountains are all of at least 14,000 feet altitude, the crater resting a trifle below its three brother peaks.

"It was in the early part of October that the smoke was first seen issuing from the mountain. With the thought of a volcano furthest from their minds, the miners attributed these first signs of eruption to clouds hanging about the peak. So constant, however, was the cloud, that it became an object of daily observation from Atlin City.

"Then, on November 8, the mountain burst forth in flames. Through the smoke cloud there snot a stream of molten lava, boulders and ashes that brightened the sky for a radius of nearly forty miles, and sent its reflected light through the darkness down upon the men working on Birch, Discovery, McKee, Pine, and other creek the sides of whose banks face toward the volcano.

A panic ensued among the miners when the ashes began falling down upon them. The ashes fell to a depth of several inches and the stream down the mountain side increased in magnitude. The fall of ashes later stopped and the men returned to work their claims.

"When we left the miners were working nights, gladly profiting by the mellow twilight caused by the volcano's glare, which turned night into day.

"No name has yet been given the mountain, but when we left the Canadian officials at Atlin were preparing for an expedition to the volcano and will undoubtedly christen it."

DEDICATING A CHURCH.

Magnificent Catholic House of Worship Ready for Occupancy.

Philadelphia, Dec. 3.—The most notable event of recent years in Catholic circles in this city is the dedication of the $100,000 church of St. Francis Xavier to-morrow. Its rector is Rev. Michael J. Gleason, half-brother of Archbishop Ryar, who will perform the solemn dedication service.

The sermon will be preached by the Right Rev. Ignatius F. Horstmann, D. D., bishop of Cleveland.

There are four deeply recessed doorways, that in the center being twenty feet in width, above which is a rose window twenty-two feet in diameter. This window is of stained glass and the gift of Archbishop Ryan. In the center is a bust picture of Christ, and surrounding it in the twelve outer panels are busts of the twelve apostles. These are rose windows also in each of the transepts. These, like the minor windows, will be of stained glass in rich hues.

REV. PATRICK J. GLEASON.

The central gable over the entrance terminates in a cross ninety-eight feet above the pavement. The tower and spire are 76 feet each, making 152 feet in all. The transept is 34 feet in width by 86 feet in length. The scantling will be finished with Italian marble.

The corner-stone was laid by Archbishop Ryan Sunday afternoon, October 8, 1894, in the presence of a gathering which was estimated at fifteen thousand persons, who thronged the street to the entrance to Fairmount Park. The ceremony was made the occasion of a great celebration.

SEC. ALGER'S REPORT

Loss of Life in the War the Smallest on Record.

ASKS ARMY OF 100,000 MEN

Of 1,431 Men Hurt at Santiago He Says Only 13 Died from Wounds. This Government Urged to Build a $20,000,000 Railroad in Cuba as a Relief Work

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—Secretary Alger's annual report is practically a complete official history of the Spanish-American war. The secretary has given to the public all the official dispatches that passed directly between his own office and commanding officers in the field and camp, supplemented by short explanatory notes, setting forth the reasons for various movements; and, to complete the record, he has included in the body of his report the report of General Miles, of all the generals who took part in the campaign in Cuba, Porto Rico or the Philippines.

Nowhere is there shown a disposition to criticise, and generally the secretary finds much to praise and cause for sincere congratulation in the results obtained.

The only exception to this lack of criticism is in reference to the casualties at Santiago. It having been asserted that there was a lack of surgeons present, the report states that there were 140 surgeons in attendance, and that of 1,431 wounded only thirteen died of their wounds. The total casualties at Santiago were 23 officers and 237 men killed and 99 officers and 1,332 enlisted men wounded.

The secretary, coming down in his history to the middle of August, when an order was issued and is now in execution to muster out 100,000 volunteers, says:

"Thus an army of about 250,000 volunteers and recruits for the regular army was called into existence from civil life, and, including the regular army, the total force was 274,717 men. It was organized, armed and equipped (no supplies being on hand other than those for the regulars, save Springfield muskets) and 50,000 men of this force were transported by land and sea to battlefields in the tropics 12,000 miles apart, where they won their victories without a single defeat, and all within the period of 113 days from the declaration of war to the signing of the protocol.

"This great achievement can be credited to no individual, it belongs to the nation. It was accomplished through the intelligence and patriotism of all who served.

"The deaths in the army from May 1 to October 1, including killed, died of wounds and of disease, were 2,910, the smallest death rate record of any army in history, a remarkable fact when it is considered that over 50,000 of our troops, born and reared in the temperate zone, were campaigning in tropical climates, subject to rain and heat almost unprecedented."

The number of deaths from all causes, between May 1 and September 30, inclusive, as reported to the adjutant general's office up to October 3, were: Killed, 23 officers and 257 enlisted men; died of wounds, 4 officers and 61 enlisted men; died of disease, 80 officers and 2,485 enlisted men. Total, 107 officers and 2,803 enlisted men, being an aggregate of 2,910 out of a total force of 274,717 officers and men, or a percentage of 1.59-1,000.

Under the head of increase in the permanent establishment, the secretary says:

"In view of the needs of a military force in the islands occupied by the United States it is earnestly recommended that the regular army be increased permanently to 100,000 men and the requisite officers."

Secretary Alger recommends as a relief measure for the Cubans, the building of a $20,000,000 railroad in Cuba by this government.

CARLISTS VERY ACTIVE.

Spanish Government Taking Strong Measures to Preserve Order.

Madrid, via Biarritz, France, Dec. 3.—There is a great deal of Carlist agitation in the north of Spain and in the province of Valencia.

The government is taking the strongest measures to preserve order and has minutely informed the queen regent of the situation.

It is expected that the work of the Paris peace commission will terminate by Monday.

Cologne, Dec. 3.—The Gazette publishes a dispatch from Madrid which says that the police nave arrested two monks at the railway station as they were about to start for the eastern provinces. When they were searched several letters written in cipher were found upon them.

The arrests were made on the strength of a hint received from a foreign source.

Bodies of the Santiago Dead.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—The war department has decided to adopt at once the suggestion of General Wood in command at Santiago, that the removal of the bodies of American soldiers from that section of Cuba, be deferred until February at the earliest. This is a sanitary precaution, which, it is felt, must outweigh other considerations.

New York to Sail for Sampson.

Fort Monroe, Va., Dec. 3.—The cruiser New York will sail from here today for Havana, whence she will bring Admiral Sampson home.

Wichita, Kansas, Dec. 3.—A colony of sixteen negroes has left Oklahoma City for Liberia. It is headed by a farmer named Appleberry, who recently sold his farm on Fork Creek for three thousand dollars. All have some money.

Lace Curtain and Blanket Cleaning

The season is here and we are prepared for it. We have the improved method for handling the finest fabrics in Lace Curtains. It requires skill and carefulness to get them a dainty white without injuring a thread or design. Few can do this, but we can, because we have made a specialty of it. We also make a study of washing woollen blankets.

A SIX DAYS' CYCLE RACE.

The Great Event Will Begin Sunday at Midnight in New York.

New York, Dec. 3.—That the six-day continuous bicycle race to be held in Madison Square Garden, beginning at midnight to-morrow night will be as international in character as it was last year is shown by the list of entries. Though thirty-one contestants have signed the agreement to become competitors, it is the intention of the management to reduce the list to 25, and hose who have received the least preparatory training for the contest will be the ones weeded out. The complete list is as follows:

CHARLES MILLER.

German, C. W. Miller, F. W. Schineer, Frank Waller, Louis Glirm, Fred Forster, P. J. Lauterwald and Magnes Gross; Irish, Teddy Hale, Pat O'Halloran, J. W. Nawn and Henry Pilkington; Swedish, Oscar Julius, Oscar Aaronson and John Lawson (the terrible Swede); French, Etienne, Etephane and Joyeux; Swiss, Fredericks; American, A. G. Bliven, C. Turville, B. Leslie, Stephen Fallon, Edward Beacon, W. J. Cochran, Frank Albart, John A. Wood, C. E. Neal, E. D. Stevens, E. C. Smith, Burns Pierce, Jack Burke and George Cartwright.

FRED WALLER.

Of the riders named, Miller, Schineer Waller, Forster, Hale, Julius, Stephane, Fallon, Beacom, Albert, Smith, Pierce and Cartwright have competed in six-day races in this city in former years, while Leslie Stevens and Glirm have qualified in long distance contests in other cities. Fredericks rode second and Joyeaux thihd to Miller in a seventy-two hour race in France lastsummer. It is the intention of the management to have two well known physicians in attendance at the Garden daily to examine competitors and prevent the possibility of any of them overstraining themselves.

TREASURE ON THE MARIA TERESA.

Safe When Opened Contained Much Gold Coin.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 3.—The safe taken from Cervera's flagship, the Maria Teresa, has been opened at the Norfolk navy yard for the first time since its recovery from the sunken ship.

In it, encased in canvas bags, was found a large sum of money, believed to be, after a careful estimate, $75,000 or more.

The bags were filled with Spanish and American coins, principally gold, each corroded by the salt water which permeated the large treasure box. Not a single scrap of paper was found in the safe.

The belief was expressed that the safe would be placed in the National Museum at Washington.

Much interest is felt as to the disposition of the treasure, and it is stated that an offer slightly in excess of its bullion value will be made for it by persons here who think the coins valuable as relics.

To Rival Carnegie Plant.

Altoona, Pa., Dec. 3.—The Cambria Iron Company, one of the oldest and largest industrial concerns in Pennsylvania, has been reorganized under the name of the Cambria Steel Company. The transfer involves the leasing of the big iron works at Johnstown.

All business will be conducted under the new name, but no change in the local business management will be made, it is said, for the present.

It is understood that the new company will, in the near future, erect an entirely new steel plant, making it the greatest in the world, the idea being to eclipse the best efforts of the Carnegie interests.

It is rumored that plans are already in course of preparation for an armor plate plant. An extension of the coke works is practically assured.

The Trainingship Adams.

San Francisco, Dec. 3.—Engineer Francis C. Prindle, United States navy, has arrived here and will at once assume charge of sinking artesan wells on Goat island to obtain water for the naval training station soon to be erected there.

The training ship Adams, at present anchored off the island, is still awaiting the arrival of her batteries from the East. When her guns arrive the training ship will start out on a cruise which will occupy nine months, and during which Honolulu, Samoa, China and Japan will be visited.

President Attends Play.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—On the invitation of the Austrian minister, President McKinley, Secretary Hay, the other members of the cabinet, the diplomatic corps, and many officers, attended solemn divine mass at St. Matthew's church yesterday morning in recognition of the fiftieth anniversary of the accession to the throne of Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria.

PREMIER DUPUY BEATEN

GAUTHIER LED OPPOSITION

Dupuy Asked for Delay on an Urgency Vote on a Measure Providing for Universal Suffrage. Said Such a Radical Move Should Not be Made in Haste.

Paris, Dec. 3.—In the Chamber of Deputies yesterday M. Gauthier, Republican, introduced a measure providing for the election of senators by universal suffrage, and demanded urgency.

The premier, M. Dupuy, opposed the granting of urgency, and said that the chamber should think twice before dedonment of the prosecution of Colonel whole electoral system.

Urgency, however, was adopted by a vote of 243 to 228.

Paris, Dec. 3.—A meeting of nearly one thousand advocates of revision was held last evening, at which was adopted a resolution demanding the abandonment of the prosecution of Colonel Picquart, the revision of the Dreyfus case and the punishment of the latter's accusers.

M. de Pressense, editor of the Temps, made a speech, in which he accused the public authorities of lack of energy in the execution of justice. Other speakers made remarks in a similar strain.

It is reported that the court of cassation has demanded access to the secret dossier in the Dreyfus case, and that M. de Freycinet has consented to its production upon the condition that certain of the documents shall not be given to the public.

Dinner to Joint Commission.

Paris, Dec. 3.—The Figaro says that M. Delcasse, minister of foreign affairs, will entertain all of the members of the joint peace commission at dinner previous to their departure from Paris.

NEWS FROM ANDREE.

Message Stating His Balloon Has Crossed Ural Mountains.

Stockholm, Dec. 3.—An engine driver named Detke has written to the Swedish-Norwegian minister at St. Petersburg a letter in which he says that he found in the vicinity of the Ural mountains a bottle containing two papers, one of which bore the following message written in French:

"Andree's balloon has crossed the Ural mountains.

(Signed) "ANDREE."

The other paper, inscribed in Russian, was as follows:

"Give this letter to the consul or to the police."

Andree, with two companions, Strindeberg and Frenkel, left the port of Virgo, Spitzbergen, on the afternoon of Sunday, the 11th of July, 1897, in the balloon Ornen. The intention of the explorers was to cross the polar regions to some point in America, going as near to the pole itself as possible.

Since that time no reliable news has been received from them, with the exception of the following message found on a carrier pigeon killed on the 22d of July by one of the seamen of the whaler Aiken, between the Spitzbergen North Cape and the Seven Isles, in about 80 degrees north latitude:

"13th July, 12.30 p. m., 82.2 N. Lat., 15.5 E. Long. Good progress toward the north. All goes well on board. This message is the third by pigeon. "ANDREE."

If, as alleged above, the balloon had crossed the Ural mountains it would appear that the prime object of the expedition had not been attained.

To Conciliate the Filipinos.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—The recent dispatches from Madrid predicting trouble for the Americans with the insurgents in Manila, are similar to those sent out from Spanish sources before the peace negotiations began. The Spaniards desire to make trouble in the islands and to give the world the impression that the Americans will not be able to quiet the natives.

The administration, however, has not neglected to prepare for the occupation of the Philippines. Foro some time plans have been discussed looking towards the conciliation of Aguinaldo and his followers. It is stated in Washington on good authority that so soon as the peace treaty is signed these plans will be put in operation, and that Gen. Otis, who has been commissioned for this delicate work, has received his instructions. Gen. Otis has had experience in such matters, as his record in the Indian country will show.

Conditions at Manila.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—That there is a decided improvement in the health of the troops in the Philippines is shown by the following cable message from General Otis, commanding at Manila, received by Adjutant General Corbin.

"Percentum of sick of command November 30, 10 1-6, against 12 1-5 October 31. November deaths 26, as against 45 for October. Sick rate in command about same as among troops of other governments serving in tropical countries. One-third of present sick suffering from typhoid and malarial fever, one-sixth from intestinal troubles, and the remaining half of ailments slight in character."

Rochester Play House Burned.

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 3.—The Academy of Music, Rochester's oldest and most famous playhouse, was destroyed by fire yesterday morning. Estimated loss, $5,000; insurance $23,000.

The tenants on the ground floor will lose from ten thousand to fifteen thousand dollars.

It is thought that the fire was caused by an explosion in the boiler room.

Manager J. H. Phillips says that all his properties are lost, entailing a loss of $7,000 to $10,000.

DUN'S WEEKLY REVIEW.

Number of Failures for the Month Much smaller Than Usual.

New York, Dec. 3.—The report of failures for the month of November is extremely gratifying because it shows not only a decrease in number and a smaller amount of liabilities than in any other month excepting three summer months since the monthly record began, but because careful analysis shows a striking improvement both in the small and in the large failures, and in nearly all classes of industry and trade.

Considering that failures are usually smaller in summer months than in November, the monthly return may be considered about the best made, and shows a condition of financial soundness rarely surpassed.

Revival of gold imports, one million dollars for the week, is merely a recognition of enormous indebtedness of other countries to the United States, but scarcely a beginning of payment. Though the past week's exports of produce were small, the balance due to this country on the trade of November was again over sixty million dollars.

A striking feature has been the enormous purchases of bonds amounting to $105,000,000 for the month, far surpassing all records.

Nobody can estimate the gain for the iron and steel industry which will result from the past week's transactions in steel rails, which are said to exceed 700,000 tons.

Sales of wool have been very large in November, 39,875,800 pounds in five weeks, against 34,122,400 pounds last year, and 26,831,000 in 1892, but they have been affected by important concessions in price.

The rise of cotton to 5.62 cents, which had no other basis than an impression that cold weather and storms late in November might do much harm, reacted a sixteenth, but rose Friday and closed at the top price, with improvement in the goods market.

The wheat market has been weaker, with heavy western receipts, and has declined one-half cent.

Atlantic exports have been 6,123,056 bushels, flour included, for the week against 4,187,632 last year, and Pacific exports 1,810,225, against 1,857,969 last year. Within the same time corn exports have been 14,490,283 bushels against 12,881,532 last year, and the price has risen one-quarter of a cent.

The volume of payments through clearing houses have been 14.1 per cent. larger for the week than last year, and 13.3 per cent. larger than in 1892, and for the month the returns have been 21.6 per cent. larger than last year, and 19.2 per cent. larger than in 1892.

Failures for the week have been 231 in the United States, against 306 last year, and 19 in Canada, against 28 last year.

THE PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

No Real Progress Made at the Joint Session.

Paris, Dec. 3.—The joint session of the peace commission yesterday lasted two hours. No real progress was made. The Spaniards are awaiting instructions.

Spain's proposition for commercial privileges in the West Indies was not settled and was scarcely considered yesterday. The Americans have also asked for instructions on certain matters. The Caroline islands questions were not considered. The commissions adjourned until to-day.

The American commissioners concluded their consultation with Major General Merritt yesterday morning.

They then took up the question of Spanish commercial rights in the West Indies for a term of years and other subjects of negotiation.

Spanish sympathizers having a quasi connection with the Spanish commission are making much over the reported attitude of the Filipinos toward the United States.

The sympathizers profess to have information that Aguinaldo means to fight, and that he now has sixty thousand soldiers, with Mauser rifles and eighteen quick firing guns, and it is asserted that he will be satisfied with nothing but independence.

Agoncillo, Aguinaldo's agent, was reticent when questioned on the subject yesterday morning, saying that he had no definite information from "the government."

Helping the Cubans.

There passes not a day in this country but what the people are appealed to and urged to aid and succor the unfortunate of other climes, and let it be said to the credit of Americans they are among the most liberal and sympathetic of the world's people to respond to such requests. In the grand volume of this charitable work the poor Cubans should not be forgotten at this time. At present there is a movement on foot for the relief of the starving Cubans, by means of carefully administered industrial enterprise, which the American people are asked to further.

The prime object of the recent war with Spain was to conquer the Dons principally that we might restore the Cuban people to a state of peace and industry and afford them opportunities to pursue the avocations which a cruel war had deprived them of. The condition of the non-combatants, known popularly as the reconcentrados, before the war is too well-known to need to be dwelt on here, but in the excitement of the conflict and the aftermath of incidents we seem to have lost sight of the abject want and other horrors of the poor Cuban.

The Cubans have been relieved of their merciless masters, but that is not enough. The end of the war found the great majority of the Cubans filled with hope and courage to again commence the battle for a livelihood, but they are badly handicapped in the fact that they have returned to what were their homes to find tools, houses and all other essentials of making a living absolutely wiped off the face of the earth. Their land is fertile and ready to respond to the hand of the tiller. But bare hands and good intentions are not enough to succeed under such circumstances as prevail.

Tools, for one thing, are imperative to the Cubans in their efforts to again become self-supporting. But without money themselves they are unable to secure such things.

The plan proposed by William Willard Howard seems to recommend itself as efficient and practical for accomplishing the necessary object. Mr. Howard's plan, which has been taken up by an association formed for the purpose—the Cuban Industrial Relief Fund—is based on his two years' experience in relief work for the Armenians of Eastern Turkey. The plan in outline is as follows:

1. To secure good farming land where the need of the poor is the most pressing.
2. To station there a capable American superintendent, with implements, seeds and funds sufficient to employ a considerable number of men.
3. To set at work all the able-bodied poor and pay them full market rates for their labor.
4. To raise common food crops, sell them in the best available market, and with the proceeds continue the employment as long only as the need exists, using the same money over and over again.
5. To return the farmers to their own former homes as soon as they are physically, mentally and financially able to re-establish their plantations.

While inspired by charitable motives, the whole plan is to be operated purely as a business transaction, in which the laborer will feel that he has rendered service for all he has received, and that he has not been robbed of his manhood by being treated like a beggar. The money thus invested (and it will be invested, not spent) will save the United States millions that would otherwise be used to clothe and feed an idle, though suffering population.

THEY WILL HAVE A MILLION EACH.

The three daughters of Ah Fong, Miss Bessie, Miss Carrie and Miss Marie, who come from Hawaii, are attractive young women and the fact that their father gives each of his girls $1,000,000 as a marriage dowry will not lessen the interest that is felt in them. They have seven married sisters, each of whom has been given the million dot.

Will "Curfew" Ring?

The fact that neither the Republicans nor the Citizens' are referring to the "curfew bell" idea being inculcated into the local government if either wins at the election next Tuesday, must not be accepted as indicative that such will not be the case. On the contrary, we have it on pretty good authority that there is a strong likelihood of a "curfew" ordinance being introduced into the Common Council after the first of January next.

The devotees of this idea are doing missionary work in a quiet sort of way by the distribution of literature and personal advocacy among the influential ones whenever opportunity affords. The idea has gained many friends of late.

There is no doubt but what some corrective influence is needed in Plainfield for the large number of youth who spend a great part of their time on the streets when they ought to be at home, but whether the "curfew bell" will accomplish a desirable change is a question upon which many differ. The very fact that the "curfew bell" is an institution of colonial times and the outgrowth of puritanical notions makes it abhoritive to many.

In thinking of the hardships that the past week has brought to those whose duties have kept them out-of-doors during that time, don't forget the faithful little carrier boys of The Daily Press. Regardless of the severe storm, piling up small mountains of snow for them to wade through, while piercing wind made their ears, hands and nose tingle with the cold, these industrious youths have braved all the difficulties of the weather and put The Daily Press into the hands of the regular readers with clock-like regularity every evening.

It is evident that if Senator Reed is chosen president of the next State Senate it will only be after a fight in which he has tested the most astute political skill of a number of New Jersey Republicans. Franklin Murphy, chairman of the State committee, has announced himself in favor of Senator Ketcham, Senator Reed's leading opponent, for the honor. But the Tall Sycamore of Somerset is something of a politician himself.

If that trolley line is ever built between Metuchen and Plainfield we shall have a merry tug-of-war for the trade of the people living in the vicinity of Metuchen. The bulk of that trade comes to New Brunswick now.—New Brunswick Home News.

It will be more than a merry tug-of-war; it will be an aggressive one, with Plainfield exercising the greatest strength.

Two British brigades have been ordered to the Swat Valley, owing to the Mad Mullah's successes over the local tribesmen.—Current News Item.

We await with intense interest the news from Swat Valley, and of that great and noble warrior, Mad Mullah.

Do your holiday trading in Plainfield. It is as easy, as cheap and as satisfactory in every way as going to New York.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

"Roosters shall no longer rule this town," is the rallying cry of the supporters of the Citizens' ticket in Plainfield. In the dialect of that city, "roosters" means commuters who represent a large proportion of the city's wealth and intelligence. — Newark News.

A Plainfield paper on Tuesday printed a warning to cyclists at the top of its first page, telling them that they must light their lanterns on that day at 5:35 p. m. Are the Plainfield riders such cranks that they ride through snow drifts or does Plainfield demand that the lanterns be lighted whether in use or not?—New Brunswick Home News.

Somerset county would be honored in the selection of Senator Reed as presiding officer of the Senate. The position has once before been creditably filled by one of her sons, and now another seeks this desirable office. Senator Reed could wield the gavel with dignity, and make Somerset's influence felt in the legislative halls. He has the support of a number of Senators who want to see him elevated to the chair, but Senators Ketcham, of Essex, and Johnson, of Bergen, are still his active opponents, and they have strong influences behind them. Should Senator Reed win, it would be a compliment to the county, as well as an honor to himself.—Unionist Gazette.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The shoe men in this city say that they are not able to supply the demand for rubbers this week. The wet weather has made such a cry for rubbers and boots that the New York wholesale houses are not able to secure enough to supply the retail trade, and therefore the retail merchants can't sell to their customers.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 3—William H. Cole, the coal merchant, had an experience the other day with an eyeglass peddler. A smart-looking young fellow came into the office and wanted to sell him a pair of eyeglasses. Now Mr. Cole is well supplied with glasses, and told the man so. But the peddler insisted on showing Mr. Cole his stock, and picking out a pair handed them to Mr. Cole saying, "Just try these on, and if you can't see better out of them than out of any glasses you ever had, I'll give them to you." Mr. Cole tried them on, and sure enough, they fitted him to perfection. The peddler offered to let them go very cheap, as this was his first sale, and offered to throw in a case. Mr. Cole stepped out of the office for a moment, and when he came back the peddler handed him a case in which was a pair of glasses, took his money and walked out. When Mr. Cole opened the case soon afterwards, he found a pair of glasses, sure enough, but a pair worth about fifteen cents.

It has been suggested that a waiting room be provided at the end of the trolley here, for the passengers who have to wait for the Bound Brook trolley. As the Bound Brook car only runs once an hour, often times there are a number of passengers who have to wait, and now that the cold weather has come, the passenger must wait out in the cold or else go in one of the stores and wait. Sometime it is hoped that the cars will run directly from Plainfield to that place, and this will do away with this waiting.

It has been found out that the net results of the fair, held under the auspices of the Methodist Epworth League a few weeks ago, amounted to $150, a result of which all the members of the league feel proud.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 3—The Fanwood Fire Company has just completed another addition to its unique house. During the winter months the building is used for the social gatherings in the borough and there has been a long-felt want for a ladies' reception room, and such a room has just been added. The room is to be furnished by donations from the members of the company and it has already received a large, handsome rug, the gift of the president of the company. Other donations will soon follow and in a short time the room will be nicely furnished.

The Saturday Night Club, a prominent feature in the social life of Fanwood last winter, is to be resumed again this evening. A meeting will be held in the Fanwood fire house when new officers will be elected and committees appointed. As this club comprises all of the prominent citizens of the borough and their families, it will prove to be quite a factor in the social life in the borough this winter.

Willie Trayno was again brought before Judge Clark Friday evening. This time the complainant was Robert Snyder, who charged that Trayno has abused him by calling him names and using profane language to him. Judge Clark set the hearing down for 7:30. When the time arrived Snyder failed to appear to press the complaint, so Trayno was discharged.

Robert Walpole received the sad news Thursday morning that his daughter Alva, wife of Charles Berry, of Brooklyn, was lying at the point of death and could live but a short time. Mrs. Berry is well-known in the village and her many friends hope for the best.

The contract cases in Judge Clark's court, Thursday, of Stocker and Moral, judgment was rendered for full amount and costs; Stocker against Walters, adjourned to December 7th; Stocker against Ryno, was settled out of court, the defendant paying the cost of court.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, December 3.—Over 500 people went to the Presbyterian church last evening to hear the war lecture given by Miss Annie Benjamin, who it was advertised accompanied the American Army to Cuba, but from her lecture it appeared that she was not with the army at all and only visited the city of Santiago after the fall of the same. What she had to say was very interesting and treated of the scenes in the Cuban capital at that time. Miss Benjamin went to Cuba as the correspondent of a New York newspaper, and reached there on a collier which had been charted by the Government.

At the meeting of the Township Committee held last evening a communication was received from Judge W. G. Peckham offering to give to the township a street extending from Lawrence avenue to Brightwood avenue. The matter was laid over until the next meeting. Township Treasurer Harden was empowered to discount a note for $1,000 to pay off one for the same amount which falls due December 5th, and also one for $3,000 which will be due the 16th of this month.

Dressy Silk Bodice.

Separate waists for wear with handsome skirts of black velvet, faille or satin are built of rose colored peau de soie and other rich silks and make very pretty combinations.

A handsome blouse of silk is slightly pouched in front, the material being laid in three box pleats, on either side of a vest of figured silk, trimmed with lace to simulate a corselet. The epaulets are of figured silk, edged with lace. The tight fitting sleeves are made into tucks above the elbows and are finished with two frills on the shoulder. A high stock collar of the silk with lace frills, and a jeweled belt completes this pretty waist.

Hooked Down the Back.

Chief among the novelties from over the sea brought out by high-class modistes in this country is the bodice or princesse polonaise which hooks, buttons, or laces down the center of the back. This style is certainly advantageous to a graceful figure. Yet there is one great difficulty to overcome. How is the woman who has no maid or a convenient friend handy to fasten her gown? Fashion rarely troubles herself about such details, so her devotees have to solve some of her sartorial problems as best they can. In fastening these waists and princesse dresses, the most charming and costly buttons will be utilized by the modiste. Graduated trimmings and V-shaped insertions on each side of the row of buttons are employed, which serve to break the breadth of the shoulders.

Royal Cooks.

The Queen's daughters, in addition to being excellent needlewomen, are also good cooks. When they were children they had a little kitchen of their own at Osborne, where they concocted all kinds of dishes, sweets being naturally the favorites. Here they converted into jam the fruit out of their own gardens, and turned out many a savory dish for the delectation of their brothers, all of whom had as excellent appetites as generally appertain to boys. At least one of the princesses still continues to cook an occasional little dish, and has been heard to say that she would have made an excellent chef.

Home Dressmaking Hints.

When putting on bone casings make a loop at the top of each by turning over an inch of binding. Run the casing on rather full, or it will soon be in holes.

Always iron coat collars and cuffs that are to have several rows of stitching round the edge before putting them in the machine, and again after the stitching is done.

Put skirts into the bands, and see that they are the same length all round before finishing off the bottom hem. A skirt that "sags" at the back is not beautiful to look upon.

Handsome Silks.

Dressmakers still continue to recommend the very handsome peau de soie silks to those who do not admire the solid, rather garish lustre of satin. Peau de soie has rich, half-lights on its surface, and the silk is twilled, making it more durable than satin or many kinds of silk. These beautiful fabrics appear this season in many lovely tints, in one color, in new chameleon effects, in small flowered designs, and also in very pretty devices appropriate for accessories and fancy waists.

Stylish Sleeves.

Many of the small mutton-leg and chatelaine sleeves on French and English gowns, both for day and evening wear, are tucked in inch-wide tucks at the top of the sleeve or its diminutive puff. These tucks run around, not up and down, the puff, and are from three to five in number. They are made before the sleeves are shaped, or even lined, if anything except the thinnest lining-silk is used.

A Cold Country.

The coldest inhabited country appears to be the province of Werchojansk, in Oriental Siberia. A Russian savant passed one entire year in this inhospitable region, and kept a daily record of the temperature, from which it appears that the daily mean of the entire year is 2.74 degrees below zero!

Raw cabbage is much more digestible than when cooked. A cabbage salad made from a raw, fresh, and crisp head of cabbage and served with a French dressing is much improved if garlic is rubbed in the bowl from which it is served.

The Human Body.

The mechanism of the human body is the most complicated and perfect in existence. There is no movement known to engineers which does not exist in our bodies. The muscles alone number five hundred, and the alimentary canal is about thirty-two feet. The heart is six inches in length and four inches in diameter, and beats seventy times per minute, 4,200 per hour, 100,800 times per day, 36,792,000 times per year. At each beat of the heart two and a half ounces of blood are thrown out of it, 175 ounces per minute, 656 pounds per hour, seven and three-quarters of a ton per day. All the blood in the body passes through the heart in three minutes. This little organ, by its ceaseless industry, pumps each day what is equal to lifting 122 tons one foot high, or one ton 122 feet high. Each square inch of skin contains 3,500 perspiratory pores, each of which may be likened to a little drainpipe one-fourth of an inch long, making an aggregate length in the entire surface of the body of 201,166 feet.

Buttons Extensively Used.

It is officially announced that buttons will be extensively used wherever possible, and that they will, as a rule, be of considerable size—not always round, but oval, square, and oblong also. Cameo effects, it is said, will reappear, some of these buttons surrounded by a circle of Rhinestones or very fine-cut French brilliants. Buttons with buckles to match of real gold and real silver will be used. Many years ago the craze for cheap buttons reached an extravagant height, from three to five dozen sometimes trimming a single gown, and tons of metal buttons were manufactured to supply the demand. Nowadays, if buttons are worn as ornaments, they must be artistic and valuable. The cheap, showy kinds have departed to the limbo to which wax flowers, wool mats, shell ornaments, and crochet antimacassars are banished.

A Great Chance.

There is a great chance for old maids in the Argentine Republic. There are about sixteen men to one woman there, and the unmarried males are more than anxious to secure wives. When a "new woman," as the welcome arrival is called, comes to town about fifty men make a wild effort to secure her. It is quite an interesting contest, and the one who captures the prize is looked upon as something of a hero. The local papers write columns about it, and almost everybody in the city turns out to the wedding. It doesn't matter much about the woman's age or looks, she is received with open arms and married off in a jiffy to some real nice man. The woman will have about fifty good-looking suitors to pick from, so she need not be anxious about not finding the kind of man she wants. The love-making doesn't last long, however. Three days is the usual limit.

Yokes and Guimpes.

Ladies' cloth, very light in weight and of exquisite velvet-like surface, in ivory or cream-white, geranium or military red, pale dahlia, or old rose, orange, and fawn color, is much used for guimpes or yokes on tailor costumes of broadcloth, and when a lighter fabric is preferred, tucked corded silk or crystal bengaline in similar colors is used. Some of the cloth yokes are left plain; others are overlaid with an entire second yoke of open-work silk applique, passementerie, or braiding. On evening toilets, nets, soft Liberty satins, India silks, chiffon, and crepe de Chine are variously used for yokes or guimpes, and many times the sash or folded girdle and little sleeve puffs are formed of corresponding material.

New Silks.

In an array of elegant "dress" silks recently displayed were bayadere and iridescent taffetas, in plain patterns or brocaded with very beautiful Marie Antoinette designs; corded silks in both fine and heavy reps, and in exquisite evening colorings in monochromes or figured with dainty garlands of roses; Victorias and moires with woven patterns resembling lacework or passementerie scrolls, and Lyons silks in vivid colorings and of superb texture, whose designs are toned by a film-like over-weaving which gives them a silvery or chine effect.

Velvet Very Fashionable.

Velvet in all shades and varieties will be fashionable, both as an accessory and for the making of redingotes, under-dresses, and complete costumes. Black undoubtedly takes precedence, but marked favor is shown to new, very elegant shades in Russian green, damson, orchid purple—a superb color, with a glow of crimson in it—to dark sumac red, and a complete grade of rich, becoming browns, which include the Havana, cedar, seal, chestnut, and marquise dyes.

A PARIS SUGGESTION.

CURRENT COMMENT.

One thing to be remembered is that the war will have to be fought all over again in the magazines. This is one of the vicissitudes of peace.

The most unfortunate royal family of the nineteenth century is undoubtedly that of Austria. The old Emperor has lost his wife by assassination, his son by suicide, and his brother, Maximilian, by execution in Mexico.

Some of the New Englanders who invested heavily in the great scheme for extracting gold from sea water still believe that the process will make them rich. The gold brick dealer will call on these guileless persons immediately.

After a thorough overhauling, the battleships are again ready for business on a fighting basis. Yet, for the present, their occupation is gone, and will not return until some other foreign nation indulges in excessive gayety with the American eagle.

And now Germany is displeased with the appointment of John Hay as Secretary of State, for the reason, it is said, that it indicates a steady growth of sentiment in favor of an Anglo-American alliance. It is a dull day when Germany doesn't find some new American grievance to growl about.

There are said to be about 3,000,000 Germans in the United States, and a very large proportion of the males among them are trained soldiers. These people are taking every opportunity to declare their loyalty to our Government, and they furnish an excellent reason why Emperor William should avoid a war with this country.

When this war passes into history, its recorders will lay stress on the humane features conspicuous in it as contrasted with former conflicts. Especially are these to be seen in the care of the wounded. Never before did such sufferers, when carried by sea, have the benefit of such luxuries as the ice plant, carbonating plant, distilling plant, steam laundry and X-ray apparatus, with all of which the hospital ship Missouri is to be fitted.

An American astronomer stationed in Arizona says the telescopes of this period are large enough but that some of the best are badly located and give blurred views on account of atmospheric defects. High elevations in dry climates are recommended. Objects can be distinctly seen at Arequipa, Peru, which would be invisible with the same instrument at Harvard. At great elevations in certain countries the number of clear nights is at the maximum and the air is steadier, as well as purer.

The judgment comes from the District court at the national capital that the sale of newspapers on the streets is a legitimate business, and that newsboys have a right to enter street cars and sell papers to passengers provided they behave themselves and leave the car when their business is finished. One newsboy was forcibly ejected from a car in Washington some time ago and had a leg crushed by a car running on the other track. He has just obtained an award of $5,000 damages from a jury under instructions to the above effect by the judge.

"To go up Salt River" has been a phrase that runneth back as far as the memory of the men who voted for Jackson. In many parts of the country Salt River has been regarded as a myth, with no more real being than the Styx. But as a matter of fact Salt River does exist, and not many miles from Louisville at that. It rises in Mercer county. It flows through Mercer, Anderson, Spencer, Bullitt, Hardin and Jefferson counties. It is bordered on both sides of its tortuous course by rich farms and tobacco lands that produce also timber, fruit, grains and cereals.

The feat of Dewey and Merritt in capturing Manila after the protocol of peace had been signed, has been compared to the battle of New Orleans, fought and won by Andrew Jackson January 8, 1815, two weeks after the treaty of peace had been signed at Ghent. But the instances are far from parallel. Dewey's capture of Manila on Saturday was the logical sequence of his glorious May-day victory. He began and ended a campaign which has been an unbroken series of successes, and his occupation of the Philippine capital, late as it is, puts a dramatic finish to the war and makes easier the task of securing the fruits of our wonderful military success. Jackson's victory at New Orleans, however, only served to console the United States for its military failures and to soothe the mortification of having concluded a peace the terms of which did not even refer to a single one of the wrongs to repair which the war had been declared. Jackson's belated success saved the Madison administration from wreck and later made Old Hickory President, but New Orleans had none but a sentimental value, and was fruitless of any real results.

Well, Mr. Merchant-who-thinks-of-advertising, this is only one of the many corners in THE DAILY PRESS—it isn't the best located one, either; we can give you better—and if this attracts your attention in our endeavor to tell you how good advertising will get you a hearing before the purchasing public, doesn't common sense teach you that if you were having people reading your trade story instead of you're reading our argument about it, that it would be better for your business THE DAILY PRESS reaches the purchasing public that makes the profits for the merchant.

We can give you big or little space—but in advertising it is'nt always economy to be sparing in your appropriation.

A WAR ROMANCE.

BY HELOISE DURANT ROSE.

It was breakfast time at Avondale, and General Higgerson, for the fifth time, wondered what kept his daughter as he fidgetted with his paper and stirred his hot coffee. Through the open window overlooking the sloping, velvety lawn, honeysuckles peeped into the old-fashioned room and scented the air with their fragrance; the bright sunshine lighted up the oak-paneled walls, gleamed on glasses and silver on the table, and played about the old General's white head. Just as his patience was at an end the door opened and admitted a tall, handsome girl, with bright blue eyes and a determined mouth. She held a big bunch of clematis in her hand.

"Where have you been, Mona?" inquired her father.

"Down at the river; I found the stone wall near the boathouse ablaze with these blossoms. I am sorry to be late, dear."

"The Southern mail is in," observed the General, nodding toward a small pile of letters at her plate.

She flushed slightly as she laid the clematis on the sideboard, and took her seat at the table. A conscious smile crossed her father's face as she broke the seal of the first letter. He turned to the paper in his hands, and his eyes caught this heading: "A Romance in Real Life." He glanced at the article casually, and then the smile died away; his hands tightened on the paper and his face grew hard and stern while he read the following paragraph:

"With the invalided officers returning this week is young Col. Lawrence, who was severely hurt in the charge at San Juan. Among the nurses who went to look after the sick was a handsome young woman whom the Colonel formerly admired. Family misfortunes had forced her to adopt nursing as a profession. Their friendship was renewed, and when the Colonel came home he was engaged to his old love. Col. Lawrence is to be married very shortly. Report says that he had entangled himself with another lady, who will now find that she must look elsewhere for consolation."

As he laid down the paper the General glanced at his daughter. She was sitting, with a dazed expression on her face, gazing at a letter she held.

"Father, what does this mean?" she exclaimed, holding out the letter. He took it from her and this is what he read:

"24 West Fifty—— Street,
"New York, Sept. 12, 1898.

"Dear Mona: You may have seen in the papers an account of my being wounded; I made light of it in my last letter, fearing to alarm you, but the truth is I am a wreck, as the papers have accurately stated. Under the circumstances I do not feel justified in holding you to your engagement; notwithstanding the pain it causes me to do this I want to release you entirely and leave you free to marry some one who is not so shattered as myself; but believe me, dearest, that whatever my future life, you will always be shrined deep in my heart of hearts. Your faithful friend,

"HENRY LAWRENCE."

"What does it mean!" almost shouted the old General. "It means that your lover is a scoundrel, Mona; read this," and he thrust into her hands the newspaper containing the "Romance in Real Life." The girl grew white to the lips; a mist before her eyes prevented her for a moment from reading the article; slowly she grasped its full purport.

"Be brave, child; be brave," said her father, as he watched her, anxiously.

She caught her breath and rose hurriedly from the table, crossed the room to the open window, and leaning there with the honeysuckles brushing against her sunny brown hair, looked out across the old lawn with unseeing eyes.

After a moment's silence, the girl turned a pale face toward her father: "I will be brave, but leave me to myself for a while," and crushing the letter in her hand, she hastily left the room.

It was a terrible blow to the General; he had always liked Col. Lawrence and consented to the engagement just before the young man was ordered to Cuba. Both Mona and her father had so thoroughly believed in Lawrence's love and faith that his letter and the story in the newspaper came upon them like a bolt from a calm sky. Mona's two younger sisters were away on a visit, and her brother was practicing law in New York. Since their mother's death, five years before, she had been her father's housekeeper and devoted companion. Though fond of his other children, Mona was the apple of his eye, and that any one should cause her pain seemed to him incredible. Pacing the rooms wrathfully, he gave vent to his feelings in swearing volubly. "The scoundrel! I should like to horsewhip him for a whelp of a cur if he were not wounded. What are his hurts to the stab he has given Mona—ah! when Gilbert hears this—" and then the General remembered that his son was coming home to a dance to be given the next week at their neighbor's, Mrs. Welland's. It was a satisfaction to have a man around to whom he could give vent to his outraged feelings.

As though in answer to his thoughts, the butler at that moment brought in a telegram. "Yes, Gilbert was coming, and, fortunately, a day earlier than expected, bringing a friend with him for the ball. Just as well to distract her attention," thought her father, as Mona joined him with her hat on and a letter in her hand.

"Going out, dear?"

"Only to the village to post a note."

"To him?"

"Yes," she replied, with a catch in her breath. "I have written a few lines to say that his views upon the subject of our engagement entirely coincide with mine."

"My brave girl."

"Don't say a word more, now, father; I can't bear it."

"Gilbert is coming to-morrow at 5 with an old college friend, who, it seems, has just turned up in New York."

"I am glad," said Mona, quietly, and then calling to her dogs, she walked quickly away, while her father watched her tall, slight figure disappearing through the trees down the road to the lodge gate.

Gilbert Higgerson was a good-hearted, rather jovial specimen of his profession, loving outdoor life and always stealing off for a day at Avondale when he could manage to escape the routine of his office. He arrived in high spirits with his friend, a Major Laurie, just returned from Puerto Rico. The two men had not met for nearly ten years, and each seemed equally glad to renew his college friendship. Major Laurie was a tall, fine-looking fellow with blond hair and mustache, a slight lisp, and an eyeglass stuck in his right eye. As soon as they were alone the General poured out his indignation and woe to his son, who was naturally much incensed at the behavior of Mona's fiance.

"Pity that your friend is an officer and just home from the war; it will keep the wound open," added his father.

"Confound it, so it will; I am decidedly sorry for Mona. No wonder she is cut up. But as Laurie is sure to know Lawrence, we must be careful not to show him that Lawrence has hurt us. Mona is plucky enough and must force herself to be jolly for a couple of days till Laurie takes his departure."

"Jolly! Poor girl, how can she be?" sighed the General.

"I should like to wring that rascal's neck," exclaimed Gilbert, impetuously, "and he of all men, whom we all liked so much."

"That is just where it hurts so," answered his father.

Mona Higgerson proved herself a true soldier's daughter, and welcomed their guest with graceful hospitality and managed to hide her grief under light badinage and smiling face; only her father and brother could see what an effort she made, and, though they applauded her pride, their hearts bled for her suffering."

"By George," exclaimed Major Laurie, (after excusing herself early in the evening, Mona had left the three men in the billiard room smoking.) "but Miss Mona is stunning. If I were not engaged to the dearest girl in the world, I should lose my heart to your sister."

"I did not know we had to congratulate you, old fellow."

"When does the happy event come off?"

"Very soon; you'll be invited."

"Who is she?" asked Gilbert, interested.

"A Miss Sterling, whose nature verifies her name; have known her since she was a girl."

"Rather anxious time for her when you were wounded," suggested the General.

"Oh, but I was not in much danger, you know; now some of the fellows got so cut up you would hardly recognize them. There was poor Lawrence—(both his listeners started)—one leg clean gone, the other up to the knee, one arm off, and a scar across his face and the plucky chap just smiled through it all."

Father and son exchanged glances.

"He pulled through, thanks to the devoted nursing he got," continued Laurie, unconscious of the interest his words aroused. "I never saw that man down until yesterday, when he collapsed as though shot."

"How was that?" asked Gilbert, in a constrained voice.

"Well, you see, it was this way; he's very reticent, still, we all knew he was devoted to some girl at home, though he never mentioned her name or spoke about her; couldn't get him into the slightest flirtation with any one. When we came back together he spoke for the first time to me about his affair. 'You see, Laurie, I am such a wreck; should I marry a girl when she might have to nurse me? and then, at best, I'm not a whole man; will have but one sound arm and only part of one leg to offer her.' By George, I felt for the poor devil when he talked like that. Well, I suggested to try her and see what she thought about it. Write and offer to release her. He caught at the idea. 'But I would not want to be married out of pity, but would just state the facts and leave her free to decide,' said he. 'And what do you think she'll write, I asked him. 'I think that she is too faithful to give me up,' he answered, and 'pon my word—scar or no scar—he looked so proud and handsome as he spoke, I only wished his sweetheart could have seen him."

"And then?" asked Gilbert, as Laurie paused in his narrative.

"Oh, then he wrote, alluding to his being a wreck, and referring to the account in the papers, and yesterday her answer came; I was in his rooms when he got her note—just a short one, but he turned white, and said bitterly, 'She writes that my views upon the subject of our engagement ending meet her own—she releases me, evidently without regret, thankful to be free from what might have been a burden to her.' I tried to cheer him up; he gave me one look, such as you see in a hunted beast as you shoot it down, and, by Jove, he keeled right over. I was in a fearful funk, and called his man. He came round presently and begged me not to mention the subject again."

"Laurie, for God's sake, explain matters a little more," cried Gilbert, who had risen from his chair in great excitement.

The Major started at his friend in astonishment.

"Yes, Sir," cried the General, equally roused, "you don't know how much depends upon what you have been telling. Col. Lawrence is engaged to marry my daughter Mona."

"The devil!" and the eyeglass dropped from its habitual place.

"And here's news of his engagement to another woman!"

"To another woman?" echoed Laurie, evidently in hopeless amazement.

"The nurse who took care of him. There is a flaring account of it in to-day's Reporter."

"Damn the newspapers; it's all a lie," cried Laurie, fumbling for his eyeglass and almost dropping his lisp. "They have mixed our name up; it is I that am engaged to the nurse Miss Sterling, whom I just mentioned; Lawrence has never looked at any other woman nor had a thought except for his fiancee; I can swear to that."

"But his letter," began the General.

"All his confounded chivalry; wishing to give Miss Mona a chance to be free of an invalid; why, he's more a man now, with legs and an arm off, than half the whipper-snappers one meets every day."

"What is to be done?" cried Gilbert. "My sister is nearly broken-hearted—"

"And Lawrence ditto; there's just one thing to do. Where's the time table?" and the Major was on his feet inspecting the mantelpiece.

"What do you mean?" asked Gilbert.

"I mean to take a train to New York to-night, if there's one that will get me there."

"Nonsense."

"Do you think I am going to see Lawrence, who saved my life at the risk of his own go through another night of despair."

"But the ball?"

"Hang the ball."

"By thunder, sir, if what you say is the true explanation of the situation, then you have made three people very happy to-night," added the General.

"Tell your sister that I am off for New York, and get a note from her. What time does the train leave?"

"There is one at 11:45, if you really mean to go."

"If you will kindly order a trap for me, I'll get ready now," said Laurie, looking at his watch and relapsing into his lisp and drawl.

A few minutes later Gen. Higgerson stood holding Mona, who, in a pretty pink dressing gown, was sobbing her heart out for joy in her father's arms. The 11:45 train took Major Laurie back to New York. Inside his vest pocket reposed a short note stained with tears.

At 6 o'clock next morning a thundering rap at the door of Col. Lawrence's room brought a sleepy, half-dressed valet to Major Laurie, who demanded instant admittance.

"I hope, sir, there's no bad news," said the valet, respectfully, "but the Colonel has been so ill ever since you left yesterday and has not slept this night."

"Bad news? No, no, man—the best your master has had this many a day. Hello, Lawrence; may I come in, old fellow?" and Major Laurie walked into the adjoining bedroom. His friend started up in bed at his entrance, and tried to ask a question, but Mona's note was in his hand before he had time to frame the words. "She will be here herself in a few hours," said Laurie, and discreetly turned toward the window and pulled up the blind; the warm sun filled the room with brightness, and a happy light shone in the Colonel's eyes as he read the few hurried lines.

"Laurie, Laurie," he cried, as his friend siezed his outstretched hand; "she's true to me, after all. Read that." He handed Mona's letter to Laurie.

"My darling," she wrote, "forgive me for misunderstanding your letter. I cannot free you from our engagement as long as I realize that you love me and that I can be of use to you. What matters to me a loss of an arm or a leg, as long as you have body enough left to hold your soul together. I am yours till God calls that soul home to Himself.

Your loving Mona."

Toward noon of that day Major Laurie had a vision of Mona with her arms around her lover's neck, heard her joyful cry, and from Lawrence a murmured "My darling—at last," and he hastily left to themselves two of the happiest hearts in New York.

As he turned to Mona's brother in the next room, wiping his eyeglass, which had suddenly become misty, he said below his breath, "By Jove, I rather think I've done a good day's work."

THIEVES LOOT A HOTEL.

Every Room in a Yonkers House Entered and Patrons Robbed.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Yonkers, N. Y., December 3.—Two well-dressed men of apparent refinement entered the Square Hotel here Thursday night and registered as John W. and Robert E. Smith, of Plainfield, N. J. They said they were brothers and were assigned to a single bedroom.

One of the patrons at noon yesterday missed a valuable gold watch and chain and found his room had been ransacked. Several other complaints were made by inmates of the hotel, and it was found that the Smiths had disappeared. It was finally learned that every room had been entered. The missing articles consisted of watches, chains, overcoats, suits of clothing and anything else of value, the total loss being about $500.

University Extension Lecture IV

Emerson and the awakening of New England. Books in the Free Public Library:

Emerson, R. W., works, complete, including his correspondence with Carlyle.

Various biographies of Emerson, by Cabot, Conway, Cooke, E. W. Emerson, Holmes, Sanborn and Thayer. In addition to these are various shorter sketches of his life, which may be had on application.

For accounts of New England Unitarianism the student is referred to the life of Channing, and other works in the reference department.

The best account of Transcendentalism in New England is that of Frothingham. Short accounts will be furnished to those who do not wish so extended an account. Hawthorne's Blithedale romance should be read in this connection.

For accounts of the Anti-slavery movement, in addition to the lives of Garrison, Wendell Phillips and other leaders, the student is referred to the larger history of the United States.

Of the works of Thorean, the library owns the following, all in the circulating department: Autumn, Cape Cod, Early Spring in Massachusetts, Maine Woods and Walden. Sanborn's life of Thorean referred to by the lecturer is also in the library.

Police Ordered Skaters Away.

There was quite a crowd of young people on Tier's pond yesterday morning for the skating was quite good. At noon, however, the skaters were ordered off by the police.

Some returned in the afternoon and were again ordered off. There were some who enjoyed a skate on Hyde's mill pond.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

An appreciative audience filled Music Hall last night and witnessed the performance of "Shall We Forgive Her?" by Marie Wainwright and company. The piece is a domestic drama, built up cleverly on the theme of "a woman with a past." Miss Wainwright was excellent in the role of 'Grace," imparting to the character a sympathy in action and word that was pathetically touching. The supporting company was equal in every respect to the dramatic demands of the performance. Manager Edwards is to be complimented on the success of the engagement from an artistic standpoint, if not a financial one.

The re organized orchestra of Music Hall, with Prof. Conde as violinist, was a pleasant treat to the patrons of the theatre last night. Manager Edwards' patrons will now be assured of good music at every performance.

* * * * *

Look out for fun and merriment at Music Hall Monday night when Washburn's Big Double Company of Minstrels make their appearance. Everyone who attended the performances of this praiseworthy organization last season, fully agreed that it was one of the best shows they had ever witnessed, but this season Mr. Washburn has outdone himself in the presentation of two complete companies, one composed entirely of white performers and the other of the best colored talent in the country. The two together, make the premier aggregation of the country, and everything on the programme is new and up-to-date. Their will be a grand street parade of the two companies Monday noon. Reserved seats are already in good demand.

* * * * *

The latest star whom Daniel Frohman has taken under his management is James K. Hackett. This actor will be seen in this city at Music Hall Saturday night, December 10th, in Anthony Hope's dramatization of his lates book, "Rupert, of Hentzau." This is the sequel to the author's previous work, "The Prisoner of Zenda." Mr. Hackett is a son of James H. Hackett, whom Abraham Lincoln declared to be the greatest Falstaff. He is still under thirty years of age, and made his first hit as De Neiperg in "Madame Sans Gene" when that play was originally produced in this country. Since then he has been leading man of the Lyceum Theatre Stock Company in New York, appearing in all the successes of that famous organization.

* * * * *

A feature of the performances to be given by "Geo. Thatcher's Fashionable Vaudevilles" at Music Hall Christmas day and night, December 26th, and one that will be alike instructive and entertaining to children as well as grown people, will be the appearance of the world famous child wonder little Gertie Cochran, the mental marvel, whose fame has made her name a household word the world over. This precocious child is the most remarkable and attractive card now on the vaudeville stage, and must be seen to be appreciated. The matinee to be given on that occasion will enable the children to enjoy this prodigy's performance.

* * * * *

The enormous success of the Proctor production, the beautiful and imposing military spectacle, "The Battle of San Juan Hill," has served to crowd the spacious Pleasure Palace, New York, every day and night during the past two weeks to an extent never before known in its history. The fame of the production has spread far and wide, and it is especially noticeable that out-of-town patrons form a very large portion of the audience, particularly in the afternoon. Of course the spectacle has improved a great deal since the first performance—new business is being constantly introduced, changes have been made here and there, all tending to the improvement of the general effect, and as a consequence the production is now given with a vim and spirit that brings the audience to its feet with appreciative applause.

A Patriotic Service.

A patriotic service will be held tomorrow evening in Washington Hall under the auspices of Lucetta Council, No. 28, Daughters of Liberty.

Elder B. W. Hand, of William Holton Council, No. 55, Jr. O. U. A. M., will address the meeting, and the public are all invited to attend. There will be singing by the Y. M. C. A. quartette, and Mrs. Manley will sing.

Missionary to Speak.

Tomorrow evening the Temple Builders' Society of the First Baptist church will have charge of the services in that church. Rev. Mr. Heinrich, of Tettu, India, who has charge of the Yerkers' chapel at that place, will speak. This chapel was built and is supported by the Temple Builders of the First Baptist church.

An Owner Found.

The wagon which was buried in the snow on the Cushing road last Saturday, and which was dug out of the drifts yesterday, belonged to Albert Bettlestetter, of Scotch Plains. Bettlestetter was the person who was driving along that road Saturday afternoon and was overwhelmed by the storm so that he was obliged to leave his wagon and return to his home on foot. It took Street Commissioner Gavett's men over a day to clear the road and expose the wagon so that it could be drawn home.

Men's Up-to-Date Clothing

Clothing manufactures are compelled to confess from the weather standpoint that October and a part of November has been a serious disappointment to them. They counted on cold weather to create a demand for the surplus stock they had made up. From two manufacturers we were able to buy a large stock of winter suits, overcoats and trousers at about 40c. on the dollar for what they could ordinarily make the goods for. It is an ill wind that blows nobody good. The present cold weather brings you now at the proper time for your winter clothing at cut prices that you could otherwise not secure and for the values read them careful they are worthy of anyone's attention for we can say without contradiction, that strictly high class, well-made and absolutely first-class suits, overcoats, ulsters and reefers for men and boys', were never sold at such prices at any other store in all the land.

Men's splendid business suits made of strictly all-wool material worth $7.50 at $3.50. Men's black and blue smooth thibet cloth suits, or the rough surface serge effects, made in the popular double breasted styles with silk faced lapels worth $15.00 at $6 90 Men's black clay diagonal coats and vests made of eighteen ounce winter weight Washington Mills clay diagonal worsted, the kind that will not fade or wear shiney at $4 90 worth $12.00 Men's suits in fine all-wool tweeds, cheviots and also homespuns, absolutely fast color and all wool worth $14 00 at $6 50. Men's fine winter overcoats made of fine gloss surface, English Kersey cloth; these coats are lined with the highest grade plaid worsteds or with silk or satin, the tailor would charge you $25.00 for such a coat, our price is $8 90. Men's extra fine Castor beaver and frieze overcoats made with raw edges and lap seams, a bargain at $15.00 now at $6.90. Men's fine all-wool overcoats made of Wanskucks Mills kersey, the smooth closely shaven kind that will stand lots of wear, worth easily $12.50, now at $5 90. Men's driving ulsters, black or brown, at $2 75, worth $7. A genuine Montagnac, extra heavy, as fine as split silk, ulster good for Sunday wear, worth $25, at $3.90. Boys' ulsters at $2.50, worth double. Children's ulsters from $1.50 up. Children's reefers from 75c. up Boys' 3 piece suits in black or blue at $2.75, ages from 11 to 16 years, worth $6.50.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Read to Both Houses of Congress Today.

VERY ABLE STATE PAPER

Government of New Possessions Left to Congress—Urges Increased Efficiency in Army and Navy—War Tax Must Continue But Would Not Disturb Monetary System of Tariff.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Washington, D. C., December 5—The President's message was read in both Houses of Congress at 2 o'clock today. The following is the complete text of the message:

To the Senate and House of Representatives: Notwithstanding the added burdens rendered necessary by the war, our people rejoice in a very satisfactory and steadily increasing degree of prosperity, evidenced by the largest volume of business ever recorded. Manufacture has been productive, agricultural pursuits have yielded abundant returns, labor in all fields of industry is better rewarded, revenue legislation passed by the present Congress has increased the Treasury's receipts to the amount estimated by its authors, the finances of the Government have been successfully administered and its credit advances to the first rank, while its currency has been maintained at the world's highest standard. Military service under a common flag and for a righteous cause has strengthened the national spirit and served to cement more closely than ever the fraternal bonds between every section of the country.

In my last annual message very full consideration was given to the question of the duty of the Government of the United States toward Spain and the Cuban insurrection as being by far the most important problem with which we were then called upon to deal. The considerations then advanced, and the exposition of the views therein expressed, disclosed my sense of the extreme gravity of the situation. Setting aside as logically unfounded or practically inadmissible the recognition of the Cuban insurgents as belligerents, the recognition of the independence of Cuba, neutral intervention to end the war by imposing a rational compromise between the contestants, intervention in favor of one or the other party, and forcible annexation of the island, I concluded it was honestly due to our friendly relations with Spain that she should be given a reasonable chance to realize her expectations of reform to which she had become irrevocably committed. Within a few weeks previously she had announced comprehensive plans which it was confidently asserted would be efficacious to remedy the evils so deeply affecting our own country, so injurious to the true interests of the mother country as well as to those of Cuba, and so repugnant to the universal sentiment of humanity.

The war continued on the old footing without comprehensive plan, developing only the same spasmodic encounters, barren of strategic result, that had marked the course of the earlier ten years' rebellion, as well as the present insurrection from its start. No alternative save physical exhaustion of either combatant, and therewithal the practical ruin of the island, lay in sight, but how far distant no one could venture to conjecture. At this juncture, on the 15th of February last, occurred the destruction of the battleship Maine while rightfully lying in the harbor of Havana, on a mission of international courtesy and good will—a catastrophe the suspicious nature and horror of which stirred the nation's heart profoundly. It is a striking evidence of the poise and sturdy good sense distinguishing our national character that this shocking blow, falling upon a generous people, already deeply touched by preceding events in Cuba, did not move them to an instant desperate resolve to tolerate no longer the existence of a condition of danger and disorder at our doors that made possible such a deed, by whomsoever wrought. Yet the instinct of justice prevailed and the nation anxious awaited the result of the searching investigation at once set on foot. The finding of the Naval Board of Inquiry established that the origin of the explosion was external by a submarine mine, and only halted through lack of positive testimony to fix the responsibility of its authorship. All these things carried conviction to the most thoughtful even before the finding of the Naval Court that a crisis in our relations with Spain and toward Cuba was at hand. So strong was this belief that it needed but a brief Executive suggestion to the Congress to receive immediate answer to the duty of making instant provision for the positive and perhaps speedily probable emergency of war, and the remarkable, almost unique, spectacle was presented of a unanimous vote of both houses on the 9th of March "appropriating $50,000,000 for the national defense, and for each and every purpose connected therewith—to be expended at the discretion of the President." That this act of prevision came none too soon was disclosed when the application of the fund was undertaken. Our coasts were practically undefended. Our navy needed large provision for increased ammunition and supplies, and even numbers, to cope with any sudden attack from the navy of Spain, which comprised modern vessels of the highest type of continental perfection.

Our army also required enlargement of men and munitions. It is sufficient to say that the outbreak of war, when it did come, found our nation not prepared to meet the conflict. Nor was the apprehension of coming strife confined to our own country. It was felt by the continental powers, which on April 6, through their Ambassadors and Envoys, addressed to the Executive an expression of hope that humanity and moderation might mark the course of this Government and people, and that further negotiations would lead to an agreement which, while securing the maintenance of peace, would afford all necessary guarantees for the re-establishment of order in Cuba. In responding to that representation I said I shared the hope the Envoys had expressed that peace might be preserved in a manner to terminate the chronic condition of disturbance in Cuba, so injurious and menacing to our interests and tranquillity as well as shocking to our sentiments of humanity; and while appreciating the humanitarian and disinterested character of the communication they had made on behalf of the Powers, I stated the confidence of this Government, for its part, that equal appreciation would be shown for its own interest and unselfish endeavors to fulfill a duty to humanity by ending a situation the indefinite prolongation of which had become insufferable. Grieved and disappointed at this barren outcome of my sincere endeavor to reach a practicable solution, I found it my duty to remit the whole question to the Congress. In the message of April 11, 1898, I announced that with this last overture in the direction of immediate peace in Cuba, and its disappointing reception by Spain, the effort of the Executive was brought to an end. In view of all this, the Congress was asked to authorize and empower the President to take measures to secure a full and final termination of hostilities between Spain and the people of Cuba and to secure in the island the establishment of a stable government, capable of maintaining order and observing its international obligations, insuring peace and tranquillity, and the security of its citizens as well as our own, and for the accomplishment of these ends to use the military and naval forces of the United States as might be necessary; with added authority to continue generous relief to the starving people of Cuba.

The response of Congress, after nine days of earnest discussion, during which the almost unanimous sentiment of your body was developed on every point save as to the expediency of coupling the proposed action with a formal recognition of the republic of Cuba as the true lawful Government of that island—a proposition which failed of adoption—the Congress, after conference, on the 19th of April, by a vote of 42 to 35 in the Senate, and 311 to 6 in the House of Representatives, passed the memorable joint resolution. This resolution was approved by the Executive on the next day, April 20. A copy was at once communicated to the Spanish Minister at this capital, who forthwith announced that his continuance in Washington had thereby become impossible, and asked for his passports, which were given him. He thereupon withdrew from Washington, leaving the protection of Spanish interests in the United States to the French Ambassador and the Austria-Hungarian Minister. Simultaneously with its communication to the Spanish Minister here General Woodford, the American Minister at Madrid, was telegraphed confirmation of the text of the joint resolution and directed to communicate with the Government of Spain, with the formal demand that it at once relinquish its authority and government in the Island of Cuba and withdraw its forces therefrom, coupling this demand with announcement of the intentions of this Government as to the future of the island, in conformity with the fourth clause of the resolution, and giving Spain until noon of April 23 to comply. That demand, although, as above shown, officially made known to the Spanish Envoy here, was not delivered at Madrid.

On April 22 I proclaimed a blockade of the north coast of Cuba, including ports on said coast between Cardenas and Bahia Honda and the port of Cienfuegos in the south coast of Cuba, and on the 23rd inst. I called for volunteers to execute the purpose of the resolution. Due notification of the existence of war as aforesaid was given April 25 by telegraph to all other governments with which the United States maintain relations, in order that their neutrality might be assured during the war. It is not among the least gratifying incidents of the struggle that the obligations of neutrality were impartially discharged by all, often under delicate and difficult circumstances.

Our country thus, after an interval of half a century of peace with all nations, found itself engaged in deadly conflict with a foreign enemy. Every nerve was strained to meet the emergency; the response to the initial call for 125,000 volunteers was instant and complete, as was also the result of the second call of May 25 for 75,000 additional volunteers. The ranks of the regular army were increased to the limit provided by the act of April 26, 1898.

The enlisted force of the navy on the 15th day of August, when it reached its maximum, numbered 24,123 men and apprentices. One hundred and three vessels were added to the navy by purchase, one was presented to the Government, one leased and the four vessels of the International Navigation Company—the St. Paul, St. Louis, New York and Paris—were chartered. In addition to these the revenue cutters and lighthouse tenders were turned over to the Navy Department and became temporarily a part of the auxiliary navy.

The auxiliary navy was created under the authority of Congress and was officered and manned by the naval militia of the several States. This organization patrolled the coast and performed the duty of a second line of defense.

The Signal Corps was promptly organized and performed service of the most difficult and important character. Its operations during the war covered the electrical connection of all coast fortifications, the establishment of telephonic and telegraphic facilities for the camps at Manila, Santiago and in Porto Rico.

The national defense fund of $50,000,000 was expended in large part by the army and navy, and the objects for which it was used are fully shown in the report of the several secretaries. It was a most timely appropriation, enabling the government to strengthen its defenses and make preparations greatly needed in case of war. This fund being inadequate to the requirements of equipment and for the conduct of the war, the patriotism of the Congress provided the means in the war revenue act of June 13 by authorizing a 3 per cent. popular loan not to exceed $400,000,000 and by levying addi-

WANT THE COLORED VOTE

REPUBLICANS HOLD A MASS-MEETING FOR THE NEGROES.

The Colored Gentlemen Addressed by Two Parsons of Their Own Race Who Urge Them to Stand by the Regular Nominees.

Last Saturday night in the old City National Bank building there was a Republican mass-meeting for colored people of this city. The meeting was called to order by William Fisher, secretary of the Colored Republican Club. W. R. Codington was made chairman of the meeting. L L Croom was made secretary.

Mr. Codington, introduced as the first speaker, Rev. Mr. Mitchell, of this city.

Mr. Mitchell praised the name and character of every man on the city ticket, stating that every man had ability and would legislate for the mass in a fair and equitable manner. He stated that he hoped the time would never arrive when the colored people should be in power, for the reason that their condition is not indicative of pr gress. He thought the Republican party would stand by the colored folks if the latter would only stand by the party.

The next speaker was Rev. Mr. Jackson, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church. This speaker was very enthusiastic, and dwelt more in figur s than the preceding speaker. He brought up the cry of the colored man against the Republicans for a seeming injury to the garbage and ash business carried on by the colored man. He showed that the G O. P. had always g ven the colored man a fair show, and when a license was given to the Plainfield Sanitary Company that concern had to pay well for it The colored man can still carry on his business, if he pays a license.

Mr. Jackson also mentioned the fact that some are dissatisfied because there are not more colored police on the force. In refutation he said that there are now about 460 colored voters in the city, and on the force there is one regular policeman and two specials. This he thought was sufficient in consideration of the number of colored voters.

After the above address, remarks were made by Candidates James Martin, Wm. N. Runyon, Frank Smith and the chairman of the meeting, Mr. Codington, after which a social time followed during which there was a general handshake all around.

SERMON TO YOUNG MEN.

Dr. Lewis Delivered Some Inspiring Thoughts at Hope Chapel.

The first of the series of special sermons to men, which are to be a feature of the Sunday evening services at Hope chapel during the month of December, was preached last night by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis. There was but a handful there on account of the storm, but those few gathered together and listened to the sermon attentively. Dr. Lewis said in part:

"Christ was a man on earth and appreciated the comforts that man everywhere enjoys, although in heaven he is still able to take pleasure in things that we all delight in. Christ, as a boy, no doubt stayed at home and worked in his father's shop. As a man he mingled with the people of all classes, and his life was mainly spent with the everyday people. The great deeds of the world are done by the common people, and so Christ mingled with them.

"The church represents Christ, and just see what the church is doing. Does the saloon ever build a hospital like that one across the fields? That is Christianity. The saloon robs him of all his money and all his manhood, then pushes him out of the way. Heaven and Christ are not out of the way somewhere. He is right at hand ready to keep you and me."

Goes to New York.

Nicholas Wolfinger, who has been manger of the soda water fountain of Randolph's pharmacy during the past summer, has resigned his position in this city and gone to New York where he will take charge of a cigar stand in the Washington Life Insurance Company building on Broadway. He will also have charge of a theatrical ticket agency. While in Plainfield, Mr. Wolfinger made many friends who wish him success in his new venture. He and his wife formerly boarded on Madison avenue.

Very Gratifying.

At the Communion service in Trinity Reformed church yesterday morning the hearts of pastor and people were made glad by the accession of nine persons into membership of the church, four by letters from other churches and five on confession of Christ as their Saviour, three of the latter being members of the Sunday-school of the church.

BOY BURGLAR HELPED HIMSELF TO CLOTHING.

Visited Harry Werner's Establishment Sunday.

GAINED ENTRANCE THROUGH A BACK WINDOW.

The Thief Turned the Stock Over and Left Everything in Disorder—Mr. Werner Will Not be Able to Discover Exactly What Was Taken Until he Takes Account of Stock.

A youthful burglar plied his trade successfully last evening in the clothing house of Harry Werner, on West Front street. He left his rubber coat behind and helped himself to the goods displayed in the show cases and on the counters. Just how much he took it will be impossible to say at present for there was a large stock on hand and it will be necessary to look it all over and discover what is missing.

As Charles DeGraw, the junior member of the firm of Putnam & DeGraw, who do business in the store next to that of Werner, was passing Werner's establishment last evening at 6 o'clock, he noticed that one of the blinds in the rear of the store was open. During the day Mr. Werner had dropped in and looked at the fire. He did not light the gas in the rear of the store as is his usual custom. He went out early in the afternoon.

The unbidden guest, whoever he was, evidently called at dusk when the streets were empty. It was storming then and only those who had to braved the rain and wind. Entrance was gained through one of the back windows. Part of a broken wagon shaft, painted yellow and black, was used as a lever to pry open the shutters. A bolt holds them, but the lever pried off the blind. There are eight panes of glass in the window, four in the upper sash and four in the lower. One of those in the lower left hand corner of the lower sash was smashed and the glass removed. Through this opening the thief crawled. He made no effort to open the window.

This morning Mr. Werner and his clerk, Mr. Lindman, unlocked the store together. They saw the open blind and hastened to investigate. A glance showed that the usually orderly piles of overcoats and clothing had been upset and disarranged. Chaos reigned. The cases, where the hats were kept, had been left open and the contents scattered about the floor. Two of the show-cases were found open. In one was a choice array of of neckties. The thief had tumbled them over to find just what he wanted, and had evidently taken his pick from the four-in-hands, the Ascots and the bow-knot ties. The other case contained jewelry, and the thief apparently selected a goodly supply of collar and cuff buttons, together with some shirt studs.

Some short trousers for very small boys were heaped about but it was impossible to tell whether any were missing or not. The thief passed over the expensive overcoats and helped himself to the cheaper ones. He was evidently particular about a good fit for those that did not suit him he slung about on the floor. Several suits met the same fate and were tossed about.

The cash drawer in the desk was broken open and some thirty cents in pennies removed. There was no attempt made to touch the safe which gives the impression that the burglar was evidently new at the art. Another thing that would give the same impression is the fact that the burglar left his rubber coat behind. It was found by Mr. Werner right in front of the stove. It was apparently a boy's coat and would fit a lad of fifteen or sixteen years. This and the small entrance and exit lead the police to believe that the thief was a lad of fifteen or sixteen years. There was no other clue.

Mr. Werner cannot possibly give his loss until he figures up just what stock he had on hand. He believes, however, that several suits, an overcoat or two, a hat, neckties and jewelry are gone.

Mr. Ohl's Side.

Percy C. Ohl called at The Daily Press office Saturday and made a few statements regarding his position as informant in the case of J. H. Greene, Jr., of Verdon avenue, who was fined $60 for having rabbits in his possession. Mr. Ohl says that he believes the game law in question is one of the best on the books, and he followed it exactly. He says that he made no mistake, and therefore does not feel obliged to return the $10 he received. "If the State game officers made a mistake," says Mr. Ohl, "let them pay for it."

DAMAGED BY THE WIND.

A SMALL-SIZED HURRICANE VISITED THIS SECTION.

Wires Blown Down in This City—The Damage Here Not Great—Lincoln Suffers Considerably From the Gale.

A small-sized hurricane visited Plainfield last evening and wrought considerable damage. At times, the wind blew with the velocity of seventy miles an hour. The electric light wires suffered somewhat.

Crescent avenue and some of the lights on far West Front street were out all night. The lights in the business section went out several times, but the damage was repaired at once. One of the house circuits also gave out. The linemen tried to repair the damage that night, but were unable to find the break.

Some thirty lines of the telephone company were in trouble this morning. In some cases the wires were broken and in others the line was crossed with an electric light wire. The trunk line to Somerville was crossed with an electric light wire at Bound Brook, but was in use again at noon. The other damage has been repaired.

At Lincoln some forty-five cedar trees on Cedar Lane were blown over by the storm. Six poles of the main line of the Western Union Telegraph Company were also blown over at the same place.

The heavy wind last evening uprooted a large tree on East Third street, near the old oil cloth works. In the borough many fences and trees were blown over, but no great damage resulted. A few signs suffered and were scattered about, but the owners had little trouble in recovering them.

Owing to the storm last evening no service was held at the First Baptist church. The service was to have been held under the auspices of the Temple Builders Society, but this makes the second time postponement has been made on account of weather.

TROUBLE OVER WHEELS.

Drake and Williams Took Their Troubles to the Courts.

Harvey Drake has brought an action, in Justice Mosher's court, against Frank Williams, in tort, for the recovery of $75 damages. The papers are returnable December 9th, and William Newcorn is Drake's attorney.

Drake formerly conducted a bicycle repair and renting shop on West Front street near Madison avenue. A short time ago he sold out the goodwill of the business to Frank Williams and left with him a number of tools and two bicycles. The wheels Williams was to rent, and he also had the privilege of using the tools.

A few days ago Drake went to Williams to claim the tools and the two wheels and take them away. Tools and wheels were not to be found, and Williams said he had sold the bicycles. Drake then brought this action for conversion against Williams.

TOOK REFUGE IN SWAMP.

The Wild Steer is Still at Large, Having Escaped His Pursuers.

The wild steer is still at large, despite the efforts of the stockyard men and the residents of Somerset county. He left the precincts of that county Saturday and betook himself to the Great Swamp, back of Long Hill, where his hunters cannot enter. The steer went across the Passaic Valley Saturday with the hunters in close pursuit. Somehow he managed to evade them and reached the boundaries of the swamp. In it he plunged and has not been seen since. The swamp is inaccessible for men and horses and it will be with difficulty that the steer will be able to make his way through it.

A SECOND LOSS.

E. M. French & Co. Had Insured Barn and Contents That Were Burned.

The loss on the barn in the rear of John Reid's house, at Netherwood, which was destroyed by fire Friday night, was covered by insurance which was held by E. M. French & Co. The barn was owned by the First National Bank, and was insured for $1,000. J. B. Guttridge held $500 insurance on the contents through the same company. The barn was a total loss, but most of the contents were saved.

E. M. French & Co. had just settled up a loss of $35 as the result of the last fire at the same place, when some incendiary tried then to set fire to the building.

Disorderly and Begging.

John Wilson, aged 40 years, giving his residence as Philadelphia, was arrested in the borough Saturday afternoon for being disorderly and begging from house to house. This morning he was arraigned before Recorder Long and in default of paying a fine he was sent to Somerville for five days.

AN ENDEAVOR SOCIABLE.

Pleasant Affair Has Been Arranged by Sociable Committee.

The chairmen of the various social committees connected with the Christian Endeavor Societies of this city, met at the home of I. W. Travell, 815 College place, Saturday night, to complete the arrangements for the local union sociable, which is to be held Thursday evening in the Crescent Avenue church.

A pleasing programme is being arranged consisting of vocal and instrumental music, recitations, etc. In addition to this Mrs. A. Dassori, Italian missionary at Mariners' Temple, New York, will give a talk upon her work among the Italians of lower New York. At the close an offering will be received for the Italian children's Christmas. Mrs. Dassori was formerly Miss Collishaw, of Mariners' Temple. Everitt Kimball has charge of the programme.

The public is invited to this sociable and it is hoped that many will avail themselves of this opportunity to renew their acquaintance with Mrs. Dassori, and become better acquainted with her work. At the close refreshments will be served.

DEATH OF JAMES NOLAN.

Superintendent of Hillside Cemetery Passes Away.

James Nolan, who for twelve years has been the superintendent of Hillside Cemetery, died yesterday after an illness of pneumonia. He was 70 years of age and was a well educated man. He came to this city from Nyack, N. Y., where he held a similar position. He was born in Ireland, and his profession was that of civil engineer. Mr. Nolan had full charge of Hillside Cemetery and personally looked after the grading and care of the grounds, and was considered a valuable man. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from his late home at 3 o'clock. Interment will be in Hillside. Mr. Nolan leaves a wife, a married daughter and a son, who is also married.

A BRILLIANT TEA.

Mrs. George Wharton Edwards Entertained in Honor of a Guest.

One of most prominent teas of the year was given Saturday afternoon by Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, in honor of her guest, Mrs. Eaton A. Edwards, of Washington, D. C. A number of prominent society women of Plainfield were present.

The rooms were decorated in pink, a profusion of pink roses being scattered about. In the Flemish dining-room, where Mrs. Louis G. Timpson and Miss Grace Cooley presided, pink shades on the lights made a soft rosy glow that contrasted pleasantly with the gloomy day out-of-doors.

Trackman Was Burnt.

Last Saturday afternoon at the freighthouse a narrow escape from a painful accident was witnessed. Henry Wierenga, the expressman, was loading some freight on his truck, when he happened to notice smoke rising from the front part of the truck. He investigated and found that a great quantity of burlap was on fire. How it became ignited no one knew. Mr. Wierenga, in his endeavor to put the fire out, severely burned his hands and face. The truck was burned to some extent, but aside from that the damage was slight.

Funeral of Anne Edwards.

The funeral services of the late Miss Anne Edwards was held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Church of the Redeemer, and the rector, Rev. Mr. Downey, had charge. The choir of Grace P. E. church was present and rendered several impressive selections under the direction of Mrs. Freeman, organist. There was a very large attendance of friends and relatives at the service. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. Interment was made today in Philadelphia in a family plot.

The Very Latest.

Popular opinion tends toward the belief that the latest American movement is in the direction of the Philippines, but Plainfielders will find the very latest American movement in gold and silver watches at Collier's, and the prices thereof will surprise any and every seeker after bargains in holiday testimonials. Call at 103 Park avenue and be convinced.

"The Millennium."

Beginning tonight at the Christian church Elder S. B. Horton will conduct a Bible study on the subject of "The Millennium," as to what it is, how it is, and when it will be, continuing every evening at 8 o'clock. This will be an interesting study, and request is made that as many as can do so to bring their Bibles with them. All are welcome.

—The Sunday-school scholars of the First Baptist church rehearsed Christmas music yesterday afternoon.

LOCAL ATHLETES IN INDOOR COMPETITION.

Opening of the Y. M. C. A. Athletic Contest.

CONTEST WAS FOR NOVICES.

ELEVEN COMPETITORS ENTERED THE TWO EVENTS SATURDAY NIGHT.

Ray Carroll and Berry Egan Carried off the Honors of the Evening—No Records Broken—Standing Broad Jump and Standing High Jump the Events Contested Saturday Night—The Winners.

The athletic contest in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium opened Saturday evening with eleven candidates in the race for championship honors. The eleven young athletes made a exciting contest, however, and are expected to show up well. Other contestants will probably enter as the contest progresses.

The athletic contest has been divided into five sections of two events each, the events of each section to be contested on a Saturday evening. Saturday night saw the first section. The events were the standing broad jump and the standing high jump. The eleven contestants entered Saturday evening were Berry Egan, Ray Carroll, J. Harry Green, Jr., Henry Brokaw, Walter Sampson, Walter Dreier, Edgar Sheppard, William Morgan, Henry Pierce, Albert B. Meredith, and Frank McDondald. C. E. A. Heywood, Walter L. Long and George Proctor Smith acted as judges.

In the standing broad jump, Ray Carroll was first with a jump of 8 feet, 5¼ inches, A. B. Meredith was second, 8 feet, 2½ inches, Berry Egan third, 8 feet, ¼ inches They were the only contestants that cleared over 8 feet. The association record was 9 feet, 1 inch, made last year by F. O. Bristol.

The winner of the standing high jump was Berry Egan clearing 4 feet. Ray Carroll was second an inch lower. Henry Brokaw was third with a jump of 3 feet, 9 inches. It is probable that both Egan and Carroll could have done better, but under the rules each contestant has but ten trials in all and may pass such heights as he thinks he can jump. Both Egan and Carroll, anxious to equal the association record of 4 feet, 2 inches, made by Ivan Hardingham last year, passed the intervening heights between their marks and the record height and tried unsuccessfully to clear it.

The contest began at 9 o'clock after the close of the regular evening classes and continued until 10 o'clock. There were a few spectators who witnessed it.

The schedule of athletic events in the association, including the completion of the novice athletic contest begun Saturday night, has been posted and is as follows:

December 17th, second section of novice athletic contest.

December 30th, third section of novice athletic contest.

Febauary 11th, gymnastic contest for novices.

February 25th, open pentathlon contest, three events.

March 11th, open club swinging contest.

March 25th, dumb bell contest, open.

April 8th, bar bell contest, open.

The remaining events in the novice athletic contest will be contested in the following order: Three standing broad jumps; running high kick; standing hop, step and jump; quarter-mile run; fence vault; potato race; putting the shot; running high jump.

The points for the different contests will be scored according to a schedule prepared by Mr. Heywood for the merit of the performance rather than the order in which the contestants finish.

Bible Day.

Bible day was observed at the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school yesterday afternoon with appropriate exercises. The superintendent read a few opening remarks, Miss F. G. Hawkins, the assistant superintendent, read something about the Baptist Publishing Society, and Miss May Thompson gave a recitation. Besides there was special singing. The collection went to the aid of the Baptist Publishing Society.

Epworth League Rally.

An Epworth League rally will be held at Monroe Avenue church tomorrow evening. The members of the Leagues of Grace M. E. and the First M. E. churches will attend and addresses will be made by the different pastors. Music will be furnished by the choirs of the visiting churches. Refreshments will be served at the close of the service.

—There will be a rally of all the local Epworth Leagues tomorrow evening at Monroe Avenue church.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

DR. WURTH'S OPINION
OF THE NEW DISCOVERY IN MEDICINE.
A Remarkably Successful Remedy for Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Stomach Troubles.

Dr. Wurth in commenting on recent discoveries in medicine said: There is none which is certain to be so valuable and far reaching in benefit as Stuarts Dyspepsia Tablets, the new stomach remedy; I say far reaching, because people little realize how important a sound stomach and vigorous digestion is to every man, woman and child.

Indigestion is the starting point of consumption, heart disease, Bright's disease, diabetes, nervous prostration, liver troubles; why is this so? Simply because every nerve, muscle and tissue in our bodies is created and nourished from the food we eat. If that food is by reason of a weak stomach, compelled to lie for hours, a sour, fermenting mass of half digested food, it poisons the blood and nervous system, creates gas which distends the stomach and bowels, causing pressure on the heart, lungs and other organs, and seriously impeding their action.

He says further, the point to direct attention is not the nerves, nor heart, nor lungs, nor kidneys, but the stomach, the first cause of all the mischief.

The remedy to use for indigestion and weak stomachs is not some cathartic, but a remedy which will digest the food, increase the flow of gastric juice, absorb the gases, and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will accomplish exactly this result in any case of stomach trouble, because these tablets are composed of the digestive acids, aseptic pepsin, Golden Seal and bismuth, pleasant to taste, and not being a patent medicine, can be used by anyone with perfect safety. I believe Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any form of indigestion and stomach trouble except cancer of stomach.

Full size packages of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by druggists at 50 cents or by mail from F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. A book on stomach diseases together with thousands of testimonials will be sent by addressing above or call on your druggist for them. 12 5-7-9

CONGRESSIONAL PLANS

Peace Treaty May Not Be Acted Upon at this Session.

THE HOUSE HAS MUCH TO DO

Anti-Expansionists May Prolong the Discussion. There Will be Measures Affecting Army Reorganization the Nicaragua Canal and Hawaii.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—The last session of the Fifty-fifth Congress, which convenes to-day, promises to be an uneventful one, in view of the important and stirring events that have occurred since its adjournment in midsummer.

Much has been said and written about the extraordinary things that Congress will do in the coming short session, but after talks with leaders of the Republican party, it is safe to say that, with few exceptions, legislation this winter will be of quite a routine character.

The treaty of peace is doubtless the most important thing that will engage the attention of the Senate. It is believed that this document will be presented to the Senate some time in January, probably early in the month, if no unexpected hitch occurs to further delay it.

It is the intention of the leaders of the Senate to make an attempt at once to push the treaty through. Whether or not it will be ratified during the short session will depend entirely on the amount of debate and opposition that is encountered.

If the anti-expansionists show a disposition to prolong discussion of the various features of the treaty, and will give no assurances of agreeing to a vote on it within a reasonable space of time, it will be the plan of the administration to drop the whole thing and hold the treaty in abeyance.

With the expiration of the present Congress a number of Democratic senators will be succeeded by Republicans, enough of the latter coming in to give the Republicans almost the necessary two-thirds vote to ratify the treaty.

An extra session of Congress, or of the Senate, at any rate, would then be in order, at which the treaty could be approved in short order.

This is the present plan of the Republican leaders, and in view of the fact that a large number of talkative senators have already gone on record as against many of the important provisions of the treaty, it is very reasonable to suppose that it will be shown early after taking the matter up that it will be impossible to secure a vote before many weeks of debate. This the administration is anxious to avoid, and the treaty will probably be shelved while the Senate gives its attention to other pressing legislation. With the convening of an extra session of the Fifty-sixth Congress, it is believed that the treaty would be ratified without any undue delay.

The Republican majority in the next Congress will be sufficient to enable them to pass almost any legislation desired, and it is believed that a two-thirds vote of the Senate could be mustered in favor of the treaty without great difficulty.

It is now very well understood that the coming session will not take up the question concerning a government for our new possessions.

Hawaii will be taken care of early in the session, but Porto Rico and the Philippines, it is universally believed, will wait until another session.

The president is said to be well satisfied with the way these islands are now controlled, and wants to continue the military government in force until he has a chance to gain further information in regard to them.

Commissions will doubtless be appointed for both places, and thorough investigations made of all branches of life in the islands. The customs are now being collected by the military authorities and the government can extend postal facilities and other improvements without authority of Congress.

The House has its work well mapped out for the coming session, and the Senate will also be busy. Neither house will have any time to spare after disposing of the routine matters that must necessarily be taken care of. The first day of the House will be taken up with the reading of the president's message, swearing in the three new members and the announcements of the deaths of Representatives Northway of Ohio and Love of Mississippi. After hearing this the House will promptly adjourn, thus closing the first day's session.

Tuesday will be the first day of real business. The first measure to be considered will be the deficiency bill for the army. The appropriation for the support of the army lapses on January 1, so it is imperative that new funds be provided before that date.

Chairman Cannon has his bill framed and all ready for the attention of the House.

It is not thought that the measure will provoke any general discussion of war scandals, or even bring up the question of expansion, for the bill will merely provide for extending the present appropriations.

The increase of the regular army will not be brought up in the bill, and if the House branches off into a debate on this point it will be because some member wants special information on it. No time will be lost in rushing this bill over to the Senate, for it must be a law before January 1.

Leading members of both branches of Congress appear to be united in agreeing that a Nicaragua canal bill will be among the measures that are certain of being passed during the coming session.

A Nicaragua canal bill will stand an excellent chance of passing this session, the only difference of opinion being in regard to the method of raising the money to pay for the enterprise and as to the amount that shall be appropriated at this time. If the bill for this purpose provides for the issue of bonds, it must originate in the House. The Senate, however, may pass a bill simply providing for the acquirement of whatever further rights may be needed.

The Senate committee on inter-state and foreign commerce has charge of this matter.

MRS. BOTKIN'S TRIAL.

Witnesses from the Atlantic Coast Will Testify Against Her.

San Francisco, Dec. 5.—The most noted murder trial the Pacific coast has had occasion to witness in recent years, begins to-day, when Mrs. Cordelia Botkin will be arraigned for the murder of Mrs. John P. Dunning and Mrs. J. D. Dean of Dover, Del.

The case has many peculiar features which make extradition from California to Delaware impossible of accomplishment, for the poisoned candy which caused the death of the two daughters of ex-Congressman John P. Pennington was bought in San Francisco and mailed from there to Dover. The act is alleged to have been inspired by jealousy, for it is admitted that Mrs. Botkin and Mr. Dunning, a newspaper man, had been intimate while the latter's wife was in the East.

Daniel Ames, a handwriting expert of New York, who was an important witness in the Fair will case, has declared that Mrs. Botkin wrote the note accompanying the drugged candy, and that she was also the author of anonymous letters which warned Mrs. Dunning of her husband's act of infidelity in this city. The druggist who sold the arsenic has also identified Mrs. Botkin as the purchaser of the poison.

MRS. BOTKIN AND THE FATAL MESSAGE.

Dunning, the husband, and thirteen officials and witnesses from Delaware are on hand to testify. Before leaving for the west Dunning expressed a firmer opinion than ever that Mrs. Botkin was the slayer of his wife, although he considers her coming trial in California in the light of a legal farce, and that the only place for speedy justice was Delaware.

Asked what defence the California woman intended to present, Dunning intimated that her strongest defence was to further fight a trial. He had no fear, either for himself or for the safety of the case, as to what the woman intended to bring out.

GARCIA VISITS M'KINLEY.

Members of Cuban Commission Say It Was Satisfactory.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—As a result of General Garcia's call at the White House the general called a conference of the Cuban commission and the Cuban representative, Mr. Quesada, Saturday, for the general purpose of considering Cuban affairs in the light of the views exchanged during the meeting with the president.

General Garcia refuses to discuss the call, and his associates maintain the same reticence except to declare that it was of an agreeable and satisfactory nature, the idea being conveyed by them that it is likely to pave the way to a satisfactory understanding all around.

Big Blaze in New York.

New York, Dec. 5.—Last night at 10 o'clock fire broke out in the block occupied by Rogers, Peet & Co., corner of Broadway and Murray streets, and opposite the City Hall, that not only destroyed the block in which it started, but burned the upper stories of the magnificent Home Life Insurance and the Postal Cable buildings adjoining. The two latter are sky scrapers and "fireproof," and have been completed but about three years. The department was utterly unable to cope with the fire of the Home Life Building until it had burned from the seventeenth story down to the tenth, where streams from the water tower could be brought to bear upon it.

Gotham Getting Good.

New York, Dec. 5.—There is no let up in the efforts of the police to purify the city, and there can no longer be any doubt that the authorities are in earnest when they declare that vice must go.

Captains Chapman and Diamond have closed more than one hundred notorious resorts known as "red light" cafes on the East Side, and Captain Price has raided the best known gambling houses of the Tenderloin.

Pool rooms all over the city have ceased doing business, and for a time at least a great moral wave second only to that started by the Parkhurst crusade, has swept over the metropolis.

President York has declared that the work shall go on until gambling has been eradicated, policy shops suppressed and other forms of vice controlled, so that they cannot flaunt themselves before the gaze of respectable citizens. His fiat is being obeyed to the letter, even though it occasions much surprise, due to the change of front that it indicates since the election.

Treasurer Short In His Accounts.

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 5.—There was a sensation here when it was learned that Isaac H. Voorhis, probably the largest stove dealer in New Jersey, and treasurer of the Board of Health of Paterson, was alleged to be short $2,500 or more in his accounts with the municipality and had tendered his resignation in response to a peremptory demand by Mayor Hinchcliffe.

Mr. Voorhis at once confessed that he was a defaulter. He had drawn the money to pay urgent private bills, he said, and intended to refund it.

All would have been rectified in a day or two, he said, had he not been detected.

His family is one of the most favorably known in Paterson, as the name is one of the oldest and most honored in the state.

Mr. Voorhis is fifty-five years old and is a brother of the late Representative Voorhis, who shot and killed himself in Jersey City after wrecking a Hackensack bank.

MORE TROOPS FOR CUBA.

Important Movement to Begin This Week.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—Quartermaster General Ludington and Colonel Bird, the officer in charge of the movements of army transports, held a consultation Saturday with Assistant Secretary Melklejohn in regard to the shipment of troops to Cuba. Arrangements were made for an important movement, which is to begin next week.

General Ludington is to muster all the transports available at Savannah, from which point certain regiments of General Lee's corps will be embarked for Havana.

The fleet of army ships is now larger than it has been at any time for the past two months. The Mississippi, Mobile and others that have been laid up undergoing repairs are once more fit for service.

From now on the department expects to make steady progress in the work of occupying Cuba.

Admiral Sampson and the other members of the Cuban evacuation commission are to return to the United States this week, having practically completed the details for the evacuation of Havana and the other provinces now held by Spanish troops.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 5.—The Second division, Seventh Corps, is expected to get away for Cuba by the middle of this week. The division is composed of the Second Illinois, Sixty-first Indiana, First North Carolina, Fourth Virginia, Forty-ninth Iowa and Sixth Missouri.

General George W. Davis, who is to be military governor of the province of Pinar del Rio, will sail on the Minnewaska. He is now here.

BELMONT THE CHOICE.

He Will be Elected President of the New York's Democratic Club.

New York, Dec. 5.—The Democratic club, which during the past year has added Democratic names from all sections of the country to its list, and which is known locally as Croker's Club, for it was through the influence of the Tammany leader that the club was placed upon a sound financial footing, to-day elects its officers.

PERRY BELMONT.

At present the president is ex-Governor Flower, but he has declined to serve again, and his successor will be Perry Belmont, the well known New York banker and ex-congressman.

There will be no opposition to him. On the board of governors, also to be chosen to-day, is the name of Richard Croker.

Hetty Green Responsible.

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 5.—Hetty Green, the wealthiest woman in the world, is credited with having stopped the wheels of the Birmingham Rolling Mills, the most important industrial enterprise of this part of the South. The company unexpectedly has made an assignment and the only explanation obtainable is that Mrs. Green held a large number of the bonds of the company as security for a loan and decided to press for payment.

The mills employ about one thousand men with a payroll of half a million a year. The plant is supposed to be worth $600,000.

It had been running on double time and was behind in its orders when the assignment was made.

Queen Distributes Medals.

London, Dec. 5.—Queen Victoria visited Netley Hospital Saturday and presented medals to the invalid soldiers who took part in the recent Soudan campaign.

General Lord Kitchener of Khartoum accompanied her majesty and introduced the wounded soldiers.

By the express desire of the queen the function was devoid of state ceremonial. Immense crowds awaited the arrival of the royal party at the hospital and heartily cheered her majesty when she appeared.

The queen was wheeled through the various wards in a chair and she addressed a few words of sympathy to each recipient of a medal.

Raising the Flag in Cuba.

Havana, Dec. 5.—At noon Saturday the American forces having previously taken charge of Sancti Spiritus and Trinidad, in the Santa Clara province, the Stars and Stripes were officially, and with impressive ceremonies, hoisted over the city halls and the military government and other public buildings in those cities.

When the flags were unfurled the bands played the "Star Spangled Banner" and the soldiers and large gatherings of citizens cheered enthusiastically.

Against Panama Canal Co.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—Information has been communicated to the state department by Consul Hart that the House of Representatives at Bogota, Colombia, has rejected the petition of the Panama Canal Company to extend for six years the time for completing the construction of the canal. The company has still six years in which to carry ont he work.

Thirteen Men Burned in a Mine.

Wilkesbarre, Penn., Dec. 5.—Thirteen men were seriously burned by an explosion of gas in the Buttonwood shaft of the Parrish Coal Company Saturday.

A slight fire broke out in one of the chambers and a gang of men was sent in to subdue it. While fighting the fire the explosion occurred.

HAVANA TRADE BOOMS

In View of American Occupation Merchants Order Largely.

STEPS TO PURIFY THE CITY

Tacon Theatre Purchased by American Business Men for $350,000. Major Davis Makes Regulations as to the Use of Disease Breeding Slaughter Pens.

Havana, Dec. 5.—Work on the railway connecting the pier works at Casa Blanca with the Regla and Matanzas line will commence to-day. Ground will be broken about a mile from the seashore. The supervising engineer for the government will be a volunteer, who will remove his office from the town to Guanabacoa. The agent for the American India Company, to whom the contract is given, has left for New York to rush forward materials for the work.

With the near approach of American occupation, merchants, who since last April have been retaining very low stocks of gods, are now giving large orders. The principal placings are for provisions, hardware, cotton goods and articles for domestic use. One merchant placed orders for hardware with American firms for $50,000 worth of goods to arrive as soon as possible after January 1.

Tobacco merchants express satisfaction with the proposed tariff on this article and believe it equitable and fair and affording adequate protection to their industry.

Major Davis had a conference with the proprietors of the municipal abbattoir, which is located a mile from the center of the city. Major Davis gave instructions that as soon as possible the slaughter pens should be removed at least ten miles into the country and in the meantime the sewer which has carried all offal into the harbor shall be cleaned, and in future only blood be allowed to enter it. Solid substances must be taken ten miles into the country.

When in Havana the late Colonel Waring said these slaughter pens were the seat of most of Havana's diseases. Other experts have agreed with him, and in ridding the city of them Major Davis has taken a long step in the right direction.

A deal begun some time ago for the purchase of the Tacon theatre has been completed, and securities amounting to $350,000 have been turned over to Zaldo & Co., agents, by the purchasers, who are said to be New York business men.

Another New York syndicate has completed the purchase of a franchise of the ferry connecting Havana and Regla. This purchase includes a narrow gauge railroad running to Guanabacoa. The terms are not made public.

The work of improving the unpaved streets of Havana was commenced Saturday morning by Captain W. L. Geary. The first spot at which the American administration started work was at Zulueta street. This is a broad thoroughfare in the best part of the town, running parallel with the Prado and close to the Hotel Roma, the third hotel of the city.

Though so near the fashionable part of the city, the condition of the upper portion of it is simply indescribable. It had been made the general dumping ground for the neighborhood, and being unpaved, was cut up by traffic until almost impassable, while the stench arising from heaps of decaying matter was scarcely bearable.

One hundred men, under the supervision of two sergeants of engineers grappled with this pest hole at an early hour Saturday morning. The filth was removed, the street was levelled down and temporarily macadamized from end to end. Lime was sprinkled and mixed with the new road bed and around the houses jutting on the street. After a few hours of energetic work the street presented a completely changed appearance, and by night it was in a condition somewhat more approximating to American ideas. Large crowds watched with interest this new spectacle.

The Magowans Again.

Erie, Pa., Dec. 5.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Magowan of Trenton, N. J., have disappeared from this city with little Edith Beryl Barnes, who had been in the custody of N. J. Whitehead, who had become personal surety for her appearance in court on December 16.

The Magowans were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead. Mrs. Magowan was called down town on the plea that her sister, Mrs. Wynn, wanted to talk to her over the long distance telephone. She was accompanied by Mrs. Whitehead, and leaving her at the telephone office, went out and joined Mr. Magowan, who was in waiting. They were hurriedly driven to the station, and the whole party left on an east bound train.

Magowan tried to assault Mayor Salsman in an argument over the activity of the police in watching the case when he was on bail in this city, and tried to escape to Canada on a fishing tug, but was prevented from going.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead made a statement to the court denying all complicity in the escape and were absolved from blame.

Kitchener's Project Succeeding.

London, Dec. 5.—Lord Kitchener has been astonishing London by an exhibition of the most extraordinary energy on behalf of his pet project, the founding of a Gordon memorial college at Khartoum.

Last Tuesday he said he wanted $500,000 for carrying out the scheme. Being a man of action, he immediately started to get it in.

He spent days and nights addressing all sorts of gatherings, from bankers, brokers and merchants in the city, to actors and society men in the West End. Everywhere he has stated frankly that he wanted money and he has got it.

Already considerably more than a quarter of a million dollars, or half the sum required, has been subscribed, and the fund is still growing.

So great is the enthusiasm that it is not hard to believe the sum asked for will be made up many times over.

End of the Campaign.

While there has been more than ordinary interest displayed in the municipal campaign now drawing to a close, there has not been that intense concern in the outcome that was expected before the campaign had really begun. A month ago it was thought that the campaign would go on with a hip and a hurrah from beginning to end on the part of the opposing parties—at that time an uncertainty as to whether it would be the Republicans against the Democrats or against the Citizens, or against both. But after the nominations were made there was even less activity than in the contests in the primaries and nominating conventions.

In private confab and in casual conversation, however, the average voter has had plenty to occupy his mind with relation to city affairs. It is these friendly impromptu debates and conversations he has succeeded in setting up his deals of city government, and whichever candidates best represent these paragons from his point of view will doubtless receive his vote tomorrow.

Whatever aggressiveness has been displayed has in the main come from the Citizens, the Republicans seemingly having rested on their oars. One great advantage of the Republicans, however, is the fact of their organization. Election day, experience has proven, it does great work in getting out the votes for the Republican candidates.

Tomorrow, however, we shall see what we shall see.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Of course you are going to Music Hall tonight. Washburn's Big Double Minstrels appear and you'll have the pleasure of witnessing one of the best performances of this kind that has ever been here. You must go early, too, if you want good seats, for there's sure to be a crowd. The show opens with the regulation half circle in the first part, which serves as a medium to introduce some very pretty costuming, good singing and dancing and plenty of fun. Contrary to the usual run of first parts the jokes are new and thoroughly enjoyable. Lew Benedict is on one end, and the old man demonstrates very thoroughly that he is by no means a "has been." The musical features are exceptionally good. The olio introduces some very clever specialties. The Horner Brothers make a decided hit in their black-face knockabout specialty. The musical team, the Knox Brothers, are unusually clever in their line of work. Joe E. Lewis, the contortionist, is more at home on his hands than on his feet. The performance closes with some very good views in connection with the late war by the magniscope, notably the Vesuvious throwing dynamite and guncotton shells and the embarkation of the Rough Riders.

James K. Hackett, the well-known romantic actor, who has just concluded a three weeks' engagement in Philadelphia, has been booked at Music Hall and will appear there Saturday evening in "Rupert of Hentzau," Antnony Hope's dramatization of his latest book, which is the sequel to "The Prisoner of Zenda." This will be Mr. Hackett's first appearance in this city, but his reputation as a forceful and graceful actor, as well as one of the handsomest men on the stage, has preceded him. Mr. Hackett's production of "Rupert" was highly praised by the Philadelphia critics and he played to tremendous business there. His company includes twenty-six people, and the original scenery and costumes will be used.

GONE TO HIS ETERNAL HOME.

Death of Hans Schults, Who Expected to Go to His Native Heath.

Saturday last occurred the death of Hans Schults, a well-known character about town. Mr. Schults was 40 years of age and has lived in this State for seventeen years. While in this city he devoted his time to selling doormats, vegetables, etc. He was born in Denmark and has a brother living in that country now. He also has an uncle residing at Perth Amboy. Mr. Schults lived with Mrs. Freize, a widow woman, at 428 West Third street. His death was due to kidney disease. His illness extends over a period of one year.

There was found in Mr. Schults' clothes a letter from a steamship company in New York, which states that his brother in Denmark recently sent a sufficient amount of money to them to purchase a ticket for his return to his home, and it is believed that he expected to sail for home at an early date. This letter was received a short time before he was taken ill. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker Casey and the funeral services will probably be held tomorrow Interment will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

FUNERAL OF MRS. DAUX.

Held Yesterday From the Home of Her Brother, W. W. Howland

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Kate H. Daux were held Saturday afternoon from the home of her brother, W. W. Howland, of Rockview avenue, Washington Park, and Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, pastor of the Cres ent Avenue church, assisted by Rev. Dr. K. P. Ketcham, of Freeport, L. I., had charge. Both divines spoke words of comfort and consolation. The exemplary Christian life and character of the deceased was spoken of in tender words. During the service vocal selections were rendered by a quartette consisting of Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, Mrs. Robert Lowry, E E Runyon and D E Titsworth. The floral display was very beautiful and consisted of many set pieces. Interment was made yesterday at Tarrytown, N. Y., in a family plot.

—There will be a meeting of the Plainfield Catholic Club tonight.

tional imposts and taxes. The authorized loan, $200,000,000 were offered and promptly taken, the subscriptions so far exceeding the call as to cover it many times over, while, preference being given to the smaller bids, no single allotment exceeded $5,000. This was a most encouraging and significant result, showing the vast resources of the nation and the determination of the people to uphold their country's honor.

It is not within the province of this message to narrate the history of the extraordinary war that followed the Spanish declaration of April 21, but a brief recital of its more salient features is appropriate. The first encounter of the war from point of date took place April 27, when a detachment of the blockading squadron made a reconnaissance in force at Matanzas, shelled the harbor forts, and demolished several new works in construction.

The next engagement was destined to mark a memorable epoch in maritime warfare. The Pacific fleet, under Commodore George Dewey, had lain for some weeks at Hong Kong. Upon the colonial proclamation of neutrality being issued and the customary twenty-four hours' notice being given it repaired to Mirs Bay, near Hong Kong, whence it proceeded to the Philippine Islands under telegraphed orders to capture or destroy the formidable Spanish fleet then assembled at Manila. Not a life was lost on our ships, the wounded only numbering seven, while not a vessel was materially injured. For this gallant achievement the Congress, upon my recommendation, fitly bestowed upon the actors preferment and substantial reward.

The effect of this remarkable victory upon the spirit of our people and upon the fortunes of the war was instant. A prestige of invincibility thereby attached to our arms, which continued throughout the struggle.

Meanwhile the Spanish naval preparations had been pushed with great rigor. A powerful squadron under Admiral Cervera, which had assembled at the Cape Verde Islands before the outbreak of hostilities, had crossed the ocean, and by its erratic movements in the Caribbean Sea delayed our military plans, while baffling the pursuit of our fleets. Not until Admiral Cervera took refuge in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, about May 19, was it practicable to plan a systematic naval and military attack upon the Antillian possessions of Spain. Several demonstrations occurred on the coasts of Cuba and Porto Rico in preparation for the larger event. On May 12 the North Atlantic squadron shelled San Juan de Porto Rico. On May 30 Commodore Schley's squadron bombarded the forts guarding the mouth of Santiago Harbor. Neither attack had any material result. It was evident that well ordered land operations were indispensable to achieve a decisive advantage. On June 10, under a heavy protecting fire, a landing of 600 marines from the Oregon, Marblehead and Yankee was effected in Guantanamo Bay, where it had been determined to establish a naval station. This important and essential port was taken from the enemy after severe fighting by the marines, who were the first organized force of the United States to land in Cuba.

The position so won was held despite desperate attempts to dislodge our forces. By June 16 additional forces were landed and strongly intrenched. On June 22 the advance of the invading army under Major General Porter landed at Daiquiri, about 15 miles east of Santiago. This was accomplished under great difficulties, but with marvelous dispatch. On June 23 the movement against Santiago was begun. On the 24th ult. the first engagement took place, in which the First and Tenth Cavalry and the First United States Volunteer Cavalry, General Young's brigade of General Wheeler's division, participated, losing heavily. By nightfall, however, ground within five miles of Santiago was won. The advantage was steadily increased. On July 1 a severe battle took place, our forces gaining the outworks of Santiago; on the 2d El Caney and San Juan were taken after a desperate charge, and the investment of the city was completed.

The navy operated by shelling the town and the coast forts.

On the day following this brilliant achievement of our land forces the 3d of July occurred the decisive naval combat of the war.

The Spanish fleet, attempting to leave the harbor, was met by the American squadron under command of Commodore Sampson.

In less than three hours all the Spanish ships were destroyed, the two torpedo boats being sunk and the Maria Teresa, Almirante Oquendo, Vizcaya and Cristobal Colon driven ashore. The Spanish Admiral and over 1,300 men were taken prisoners, while the enemy's loss of life was deplorably large, some 600 perishing. On our side but one man was killed, on the Brooklyn, and one man seriously wounded. Although our ships were repeatedly struck not one was seriously injured. Where all so conspicuously distinguished themselves, from the commanders to the gunners and the unnamed heroes in the boiler rooms, each and all contributing toward the achievement of this astounding victory, for which neither ancient nor modern history affords a parallel in the completeness of the event and the marvelous disproportion of casualties, it would be invidious to single out any for especial honor. Deserved promotion has rewarded the more conspicuous actors. The nation's gratitude is due to all of these brave men, who by their skill and devotion in a few short hours crushed the sea power of Spain and wrought a triumph whose decisiveness can scarcely be measured. Nor can we be unmindful of the achievements of our builders, mechanics and artisans for their skill in the construction of our warships. The capitulation of Santiago followed. The city was closely besieged by land, while the entrance of our ships into the harbor cut off all relief on that side. After a truce to allow of the removal of non-combatants protracted negotiations continued from July 3 to July 15, when, under menace of immediate assault, the preliminaries of surrender were agreed upon. On the 17th General Shafter occupied the city. The capitulation embraced the entire eastern end of Cuba.

The individual valor of officers and soldiers was never more strikingly shown than in the several engagements leading to the surrender of Santiago, while the prompt movements and successive victories won instant and universal applause. To those who gained this complete triumph, which established the ascendency of the United States upon land as the fight off Santiago had fixed our supremacy on the seas, the earnest and lasting gratitude of the nation is unsparingly due. Nor should we alone remember the gallantry of the living; the dead claim our tears, and our losses by battle and disease must cloud any exultation in the result and teach us to weigh the awful cost of war, however rightful the cause or signal the victory. With the fall of Santiago, the occupation of Porto Rico became the next strategic necessity. General Miles had previously been assigned to organize the expedition for that purpose. Fortunately he was already at Santiago, where he had arrived on the 11th of July with reinforcements for General Shafter's army. On July 27 he entered Ponce, one of the most important ports in the island, from which he thereafter directed operations for the capture of the island. With the exception of encounters with the enemy at Guayama, Aibonito, Coamo and Yauco, and an attack on a force landed at Cape San Juan, there was no serious resistance. As a potent influence toward peace the outcome of the Porto Rican expedition was of great consequence, and generous commendation is due to those who participated in it. The last scene of the war was enacted at Manila, its starting place. On Aug. 15, after a brisk assault upon the works by the land forces, in which the squadron assisted, the capital surrendered unconditionally. The casualties were comparatively few. By this the conquest of the Philippine Islands, virtually accomplished when the Spanish capacity for resistance was destroyed by Admiral Dewey's victory of the 1st of May, was formally sealed.

The total casualties in killed and wounded in the army during the war with Spain were: Officers killed, 23; enlisted men killed, 257; total, 280; officers wounded, 113; enlisted men wounded, 1,464; total, 1,557. Of the navy: Killed, 17; wounded, 67; died as result of wounds, 1; invalided from service, 6; total, 91.

It will be observed that while our navy was engaged in two great battles and in numerous perilous undertakings in blockade and bombardment, and more than 50,000 of our troops were transported to distant lands and were engaged in assault and siege and battle, and many skirmishes in unfamiliar territory, we lost in both arms of the service a total of 1,668 killed and wounded; and in the entire campaign, by land and sea, we did not lose a gun or a flag or a transport or a ship, and with the exception of the crew of the Merrimac, not a soldier or sailor was taken prisoner. On Aug. 7, forty-six days from the date of the landing of General Shafter's army in Cuba, and twenty-one days from the surrender of Santiago, the United States troops commenced embarkation for home, and our entire force was returned to the United States as early as Aug. 24. They were absent from the United States only two months. It is fitting that I should bear testimony to the patriotism and devotion of that large portion of our army which, although eager to be ordered to the post of greatest exposure, fortunately was not required outside of the United States. They did their whole duty, and, like their comrades at the front, have earned the gratitude of the nation. In this connection it is a pleasure for me to mention in terms of cordial appreciation the timely and useful work of the American National Red Cross, both in relief measures preparatory to the campaigns, in sanitary assistance at several of the camps of assemblage, and, later, under the able and experienced leadership of the president of the society, Miss Clara Barton, on the fields of battle and in the hospitals at the front in Cuba. In tracing these events we are constantly reminded of our obligations to the Divine Master for His watchful care over us and His guidance, for which the nation makes reverent acknowledgment and offers humble prayer for the continuance of His favor.

The annihilation of Admiral Cervera's fleet, followed by the capitulation of Santiago having brought to the Spanish government a realizing sense of the hopelessness of continuing a struggle, now become wholly unequal, it made overtures of peace through the French Ambassador, who with the assent of his government had acted as the friendly representative of Spanish interests during the war. On the 26th of July M. Cambon presented a communication signed by the Duke of Almodovar, the Spanish Minister of State, inviting the United States to state the terms upon which it would be willing to make peace. On the 30th of July, by a communication addressed to the Duke of Almodovar and handed to M. Cambon, the terms of this Government were announced, substantially as in the protocol afterward signed. On the 10th of August the Spanish reply dated August 7 was handed by M. Cambon to the Secretary of State. It accepted unconditionally the terms imposed as to Cuba, Porto Rico and an island of the Ladrones group, but appeared to seek to introduce inadmissible reservations in regard to our demand as to the Philippine Islands. Conceiving that discussion on this point could neither be practical nor profitable, I directed that in order to avoid misunderstanding the matter should be forthwith closed by proposing the embodiment in formal protocol of the terms upon which the negotiations for peace were to be undertaken. The vague and inexplicit suggestions of the Spanish note could not be accepted, the only reply being to present as a virtual ultimatum a draft of a protocol embodying the precise terms tendered to Spain in our note of July 30, with added stipulations of detail as to the appointment of Commissioners to arrange for the evacuation of the Spanish Antilles. On August 12 M. Cambon announced his receipt of his full powers to sign the protocol so submitted, so accordingly on the afternoon of August 12 M. Cambon as the Plenipotentiary of Spain, and the Secretary of State as the Plenipotentiary of the United States, signed a protocol.

Immediately on the conclusion of the protocol I issued a proclamation of Aug. 12 suspending hostilities on the part of the United States.

Pursuant to the fifth article of the protocol, I appointed William R. Day, lately Secretary of State; Cushman K. Davis, William P. Frye and George Gray, Senators of the United States, and Whitelaw Reid, to be the Peace Commissioners on the part of the United States. Proceeding in due season to Paris, they there met on the 1st of October five Commissioners similarly appointed on the part of Spain. Their negotiations have made hopeful progress, so that I trust soon to be able to lay a definite treaty of peace before the Senate, with a review of the steps leading to its signature.

I do not discuss at this time the government or the future of the new possessions which will come to us as the result of the war with Spain. Such discussion will be appropriate after the treaty of peace shall be ratified. In the meantime, and until the Congress has legislated otherwise, it will be my duty to continue the military governments which have existed since our occupancy and give to the people security in life and property and encouragement under a just and beneficent rule.

As soon as we are in possession of Cuba and have pacified the island, it will be necessary to give aid and direction to its people to form a government for themselves. This should be undertaken at the earliest moment consistent with safety and assured success. It is important that our relations with this people shall be of the most friendly character and our commercial relations close and reciprocal. It should be our duty to assist in every proper way to build up the waste places of the island, encourage the industry of the people, and assist them to form a government which shall be free and independent, thus realizing the best aspirations of the Cuban people. Spanish rule must be replaced by a just, benevolent and humane government, created by the people of Cuba, capable of performing all international obligations, and which shall encourage thrift, industry and prosperity, and promote peace and good will among all of the inhabitants, whatever may have been their relations in the past. Neither revenge nor passion should have a place in the new Government. Until there is complete tranquility in the island and a stable government inaugurated, military occupation will be continued.

With the one exception of the rupture with Spain, the intercourse of the United States with the great family of nations has been marked with cordiality, and the close of the eventual year finds most of the issues that necessarily arise in the complex relations of sovereign States adjusted, or presenting no serious obstacle to a just and honorable solution by amicable agreement.

The Nicaragua Canal Commission, under the chairmanship of Rear Admiral John C. Walker, appointed July 24, 1897, under the authority of a provision in the Sundry Civil act of June 4 of that year, has nearly completed its labors, and the results of its exhaustive inquiry into the proper route, the feasibility and the cost of construction of an inter-oceanic canal by a Nicaraguan route will be laid before you. That the construction of such a maritime highway is now more than ever indispensable to that ultimate and ready intercommunication between our Eastern and Western seaboards demanded by the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands and the prospective expansion of our influence and commerce in the Pacific, and that our national policy now more imperatively than ever calls for its control by this Government, are propositions which I doubt not the Congress will duly appreciate and wisely act upon.

The United States has not been an indifferent spectator of the extraordinary events transpiring in the Chinese Empire, whereby portions of its maritime provinces are passing under the control of various European powers; but the prospect that the vast commerce which the energy of our citizens and the necessity of our staple productions for Chinese uses has built up in these regions may not be prejudiced through any exclusive treatment by the new occupants has obviated the need of our country becoming an actor in the scene.

Our relations with Great Britain have continued on the most friendly footing. Assenting to our request, the protection of Americans and their interests in Spanish jurisdiction was assumed by the diplomatic and consular representatives of Great Britain, who fulfilled their delicate and arduous trust with tact and zeal, eliciting high commendation.

It will give me especial satisfaction if I shall be authorized to communicate to you a favorable conclusion of the pending negotiations with Great Britain in respect to the Dominion of Canada. It is the earnest wish of this Government to remove all sources of discord and irritation in our relations with the neighboring Dominion. The trade between the two countries is constantly increasing, and it is important to both countries that all reasonable facilities should be granted for its development.

Pending the consideration by the Senate of the treaty signed June 16, 1897, by the Plenipotentiaries of the United States and of the republic of Hawaii, providing for the annexation of the Islands, a joint resolution to accomplish the same purpose by accepting the offered cession and incorporating the ceded territory into the Union was adopted by the Congress and approved July 7, 1898. I thereupon directed the United States steamship Philadelphia to convey Rear Admiral Miller to Honolulu and intrusted to his hands this important legislative act to be delivered to the President of the Republic of Hawaii, with whom the Admiral and the United States Minister were authorized to make appropriate arrangements for transferring the sovereignty of the Islands to the United States.

This was simply but impressively accomplished on the 12th of August last by the delivery of a certified copy of the resolution of President Dole, who thereupon yielded up to the representative of the Government of the United States the sovereignty and public property of the Hawaiian Islands. Pursuant to the terms of the joint resolution and in exercise of the authority thereby conferred upon me, I directed that the civil, judicial and military powers heretofore exercised by the officers of the Government of the Republic of Hawaii should continue to be exercised by these officers until Congress shall provide a government for the incorporated territory, subject to my power to remove such officers and to fill vacancies. The President, officers and troops of the Republic thereupon took the oath of allegiance to the United States, thus providing for the uninterrupted continuance of all the administrative and municipal functions of the annexed territory, until Congress shall otherwise enact.

The proposal of the Czar for a general reduction of the vast military establishments that weigh so heavily upon many peoples in time of peace was communicated to this Government, with an earnest invitation to be represented in the conference when it is contemplated to assemble, with a view to discussing the means of accomplishing so desirable a result. His Majesty was at once informed of the cordial sympathy of this Government with the principle involved in his exalted proposal and of the readiness of the United States to take part in the conference.

We desire, in common with most civilized nations, to reduce to the lowest possible point the damage sustained in time of war by peaceable trade and commerce. It is true we may suffer in such cases less than other communities, but all nations are damaged more or less by the state of uneasiness and apprehension into which an outbreak of hostilities throws the entire commercial world. It should be our object, therefore, to minimise so far as practicable this inevitable loss and disturbance. This purpose can probably best be accomplished by an international agreement to regard all private property at sea as exempt from capture or destruction by the forces of belligerent powers. The United States Governmeint has for many years advocated this humane and beneficent principle, and is now in position to recommend it to other powers without the imputation of selfish motives. I therefore suggest for your consideration that the Executive be authorized to correspond with the governments of the principal maritime powers with a view of incorporating into the permanent law of civilized nations the principle of the exemption of all private property at sea, not contraband of war, from capture or destruction by belligerent powers.

The Secretary of the Treasury reports that the receipts of the Government from all sources during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1898, including $64,751,223 received from sale of Pacific railroads, amounted to $405,322,335, and its expenditures to $443,368,582. There was collected from customs $149,575,068 and from internal revenue $170,900,641.

It is estimated upon the basis of present revenue laws that the receipts of the Government for the year ending June 30, 1899, will be $577,874,647, and its expenditures $639,874,647, resulting in a deficiency of $112,000,000. On the 1st of December, 1898, there was held in the Treasury gold coin amounting to $138,441,547, gold bullion amounting to $138,502,545, silver bullion amounting to $93,359,250, and other forms of money amounting to $451,963,981. On the same date the amount of money of all kinds in circulation or not included in Treasury holdings was $1,886,879,504, an increase for the year of $165,794,966. Estimating our population at 75,194,000 at the time mentioned the per capita circulation was $25.09. On the same date there was in the Treasury gold bullion amounting to $138,502,545.

In my judgment, the present condition of the Treasury amply justifies the immediate enactment of the legislation recommended one year ago, under which a portion of the gold holdings should be placed in a trust fund, from which greenbacks should be redeemed upon presentation, but when once redeemed should not thereafter be paid out except for gold. It is not to be inferred that other legislation relating to our currency is not required; on the contrary, there is an obvious demand for it. The importance of adequate provision which will insure to our future a money standard, related as our money standard now is to that of our commercial rivals, is generally recognized. The companion proposition, that our domestic paper currency shall be kept safe, and yet be so related to the needs of our industries and internal commerce as to be adequate and responsible to such needs, is a proposition scarcely less important. The subject in all its parts is commended to the wise consideration of the Congress.

The annexation of Hawaii and the changed relations of the United States in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines resulting from the war compel the prompt adoption of a maritime policy by the United States.

There should be established regular and frequent steamship communication encouraged by the United States, under the American flag, with the newly acquired islands, Spain furnished to its colonies, at an annual cost of about $2,000,000, steamship lines communicating with a portion of the world's markets as well as with trade centers of the home Government. The United States will not undertake to do less. In my last annual message I recommended that Congress authorize the appointment of a commission for the purpose of making systematic investigations with reference to the cause and prevention of yellow fever. I therefore renew my recommendation that the authority of Congress may be given and a suitable appropriation made to provide for a commission of experts to be appointed for the purpose indicated.

Under the act of Congress approved April 26, 1898, authorizing the President, in his discretion, "upon a declaration of war by Congress or a declaration by Congress that war exists," I directed the increase of the regular army to the maximum of 62,000 authorized in said act. There are now in the regular army 57,862 officers and men. The importance of legislation for the permanent increase of the army is therefore manifest, and the recommendation of the Secretary of War for that purpose has my unqualified approval. There can be no question that at this time, and probably for some time in the future, one hundred thousand will be none too many to meet the necessities of the situation. At all events, whether that number shall be required permanently or not, the power should be given to the President to enlist that force if in his discretion it should be necessary, and the further discretion should be given him to recruit for the army within the above limit from the inhabitants of the islands with the government of which we are charged.

It is my purpose to muster out the entire volunteer army as soon as the Congress shall provide for the increase of the regular establishment. This will be only an act of justice, and will be much appreciated by the brave men who left their homes and employments to help the country in its emergency.

I join with the Secretary of the Navy in recommending that the grades of Admiral and Vice-Admiral be temporarily revived to be filled by officers who have specially distinguished themselves in the war with Spain. There were on the pension rolls on June 30 1898, 993,714 names, an increase of nearly 18,000 over the number on the roll on the same day of the preceding year. The amount appropriated by the act of December 22, 1898, for the payment of pensions for the fiscal year of 1899 was $140,000,000 ($8,070,872.46 was appropriated by the act of March 31, 1898, to cover deficiencies in army pensions and repayments in the sum of $12,020.33 making a total of $148,082,092.79 available for the payment of pensions during the fiscal year 1898). The amount disbursed from that sum was $144,651,879.80, leaving a balance of $3,431,012.99 unexpended on the 30th of June, 1898 which was converted into the Treasury. There were 339 names added to the rolls during the year by special acts passed at the second session of the Fifty-fifth Congress, making a total of 36,496 pensions by Congressional enactments since 1861.

In the year 1900 will occur the centennial anniversary of the founding of the City of Washington for the permanent capital of the Government of the United States by authority of an act of Congress approved July 16, 1790. In May 1800, the archives and general offices of the Federal Government were removed to this place. On the 17th of November 1800, the National Congress met here for the first time, and assumed exclusive control of the Federal district and city. This interesting event assumes all the more significance when we recall the circumstances attending the choosing of the site, the naming of the capital in honor of the father of his country, and the interest taken by him in the adoption of plans for its future development on a magnificent scale. A movement lately inaugurated by the citizens to have the anniversary celebrated with fitting ceremonies, including perhaps the establishment of a handsome permanent memorial to mark so historical an occasion and to give it more than local recognition has met with general favor on the part of the public.

I recommend to the Congress the granting of an appropriation for this purpose and the appointment of a committee from its respective bodies. I might also be advisable to authorize the President to appoint a committee from the country at large, which, acting with the Congressional and District of Columbia Committee, can complete the plans for an appropriate national celebration.

The several departmental reports will be laid before you. They give in great detail the conduct of the affairs of the Government during the past year, and discuss many questions upon which the Congress may be feel called upon to act.

To Form a Scottish Order.

The men with Scotch blood in their veins were invited to meet in Red Men's Hall in the Washington Hall building on West Second street Saturday evening to organize a branch of the Order of the Scottish Clans here. A few men attended the meeting, which was only held for the purpose of finding out what was thought of the scheme, and if enough members can be secured a branch of the order will be located here.

Grand Deputy Murray, of Elizabeth, was present, and explained the objects of the order. The order has been nineteen years in existence and has at the present time clans in almost every State of the Union. One of the principle features of the order is to unite in one great beneficial body, Scotchmen and their descendants until the fourth generation, so that the sons and grandsons of Scotchmen born in this or any other country are quite eligible for membership. The ritualistic work of the order is good. The regalia is such as makes every Scotchman's heart throb and think of "Bonny Scotland." All those present signed the application sheet for a charter. The meeting adjourned after appointing committees to meet next Saturday evening at the residence of David Bowden, 225 Grant avenue.

at 214 W. Front St., Plainfield, N. J.

Clothing manufactures are compelled to confess from the weather standpoint that October and a part of November has been a serious disappointment to them. They counted on cold weather to create a demand for the surplus stock they had made up. From two manufacturers we were able to buy a large stock of winter suits, overcoats and trousers at about 40c. on the dollar for what they could ordinarily make the goods for. It is an ill wind that blows nobody good. The present cold weather brings you now at the proper time for your winter clothing at cut prices that you could otherwise not secure and for the values read them careful they are worthy of anyone's attention for we can say without contradiction, that strictly high class, well-made and absolutely first-class suits, overcoats, ulsters and reefers for men and boys', were never sold at such prices at any other store in all the land.

Men's splendid business suits made of strictly all-wool material worth $7.50 at $2.50. Men's black and blue smooth thibet cloth suits, or the rough surface serge effects, made in the popular double breasted styles with silk faced lapels worth $15.00 at $6.90. Men's black clay diagonal coats and vests made of eighteen ounce winter weight Washington Mills clay diagonal worsted, the kind that will not fade or wear shiney at $4.90 worth $12.00. Men's suits in fine all-wool tweeds, cheviots and also homespuns, absolutely fast color and all wool worth $14.00 at $6.50. Men's fine winter overcoats made of fine gloss surface, English Kersey cloth; these coats are lined with the highest grade plaid worsteds or with silk or satin, the tailor would charge you $25.00 for such a coat, our price is $8.90. Men's extra fine Castor beaver and frieze overcoats made with raw edges and lap seams, a bargain at $15.00 now at $6.90. Men's fine all-wool overcoats made of Wanskucks Mills kersey, the smooth closely shaven kind that will stand lots of wear, worth easily $12.50, now at $5.90. Men's overcoats made in foreign and domestic coverts at $4.50 worth $10.

Men's driving ulsters, black or brown, at $2.75, worth $7. A genuine Montagnac, extra heavy, as fine as spilt silk, ulster good for Sunday wear, worth $25, at $8.90. Boys' ulsters at $2.50, worth double. Children's ulsters from $1.50 up. Children's reefers from 75c. up. Boys' 3 piece suits in black or blue at $2.75, ages from 11 to 16 years, worth $6.50.

Boy's vested suits, navy blue and fancy cheviots, ages from 3 to 8 years, worth $2.75, at $1; a wonderful bargain. Boy's double breasted suits, good quality, pure wool, tweeds, cheviots and homespuns. The pants have double seat and knees, $1.50, $1.90 and $2.25, worth from $3 to $6. Men's working trousers, well made, heavy weight, at 85c, worth $1.50. One thousand pairs of fine dress trousers, neat stripes and checks, French waistband, at $1.25, $1.50, $2 and $2.25, worth from $3 to $7.

Customers from Dunellen, Lincoln, Bound Brook, Somerville and New Brunswick, by buying five dollars' worth and over of clothing will have their full fare paid.

SHE IS DEAF, DUMB AND BLIND.

A Little Girl Who Nearly Equals the Skill of Helen Keller.

Mrs. W. W. Rice is a widow living at the little village of Wyatt, in Ellis County, Tex. Her youngest child is little Ruby. In the fall of 1889, when Ruby was a little tot two years old, that fearful plague, cerebro-spinal meningitis, with the spotted fever accompaniment, became epidemic in the neighborhood of the Rice family. Her father, two brothers and herself were stricken down, the father and one of the sons soon dying with it. Little Ruby lingered between life and death for five weeks, when she began a slow recovery. Her illness left her totally blind and deaf, and she has never since been able to articulate.

Some of her performances are indeed remarkable. While The News man was present her sister handed her a needle and spool of thread. The child put both the end of the thread and the eye of the needle in her mouth, and, taking them out again, quickly passed the thread through the needle's the needle with her tongue. Ruby seems to be as fond of dolls as the average little girl, and displays wonderful skill in cutting out and making dresses, aprons, capes, etc., for her mimic babies. She has a habit of inspecting the trimming and style of cut of the dresses of lady visitors, and she shows great ingenuity in so cutting and trimming her doll's wardrobe.

Her sewing is not confined to her fingers by any means. She is equally expert with the sewing machine, and is very fond of operating it.

Ruby's accomplishments do not stop at plain sewing. After cutting and sewing her doll's clothes she also cuts and works the buttonholes and sews on the buttons. She is, for the most part, self-taught in these manipulations. She keeps her clothes in her own trunk, and does not allow any one else to put anything in it. Not long ago her sister put some aprons in Ruby's trunk, but they were soon discovered by the little miss and were summarily cast upon the floor. Ruby, while affectionate and amiable in disposition, is by no means devoid of temper.

She sometimes goes into the fowlhouse—always at night—and catches chickens, which she puts into a coop. Next day, after amusing herself with them a while, she turns them out. The chickens do not seem to be afraid of her. As may be supposed, little Ruby is very much humored, and, as far as possible, she is allowed to do just as she pleases, and amuse herself as suits her best.—Galveston News.

NEST OF A JUG WASP.

And How a British Gunboat was Captured by One.

Sidney R. Riggin, collector of the port of Crisfield, Md., has a pretty ornament in his home, which he found in the woods. It is a nest made by "jug wasps," as they are called in this section, from the striking resemblance which their nests bear to a jug. This nest is over a foot in length and about a foot in diameter. William Riggin, father of the collector, gives the following account of how a nest of these wasps once captured a British gunboat:

"In 1812 a British gunboat was lying near the shore of Matthews county, Virginia. A half-witted boy, who lived in that vicinity, found a nest of these paper makers one day, and, securely plugged up the entrance with mud, he cut the limb to which it adhered from the tree and carried the trophy on board to show it to the crew. The curiosity of the crew was at once excited, and they wanted to know what it was. 'A humming-bird's nest,' said the boy. 'Don't you hear them inside?' The crew listened and could hear the indignant wasps keeping up a lively noise. The boy was invited below, and, to show his good will, made the boat a present of the nest, cautioning the crew, however, not to let the birds out then, as they would follow him ashore. The crew waited until the boy had gained the shore, then they took out the plugs, and the wasps at once proceeded to business. They never stopped work until they had made every one of the crew take to the water. The crew of the gunboat searched all over Matthews county for the boy, and his fate would have been sad indeed if they had captured him."—Correspondent of Baltimore Sun.

Braunschweig. Anyakt.

Braunschweig. Der braunschweigische Landtag hat vor längerer Zeit 300,000 Mark für ein zu errichtendes Denkmal für Herzog Wilhelm bewilligt. Nach längerer Verhandlung wurde mit Genehmigung des Regenten bestimmt, daß das Denkmal, Reiterfigur in Bronzeguß, seinen Platz vor der Burg Dankwarderode im Mittelpunkt der Stadt Braunschweig erhalten soll. Jetzt sind sieben Bildhauer zu einem beschränkten Wettbewerb eingeladen worden und zwar die Professoren Schaper, Jenensch und Manzel in Berlin, Maison in München, Schilling in Dresden, Echtermeyer in Braunschweig und Bildhauer W. Stein in Leipzig. Für die Herstellung des Denkmals sind 225,000 Mark bestimmt, der Rest der bewilligten Summe wird für Anlagen und andere Nebenkosten verwandt.

Darmstadt. Durch enorme Wechselfälschungen des hiesigen Stopfenfabrikanten Rapp wird die Kreditkasse zu Langen in starke Mitleidenschaft gezogen werden. Rapp stand mit der Kreditkasse seit etwa zwei Jahren in regstem Wechselverkehr, obgleich die Statuten vorschreiben, daß Darlehen nur an solvente Ortseingesessene gegeben werden sollten. Der ehemalige Rechner der Kasse soll dem Rapp die Diskontirung der Wechsel angeboten haben, und Rapp beeilte sich, davon Gebrauch zu machen. Das gesammte Defizit der Langener Kreditkasse soll durch diese Wechselgeschäfte über 100,000 Mark betragen. Da die Kasse mit unbeschränkter Haftpflicht arbeitete, so werden die Mitglieder für diesen Betrag aufkommen müssen.

Mainz. Der 21jährige Posthilfsbote Heinrich Schubart aus Beerfelden, beim Postamt Bodenheim angestellt, hatte innerhalb zehn Monaten 4590 Mark an Postanweisungen auf seinem Bestellbezirke Hahnheim und Gau-Bischofsheim unterschlagen. Er hatte einen täglichen Lohn von 1 Mark 70 Pfennige! Das Schwurgericht verurtheilte ihn unter Annahme mildernder Umstände zu einem Jahr vier Monaten Gefängniß.

München. Zu den Gerichtskuriosen gehört ein Fall, in dem das Landgericht ein seit fünf Jahren verheirathetes Ehepaar zu einem Tag Gefängniß wegen Vergehens wider die Sittlichkeit verurtheilt, weil das Ehepaar in einem Schwägerschaftsverhältniß steht. Der Standesbeamte hat das vor fünf Jahren übersehen und nun wird die Ehe aufgelöst. Aber die beiden Eheleute, der Mann ist Schneider, wurden zuvor noch „wegen unsittlichen Zusammenlebens" bestraft!—Die Hofgartenkaserne ist in Folge ablehnenden Beschlusses der Reichsrathskammer wieder in den Besitz des Kriegsministeriums zurückgelangt. Wie es heißt, beabsichtigt der Kriegsminister nun selbst die Ausnützung der viel ausgebotenen Kaserne. Man spricht jetzt ernstlich von der Verlegung des Armeemuseums dorthin.

Neu-Ulm. Wie Ulm, so bemüht sich nun auch Neu-Ulm um die Niederlegung der Umwallung. Die Militärbehörden sind der Entfestigungsfrage nicht abgeneigt, die in ähnlicher Weise wie in Ulm gelöst werden soll, indem die Stadt das frei werdende Terrain käuflich erwirbt. Auch die Verwaltung der bayerischen Staatsbahnen ist dabei betheiligt, da sie einen Theil der fallenden Wälle zur Erweiterung des Bahnhofes benützen will.

Nürnberg. In Folge dienstlicher Zerwürfnisse mit dem ersten Bürgermeister Dr. v. Schuh hat der zweite Bürgermeister Täubler zwei Monate Urlaub genommen, mit der Absicht, in den bayerischen Staatsdienst zurückzutreten. Herr Täubler ist in Bürgerkreisen sehr beliebt.

Regensburg. Das Projekt der Fortsetzung der Walhalla-Bahn—Strecke Stadtamhof-Donaustauf—von Donaustauf nach Wörth, nimmt nunmehr greifbare Gestalt an und dürfte als gesichert erscheinen. Fürst Albert von Thurn und Taxis hat zu der Durchführung des Projektes einen Zuschuß von 25,000 Mark gewährt unter der Bedingung, daß in Sulzbach, Kruckenberg und Wiesent Lagerplätze für Holz u. s. w. errichtet werden

BREAKING THE NEWS.

"Do you think he'll take it very badly, Nora?"

Nora Helmsley shrugged her shoulders.

"My dear Betty, you ought to know more about Mr. Markham's powers of endurance than I."

"But what do you think he'll do? What do you suppose"——

"Why waste our time in supposition? He'll be here most likely this afternoon, and you will be able to judge for yourself."

Betty Oakhurst sprang to her feet.

"Ted is coming here this afternoon? Why on earth didn't you tell me before?" And she figetted nervously with her hat before the glass as she spoke.

"But you knew. Betty, where are you going?"

"Anywhere out of this," cried the girl, laughing nervously as she stooped to kiss her friend.

Nora, however, caught her arm. "Nonsense, Betty! You'd much better tell him straight out now and get it over. It will be ever so much more awkward for you if the news reaches him from the outside."

"I don't see that at all," returned Betty quietly, as she drew away from her companion. "I am sure that if—if you"——

She paused tentatively.

"You don't mean to say that you expect me to tell Ted Markham that you've jilted him?"

"I certainly don't expect you to put it in that way," replied Miss Oakhurst, with a little laugh; "but I am quite certain that you would explain it to the poor fellow much better than any one else."

"Explain!" exclaimed Nora, impatiently. "I don't know that there's anything to explain, except that you've put yourself and me in a most ridiculous position."

"Nora!"

"I wish I'd never had anything to do with it. I never felt so uncomfortable in my life as I have done since you dragged me into this precious scheme of yours."

"Poor old Nora!" murmured Betty sympathetically, while she cast furtive glances at the clock.

"You came here and shed any number of tears, declared that you adored Ted Markham; that your father wouldn't hear of an engagement, but that if you only had a little time before you, you were sure everything would come right."

"So it has," remarked Betty, sotto voce. "It's only a question of point of view."

Nora flashed an indignant look at her.

"I think you might be serious now, and at least pretend that you're ashamed of yourself. You begged me to help you to get my aunt to ask him here, to act as screen in fact, so that your people might imagine it was all over and that you had both changed your minds, and now—now"——

The sound of a bell broke in upon Miss Helmsley's eloquence, and Betty caught up her gloves.

"I'm awfully sorry, Nora. Abuse me as much as you like. Goodby!"

And before Nora could stop her she had darted through the door and was on her way downstairs. She let her go. After all, it never was of any use to argue with Betty; she was one of those delightfully irresponsible creatures who always manage to shift the blame of their shortcomings on to other people's shoulders, and whom no one—no man, at any rate—ever dreams of judging by ordinary standards. Nora wondered, as she stood there idly looking into the street, how she could ever have been foolish enough to take Betty's love troubles seriously.

Meantime, that same folly of hers was going to bear some very unpalatable fruit. In less than ten minutes young Markham would be there. He had arranged to call for Miss Helmsley and her aunt, Lady Hewitt, to escort them to an afternoon concert. The elder lady had declared at luncheon that the weather was far too depressing for it not to be madness to risk the probability of a further fall of one's moral barometer by a couple of hours of orchestral music, and that Nora must give him some tea and her excuses.

Nora was conscious that this was a neat pretext for giving the young man the chance of a tete-a-tete with herself. Lady Hewitt was too indolent, naturally, not to be heartily weary of her duties as chaperon to her niece. An attractive heiress was a responsibility little to her taste, and the girl felt that, ineligible as most mothers and responsible people would have termed Ted Markham, with his post in the Foreign Office and his meagre personal fortune, Lady Hewitt would open her arms to him gladly if he would but relieve her of her onerous duties of watchdog, and would declare that Nora had money enough for them both.

Nora sighed as she stood at the window. It was a topsy-turvy world, and the wrong people were always being thrown together. If only——

"Am I disturbing you? I was told to come in here."

Nora started, and the color rushed to her face.

"Oh, I hadn't heard you come in! Do sit down. Aunt isn't well. I am so sorry you should have had the trouble of calling for nothing, but she hoped to be able to go until the last moment. Won't you let me give you some tea?" She spoke with nervous hurry, scarcely pausing for an answer.

Ted Markham took the chair she offered him, and listened in silence while she rattled on. Suddenly she stopped, conscious of his fixed glance.

"Is anything the matter?" she asked, in a slightly alarmed voice. It was surely not possible that he could already have learned Betty's treachery.

"Yes. We can't go on like this, Miss Helmsley!"

"No?" Nora felt the color go out of her face.

"It isn't fair to you, and besides t—things have changed"——

"You mean that Betty"——

"Miss Oakhurst is going to be married." Nora gasped, but did not speak. "She is engaged to Lord Barthorpe. I met Lady Oakhurst just now, and she was overflowing with loving-kindness to the world in general."

"Betty has behaved abominably!" put in Nora, indignantly.

Ted Markham smiled.

"I think, on the contrary, that she has shown remarkably good sense. I am going to leave London; I really came this afternoon to say goodby."

Nora bit her lips.

"I am very sorry," she began hesitatingly. "I am afraid I was rather to blame, but I thought Betty really cared, and"——

She left the sentence unfinished. Ted Markham's demeanor puzzled her; he was quite white, and there was a look in his eyes which troubled her. What was there in her fluffy-haired, blue-eyed little friend to move a man so? That her companion had taken some great resolution, and that a singularly difficult one, it was easy enough to perceive.

"Are you going to be away long?" she asked awkwardly. "I mean, are you going far?"

"I think of going to have a look at the antipodes. My father has some interest, and I hope to get sent off to Melbourne."

"But haven't you made up your mind rather hurriedly?" she objected timidly.

"Hurriedly? Why, I put things in train weeks ago!"

"Weeks ago!" she exclaimed. "But Betty's engagement is quite fresh. Did you suspect"——

"I suspected nothing. I knew"——

"You knew!" she exclaimed indignantly. "Then why didn't you speak! Why didn't you tell me?"

"Tell you!" She stared at him, his tone was so vehement. "Oh, about Betty, you mean!"

"Of course. What else could I mean?"

"Nothing, of course"——

"Really, I don't understand you."

He laughed drearily as he rose. "No, I must not explain. Goodby."

She looked up at him with startled eyes.

"You are too hard on Betty. She"—

"On Betty? Don't you know that I haven't thought of her for weeks—that I found out long ago that we had made a mistake?"

"Then why are you going?"

She managed to keep her eyes upon his face, though her cheeks burned and she felt almost choked.

"Don't you know that I am almost a pauper?" he said bitterly, as he turned away.

Nora took a step after him. "Are you going," she asked in a trembling voice, "because you want to make your fortune, or because—because I am too rich?"

"Nora!"

She covered her face with her hands.

"Oh, if you were not in love with Betty, didn't you see—didn't you guess weeks ago"——

The voices of the chaperons were loud in condemnation when the engagement was announced, and the mothers of younger sons and ungilt titles declared that Lady Hewitt had allowed her niece to throw herself away; while Betty Oakhurst shook her pretty head and reflected sadly that men were fickle creatures and that feminine friendship was but a reed.—London World.

JOE JEFFERSON'S LONG SNOOZE.

There Was No Pretence and the Resonant Snore Was Genuine.

While he was playing "Rip Van Winkle" at Chicago Jefferson once went to the theatre very much exhausted by a long day's fishing on the lake. As the curtain rose on the third act it disclosed the white haired Rip still deep in his twenty-years' nap. Five, ten, twenty minutes passed and he did not awaken. The audience began to get impatient and the prompter uneasy.

The great actor doubtless knew what he was about, but this was carrying the realistic business too far. The fact was that all this time Jefferson was really sleeping the sleep of the just, or rather of the fisherman who had sat eight hours in the sun. Finally the gallery became uproarious, and one of the "gods" wanted to know if there was going to be "nineteen years more of this snooze business."

At this point Jefferson began to snore. This decided the prompter, who opened a small trap beneath the stage and began to prod Rip from below. The fagged comedian fumbled in his pocket for an imaginary railway ticket, and muttered drowsily, "Going right through, conductor."

At this entirely new reading the audience was transfixed with amazement, when all at once Jefferson sat up with a loud shriek, evidently in agony. The exasperated prompter had jabbed him with a pin. Consciousness of the situation came to him and the play went on after that with a rush.—Philadelphia Post.

How It Happened.

The house surgeon of a London hospital was attending to the injuries of a poor woman whose arm had been severely bitten. As he was dressing the wound, he said: "I can not make out what sort of a creature bit you. This is too small for a horse's bite and too large for a dog's." "Oh, sir," replied the patient, "it wasn't an animal; it was another lady."—Washington Star.

AN OBJECT LESSON.

"There being no fair 'uns present," began the fakir in the preliminary canter of his tongue, "it ain't necessary for me to say 'Ladies and gents.' I just want your attention for a moment, gents; just one minute. I have here a piece of everyday chalk, and I want to show you what a chunk of chalk can do. You can't forge no bank check with it no more than I can. But I can draw some quick pictures with it on the sidewalk. If you watch me with one eye and keep the other on the cop."

By this time the crowd surrounded the fakir five or six deep and the saloonkeeper in front of whose shop the gathering anchored, to use a West street expression, came out to the gangway of his deserted saloon and shouted:

"Clear out, you! I've got no water to waste cleaning up your mess."

And some of the crowd began to move, but were held back by the remark of the cruising artist:

"That's all right, shipmate. I'm an old tar, and has had many a cargo of grog alongshore. I'll knock off if you howl, but I promise to swab off your deck if you lets me fire ahead."

Without waiting for the permission, the stranded fakir stooped over and made a long mark on the sidewalk with the chalk, standing in the gutter as he did so. "He's a nasty shark," he remarked in confidence to his audience. "Now, gents, I'll draw a picture of my host, the boss of the tavern." And he did, quickly and well. There was the bloated owner, with his great beard and soiled white apron. There at the open door, leading to the illy-lit bar, and the beer sign on the wall outside, showing a two-masted schooner sailing up the East River under the Brooklyn Bridge, with an immense glass of foaming lager resting on the deck between the fore and main masts. The crowd had swelled to such proportions now that all gangway on the sidewalk was cut off, and the proprietor could not see what the fakir was drawing, not even between the legs of the big crowd.

"Now," resumed the wielder of the chalk, as he and the crowd shifted their berths to a cleaner stretch of sidewalk nearby—"now I'll draw you a picture of a school lad."

There he was, after a half dozen or perhaps more strokes of the chalk, A lad fair to look upon! Long, curly hair, a sweet, open face, neat boots and a trim rig. A bundle of books under his arm, and the reflection of innocent sunshine in his face. A few more dashes of the chalk, with a change of moorings, and it was seen that the figure of the saloonkeeper on the sidewalk was offering the lad a glass of that same foaming lager which the schooner with all sheets lifted was rapidly carrying up stream.

"That's the schoolboy," announced the fakir. "Just one more, gents, and I'm off."

Another shift to a clean piece of sidewalk, a hasty dash of the chalk and the figure of a health-shattered, ragged, unkempt thing loomed up on the sidewalk. A bottle or rum showed up from one of the tattered pockets, the head was hatless and the feet were partly concealed by a miserable pair of shoes that were worn and cut in a dozen places. Again the chalk flashed on the sidewalk and it was seen that the saloonkeeper was driving the emaciated creature from his door.

"That's the schoolboy again," said the artist pointing at the miserable wretch on the sidewalk. "That's the schoolboy, but his books and brains is gone, and so is his manhood. Don't be afraid to contribute, gents. This ain't no temperance lecture, nor I ain't no treat for me unless you pony up."

But it was both. The sidewalk is clean now, and to his dying day the thick-skinned saloonkeeper may never be able to understand why that crowd looked at him so hard as it moved away.

"I wouldn't mind," said he to a crony that night, "but that fellow promised to clean off the sidewalk and he didn't keep his word. Do you think he was making fun of me when he drew them pictures?"

"Blamed if I know," said the bleary eyed man in front of the bar. "Give us another drink and don't bother me with your troubles. I have some of my own."

And he had.

Council Passes Tenure of Position Ordinance.

IT CAUSED LIVELY TALK.

COUNCILMAN HETFIELD OPPOSED IT VIGOROUSLY.

Mr. Hetfield Claimed That The Police Force Was Not an Ideal as It Ought to be and That the Members Should Not be Given Life Positions—Much Acrimonious Talk—Other Business Transacted

The police ordinance that has been struggling for the past six months to find the light of day and get through the Council, finally succeeded in its efforts last evening at the regular meeting. It was called up by Mr. Buckle and a heated discussion followed before its adoption on the second reading. Mr. Buckle stated that he had consulted with the Mayor, the police board and members of the police department, and all were desirous of having the ordinance go through. Mr. Buckle also presented a petition from the policemen in which they asked the Council to adopt the ordinance.

Mr. Hetfield asked Mr. Buckle if the police board had met with a committee from the Patrolmen's Benefit Association; as the resolution he offered at the last meeting called for. In response Mr. Buckle stated that he did not think it was necessary inasmuch as he had received a petition from the police. Mr. Buckle then went on to say that the ordinance had been in the hands of the laws and ordinance committee for six months, and that while he had lots of patience, he desired to see the ordinance come before the Council for a vote. If Mr. Hetfield could offer any good reasons why the ordinance should not be adopted he would gladly listen and was willing to be convinced.

Mr. Barrows stated that inasmuch as the petition had been received he could see no reason why the meeting in question should be held.

Mr. Hetfield then said that advice had been given to the effect that a meeting should not be held, that irrespective of the disregard shown for his motion at the last meeting, the patrolmen of the city were lined up the day after the last meeting in front of the officers, who belonged to another association, and the petition was thrust at them and they were forced to sign it. They didn't dare say no. He continued by saying that there were names on the petition of patrolmen who had told him that they did not urge the passing of the ordinance, and among them were Chief Grant, Patrolmen McCue, Flanagan, Lunger and others. Mr. Hetfield stated further that there was not a member of the Council who could say that the police force is as it should be, every man suitable for the place he is in; if it was so he said that he would vote for the ordinance.

Replying, Mr. Buckle said that taking the force as a whole it is desirous that an ordinance protecting the men be established. Mr. Buckle said that if he had as much fault to find with the force as Mr. Hetfield he should certainly pick out some good reason why the ordinance should not be adopted. He claimed that everyone has faults, and he was of the opinion that there was prejudice somewhere that is actuating Mr. Hetfield's movements. He said that Mr. Hetfield had talked more with the police than he had since he has been chairman of the police board.

Mr. Barrows emphasized Mr. Buckle's remarks and informed Mr. Hetfield that the city does not recognize any association among the police, neither does it recognize officers. All are appointed by the Mayor as policeman. He said that there is no police force anywhere, man for man, that is better than the one in Plainfield, and it should be removed from political influence, and that all the ordinance aims to do is to prevent policemen from lobbying.

Mr. Hetfield replied by stating that no one on the force who is doing his duty is afraid of politics. "I went to the members of the police force and inquired among them what they knew about the police ordinance and what they had to say about it," said Mr. Hetfield, "I am almost satisfied that that petition came from the officers, and not the men."

Mr. Barrows informed Mr. Hetfield that the petition had come from the Mayor. A vote was then taken on the ordinance and it was adopted as stated. Messrs. Hetfield, Moffett and Liefke voted against the adoption.

Mr. Barrows spoke regarding the

MR. NEWCORN RESIGNS

WILL HEREAFTER DEVOTE ALL HIS ENERGIES TO THE LAW.

During Four And a Half Years, He Has Tried 1,681 Civil and 400 Criminal Cases—Only Two Decisions Reserved.

Prominent among the justices-of-the-peace who have officiated in this city has been the name of Justice William Newcorn. After a very successful career in that judicial capacity, Mr. Newcorn has now resigned from the office and will turn all his attention to his legal business.

November 22d Mr. Newcorn sent in his resignation to Acting-Governor Watkins and it has since been accepted. Mr. Newcorn's record has been an excellent one. During the four years and six months that he has held the office, he has tried 1,681 civil cases and about 400 criminal cases. Of all the civil cases he has tried, in only two has the decision been reversed. One was a trial by jury, where the decision was given by the jury and not the judge, and the other where the case was dismissed for lack of prosecution.

Mr. Newcorn decided to resign on account of the large increase in his legal practice, and also owing to the fact that, as a Justice, he is not allowed by law to practice in another Justice's court. As he has a number of the latter cases, he has heretofore been compelled to retain another lawyer to conduct the cases for him. Hereafter, however, he will look after all his own business.

COUNTY TROLLEY IS CONSTITUTIONAL.

Supreme Court's Important Decision Yesterday.

COUNTY LINE CAN BE BUILT.

EVERY POINT RAISED BY OBJECTORS NOT WELL TAKEN.

Justice Collins Says That the Squire Act Does Not Create a Special Class of Counties—Denial of Applications for Writs of Certiorari Removes All Bar to Kean's Company Starting Work.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Dec. 6—The Supreme Court, in an opinion yesterday, declares the Squire Trolley Law to be constitutional, knocking out every point made by the objectors to the construction of a trolley on Westfield avenue, between Elizabeth and Plainfield. This will allow the Elizabeth City Horse Railroad Company, which is controlled by John Kean, to go ahead with the construction of the trolley.

The opinion filed was prepared by Justice Collins, and denies the application for writs of certiorari removing to the Supreme Court the proceedings taken under the act by the Union County Board of Freeholders. The application was made by Lindabury and Depeu, representing property owners along the line of the proposed improvement. The refusal of the application for writs of certiorari is not reviewable by the Court of Errors.

The opinion goes into a lengthy argument of the matter. That statute was assailed as a special, or local, law regulating the internal affairs of counties, because in its second section it is enacted that nothing in the act shall be construed to authorize the construction of a street railroad on any public highway on which it is not lawful at present to authorize the construction of a street railroad. The claim was made that this restricted the operation of the act to public highways actually existing. Justice Collins says on this point:

"It is too plain to need argument that the act will operate on public highways hereafter opened under county control, or subjected to such control. The only limitation is on the power to authorize the construction of street railroads where it is not now lawful to authorize their construction. This limitation does not create a class of counties. All counties are equally affected by it."

Another of the points raised was that the statute, in providing for condemnation proceedings, directed the condemning commissioners to take into account the benefits conferred by the improvement on the remainder of any lot or tract of land partly taken. The court thinks this challenge premature. Miss Bronson, one of the complainants represented by Lindabury and Depue, is affected, however, but Justice Collins says:

"I would not, on the complaint of one lot owner, check so important a public work as that projected, even if I thought this objection debatable. If the grant of power to take a part of a lot in one ownership is unconstitutional, the act, except in that regard, is valid and the proceedings should not be hindered; while, on the other hand, the land owners cannot be injured by permitting them to go on, for any attempt to take such land, if power to do so be lacking, is simply futile. In a case like this, I would regulate the land owner to the defensive, or, at most, review the award. But I think such questions is not debatable in this court."

The resolution of the Union County Board of Freeholders authorizing the improvement was attacked because "it declares an intention to otherwise improve Westfield or North avenue without disclosing the nature of the improvement." On this point Justice Collins says:

"It will be time enough for such disclosure when steps shall be taken to effectuate the intention. The resolution affords the necessary support for the advertisement for propositions to construct and operate a street railroad."

The resolution was further attacked on the ground that it "does not give information of the matters to be stated in the propositions to be submitted thereunder."

Justice Collins says:

"This was not necessary. The statute expressly directs what shall be stated in the resolution, and its publication is all the notice required."

The fifth ground upon which the application for the writs was based was that the contract with the Elizabeth Horse Railroad Company was

A TROLLEY FRANCHISE.

ITS PROVISIONS ARE EXPLAINED TO THE COUNCILMEN.

Franchise to Expire in 99 Years—Will be Adjusted in 50 and 75 Years—Company Agrees to Other New Concessions.

After the Common Council meeting last evening, the Councilmen were invited to a conference of the street committee to hear just exactly what was being done regarding the proposed franchise to the Plainfield Street Railway for the Scotch Plains extension. Friday, the Councilmen will be called on to vote on the application and so the street committe wanted them to think it over before acting.

The Daily Press told at the time of the conference between the street committee and the officials of the Plainfield Street Railway, arranged though the transportation committee of the Board of Trade. The synopsis of the ordinance then agreed to was brought to the attention of all the Councilmen.

The proposed ordinance is to last for a period of ninety-years. At the end of fifty years, however, commissioners are to be appointed by the city and the street railroad company, who are to select another commissioner, and the three are to settle on new terms equitable to both sides. A similar plan is to be followed twenty-five years after that time and new arrangements made. Then, when the ninety-nine years are up, the franchise will expire entirely.

The trolley company has expressed its willingness to run a branch out Arlington avenue, and across to the Hillside links and the Driving Park, if the necessary consents are furnished, and also has agreed to connect with the Metuchen line, should it be built. One of the provisions of the provisions of the proposed ordinance is that the trolley company shall allow another company to run over its lines on Richmond street. The other terms are similar to those of the former franchise, which was withdrawn before it was acted on.

G. O. P. AND CITIZENS' STRUGGLE FOR VOTERS

Election Day Arrives With Auspicious Weather.

VOTING IS NOT HEAVY YET

LITTLE EXCITEMENT MANIFESTED AROUND THE POLLS.

Regular Republicans Have the Machine in Good Working Order—Citizens' Enthusiasts are Hustling by Individual Efforts—Candidates Try to Keep Tabs on Voters—Vote Cast in the Districts.

Election Day dawned with every prospect of good weather. Early in the morning the workers were on duty and there has been an unwonted activity in the neighborhood of the polling places ever since. The clear cold weather and the unusual efforts of the workers of Republican and Citizens' organizations will undoubtedly make the election one of the largest the city has ever seen. Last year was a record-breaker, but this one promises to show even a greater number of voters out.

There has been little excitement anywhere in the city. The regular machine of the Republican party is on hand and in full force with carriages and workers galore. The Citizens, while not so well provided in that way, are trying to make up for the deficiency with greater indidividual efforts. Most of the candidates have been seen in the vicinity of the polling places once in a while. Several of the Citizens' candidates are doing active work there. The sidewalks and billboards have been well covered with posters, calling on all to turn out and vote the Republican ticket.

The following was the vote in the various districts during the morning hours:

Third ward, first district, 217; second district, 50.

GWYNETTE'S BARN BURNED TO GROUND.

Fire Was Not Discovered Until Too Late.

COW AND GOAT BURNED.

ALARM SENT IN FROM FIRE-ALARM BOX NO. 28.

Firemen Had to Lay in a Line 1,900 Feet Long—Saved an Adjoining Hennery—Total Loss Will Amount to Over $1,000—Barn Owned by Alfred Singer, of New York—Other Losses.

Another barn in the Netherwood district went up in flames last evening. Anastasius Gwynette was the sufferer this time. He resides at 1135 East Front street, corner of Leland avenue.

Last evening Gwynette drove down town and left the rest of the family at home. It was about 10 o'clock when his mother heard a horse and buggy come up the street at a rapid pace and turn in toward the barn. Then all was silent. She supposed it was her son returning. A few minutes later the horse and buggy were driven away. Some twenty minutes later the occupants of the house discovered the barn all ablaze.

Adolph Carman, of No. 2 Engine Company, lives on Netherwod avenue. He saw the blazing barn and hastened to box 28, corner of Woodland and South avenues, where he found Patrolman Saunders. At 10:25 o'clock they sent in an alarm although the fire was on the other side of town. Just after their alarm was sent in, someone else sent in an alarm from box 18, corner of East Front street and Netherwood avenue.

The apparatus responded with alacrity, but went to box 28 and had to cross to the other side of town. When they arrived, the roof of the barn had fallen in and forced out the sides. The back still remained standing. Behind it was a large hennery. The firemen laid in a line of hose 1,900 feet long from the nearest hydrant and saved the hennery, which was the only building threatened by the burning barn. The barn was beyond control when first discovered.

The structure was a well-made two story frame building. The loft was filled with hay. On the ground floor was a cow and a pet goat, both of which were burned to death. In one of the rooms was a very complete set of horsemen's materials, including harness, boots, blankets and the like. Mr. Gwynette is a horse trainer.

The house and barn is owned by Alfred Singer, of New York, and has only recently been occupied by the Gwynette's who formerly resided on Prospect avenue. The barn is a total loss, which will amount to $600. The loss in the contents of the barn, the property of Mr. Gwynette, will amount to $400. Both barn and contents were partially insured.

The fire department officials believe that the fire started from the stove in the barn. Mrs. Gwynette is inclined to think that it was the work of incendiaries.

DEATH OF A DUNELLEN CITIZEN.

Isaac W. Laing Finally Succumbs to the Ravages of Consumption.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 6—The residents of this place were deeply grieved last evening to learn of the death of Isaac W. Laing, for several years one of the most popular and honored citizens. Mr. Laing's death was due to consumption. His illness extended over a period of three years and for the past two years he was out of business. He was employed by Mr. Robinson, the wholesale druggist of Greenwich street, New York. He gave up his place two years ago in March and went to Denver, Col., for his health. He remained there until last summer, when his condition was such that it was deemed best that he should return home.

Mr. Laing was the son of the late Smith W. and Phoebe Randolph Laing. He was born in August thirty years ago at South Plainfield, and nearly all of his life has been spent in this vicinity. He was a member of the Independent Order of Foresters, of this place, and tomorrow evening a service will be held at the late home to which only the members of the Foresters are invited. Rev. A. I. Martine will officiate. On Thursday morning at 11 o'clock a service will be held in the Friends' Meeting-house on Watchung avenue, Plainfield, and interment will be in Hillside Cemetery.

He leaves a wife and a sister, Mrs. George VanNest. His father died about four years ago. A number of relatives reside in Plainfield.

PARKS WIN AT HOME.

TOOK TWO OUT OF THREE FROM JERSEY CITY A. C.

The Scores on Both Sides Were Low—Parks Won In The Last Game By Old Time Finish.

The Park Club rolled its first game on the home alleys last night and won two out of three with the New Jersey Athletic Club team. Neither side did any particularly brilliant work and all the scores were low.

The first game went to the visitors after the Parks had led most of the way. In the second, the visitors started in with a small lead but rolled in poor form and the Parks were victorious by 4 pins. The Parks rolled a very poor game in the start of the third but made up in a superb finish and swept the alleys clean in the last three frames. They won out by 27 pins.

The individual scores were as follows

Board of Education Grants Petition of the Scholars—Teachers to Decide When Pupils May Receive Callers.

It looked at first as if there would not be a quorum present at the Board of Education meeting last night, Mr. Abbott being the only member there. But Dr. J. B. Probasco and Dr. Jenkins came in afterward and the meeting was called to order. This was Dr. Jenkins' last meeting, as his term expires January 1st.

There was very little to be done at the meeting except to settle accounts. Taxes to the amount of $3,179.99 have been collected during the past month with interest, $48.48, making a total of $3,228.47.

Professor Maxson presented a claim from the Dunellen school board for tuition for one pupil. Professor Maxson explained that this pupil lived so near the borough line that it was easier to send her there than to compel her to walk all the way to the Plainfield school.

Professor Maxson also said that the teachers were annoyed frequently by parents, guardians and friends, who called at the door or over the telephone to see pupils. A resolution was passed that no pupil be allowed to answer these calls unless the teacher deems them necessary.

Professor Maxson also stated that there were three young ladies from the State Normal School who were here getting practical knowledge from the teachers as to how to conduct a class.

The board then went into executive session, at which one of the items of business transacted was to grant to the pupils of the Whittier building one session a day, just as is done in the High School. Only eight pupils voted against this change out of about 155.

Tables are Turned.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, December 6—Luther Mundy, the constable, was arrested yesterday and taken before Justice Storm, charged by William Roantree with assault and battery. Mundy was held for his appearance before a justice of the peace in New Brunswick. W. J. Davis, the grocer, went Mundy's bail for $100. The alleged assault and battery took place a few weeks ago when Mundy arrested Roantree on a warrant. Roantree claims that Mundy handled him with unnecessary roughness when taking him to the Justice.

F. C. Lounsbery, candidate for Mayor on the Citizens' ticket, states that the editorial in The News last night about his tax bill was very misleading. The amount that he owes is on property affected by the Martin Act, and until the commissioners make their final report he cannot pay it. As a matter of fact Mr. Lounsbery says that the city now holds $100 of his money that he paid for taxes that have since been declared illegal.

DIED AS HE HAD LIVED—IN GOOD AND QUIET.

The Venerable James McGee Expired During the Night.

HIS DEATH CAUSES A SHOCK

HE ATTENDED TO BUSINESS AS USUAL YESTERDAY.

A Well-Known Business Man in New York Circles—His Beneficence in Church and Charitable Circles Was Well-Known—He Was Responsible for Clearing Monroe Avenue M. E. Church of Debt—His Life.

Just as quietly as he had lived a life of seventy-two years, occurred the death of James McGee, one of Plainfield's most honored and highly respected citizens, this morning about 4 o'clock. When the news of Mr. McGee's death became known it was a great shock to the community and people could scarcely believe it as the word was passed from one to another. On every hand nothing but words of praise were spoken of him whose existence was a blessing to all with whom he came in contact. Unassuming and retiring in his manner and entirely avoiding self praise or notoriety, he won many close and warm friends in his social, religious and business life. There was scarcely a man more deeply interested and active in the religious world than Mr. McGee. He was always aiming to do good and help others. His hand was never withheld from worthy charities. In almost every channel of charity in this city his assistance was felt in a large and substantial measure.

As a lasting monument to his life, the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, the Epworth House adjoining, and the parsonage, also close by, will ever be reminders. It was seven years ago last April that the Monroe Avenue church was organized and from that time Mr. McGee has been a leading and prominent factor in that religious body. He purchased the land at the corner of Monroe avenue and West Fourth street, where now stands the church, Epworth House and parsonage. It can be said that he presented the entire property to the worshippers of that church. Extra land was purchased, graded, flagged and curbed, all at Mr. McGee's expense. Nothing was wanting to make the organization complete, and only a short time ago he paid the last amount of debt on the the property, making it clear and free from all incumberance.

James McGee was born seventy-two years ago in New York city, and was the son of Robert McGee. Nearly all of his life was spent in and about New York and vicinity. He attended the public schools and when a young man secured employment in the cotton business. He worked hard and faithfully, gradually making a way for himself by his own efforts. Later he engaged in the produce exchange business and was employed at the Produce Exchange. He held the responsible positions of vice-president and president of the Produce Exchange, and up to the time of his death he held the position of president of the New York Produce Exchange Safe Deposit Company.

For a brief period he was engaged in the business management of The New York Sun, and from that position he was identified in the petroleum brokerage business. After that he became associated with the Standard Oil Company and held a high and responsible position in the executive management of the company and this association he held up to the time of his death.

Mr. McGee was a member of the Chamber of Commerce of New York, where he was an active member. He was married in New York and started housekeeping in a very humble way. In August, 1874, he and his family moved to North Plainfield, and have resided there ever since. Mrs. McGee, a womnn widely known for her goodness and her giving to charity, died five years ago, leaving many to mourn her death.

Of late Mr. McGee lived at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. R. Joy, of West End avenue, and it was at that place that he died. Yesterday he complained of not feeling well, but this did not keep him from business. He went to New York as usual, and returned last evening in about his usual health. He did say that he had pains about his heart, and Dr. O. L. Jenkins was called to prescribe. He retired at about his regular time. This morning when Mr. Joy awoke he stepped to Mr. McGee's room and found that he was dead. It is supposed that he died between 4 and 5 o'clock, and the end came peacefully and quiet. In his death the bereaved

SENATOR KENNEY ON TRIAL.

Charges Growing Out of the Looting of the First National Bank of Dover.

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 6.—United States Senator Richard R. Kenney of Delaware was placed on trial yesterday in the United States circuit court for the second time on charges growing out of the looting of the First National Bank of Dover by its cashier, William N. Boggs.

Senator Kenney was last arraigned on the charge of aiding and abetting Boggs in misappropriating the bank's funds last July, and in a trial lasting over one week the jury disagreed.

Since then the charge of conspiracy has been added to the original charge.

The discovery of a shortage in the funds of the bank came in May, 1897, when Boggs, the cashier, suddenly left Dover.

The bank was found to have been plundered of 107,000, or a little over its capital stock.

President Richardson of the bank came to the rescue and saved the institution from failure.

Boggs subsequently gave himself up and admitted his defalcation, at the same time making statements which led to the arrest of Senator Kenney and several other citizens of Dover. Two of the latter have been convicted and are now serving terms in the Penitentiary at Trenton.

Boggs pleaded guilty and is awaiting sentence.

The evidence against Senator Kenney deals largely with numerous stock transactions in which he and Boggs were interested.

During his last trial Senator Kenney was represented by Senator Gray, his colleague in the Senate, and Levi C. Bird.

Senator Gray is now in Paris with the peace commission, and ex-Attorney General John Riggs is assisting Mr. Bird.

District Attorney Vandegrift represents the government in the prosecution.

Silvela's Bid for Power.

London, Dec. 6.—The Madrid correspondent of the Standard sends the following:

The Conservative party and Senor Silvela, through their organs, have suddenly made peremptory bids for power.

Senor Sagasta treats the matter calmly, ridiculing the smallness of Senor Silvela's following and declining to hasten the assemblage of the Cortes, to be convened in January, or the conclusion of the peace negotiations at Paris."

Franco-Italian Treaty.

Rome, Dec. 6.—The king has received the addresses of the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies in reply to the speech from the throne, in answer to which he expressed his satisfaction at the conclusion of the commercial treaty between Italy and France.

The relations of Italy with all of the powers, the king said, were excellent.

BITS OF NEWS.

Fire in the government dock yard at Ferrol, Spain, has caused a loss estimated at four million pesetas, about $770,000.

Six banks in Milwaukee have announced a reduction of the interest rate on savings deposits from 3 to 3 1-2 per cent.

Nearly the entire business portion of Eufala, I. T., was destroyed by fire Sunday night. The loss is estimated at $150,000.

The French vintage of 1898 is officially estimated at 32,282,000 hectolitres which is 68,000 hectolitres below the vintage of last year.

The report of the minister of commerce, just issued, shows that the population of France in 1897 increased 108,088 over that of 1896. This is due to a decrease in the death rate, the birth rate showing no increase.

Father Vahey, pastor of St. John's cathedral in Cleveland, Ohio, advocates a whipping post as a means of punishing men who desert their families. The priest announces that he has in the past week placed seven little children in the Catholic orphanage.

The Echo of Berlin, in an article giving statistics of German schools for the ten years from 1887 to 1896, shows that 407 children in the state schools committed suicide, 331 of whom were boys and 76 girls, each under 15 years of age.

Fifteen years at hard labor in the state prison was the sentence meted out to H. Leroy Applegate, of Trenton, N. J., the young counsellor who was recently arrested on fourteen different charges of fraud and embezzlement. Applegate issued fraudulent mortgages by the wholesale. He was arraigned yesterday morning and pleaded guilty.

TREATY SURE TO WIN

Canvass Shows Fifty-three in the Affirmative Already.

AND OTHERS ARE EXPECTED

Strong Reasons Urged for the Prompt Ratification of Paris Commission Work It Would Leave Us at War with Spain, at Vast Expense, Till Next Congress Could Assemble.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 6.—In the Senate there was a quiet canvass yesterday to discover the strength of the treaty of peace with Spain, which soon will be laid before that body for ratification.

There is intense interest on this subject, as ratification is desired with promptness by the administration and senators are urged to forego debate until after the treaty is laid away. It can be carried without any trouble in the next Senate, but that will mean a delay of a year.

It is pointed out that a vote against the treaty now will be a vote against the president of the United States and a humiliation of the country in the eyes of the world.

Every vote cast against the treaty, it is held, will be a declaration that Spain has yielded the United States too much and that the American commissioners at Paris should be discredited.

Such arguments are having their effect for immediate action, and the result of a poll, conducted by the friends of the treaty, is most encouraging. It will take sixty senators or two-thirds of the ninety, to ratify. The poll taken yesterday shows fifty-three in the affirmative already, with 27 in the negative and ten doubtful.

Those counted in the affirmative are Aldrich, Allison, Baker, Burrows, Cannon, Carter, Chandler, Clark, Cullom, Davis, Deboe, Elkins, Fairbanks, Foraker, Frye, Gallinger, Gear, Gray, Hanna, Hansbrough, Hawley, Heitfeld, Kenney, Kyle, Lindsay, Lodge, McBride, McMillin, Mantle, Mason, Morgan, Nelson, Penrose, Perkins, Pettus, Platt of Connecticut, Platt of New York, Pritchard, Proctor, Quay, Simon, Spooner, Sewell, Shoup, Stewart, Teller, Thurston, Turner, Warren, Wetmore, Wilson and Wolcott.

Those counted against the treaty are Hale and Morrill, Republicans, with the following Democrats: Bacon, Bate, Berry, Butler, Caffery, Chilton, Clay, Cockrell, Faulkner, Gorman, Harris, Jones of Arkansas, McEnery, Mallory, Mitchell, Murphy, Pasco, Pettigrew, Roach, Smith, Tillman, Turley, Turple, Vest and White.

In the doubtful list are Hoar and Wellington, Republicans, with Allen, Mills, Martin, Daniel, Jones of Nevada, Rawlins, McLaurin and Sullivan.

LEE'S CORPS GETS ORDERS.

Embarkation of the 7th Army Corps for Cuba to Begin at Once.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 6.—Major Gen. Fitzhugh Lee of the Seventh Army Corps, received orders Monday morning to prepare his entire corps for embarkation for Havana as early as practicable.

This was in addition to the orders received last week to get only one division of the corps in readiness for the trip.

He has issued the necessary orders and the corps will be moved as soon as possible.

It is not thought that any of the corps will be in Savannah by December 20 at least.

One of the staff officers said yesterday morning that the headquarters of the corps would be in Havana before the week is over, and it may be that headquarters will take steamships from Tampa direct to Havana.

The First North Carolina regiment will leave on Wednesday on the transport Michigan for Havana.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 6.—Adjutant General Corbin says that he expects Major General Fitzhugh Lee will sail from Savannah for Cuba some time this week.

The embarkation of the Seventh Army Corps will begin immediately, and probably all the transports now at Savannah will get away before next Saturday.

Would Save Honor.

New York, Dec. 6.—In order to save "his honor," which he says is endangered as a result of his fake fight with Sharkey, James J. Corbett has posted $500 with the Police Gazette as a bait with which he says he hopes to induce Sharkey to make another match with him. With the money Corbett left this statement:

"I have to-day deposited 1,000 with the sporting editor of the Police Gazette as a forfeit for a match with Tom Sharkey. I am willing to box Sharkey in public, the gate money to go to charity. But I would prefer to box him for $5,000 a side in private, each side to have ten men present."

MEXICAN EMBASSY NOW.

Minister Clayton Will be Appointed to the Rank of Ambassador.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 6.—Don Matias Romero, the Mexican diplomatic representative in Washington, called at the state department yesterday to inform the officers there that he had been appointed ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of his government.

This elevation of the Mexican representative to the rank of ambassador will be followed by similar action on the part of the United States. President McKinley will raise the United States mission to Mexico to the grade of an embassy and Minister Powell Clayton will be appointed an ambassador.

The elevation of Minister Romero gives to the United States six missions of the highest diplomatic grade.

Less than six years ago there was no diplomatic representative in the United States of a higher grade than minister, and this government had no representative abroad of ambassadorial rank.

Congress authorized the president to elevate to the grade of an embassy such missions of the United States as were situated in countries which could give the credentials of ambassador to their envoys in Washington.

Great Britain was the first to respond with the appointment of Sir Julian Pauncefote, the then minister of his country, to the rank of ambassador. President Cleveland then appointed Thomas F. Bayard as ambassador to Great Britain.

The governments of Great Britain, Italy, Germany, France, Russia and Mexico now maintain embassies in Washington.

Senor Romero is the oldest member of the diplomatic corps in Washington in point of service.

His commission as minister dates from March 7, 1882. He returned yesterday from a long visit to Mexico, and his visit to the state department was the first since his reurn to the United States.

FOR ANOTHER INVESTIGATION.

Sulzer Introduces a Resolution Providing for an Inquiry by the House.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 6.—Representative Sulzer of New York, ranking Democratic member of the House committee on military affairs, has introduced a resolution "authorizing and directing the committee on military affairs to investigate the war department and the conduct of the Spanish-American war."

The resolution is as follows:

"Resolved, That the committee on military affairs, and the same hereby is authorized and directed to investigate the war department and the conduct of the recent war between Spain and the United States, and report all of said proceedings with their findings, conclusions and recommendations, to the House of Representatives with all speed.

"That said committee is hereby authorized and empowered to send for books, documents, papers and persons, examine persons under oath, sit in any part of the United States, employ a stenographer, and that the sergeant-at-arms is hereby directed to attend said committee and carry out its directions.

"That the necessary expenses of the investigation be paid out of the contingent fund of the House."

The resolution was referred to the committee on military affairs.

Annexation Favored.

Santiago de Cuba, Dec. 6.—Robert P. Porter, the special commissioner of the United States to Cuba and Porto Rico, has returned here from his inspection of the mines.

He gave a farewell luncheon Sunday at which twenty-five guests were present. It was a most cosmopolitan gathering, and included representatives of the army and navy, the commercial and mining industries, etc.

The affair was not intended to be anything more than a social gathering, but all the party made speeches, and although none of the speakers absolutely declared in favor of annexation, it was unquestionably apparent that twenty-one of the guests were in favor of the island being annexed to the United States.

Supt. Andrews Resigns.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—E. Benjamin Andrews has resigned his place as superintendent of the city schools. The resignation is now in the hands of President Harris of the board of education. Neither Mr. Harris nor Dr. Andrews will discuss the resignation and the contents of the letter have not been made public, but it is known that Dr. Andrews lays many of his misfortunes since his election in July, to President Harper of the Chicago University, who is a member of the board of education. President Harper had, it is said, engaged Dr. Andrews, who had resigned as president of Brown University, with the understanding that he should be the actual head of the educational system of Chicago.

The Bicycle Race.

New York, Dec. 6.—A crowd of five thousand people watched the beginning of the six days' bicycle race at Madison Square Garden at 12.05 Monday morning. At daylight fully two thousand persons were still there.

Waller is the wonder of the present race. He has broken tht first and only record up to the present time. He has covered more miles without once leaving the saddle or stopping for a moment than any other living man.

The record for continuous riding was held hitherto by Stephane, who went 272 miles last year without dismounting. Waller is now far ahead of that and after sixteen hours was still upon the track with a record of 312 miles.

The War Inquiry.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Colonel Lee, chief quartermaster at Capp Thomas, Chickamauga, testified before the war inquiry commission yesterday regarding the tentage facilities at Chickamauga. He insisted that the supply of all kinds of tents was fully adequate.

202d Sails for Cuba.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 6.—The transport Minnewaska, with the 202d New York regiment on board, sailed at noon yesterday for Pinar del Rio.

CONGRESS IN SESSION

Reception of the President's Long Message.

NEW MEMBERS SWORN IN

Crowd in the Galleries and a Good Attendance on the Floor. Scenes at the Opening. Gen. Wheeler Greeted With an Ovation in the House.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Congress convened promptly at noon yesterday. The galleries of both houses were crowded. There was a good attendance of senators and representatives.

In the Senate the galleries filled early, many of the spectators being visitors to Washington, who had embraced the opportunity to witness a congressional opening.

On the Senate floor the members' desks were loaded, as usual, with magnificent flowers. Chrysanthemums were the ruling variety.

Mr. Morgan, Democrat of Alabama, was the first senator to enter the chamber, and was closely followed by Mr. Morrill, Republican of Vermont, the oldest member of the body. The members then came in rapidly in twos and threes.

Above, in the diplomatic gallery, just before the Senate convened, appeared Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, Mr. Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister, and attaches of his legation and many other members of the diplomatic corps.

On the floor was Lord Herschel, the chief representative of Great Britain on the joint high commission, accompanied by Mr. T. Jefferson Coolidge of Massachusetts.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Richard Cartwright, Sir Louis Davies and Mr. C. Charlton, members of the commission, were also on the floor.

Promptly at twelve o'clock Vice President Hobart entered and rapped for order. The Rev. Mr. Milburn, the blind chaplain, offered prayer. He said:

"We pray that thy blessing may be with the queen regent of Spain and her young son, and on her nation. May thy heavenly grace come to secure and uplift and uphold that stricken people. Grant that all good may be given unto us, to our motherland, and to all nations; and may we walk hand in hand with our brethren across the sea to the heights of Christian civilization."

A call of the Senate showed the presence of sixty-seven members. The usual resolutions were offered and adopted.

Mr. Morrill, Republican of Vermont, offered that to appoint a committee to inform the president that the Senate was in session.

Mr. Hale, Republican of Maine, hat fixing the hour of daily meeting at 12 o'clock noon.

Mr. McBride, Republican of Oregon, presented the credentials of his newly elected colleague, Mr. Simon, Republican, to whom the vice president administered the oath of office.

Pending the receipt of the president's message, the Senate, on motion of Mr. Allison, Republican of Iowa, took a recess of thirty minutes.

At 1.25 p. m. the committee returned, and Major Pruden, executive clerk of the president, presented the message. Vice President Hobart laid it before the Senate at once, and its reading began at 1.28 p. m. The text of the message was given our readers last evening.

In the House.

Exactly at noon Speaker Reed called the House of Representatives to order. The floral decorations on the desks of members were as abundant as usual. The galleries were crowded fully an hour before the opening of the session, and the corridors were filled to overflowing by noon.

Even the private galleries were crowded an hour before the hour for convening. They contained many persons distinguished in social and official life.

The members began arriving just before eleven o'clock. For those who had been defeated in the November elections there were the usual expressions of sympathy; for those who had been victorious the usual words of congratulation.

Some of the members held regular levees as they appeared. This was markedly true of W. A. Stone, Republican of Pennsylvania, Mr. Sayers, Democrat of Texas, and Mr. McMillin, Democrat of Tennessee, each of whom was chosen governor of his respective state at the recent election.

Here and there through the throng was an officer in full uniform, an unwonted figure on the floor, and a vivid reminder of the war.

At 11.45 the floor was cleared of all those not entitled to the privilege. The leaders, as a rule, were late in arriving, but as they appeared they were surrounded and cordially greeted.

Mr. Hitt, Republican of Illinois, the chairman of the committee on foreign affairs; Mr. Dalzell, Republican of Pennsylvania, one of the members of the committee on rules, and Mr. Henderson, Republican of Iowa, of the same committee, were each given an ovation.

Mr. Dingley, Republican of Maine, the floor leader of the majority, and Mr. Bailey, Democrat of Texas, at present the minority leader, came in simultaneously from the lobbies of their respective sides.

Mr. Bailey went immediately to his seat, and Mr. Dingley, as soon as he could disengage himself from the friends who crowded about him, crossed over to the Democratic side and shook hands with Mr. Bailey.

As soon as the session was called to order the blind chaplain offered prayer. Just after the prayer General Wheeler Democrat of Alabama, came in, and took his seat in the row immediately in front of the speaker's rostrum. He was instantly surrounded by half a hundred members, and received the ovation of the day.

The roll call developed the presence of 267 members, 179 being a quorum. Three new members were sworn in.

Mr. Grosvenor, Republican of Ohio, presented Charles Dick, Republican, elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Northway; Mr. Allen, Democrat of Massachusetts, presented Thomas Spight, Democrat, elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Sullivan, who was elected to the Senate, and Mr. Grow, Republican of Pennsylvania, presented William H. Graham, elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Stone, recently elected governor of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Dingley offered the customary resolution for the appointment of a committee of three to join a similar committee of the Senate to wait upon the president and inform him that the House was ready to receive any communication he had to make.

It was unanimously adopted and the speaker appointed Messrs. Dingley, Cannon, Republican of Illinois, and Bailey, Democrat of Texas.

A resolution was also adopted informing the Senate that the House was ready to proceed to business.

The House then took a recess until 1.30 to await the arrival of the president's message.

When the House reconvened after the recess the committee appointed to wait upon the president reported and Major Pruden, the president's executive clerk, announced the message of the president.

the message was contained was broken by the speaker himself and it was immediately laid before the House.

The members on the floor and the spectators gave the reading their most earnest attention.

FARMER'S NATIONAL CONGRESS.

Its Eighteenth Annual Meeting to be Held in Fort Worth, Tex.

Fort Worth, Tex., Dec. 6.—The eighteenth annual Farmers' National Congress convenes here to-day. This congress has, according to Hon. William Hatch, for many years chairman of the house committee on agriculture, more influence with the Congress of the United States than all other agricultural bodies combined, the reason of this being because of the method of selecting delegates thereto and the fact that its findings and recommendations are non-partisan in nature.

The governors of the different states and territories have selected twelve thousand delegates to this meeting, comprising the flower of the Union's agricultural class.

JOHN M. STAHL.

The congress has a fine programme for discussion and the topics are assigned to prominent men.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson has signified his intention of being present. A. E. Stillwell, president of the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad, will be on hand, the assistant secretary of agriculture of Canada will address the congress, and Booker T. Washington, the smartest negro in America, will deliver an address on "The Industrial Education of the Negro."

Secretady John M. Stahl of Chicago has already arranged for an exhibition of farm machinery and of southern farm products, besides a rough riding and roping contest, in which Texas cowboys will take part.

Men of national reputation from all parts of the country will participate in the proceedings of the congress.

THE PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

Supposed Modification of Some of the Terms.

Paris, Dec. 6.—The American peace commissioners held a long conference yesterday morning, beginning at ten o'clock, and only had a brief recess for luncheon before going to the foreign office to meet the Spanish commissioners at three o'clock in the afternoon.

The Americans, it is supposed, have changed the form, if not the substance, of some of their demands, as a result of their deliberations during the last three days. Secretary Moore of the United States commission was engaged far into the night in revising the draft of the treaty of peace.

The American commissioners said it was possible, though improbable, that yesterday's joint session would settle all the open questions in substance, leaving only the wording of the treaty for discussion.

Rapid Work at Norfolk.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 6.—The dredging of the channel from Hampton Roads to the Norfolk navy yard was completed yesterday, seven months ahead of the contract time.

The channel is now thirty-one feet deep and 450 feet wide, permitting the largest vessels in the navy to come up for repairs.

The contractors had until June, 1899, to finish the dredging.

Thirty-three vessels of war are now here, 2,500 men are employed, and the monthly pay roll is $130,000. The mechanics have two thousand signatures to their petition for extra pay during the war rush for extra work, which will be presented to Secretary of the Navy Long.

A Gold Standard Bill.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 6.—Representative Cousins, Republican of owa, introduced the first bill in the House at this session of Congress.

It is entitled a bill "declaring the standard of value in the United States" and provides that the standard of value in the United States is hereby declared to be and is the standard gold dollar at twenty-five and twenty-eight grains of standard gold, nine hundred fine.

CODY BLACKMAIL TRIAL

Evidence Shows This Woman to Have Led a Conspiracy.

NICHOLS' TESTIMONY CUTS

Defendant in the Gould Blackmail Trial Cross-examined. Prosecution Introduced Church Records Which It Is Claimed Were Tamperd with. She is Quite Nervous.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 6.—There was a crowded court room yesterday at the resumption of the trial of Mrs. Margaret E. Cody on the charge of blackmailing the heirs of the late Jay Gould.

Miss Helen Gould occupied a front seat in the witness section, and took frequent notes.

Mrs. Cody, who collapsed on the stand Friday, appeared to be weak and nervous when she entered the court room yesterday.

De Lancey Nicoll resumed the cross examination. It came out that the thirteen missing letters which passed between Mrs. Cody and Mrs. Pierce were in the prosecution's possession. They were read and Mrs. Cody was asked to explain certain statements they contained.

She persisted in her former declaration that she had not known until she reached Rouse's Point, that the name of Mrs. Pierce's mother was Angell.

Mrs. Cody accounted for her search into the church records at Champlain and at Coopersville by saying they were undertaken to procure, if possible, a copy of Mrs. Pierce's certificate of birth. The priest of the parish accompanied her to Coopersville for a record of the baptism of one Mary Jane Brown, daughter of Jay Gould and Mary Brown, who were married May 16, 1853; and for a record of the marriage. The priest said he was unable to find anything of the sort.

When the parish records were handed over by Father Constantine to Lawyer Nicoll, the latter, showing the page containing the record of the baptism of Mary J. Brown, daughter of Marie Brown and Jay Gould, asked the defendant if she recalled having seen it before.

She said she did not, but that Father Charbeneau afterward told her he had found the baptismal entry.

She told him that she was more interestid at that time in finding a record of the marriage.

An examination of the birth entry as it appears in the parish book of records, produced at the trial, discloses that the entry is made with darker ink than the other entries on the same page and indicated attempts at erasure.

The prosecution contend that this birth entry was fictitious.

Evidence was put in all through the morning to indicate that Mrs. Cody had been the head of the conspiracy and had actively carried out plans to perfect the alleged claim against the estate.

Letters were produced indicating that she agreed to give a large reward to Mrs. Eckford for testifying to the alleged marriage, and that a sum of two thousand dollars was promised the priest who furnished the copy of the baptismal certificate.

A Severe Storm.

New York, Dec. 6.—Reports from many points in the eastern and middle states show that the storm which visited this locality Sunday night was very severe, doing even more damage than that of the previous week.

In many places the wind attained the proportions of a hurricane, buildings were unroofed or demolished, chimneys wrecked and telephone and telegraph lines blown down.

Throughout western New York, Ohio and Indiana heavy snow falls are reported.

A young woman was killed in Jersey City by the blowing down of a fence in the storm. Two houses were demolished and the roof of one of the City Hospital wards torn off.

All the incoming steamers from the south and east report having encountered unusually stormy weather while at sea. Some of them which were off the Hook say that smaller craft which they found there were forced to seek deep water and thus escape being blown ashore.

Spanish Warships Will Soon Leave.

Havana, Dec. 6.—The admiralty officials have announced that the Spanish war vessels will sail hence in the following order:

The cruisers Alfonso XII, Infanta Isabel and Conde de Venadito will leave on December 11 and will go direct to Spain; the transport Rapido, with the transport Filipinos in tow, the torpedo boat Vincento Yanes Pinzon and the cruisers Hernan Cortes and Conde de Ensenada will sail on December 18 and proceed for Martinique, and the transport Meteoro, carrying Admiral Manterola and his staff, and the cruisers Diego Velasquez and Marquis de Molina, will depart on December 25, and will also go to Martinique.

Thence the fleet will proceed for Spain, going by way of the Cape Verde islands.

In Favor of the Colleges.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 6.—In the matter of the petition of Emma S. Fayerweather for a writ of mandamus and a restraining order to be directed to the circuit court of the southern district of New York, the United States supreme court has refused to make the order.

The case involves the bequests of the late William G. Fayerweather to a number of educational institutions. The opinion is in the interest of the colleges.

Railroad Official Dead.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 6.—R. B. F. Pierce, general manager of the Indiana, Decatur and Western Railroad, died suddenly while reading the papers on Monday morning.

He resigned the receivership of the Clover Leaf Railroad a few days ago because of ill health.

Mr. Pierce was an ex-member of Congress and prominent in Indiana politics.

Primary Reform.

Inasmuch as the Republicans of Plainfield have been trying a new system of conducting primaries originated by Assemblyman Murray, the plan for primary reform designed by George L. Record, of Jersey City, is of contemporaneous interest in this city. In some reperts it resembles the ideas of Mr. Murray, but it is much more sweeping and general in its details.

Mr. Record's plan does away with the party primaries and conventions, and provides for a joint primary of all political parties, to be held on the first registry day, and to be conducted by the regular registry officers during all the hours of registry, with the voting booths, ballot-boxes and official ballots exactly as on election day.

The details of the plan are as follows: Any person can have his name printed upon the official primary ballot of the political party to which he belongs, by causing a petition to that effect, signed by fifty voters belonging to said party, to be filed with the City Clerk. The City Clerk, from all of such petitions, so filed in his office, makes up and prints the official primary ballot of each political party, arranging the names of candidates in alphabetical order. The said clerk sends these official ballots to the different registry boards on the morning of the first registry day. The voter goes to the place of registry, has his name entered upon the registry list, announces his party affiliations, obtains from the registry board the official ballot of his political party, enters the voting booth, indicates by a cross upon the official ballot the persons for whom he wishes to cast his vote, deposits his ballot so marked in the regular ballot box, and departs. He has registered and he has participated in the primary of his party. At night the registry board counts the votes of all parties and certifies the result to the City Clerk, who from such returns ascertains which candidates in each party have received a plurality or a majority of the votes cast, and the persons so elected become the regular candidates of their respective political parties at the ensuing election.

The County Trolley Safe.

Those citizens of Union county who could see no good in the Bergen county trolley scheme have had all their fond hopes dashed to pieces by the Supreme Court of New Jersey, which yesterday, in a decision rendered, declared the Squire law, in which the ideas of Mr. Bergen found legal form, to be perfectly constitutional. All the technical points raised by the objectors in their plea for a certiorari proceeding have been dismissed by the learned junges, who give plain, straight-forward opinions forsuch action. The interesting parts of the opinion are given in the news columns of The Daily Press today.

As one of the towns that is directly to be benefitted or damaged, whichever it may be as decided by future developments of the project proposed under the law, the decision is of great importance to Plainfield. Coming at this time, when an application is pending before the Common Council for a trolley franchise for a company of capitalists whose interests are jeopardized by the existence of this law—which, by the way, has encountered their strongest opposition at every point—the decision obtains special significance for this city.

Many well-meaning citizens of Plainfield have urged in strong terms the granting of great concessions to the Plainfield Street Railway Company in the efforts to get an eastern trolley outlet on the plea that it was only through the local company that Plainfield could ever hope to secure the benefits of an electric street railway in the direction of Elizabeth. This stand was based on the rather confident assumption that the Bergen scheme would fail of success when brought into the courts. The Supreme court action, therefore, puts this class of citizens hors de combat, so to speak.

The decision should have a healthy affect upon the Common Council in dealing with the Plainfield Street Railway Company. The action of the court assures that, unless great unforeseen obstacles arise, that Plainfield will secure the benefits of an eastern extension through Mr. Kean's road, and in such an event there will be no need of the rights of the city being sacrificed to the capitalists behind the street railway company.

Superior News Service.

Once again has The Daily Press demonstrated its superiority over any other Plainfield newspaper in presenting the news of the day. Not in many years has a President's message been watched for with more eagerness than was the case in the annual State paper sent to Congress yesterday by Mr. McKinley.

Through the reliable and enterprising methods of the news association serving The Daily Press we were able to present to our readers the full text of this document almost as early as the members of Congress themselves heard it. The message was read to Congress at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and before 3 o'clock The Daily Press was selling on the streets with the complete message in its columns. The Daily Press was not "beat" by any other newspaper on earth yesterday in printing this document.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

This hostility to the "New Yorkers" is cropping out in Plainfield just now, where a local campaign closes tomorrow. If the people of Plainfield do not appreciate what has been done for the town by the commuters outsiders are not ignorant of it. Indeed, "The New Brunswick Home News" says that it knows of "no town in New Jersey that has prospered more by a result of the favor of that valuable class of citizens known as commuters than Plainfield, where the bulk of the taxes are paid by men whose business takes them to New York every day." That paper goes on to say that "Plainfield cannot afford to freeze out its commuters. Their lavish expenditure of money in making fine streets and erecting costly and handsome residences has helped more than anything else to give the town the name of one of the prettiest cities in New Jersey."—New York Tribune.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A Bridgeton man, while chasing rabbits on a farm, was met by the landed proprietor, who said he would give the hunter just three minutes to get himself and dog off the place. Immediately the gunner started to leave, when he was surprised to hear a gunshot, and turning around found his valuable bird dog full of bird shot. The gunner's first impulse was to shoot the farmer, but on second thought he put his gun down and walked to the house, called the farmer out and everlastingly thrashed him. When the gunner reached Bridgeton he found that his dog had forty-eight No. 6 shot in his body. Two of them had gone partly through the dog's tongue. The animal is probably ruined.

Mr. Wolf, brother of John Wolf, of Rose Hill Farm, has just returned from the Klondike, for a visit. He reports having had a good time, and says that he expects to return to the gold fields. He brought some of the Klondike gold home with him.

Mrs. Wm. A. Woodruff, agent for the Organized Aid Association, went to New York yesterday, taking with her Viola Haggerty, of the borough. THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Manager Maze Edwards, of Music Hall, is in receipt of a letter from Daniel Froman, regarding the appearance here next Saturday night of James K. Hackeit and the New York Lyceum Theatre in the new play, "Rupert, of Hentzau," in which he says: "We are going to give you one of the most superb productions on the road, requiring a large number of supers, musicians, six complete sets of scenery and a carload of costumes."

* * * * *

For a single performance only, next Saturday evening, Daniel Frohman will present his brilliant star, James K. Hackett, at Music Hall in "Rupert of Hentzau." Mr. Hackett and company are appearing in Philadelphia at present, having made the first production on any stage of "Rupert" in that city on November 21st. This drama is by Anthony Hope from whose pen came also "The Prisoner of Zenda," "The Adventure of Lady Ursula" and other successes, and from all accounts it is one of the strongest, if not the strongest play which this noted writer and playwright has yet written. Daniel Frohman, who is directing Mr. Hackett's tour, has left nothing undone to make the production successful. A magnificent company of twenty-six people a carload of scenery, costumes and general effects and a star who is famous for his portrayals of romantic parts truly form a combination hard to excel. Mr. Hackett has admirable natural qualifications for the dual part of King Rudolph V of Ruritania and Rudolph Rassendyll, the English Pretender to the throne Tall, broad-shouldered, graceful, with a handsome face and a robust voice, he is the ideal ruler of Zenda, where most of the scenes of the play are laid.

The surprising and the unexpected are always happening at the Proctor houses, New York. The most important debuts, the greatest novelties are constantly being given, and yet Mr. Proctor is always able to go himself one better by announcing for a future date something more astounding still. The latest, and perhaps the most important announcement up to date, is that Marshal P. Wilder, the despair of vaudeville managers who have long sought his services, has at length succumbed and will enter vaudeville at Proctor's Twenty third Street Theatre tonight. And this is not the only debut of importance, for the same day Burr McIntosh, the actor-war correspondent, and the best delimeator on the stage, of the robust Southern gentleman will make his first bow to a vaudeville audience.

* * * *

The Washburn Minstrels appeared at Music Hall last night before an audience that fill the house to its utmost capacity and gave one of the best performances that has ever been witnessed in this city. The programme was one of greatest pleasure —perfect in every detail, appleauded in deserving manner. Mr. Washburn is to be congratulated upon the excellence of his organization, which is now one of the best extant.

—The McAll Auxiliary will hold its regular meeting in the Public Library tomorrow morning.

—It is stated on authority that there will be no change in the running time of the trolley cars on the Brunswick Traction Company lines before next spring.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 6—The Plainfield trolley cars had quite an experience again with Bound Brook power yesterday morning. The power that runs the cars past the borough line on to Bound Brook comes from the electric light plant at that place. Yesterday morning it suddenly gave out before one of the Plainfield cars had left the borough, and the car was stalled on the track. It waited there until the next car came up, but that couldn't help it any, so a team of horses were procured and they were hitched to the car and drew it along until it had crossed the borough line, when it took the current again. It was about two hours before the cars on the Bound Brook route could run.

The members of the Presbyterian church have decided to have the spire on their church straightened, so Saturday a workman was secured who agreed to do the job. He purchased his lumber from Alvah Gray, and after raising the lumber to the roof, began to manufacture a ladder to take him to the top. He placed uprights against the sides of the tower, and nailed on the cross pieces as he went up. The ladder was not braced, it appeared, for Sunday during the heavy wind it was blown down, and now lies on the ground.

In the contest for the handsome silver chalice between Rev. Father Bogaard, pastor of St. John's church, of the borough, and Rev. Father Laurence, of Bound Brook, at Somerville, Father Bogaard was declared the winner. Those of the borough who raised money for him were Miss Maggie Gallagher, Owen Mohan and Michael Moynihan.

There was such a small attendance at the union temperance meeting in the Methodist church Sunday evening, that the service was postponed for another week. This is the second time that the service has been postponed.

Several members of William G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., went to Plainfield Sunday night to attend the patriotic service in Washington Hall.

The wind Sunday blew down some of the electric light poles at Green brook, and broke several wires. The lights, therefore, did not all burn.

The Woman's Aid Society, of the Methodist church, will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Huffman.

William H. Cole's fence and back gates to his coal and lumber yard, blew down during the gale Sunday.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, Dec. 6—During the high wind Sunday, Mr. Tabb's large barn was nearly demolished by the gale One side of the structure was blown in, and the whole building will have to be rebuilt. The house, too, was shaken to its foundations, and the people inside expected every moment that it would go over, fortunately no one was hurt. A barn on Edward Schenck's place also suffered from the gale, and several chimneys here and in Dunellen were blown over.

Rev. Frank Fletcher attended the one hundred anniversary of the Baptist church in Nannet, Rockland county, Sunday, and made an address.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, December 6—During the heavy storm Sunday evening a new barn which William Miller is having built on the road to Springfield was blown over and completely wrecked. Several months ago all the barns on the Miller property were burned down and Mr. Miller, who is a breeder of fine horses, decided to build one large barn. The building was 104 by 50 and 46 feet high and was completed with the exception of part of the roof which the men were putting on. Although the barn is only 200 feet from the house no one there heard it when it fell. Mr. Miller puts his loss at about $2 000. Men went to work this morning to clear up the wreck so that the carpenters can start building again.

About 10 o'clock Sunday evening when the wind and rain storm was at its worst the house owned and occupied by Henry Holmes at Branch Mills, caught fire and although the neighbors turned out and helped to fight the flames the house was burned to the ground, together with all the furniture. Mr. Holmes succeeded in saving some of the wearing appeal. The loss is about $1 200 The fire is supposed to have started from a defective flue.

YOU'RE READING THIS?

CERTAINLY!

Well, Mr. Merchant-who-thinks-of-advertising, this is only one of the many corners in THE DAILY PRESS—it isn't the best located one, either; we can give you better—and if this attracts your attention in our endeavor to tell you how good advertising will get you a hearing before the purchasing public, doesn't common sense teach you that if you were having people reading your trade story instead of you're reading our argument about it, that it would be better for your business.

THE DAILY PRESS reaches the purchasing public that makes the profits for the merchant.

We can give you big or little space—but in advertising it is'nt always economy to be sparing in your appropriation.

CRUSADE OF SIX AMERICAN GIRLS.

The MacGowan Sisters Trying to Abolish Foot Binding in China.

A strong effort is being made to abolish foot binding in China. The leaders of the movement, says the Baltimore Sun, are the six daughters of an American missionary, James MacGowan.

The crushing of the Chinese girl's foot begins in babyhood. As soon as she begins to walk the foot is bound up, and it is kept in bandages, in spite of the pain to the victim, until it ceases to grow. Then the bandages are removed, and the woman is left, not to live her life, but to stumble through it. If she lives to be a hundred years old every step is a pain.

These American girls have started their reform in the school where they teach. Every Chinese girl who comes into the school is asked to sign a pledge never to let her feet be bound. It takes a great deal of talk to turn the average Chinese girl against foot binding, which she has been taught to believe makes her a superior being. She asks: "What matters a little pain or inconvenience or even a great deal when, by undergoing it, a girl can possess the smallest feet in her village and be considered an ideal beauty?" And her question shows that woman's nature is the same the world over and that it will out.

However, "no pledge, no education" seems to be the motto of the MacGowan sisters. If a girl refuses to sign this pledge she may not enter the school, and this is a disgrace as well as a disappointment, for Chinese children are beginning to show a decided eagerness for American learning, as they call it. When once the Chinese girl signs this pledge, and refrains from foot binding, she becomes a strong convert, for she soon sees for herself how much better off she is than her crippled sister. After a girl is converted she is made a missionary, and has it drilled into her that the highest ambition of her life should be to teach others that foot binding should be stamped out with all the force of the feet that have been set free and are as nature intended them to be.

The MacGowan girls have formed what is known as the Anti-Foot Binding Society, and all the converts who show a desire to work against foot binding are enrolled as members and rank in the society according to their enthusiasm. Some go to neighboring villages to preach the gospel of natural sized feet; others go from house to house spreading the new gospel and urging Chinese mothers of girls to refrain from crippling their little ones. If these from-house-to-house canvassers find any children whose feet are undergoing the crushing process they reason with the parents, show them the evil of it and do all in their power to get them to unwind the bandages. If they refuse the missionaries call again and again, with the persistence of a ward politician. If they yield and the children's feet are freed parents and children are urged to join the Anti-Foot Binding Society and become missionaries in their turn.

The latest plan of the MacGowan sisters is to attack the evil at its root, by bringing the question before the Chinese Court, and seeking to obtain royal support, and, if possible, a royal decree making foot binding an offence. Others have tried to do this and failed, but these plucky American girls believe they will succeed.

TINY STANDS, BIG RENT.

It Costs a Large Sum of Money to Sell Cigars in Hotels.

In all likelihood not one man in five hundred who buys his cigars at the little two-by-four stand in the lobby of some first-class Chicago hotel has the faintest idea of the rent that the dealer pays for the privilege.

A man who had no conception of the business done, if asked to name a probable figure, might guess anywhere from $300 to $1,000. The fact is that the rents range from $5,000 to $12,000, and in New York there are two stands in hotel lobbies that pay a rental of $15,000 a year.

It would seem that selling smokes in the lobby of a hotel was an expensive luxury. According to some of the largest tobacconists in the city there is little margin in $12,000 yearly.

At the Auditorium there are four stands owned by one man, who pays probably, close to $10,000. The Palmer House receives, perhaps, $8,000 to $9,000, and the other hotels other amounts down to $5,000, the lowest figure accepted by any of the best hotels.

These stands do a business that ranges from $100 to perhaps, at the outside, $300 a day. When help, shortage and one sort of expense and another is considered, it is apparent that there is no vast profit in hotel cigar stands with the tobacco market in its present condition.—Chicago Journal.

His Victim's Revenge.

Over in the old North State Bill Spurlin shot Mart Benson. When he saw that Mart was "going" he said:

"Mart, old boy, I'm sorry I done it. Fergive me!"

"All right, Bill," said Mart; "jest take keer o' my family!"

"Good Lord!" groaned Bill, as he went in search of the Coroner. "He got even with me anyhow—thar's sixteen in his durned family!"—Atlanta Constitution.

"Have you followed my argument thus far?" inquired the gentleman who was short on ideas and long on words, according to the Washington Star: "Yes," replied his impatient friend. "But I tell you candidly I'd quit its company right here if I thought I could find my way back."

CARLYLE'S RUDENESS.

He Evidently Had no Regard for Anyone's Feelings.

Carlyle suffered from dyspepsia and disappointment. He was, therefore, neither oversympathetic in intercourse with his friends nor fair in his estimation of other writers. Though he personally liked Tennyson he spoke with impatience of his "cobbling his odes;" dismissed Jane Austin's novels as "dish-washings;" Hallam, the historian, as "dry, as dust;" and Goldsmith as an "Irish blackguard."

Even the writers of editorials in the press were saluted with this hard saying: "What are these fellows doing? They only serve to cancel one another."

A characteristic anecdote illustrates his cruel disposition, which provoked him to inflict pain even on a friend.

An artist who frequented Carlyle's house painted a picture of him in his dressing gown, smoking a pipe by the fireside, and Mrs. Carlyle in an armchair sitting opposite him. The picture was hung at one of the Royal Academy's exhibitions, and, though not a striking work of art, was purchased by Lord Ashburton, Carlyle's friend, for £500.

The delighted artist hurried off to the Carlyles, expecting congratulations on the sale and some manifestations of pleasure on their part at having such a value set on a picture of themselves and their domestic interior. He delivered the glad tidings, but all the response he received from Carlyle was: "Well in my opinion £500 was just £495 too much."—Youth's Companion.

THE PROLIFIC LIFE OF ALASKA.

Not Entirely the Desolate Region We Have Imagined.

John Muir, who has summered and wintered the Alaskan lands, towards which all men's eyes and many men's feet are now turning, says in the Atlantic Monthly: Nowhere on my travels so far have I seen so much warm-blooded rejoicing life as in this grand Arctic reservation by so many regarded as desolate. Not only are there whales in abundance along the shores, and innumerable seals, walruses and white bears, but great herds of fat reindeer on the tundras, and wild sheep, foxes, hares, lemmings, whistling marmots and birds. Perhaps more birds are born here than in any other region of equal extent on the continent. Not only do strong-winged hawks, eagles and waterfowls, to whom the length of the continent is only a pleasant excursion, come up here every summer in great numbers, but also many short-winged warblers, thrushes and finches, to rear their young in safety, reinforce the plant bloom with their plumage, and sweeten the wilderness with song, flying all the way, some of them from Florida, Mexico and Central America.

One of the Kaiser's Jokes.

There are many good anecdotes about the German Emperor, and it must be owned that they all prove the Kaiser to have no small amount of humor. The following, which comes from Herr Ehlers, the traveler, is smarter than most. The Emperor and Ehlers were college chums from Bonn, and the Emperor never forgot his old fellow student. At Bonn, on special occasions, the different corps used to drink to one another, and the following set form was always used: The president of the Palatio corps raises his glass, saying: "I have the great honor and pleasure to empty my glass in drinking to the corps of Borussia!" The president of the latter corps then replies: "The corps thanks and drinks." On the birth of one of the sons of the Emperor Ehlers telegraphed him: "I have the great honor and pleasure to empty my glass in drinking to the youngest Hohenzollern." The Emperor promptly wired back: "The youngest Hohenzollern thanks and drinks."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Need of Cover During Sleep.

The reason that it is necessary to be well covered while sleeping is that when the body lies down it is the intention of nature that it should rest, and the heart especially should be relieved of its regular work temporarily. So that organ makes ten strokes a minute less than when the body is in an upright posture. This means 600 strokes in sixty minutes. Therefore, in the eight hours that a man usually spends in taking his night's rest the heart is saved nearly 5000 strokes. As it pumps 6 ounces of blood with each stroke, it lifts 30,000 ounces less of blood in this night session than it would during the day, when a man is usually in an upright position. Now, the body is dependent for its warmth on the vigor of the circulation, and as the blood flows so much more slowly through the veins when one is lying down the warmth lost in the reduced circulation must be supplied by extra coverings.

Dean Liddell and Thackeray.

Thackeray and the late Dean Liddell were boys together at the famous Charterhouse school, and they sat next to each other in the form, the boys of which were called the "Emeriti." No one was promoted from this form who could not repeat from memory the Eclogues and the Georgics. This feat was accomplished by Liddell, but not by Thackeray. In giving these reminiscences some years ago at the speech day of the Oxford Boys' High School, Dr. Liddell added that Thackeray accused him later of having been the Lobbin who wrote his Latin verses for him, an impeachment the Dean would not own, though he admitted that Thackeray could not have written them himself.—New York Tribune.

Wiblingen. Hier machte der Posterpeditor M. in Folge momentaner Geistesstörung einen Selbstmordversuch. Er begab sich in eine Wirthschaft und schrieb dort einen Brief an seine Frau, worin er von ihr Abschied nahm. Hierauf ging er nach der Illerbrücke und sprang über das Geländer in die Tiefe, fiel aber auf die großen, als Uferschutz dienenden Steine und verletzte sich die Hirnschale derart, daß das Gehirn herausdrang. Bewußtlos wurde er in seine Wohnung getragen.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Straßburg. Der Tabakbau in Elsaß-Lothringen, der seit 1894 eine gewisse Zunahme erfahren hatte, ist im laufenden Jahre wieder etwas gegen das Vorjahr zurückgeblieben. Die Zahl der tabakbauenden Gemeinden betrug 482 (gegen 507 im Vorjahre), die der Tabakpflanzer 10,468 (gegen 12,369). Der Tabakbau wurde 1898 auf 15,030 Grundstücken mit einem Flächeninhalt von zusammen 124,761 Ar betrieben, während 1897 18,823 Grundstücke mit einem Flächeninhalt von 164,865 Ar mit Tabak bepflanzt wurden.

Metz. Dieser Tage hat an der Reichsgrenze auf der Zollstraße nach Raon-sur-Plaine eine eigenartige Auslieferung stattgefunden: es erfolgte die Uebergabe des deutschen Militärdienstpferdes, auf dem der Husar Joseph Oswald vom Straßburger Husaren-Regiment nach Frankreich desertirt war. Zur Rückgabe hatten sich zwei französische berittene Gendarmen mit einem Lieutenant der Zollverwaltung mit dem Dienstpferd, das kein Zaum- und Sattelzeug führte, eingefunden. Auf deutscher Seite nahmen höhere Zollbeamte und Gendarmerie das Pferd in Empfang—den Retter sah man nicht wieder.

BISHOP A TRAMP.

HOW A CLERGYMAN PUT IN TWO WEEKS AS A "WEARY WILLIE."

Had Many Adventures—One Time a Hotel Keeper Refused a Night's Lodging and Another Time He Was Taken for a Government Inspector by Moonshiners.

For years the venerable Episcopal bishop of Delaware, Right Rev. Leighton Coleman, has aimed to put in a portion of his summer vacation in getting close down to the people.

For two weeks in September he was lost to the world, and in the guise of an aged tramp "hot-footed it," as the hoboes have it. Two hundred and thirty-five miles he traversed at an average rate of something more than twenty-two miles a day, and once registered the record of twenty-six.

Travel with him a few days and you will see more of real life as it is lived by the common people than you will see pictured in books or lived in the crowded cities. Night comes on and he turns in at a farmer's gate and askes for a place to sleep. There was room for him that first night out from the comforts of Bishopstead, as his home is called, and he found a welcome among those he had never known before. Supper of corn bread and salt pork and good fresh butter and home made bread, and then a clean straw tick to sleep on. Morning came and with it breakfast.

Trudging on in the dust he stopped frequently during the morning to talk with laborers in the field. Sometimes they took kindly to his dignified manner and venerable appearance, sometimes not. Night came again and clouds lowered. Tired, and fearing rain, the old man hurried to a country tavern. The landlord was locking up for the night. He surveyed the stranger at a glance and then spoke up abruptly:

"No'p, chuck full t'night."

"Can't I sleep on the floor," asked the tramp. "I've traveled since early morning and I'm tired out."

"Fraid not," and that settled the discussion.

Then he sought a near by farmhouse. The lights were out; the farmer and his household doubtless were asleep, but the dogs on guard certainly were not. They met him at the gate and the tramp bishop was running down the road as fast as his legs could carry him.

Another night followed a day of varied experiences. A farmer kindly gave him entrance to a hay loft, and there he passed the night.

A woodman's hut came in his path another day, and the tramp spent the night in the same room with a number of children, for there was, in fact, but two rooms in the house. As he was eating dinner at a farmhouse miles down the road the following day the bishop noticed an old-fashioned clock on the mantelpiece, and was told that it had not been running for years. Every member of the family gathered around him on the back porch while he took the wheels apart and set the works together again so that they would do the work for which they were made.

So the day went by and the clothes from the attic at Bishopstead grew older and dustier and more ragged. Before it had not been so easy to disguise the kindly bearing and the betraying signs of education, but in the last of those eventful ten and a half days the bishop declared that few of the persons whom he met thought of him as other than a poor unfortunate.

Perhaps his most dangerous experience was while tramping in the mountains. Unexpectedly for both parties concerned, he came out upon a company of moonshiners. They suspected him as a revenue officer in disguise and threatened personal violence, but the bishop's story got him away in safety. At other times there was wood to chop for meals, and chores to do for a night's lodging. By performing whatever work was suggested in these cases Bishop Coleman won his way to the hearts of the mountaineers and the farm people, and likewise have shattered the traditions which have for years hovered about the undisturbed heads of professional tramps.

Asked to tell the chief impressions of these common people he had brought back from the country with him, he replied:

"Oxlike patience. A wonderful contentment with hard conditions. No soft beds, no tempting food, no carpets, no love or comprehension of the beautiful, no comfort and yet with it all a kind of happiness."

At home Bishop Coleman is fairly worshiped, not only by his immediate parishioners, but by the members of the surrounding parishes and townspeople generally. He has a kind word always for everyone, and his tireless energy is remarkable. His home and grounds look like a bit of old England. Back to Bishopstead, his mansion, the trees stand thick to the shore of Brandywine. The mansion is full of rare paintings, quaint old clocks and bric-a-brac, and there are whole roomsful of books. Everything breathes an artistic and beautiful atmosphere. There is no vanity in his nature. He works because he loves to work, and he makes people happy without knowing that he is doing it, and he is happy because they seem to be pleased. He takes those annual rambles simply because he loves to be with nature, and he wears the garb of a tramp, as he says, because "people are apt to play a part in the presence of a clergyman."

Anyway his queer wanderings make him all the dearer to his friends, and while they fear to see him go away, they were more than willing to flock around him on his return to hear the detailed account of his journey.—Chicago Times-Hearld.

ONE ON GENERAL WHEELER.

A Good Joke of a Country School Boy at His Expense.

"You can't most always swear to the stories you hear," remarked the Philadelphia drummer, "and I am not swearing to the one I heard the other day on General Joe Wheeler in Alabama, but it is just as good as if I did swear to it, so what's the difference? It seems that once the general, whom you all know is only a boy's size, and not a big boy at that, had, in the course of his travels on one of his electioneering tours, brought up in a remote school house, where, of course, he was called upon to make a few remarks to the scholars. This he did in his best style, and when he had finished he stood by the teacher while that worthy said a few thins, among them that time-worn suggestion to the effect that when the boys of the school grew up they, too, might be congressmen, like General Wheeler, such are the wonderful possibilities of this great and glorious country of ours.

"At this point a long, good-natured, gangling gawk of a boy, about fourteen years old and about fourteen feet tall, stuck up his hand, grinning sheepishly the meanwhile.

"'Me, too?' he inquired.

"'Certainly, Henry,' replied the teacher assuringly, 'just as much as any other boy.'

"'I reckon not,' insisted the boy. 'I reckon I'll have to ungrow ef I ever run on that there ticket,' nodding toward the general in a way that brought down the house, amidst the embarrassment of the teacher and the great delight of the general."

Court Etiquette a Puzzle.

A young woman of reputation as a singer, who was commanded to appear before her Majesty at Balmoral on the occasion of her last visit to Deeside, suffered in her feelings from an ignorance of court etiquette which might easily have been remedied.

The singer, escorted by the ladies in waiting and an usher, descended to an ante-room, where presently Prince Henry of Battenburg informed them that her Majesty was seated, and then all proceeded to the drawing room, where the Queen sat in the center, nearly fifty guests standing around near the walls.

After making obeisance, the artist sung the songs selected by her Majesty from a list. They were all Scotch songs, and evidently afforded great pleasure. Tea and champagne were offered to the singer, and then an attendant handed the Queen a morocco box, and the artist took advantage of the small commotion thus caused and retired, bowing. This was a mistake, as the Queen's secretary, who had followed her to the ante-room informed her. She should have waited until royal permission had been given for her to leave the room. The dowager Duchess Roxburgh afterward brought her a handsome bracelet—a present from the Queen, which had been contained in the morocco box, and which had been intended to be presented by her Majesty in the drawing room—Chicago Record.

WIT AND HUMOR.

"I feel like a store with a bargain sale," groaned Tommy, as he approached from the direction of the pantry, the immediate surroundings of his mouth being a suspicious dark red.

"And is it for this we have been fighting?" he asked.

BEATRIX HARCOURT.

"Whom do you think I saw driving with Gerald Morton this morning?" asked Mrs. Morris of her great friend, the doctor's wife, as the two ladies were enjoying 5 o'clock tea and the general gossip of the parish together one afternoon.

"Beatrix Harcourt," Mrs. Maynard answered promptly.

"Ah, you saw her, too, then. I must say I was astonished. It is well known that young Morton bears the character of being the fastest man in the neighborhood."

"I have long ceased to be surprised at anything Beatrix Harcourt does," the other lady answered significantly. "If Mr. Kenrick does not mind, I do not see why any one else should trouble their heads about her eccentricities."

"Certainly not," Mrs. Morris agreed. "But, really, Rose, she was laughing and talking in the most giddy manner, and Gerald was bending toward her until his face nearly touched hers."

"And that is our future vicar's wife! Well, I shall take care my daughters do not see much of her." And Mrs. Maynard drew herself up with a kind of lofty indignation, as some fresh visitors were shown into the room.

Poor Beatrix! Her numerous delinquencies were the subject of many afternoon tea gossips, and had been ever since she came to Hillchester, four years ago. She certainly was unlike other girls; for, in addition to being a "blue stocking," and having taken her degree at Oxford, she had a most unreasonable interest in the working classes—not a mere ladylike interest, which contented itself with calling at their cottages with a few words of good advice and a tract. Ah, no! she had always some plan, or "craze," as the good people of Hillchester called it, for their benefit on hand—classes for the young girls, ambulance lectures, concerts, teas, what not?

For the conventionalities of society she cared not at all. She never attended the afternoon teas, therefore she heard no gossip.

She had been known even to take the broom off the lame old crossing sweeper at the corner of the road and work away in earnest until there was a passage fit for a queen to walk over.

And in spite of all, the vicar of Hillchester had asked Beatrix Harcourt to be his wife. Well, as the leaders of society in Hillchester remarked with ominous sighs, wonders never cease!

Nevertheless, it must be confessed that Rev. John Kenrick was in no very enviable frame of mind, as a week later he wended his way somewhat slowly toward his lady love's abode.

The gossip which had begun in Mrs. Maynard's drawing room had spread all over the parish, until a version of it, highly exaggerated and colored, had reached the vicar's ears.

Beatrix was leaning over the drive gate which led to her father's house, watching for him as usual, and as he saw the glad look of welcome brighten and sweeten all her face at his approach, he said to himself that his darling was as pure and sweet as the wild roses she fastened in her belt.

But Beatrix soon discovered that something was amiss, and after the first greetings were over she asked, almost anxiously, "What is the matter, John? You do not look well."

For a full minute Mr. Kenrick did not answer; instead he looked down at her as she stood with one small hand resting upon his black coat sleeve; the sunlight falling with loving touch upon her hair, which was cut short (another point which met with the disfavor of the Hillchester matrons), and curled naturally all over her head like a child's. Her lover sometimes laughingly told her that she had a baby face still, and he was not far wrong, for her expression was singularly untroubled and childlike, and yet there was a depth of feeling in the honest blue eyes which told both of strength of character and purpose.

"Trix, it is silly, perhaps, but something I have heard to-day has troubled me greatly."

"About me?" Trix asked gayly. "Of what fresh enormity am I accused, John?" and a sudden gravity crept into the sweet voice; "I thought you said you minded none of these things?"

"I do not," the vicar answered quickly; "indeed," gently stroking the soft, yet strong looking hand, "I love you all the better for them, but—it is better to speak out. Trix, have you been driving about with Gerald Morton lately?"

The next moment Mr. Kenrick would have given much never to have asked the question, for Trix turned to him quickly, a world of scorn shining in her blue eyes.

"And so, John, this means that you cannot trust me, and you choose rather to believe any idle story people may tell."

"Tell me there is no truth in it, Trix," Mr. Kendrick said quietly, though his eyes had clouded with a deep look of pain beneath her implied rebuke, "and I promise you I will believe it."

But Beatrix had removed her hand, and all the sunshine had died out of her bonny face as she said wearily: "Mr. Morton has driven me over to Castlefields twice this week. Is there anything else you want to ask me?"

No, there was nothing else. Mr. Kenrick felt it was almost sacrilege with those pure eyes looking into his to breathe the doubts which now seemed to him so unworthy.

But, alas! for the "little rift." Beatrix tried to talk of other things, tried hard to be her own, bright, merry self, and yet was conscious of an unwonted sense of absolute grief, when at last the vicar told her he was obliged to go.

It was a month later, and Beatrix Harcourt was walking swiftly along the dusty road leading to Castlefields, carrying a small basket containing some delicacy for the sick woman she was going to see. The sound of wheels made her turn her head, and the next moment a deep, musical voice said pleasantly: "Miss Harcourt, are you again bound on the same journey? Now, do let me have the pleasure of giving you a lift."

Beatrix hesitated one moment, then she answered frankly, "Thank you so much. You know Jennie, that poor crippled child I told you about? Well, I have had a note from her this morning to say her mother is very ill and there is no one to do anything for her."

Gerald Morton looked admiringly down at the fair face beside him. It was the young man of Hillchester who had given Beatrix Harcourt the name of "the fair philanthropist," and it spoke well for the girl that even in the fastest circles her name was never mentioned but with respect.

When Beatrix reached the little cottage, which lay close to a wood five miles from Hillchester, she found everything in a state of confusion. One glance at the poor woman showed her to be in a high state of fever and slightly delirious, while an ominous crimson rash was beginning to make its appearance on her face and neck.

"Why, Jenne, your mother has the fever," Beatrix exclaimed, rapidly. "Haven't you sent for a doctor, child, and is there no neighbor who would come and help to nurse her?"

"I wrote to the doctor, miss, when I sent your note, but he has not been yet, and as to neighbors, miss, there are none for a mile or more."

All the morning Beatrix waited, doing all she could for the poor sick woman, and the afternoon was well on its way when the welcome rap, which surely told of the doctor's appearance, sounded at the door.

Beatrix literally flew to open it, and found herself face to face not with the doctor, but the vicar.

For the last month, ever since the gossip about Gerald Morton, in fact, matters had been rather strained between the vicar and his fiancee, but all was forgotten now, as, in the impulse of the moment, Beatrix exclaimed, "You must not come in here, John, or touch me, either. Mrs. Carr has the fever."

For a moment a look of keen anxiety darkened his grave blue eyes, and the next Mr. Kendrick had folded the slight form close in his arms, as he murmured brokenly: "Trixie, my own brave darling, would you have me a greater coward than yourself?"

With his arms still about her, she told him how Gerald Morton had driven her to the cottage in the morning, adding: "it was well he did, for I should have been an hour later, and Jennie and her mother were quite alone."

"Trix, will you forgive me for letting that horrid scandal trouble me, even for one moment? Dear heart, I feel I shall never forgive myself."

"Yes, I will forgive you," Trix answered, gayly, the last shadow gone from her honest blue eyes; "only you must never do it again, as the children say."

The vicar's low-breathed answer sounded like a blessing, and then Beatrix hurried him off to see what further means they could devise for the poor woman's comfort during the night.

A fortnight later all Hillchester was thrown into a state of dire consternation by the news that Beatrix Harcourt had scarlet fever, and was, moreover, so dangerously ill that the doctor almost despaired of her life. Truly, a universal calamity might have befallen the place, for Beatrix's illness and its cause formed the perpetual topic of conversation, both in the homes of the rich and poor.

It happened during one of the worst day's of Beatrix's illness that Mrs. Morris and her friend, Mrs. Maynard, were walking by the drive gate leading to Beatrix's home. To their astonishment they saw a large crowd of people waiting just outside the door—women with babies in their arms, girls who had stolen a few minutes out of their dinner hour, even one or two tall youths and laboring men.

In a moment the door opened and a maidservant spoke a few words to the anxious watchers. Evidently it was not good news, for with one accord they slowly and silently turned to go away, and as they passed the two ladies one woman exclaimed in a broken voice which showed tears were not far off: "Ah, well, if we lose her our best friend is gone, and that's certain. There ain't many in this world like our Miss Beatrix. Bless her sweet face!"

Mrs. Maynard and Mrs. Morris walked on in silence. The scene had touched them deeply, and the eyes of the doctor's wife were full of tears, while her companion had an unwonted and most unpleasant choking sensation in her throat. The lesson was learned, though it was bitter, for each felt "what would these good people have cared had I been in Beatrix Harcourt's place?"

But Beatrix, dangerous as her illness was, did not die, and six months later Hillchester was the scene of a greater rejoicing than had been known for many a long year, while the wonderful arches, with their various devices, the glad faces of the people, the children with their flower-laden baskets and the church bells ringing out their sweet messages far and wide, all combined to show the love and respect with which their vicar and his bride had so deservedly gained in the hearts of their people.—Ethel Beatrice Wadlow, in Madame.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Gen. Joe Wheeler insists that the Cubans are better soldiers than is commonly supposed. Gen. Wheeler is an intelligent and truthful man, but this is a pretty tough story.

Happy is the war president who can send congratulations in equal measure to the army and the navy. President McKinley has had this pleasure on both sides of the world.

The medical and commissary departments of the army are discovered to be of considerable importance to the nation. It would pay hereafter to give them more thought in peace as well as war.

Five hundred American trolley cars, with accompanying machinery, have been ordered in Paris at a cost of $500,000. This country has completely distanced all others in electrical transportation.

Germany is to keep five warships in American waters during the coming fall and winter. They will be welcome, and nobody will regard them with the same suspicion that attached to the similar force at Manila, for nobody will suppose that they have any but friendly intentions. We Americans are always glad to see foreign vessels in our harbors, and Germany cannot send too many of them.

One of the "lessons of the war" is that the so-called naval powers of Europe should overhaul their navies and find out just how many of their vessels are obsolete. The effective strength of a navy is not increased but diminished by loading down the navy register with ships that ought to be condemned, and it would probably astonish every one of the European powers to learn how much smaller their navies are in effectiveness than in numbers.

Miss Clara Barton, who is still extremely active in works of philanthrophy, is a remarkable woman. She was born at Oxford, Mass., in 1830, and is now 68. She resigned a government clerkship early in the civil war to become an army nurse, and in 1864 was placed in charge of the hospitals of the Army of the James. In the Franco-German war she assisted in organizing the military hospitals. She labored among the poor of Strasburg in 1871, and of Paris in 1872. The American Red Cross Society was organized by her in 1881, and she became its president. The year 1883 found her superintendent of a reformatory prison for women in Massachusetts. Her labors in 1884 were devoted to the Mississippi flood sufferers, and in 1893 to relieving the victims of cyclone on the South Atlantic coast.

For a number of years attempts have been made by patriotic citizens to have a law passed by congress to forbid and punish the desecration of the American flag. Bills to this end have been introduced in congress from time to time only to slumber peacefully in some committee-room until the end of the term. What the measure has lacked heretofore is a concerted and weighty pressure upon congress in its behalf. This the Daughters of the American Revolution have undertaken to supply, and it is to be hoped that at their annual session in Washington next February these patriotic dames and damsels, the descendants of the men who made the flag, who gloried in it and achieved independence under it, will be able to stimulate neglectful congressmen into passing the bill. That this splendid insignia of the national glory should be made the means of advertising whiskey and beer, soap and candles, handkerchiefs, shirts, collars and socks, not to speak of yellow journals, is a desecration if not a crime.

Prince Henry of Germany had two interviews with the Emperor of China, and it is reported on what appears to be good authority that he gave that unfortunate monarch advice which, while undoubtedly good, did not show that profound respect for antique ideas and methods to be expected from a pillar of such an anachronism as the Teutonic throne. The Prince, it is said, urged the Emperor to abandon the holy seclusion in which all his ancestors have lived, and by making himself the real and active head of his State and his army, to render the perpetuation of China as a nation one of the possibilities. The attendant Mandarins heard this sort of talk with easily explicable horror, for in case of any such change, of course, their laboriously acquired learning would instantly be revealed as utter ignorance, but the Emperor listened with attention, and murmured whatever may be the Chinese equivalent of "I'll think it over." The narrative from which these facts—or rumors—are taken says that Prince Henry's visit seems to have acted like a strange new tonic on the royal hermit, and at a private council with his Ministers, held soon after the Prince departed, he propounded to them inconvenient questions as to why and how China came to be in its present humiliating condition.

Don't Look.

There are some diseases which do not arouse our sympathy—the disease is not deep, and therefore our sympathy is shallow. But we often make serious mistakes—such as calling a backache a light affliction. Backache means kidney trouble every time, and if you don't drive it away it will never go of its own accord without taking you with it. But it does not continue simply as a backache. Don't you think a backache dangerous? We do, but we must add just a few words and they are, Doan's Kidney Pills cure every time and all stages of kidney disease, but it is always best to keep as far from the danger line as possible, and the cure is easier.

Mr. S. J. Conklin, Travelling Salesman for a New York Confectionery House, living at 134 W. Front street, says:—"I have been subject to kidney complaint for 6 or 7 years. My symptoms were, pain in the back and hips which at times I felt in my side; if I sat for any length of time in one position when I rose, a sharp, shooting pain struck me through the small of my back and caused me great agony. I was also troubled with a bladder difficulty.

The latter trouble annoyed me very much at night and caused more or less loss of sleep. I tried different kinds of kidney cures but received little or no relief. I had read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills and I went to L. W. Randolph's drug store and got a box. On using this I felt great relief and procured a second box. I have now taken 3 altogether and am wonderfully improved. I am troubled very little with backache and bladder trouble has been greatly benefitted. Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy and accomplished all that is claimed for them."

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers, price 50 cents. Mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sole agents for the U.S. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

SPORTING.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Plainfield Catholic Club bowling team will roll a match on their alleys Thursday evening with the club team from Orange.

The team from the Park Club will roll its next game in the Central Journal League at Roselle Thursday evening against the Roselle Casinos.

An exciting bowling tournament is almost at a close on the alleys of the Plainfield Catholic club. Tomorrow night it ends. There are two medals, a gold and a silver one, up for first and second highest averages to be made in at least twelve games. At present John Moran and Frank McInerney are in the lead. Their averages are both over 200 and only a point apart. They have rolled twenty games. A third prize of a box of cigars is offered. The five men of the regular team are barred from competing for it. It will be awarded to the man, not so barred, who makes the highest average.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The salesrooms of the Plainfield branch of the Eldridge Bicycle Company were closed Saturday for good. The fixtures and tools have been sold and all the sundries disposed of.

The F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company is taking possession of its new stores on East Fourth street. The old establishment will be closed in a few days and turned over to the new tenants, the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company.

Plainfield is to have another bicycle establishment. George A. Rockfellow, son of George W. Rockfellow, of Park avenue, will open up a store on Park avenue, next to Moy's Pharmacy, in a few weeks. He will be the sole agent in Plainfield for the Columbia and Hartford wheels and the supplies of the Pope Manufacturing Company.

GOLF.

Mr. Barry and Fred Coverly, of this city, expect to open the old golf grounds on Plainfield avenue for the winter. The grounds will be open to all players for a reasonable sum.

A regular meeting of the Park Golf Club was held Thursday evening, at which time official action was taken regarding the closing of the links for the winter. The other business considered was of a routine nature.

BASKET BALL.

There seems to be some difficulty in arranging a game between the girls' teams, from the Junior and Fourth Classes at the Plainfield High School. The Juniors wish to play the game with the regular boundary lines according to the usual rules. The Fourth Class girls have been playing without lines and are averse to changing their method. The consequence is that neither side is willing to give in and no game has been arranged.

VICTORS IN BASKET BALL

PLAINFIELD Y. M. C. A. EASILY DEFEATED NEW BRUNSWICK TEAM.

The Game Played in Plainfield—First Contest for the Victors—Poor Goal Throwing by the Plainfield Boys

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basket ball players found an easy mark in the team from the New Brunswick Y. M. C. A. last evening. The game was played in the gymnasium of the local association and the home team was victorious by a score of 36 to 7. It was the first game for the visitors and, considering that fact, they played very well. In team work they were far outclassed. The score would have been undoubtedly larger had the local team thrown goals with their usual accuracy. The score was 19 to 3 at the close of the first half. In the second, the visitors gained confidence and played better. The lineup was as follows:

PLAINFIELD.		NEW BRUNSWICK.
E. Moraller	right forward	Premo
Bonny, Carroll	left forward	Baker
Egan	centre.	Thompson, Rooney
M. Moraller	right guard	Benton

Score—Plainfield, 36; New Brunswick, 7. Goals from the field—E. Moraller (6), Bonny, Carroll, Egan (4), Smith (5), Baker (4). Goals on fouls—Smith (3), Premo. Fouls—Plainfield, 2; New Brunswick, 5. Referee—George Fuller. Umpires—John H. Doane and C. E. A. Heywood. Timekeeper—Mr. Cutting.

not good, as that company was without legislative authority to construct or operate a street railroad on Westfield, or North avenue outside of the city of Elizabeth. On this point the opinion says:

"Assuming this, and assuming that the act of 1888 does not supply that authority to any person or corporation contracting with the county, we cannot see that the applicants for this writ have any standing to impeach the contract.

"The county has ample power to provide for the construction of the railroad, and if it does so by contract, even with a corporation having otherwise no authority to operate it, the railroad will not be a nuisance, and no private right of any land owner will be invaded."

Justice Collins concludes by saying: "In the case in hand it is evident that the contract with the railroad company is beneficial to the county and cannot lead to increased taxation."

Elizabeth, Dec. 6—The commission appointed to condemn land along the north side of Westfield avenue from Elizabeth to Cranford, for the purpose of building a county boulevard, has completed its labors, and on Friday will make its report at the courthouse to Judge VanSyckel. Ex-Senator Frederick C. Marsh is chairman of the commission.

Entertained at Cards.

Mrs. Beard, of Hillside avenue, entertained the members of the Watchung Avenue Whist Club last Saturday evening at her beautiful home. She was an ideal hostess and her hospitality was proverbial. The winners of the prizes included Mrs. Slocum, Mrs. Robert Dryden, Peter Schultz and Seymour G. Smith. The club will be entertained next time by Mrs. Campman, of Sandford avenue.

Judge Stillman Sworn In.

The successor to the late City Judge DeMeza, who will fill out his unexpired term, William M. Stillman, was sworn in by Mayor Fisk last evening. Judge Stillman was ready to begin his duties this morning but there were no offenders in the lockup and his services will not actively begin until tomorrow.

CRUISER ISLA DE CUBA.

Under contract with Admiral Dewey a Hong Kong wrecking company is raising and repairing such of the Spanish ships as are worth saving which were sunk in the harbor of Manila. Late advices say that the Isla de Cuba and the Isla de Luzon, sister ships, have already been raised and are now being repaired. These vessels are of 1,040 tons each, 200 feet long and 30 feet beam. They are of steel, with twin screws.

THE COUNCIL MEETING

proposed storm sewer through Park avenue. He said that owing to the early arrival of winter it was found that it would be impossible to install it this winter. He therefore asked the council to kill the ordinance, which was done. The matter will come early next year.

At the suggestion of the city clerk the council selected William M. Stillman to act as City Judge until the position is filled by election. William DeMeza was also nominated for the position by Mr. Runyon. Mr. Stillman received six votes and Mr. DeMeza five. The selection of the former was made unanimous.

The Council received petitions for three electric lights on Johnston avenue, three on Jackson avenue and one on East Sixth street. These were all granted, as was also one for Oxford place near West Front street. Building Inspector Doane reported the granting of eleven permits, and Mr. Gavett reported that seven sewer permits had been granted. On a resolution offered by Mr. VanHerwerden $4,500, $3,500 was borrowed on thirty day notes to meet the expenses for the balance of the year.

Mr. Runyon called up the fire ordinance on second reading and after the title was read, Mr. Hetfield objected to its adoption on the ground that the city already has an ordinance that in the main is identical with the new one. He thought the city should be spared the expenses of paying to have a new ordinance advertised in the newspapers. Mr. Hetfield urged that there is very little difference in the two ordinances. Mr. Moffett and Mr. Buckle agreed in the main with Mr. Hetfield, and no good reasons could they see why a new ordinance should be adopted.

Mr. Runyon stated that there were so many changes made that the corporation counsel thought it advisable to draft a new ordinance.

Mr. Hetfield's motion to lay the ordinance on the table was withdrawn and Mr. Barrows moved as a substitute that the ordinance be referred back to the fire and building committee and that an amended ordinance be presented to the Council. This motion prevailed, Messrs. Runyon and VanHerwerden voting in the negative.

After a motion was made that when Council adjourn it be to meet next Friday evening, the Council adjourned to hold a committee meeting with the street committee regarding the extension of the trolley.

In Mr. McGee's associations with the Monroe Avenue church he held the positions of treasurer, historian, librarian, local preacher and president of the Sunday school Missionary Society. He personally compiled the church library and attended to it. He was not a regular ordained minister and disclaimed the title so often given him. He was simply a local preacher, and occasionally filled the pulpit when the pastor was absent. His personal attention to all matters in the church was felt by everyone.

There are six children left as follows: Mrs. Anne G. Ashbrook, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Adelaide F. Welsh, of Middletown, Conn.; Mrs. James R. Joy, Mrs. C. E. Horne, A. McGee and Walter M. McGee, of North Plainfield.

The funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon next at 3 o'clock from Monroe Avenue church.

TRIP THROUGH WHITE'S STORE.

It is Especially Attractive at This Season of the Year.

The opening of the holiday season at White's is always an important event, but this year it is doubly so. In the front of the store are ten large plate glass show cases filled with fine silver novelties and many other things. The front section on the right is devoted to toys. It's a regular paradise for the children. On the right is the men's department which is filled with handsome ties, handkerchiefs, shirts, etc. In the centre is located the pictures, fancy albums, dolls, gloves, umbrellas and stationery.

The entire rear of the store is devoted to fancy china, lamps, vases, cups and saucers, and lots of useful and ornamental articles; on the left are the more useful gifts, dress goods, silks, wash goods, linen vests. A trip on the elevator to the second floor and you see beautiful hats, coats, capes, suits and silk waists. On the third floor are the rugs, blankets, carpets, lace curtains, portierres and etc.

—Mrs. Charlotte DeMeza, of West Second street, wishes to thank the kind friends who so generously sympathized with her and her family during their late bereavement.

WHAT HE DIDN'T CONSIDER.

Unfair to Judge a Man by the General Knowledge He Possesses.

Two men were talking.

"What I admire among our artisan class," said one with the air of a superior person, "is a little broader knowledge than is defined by the mere walls of his shop. Now, I have in mind two shoemakers whom I see occasionally, as they are both tenants of mine. Both of them are prompt, industrious, honest men, but one is as ignorant as he can be even about the details of his own trade. Why, I asked him the other day where shoe pegs were made, and of what wood and he hasn't the least idea, and I had to tell him. On the contrary, the other one not only knew that much, but was up on the history of shoes and their material and manufacture, and he interested me for half an hour by a most instructive talk on his occupation. There is a vast difference, I think, between two men situated as these two are, and it is greatly to the credit of one that he acquires knowledge, not because it is absolutely necessary, but because of his desire to broaden and get something more than what may dangle at a waxend or spread itself over a side of sole leather. Don't you think as I do?"

"Um-er," hesitated the other man. "I know your two shoemakers and have had work done by both of them, and I notice another difference that you probably overlooked."

"I knew you would," responded the first man, rubbing his hands with pleasure.

"Yes," continued the other "the man who only knows how to make shoes can make shoes and the other chap can't. There's something in that, you know, to the man who must wear them."

THE ELECTION.

REPUBLICANS CARRY THE CITY BY 300 MAJORITY.

Citizens Utterly Failed in the City Election Which Was Held Yesterday.

MAYOR ELECTED BY 306 AND CITY JUDGE BY 517.

The Vote Was Large Enough to Show that the Result Was the Will of the People—Next Council Will Consist of Seven Republicans and Four Citizens.

The Citizens' movement failed in the accomplishment of its purpose. The municipal election was held yesterday and the Independent Citizens' did not wrest the control of the city government from the hands of the Republicans who have been in power for so many years. Instead, the Republicans swept the city and elected every one of their candidates except Justice of the Peace and Constable in the Fourth ward. The vote was a large one, but not sensational. It was large enough to show that the result was undoubtedly the will of the people of the city.

The Republican ticket was carried to victory by over 300 majority. George W. Rockfellow was elected Mayor by 306 majority. Councilman William N. Runyon's majority for the City Judgeship was 517. James A. Martin was made City Collector with 401 votes over A. T. Gallup. Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards was elected a School Trustee with a majority of 215.

The Common Council for 1899 will be Republican. All the four Republican candidates for the ward Councilmen, Ralph I. Tolles, George P. Mellick, B. Frank Coriell and Frank H. Smith, were elected by majorities varying from 158 to 56. The coming Council will, therefore, be composed of seven Republicans and four Citizens'.

STORY OF THE ELECTION.

The Citizens Failed to Show up Their Expected Strength and Were Defeated.

It was admitted early in the campaign that the Fourth ward would be the fiercest struggle and so it was. The Citizens' were confident of carrying it and hoped for a big majority from there with which to overcome the Republican lead. They carried it, but by so small a margin as to do little in offsetting the Republican majorities in other wards.

The Third ward was considered the Republican stronghold and the Citizens' efforts were directed toward cutting down the majority there as low as possible. Their efforts did not meet with any great success, and a majority of practically 200 was given to the Rupublican ticket.

Last year the Citizens' elected their Councilman in the Second ward and they were hoping for another success this time. It failed to materialize and the Republicans carried the ward by a majority of over 125.

The First ward was somewhat doubtful, but it fell into line and gave the Republican candidates a small majority of in the neighborhood of fifty votes.

The big majorities in the Second and Third wards insured the election of the G. O. P. men. As soon as the returns made it evident that both those wards were strongly Republican, it was only a question of how high up the majorities would run. The close finishes in both First and Fourth wards kept up the only hopes of the Citizens for victory.

Outside of the Fourth ward the Republican broom swept clean. In that ward the Citizens' made a strong fight over Justice of the Peace and Constable, and the Citizens' candidates for the two offices, Adam Young and Peter V. Weaver, were elected by majorities of 17 and 62 respectively.

Particular stress was laid in all the wards on the contests for the seates in the Common Council. R. I. Tolles, a former Councilman, was the Republican candidate in the First ward, and J. C. Blimm, candidate for Councilman-at large on the Citizens' ticket last year, was the choice of that party. Tolles made an exceptionally good run and ran way ahead of his ticket in both districts.

In the Second ward George P. Mellick was somewhat behind the Republican ticket on which he was the candidate. Most of the faction that worked against his nomination at the primary turned out and supported him loyally despite the efforts of the Citizens.

There was little doubt in the Third ward about the candidacy of B. Frank Coriell. He was a little behind his ticket, but had a comfortable majority of 158.

The Republicans centred their strength in the Fourth ward on Frank H. Smith, their candidate for the Council. He left his ticket far behind and defeated his opponent, James Davis, a Democrat, in every district in the ward.

George W. Rockfellow made a good run for Mayor. While he was cut in some instances, he did not fall far behind his ticket. Councilman William N. Runyon made the greatest run of the day. He was the only Republican candidate, beside Councilman-elect Smith, who carried the Fourth ward, where his majority was 31. In all, he ran nearly 100 ahead of his ticket. James A. Martin, Republican candidate for Collector, made a good showing, keeping a little in advance of his ticket.

It was was recognized that the weakest point on the Republican ticket was in the candidate for School Trustee. While nobody questioned the integrity and ability of Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, there were many that opposed him on the ground that clergymen should not enter politics. While his name was scratched all over the city, the result was only to reduce his majority some 100 votes.

AT HEADQUARTERS.

Republican Leaders Were Confident of the Result From the Start.

The Republicans were undoubtedly better organized in yesterday's election than the opposition. The experience of past years served the G. O. P. machine in good stead and its workers conducted the campaign in great shape. The Citizens' had workers and carriages but lacked the systematic methods of their Republican rivals.

While campaign headquarters were established in every election district by the Republicans, the headquarters for the leaders was in the City Clerk's office. The Citizens' met wherever they happened to be although the store of F. M. Laing, on Park avenue and the law offices of W. S. Angleman were leading congregating places.

The Republicans were confident from the start. The day before, the conservative leaders had placed their majority at 300 and predicted victory. The Citizens' were not quite so sure but were of the opinion that they would divide the honors.

As the Boger Murray system of tallying was used in most of the wards the returns came in far earlier than usual. At 9:30 o'clock it was evident that the Citizens would have to roll up a big majority in the Fourth ward to win. When the returns from the Second and Third wards were received and the way in which the tickets were running at the First ward polls, the election of all the city ticket was conceded by all. That was by 11 o'clock. Until the returns were all in however, the Citizens were loath to believe that they had not captured the Fourth ward Councilman.

There were great times up in the City Clerk's office as the evening wore away. Faces began to expand into smiles and everybody shook the hand of his neighbor. Then John Keeley started a subscription to get out the drum corps. All joined in and soon after Assemblyman Roger F. Murray marshalled the long line of politicians who participated, leaving the City Clerk's office to the waiting reporters.

FIRST WARD, 1ST DISTRICT.

Two Ballots Less Than Number Reported at the State Election.

A quiet election was reported in the First District of the First Ward. The vote was 424, 2 less than the vote at the state election last month. Eight of the ballots were rejected. The Republican ticket ran very even with a slight increase for Mr. Tolles for Councilman.

FIRST WARD, 2d DISTRICT.

Pasters Were Freely Used and a General Mixup was the Result.

Although the vote was not quite as was expected, the Second district of the the First ward had a good turnout, 165 votes being cast. The showing was greater than at the State election last month. Everything was quiet and orderly about the polling place on East Second street, beyond Richmond street. Both parties had workers at the polls all day, but the Republicans were the more numerous.

Pasters were freely used, and the result was a general mixup in the ticket. Rockfellow was cut on the Republican ticket in many cases. It was expected that the district would give him a small majority. Instead, it gave Lounsbury a majority of 25. W. N. Runyon made a strong run for City Judge and carried the district by 4 votes. Dr. Richards, although a resident of the district, was scratched and ran behind his ticket. R. I. Tolles gained 6 over J. C. Blimm for ward Councilman.

SECOND WARD, 1st DISTRICT.

The First District of the Second Ward had a little excitement to break the monotomy of the election. Special Officer Dennis Carney was the officer detailed to the polling place, and he had all sorts of adventures with several of the workers for the Citizen's Ticket. First he cautioned J. B. Mills, he said he was giving out tickets inside the hundred yard line. Next he ran afoul of John Venable, a colored worker for the Citizens' ticket. Carney claimed that Venable was working inside the very room where the booths were. He ordered him out and then tried to prevent him from working inside the hundred foot limit. Venable pushed the officer back and Carney lifted his club to strike. A fight seemed imminent but the cooler heads prevailed and trouble was averted. Carney was advised to have Venable arrested, but finally did nothing about it.

The Citizens' leaders had looked to the district to make the showing that it did last year for their ticket. The G. O. P. men were pretty confident, however, and early predicted a handsome majority for the Republican ticket. The colored vote was unusually light this year, but the Republicans polled most of those who did come.

There were 435 ballots cast, of which 5 were rejected. Of the number 283 were Republican tickets. W. N. Runyon ran 15 ahead of his ticket, while Dr. Richards was 6 behind. Mr. Mellick in the fight for Councilman lost 19 of the Republican votes. Mr. Mills gained correspondingly, but not enough to make any appreciable difference in the final result in the ward.

Mr. Mellick went to New York and was not seen around the polling place until evening and then only for a short time. W. N. Runyon made his headquarters in the office of the Crescent Rink. Mr. Mills was at the polls nearly all day.

SECOND WARD, 2d DISTRICT

C. H. Hand Objected to Councilman VanHerwerden's Vote on Ground He Was No Citizen.

Open hostilities between Councilman John Van Herwerden and Assessor Charles H. Hand marked the election in the Second District of the Second Ward. A letter was sent to election officers of that district by Mr. Hand stating that Cornelius Van Herwerden and son, Councilmhn John Van Herwerden, of South avenue, had been born in an European country and that it was Mr. Hand's belief that they had never been naturalized. He therefore protested against the voting and stated that he thought that they should be required to prove their eligibility to voto,

When the elder VanHerwerden came to vote, the letter was brought up and Mr. VanHerwerden swore in his vote without comment. The Councilman by that name went to the polling place in the afternoon at 4 o'clock. He asked if the election officers believed the charge and all but one said no. Nobody could tell whether a vote could be challenged by letter or not. While it was being discussed, Hezikiah Hand, one of the Committee of Forty in the Citizens' party, announced that he would challange Mr. Van Herwerden had not been naturalized, he said. Councilman VanHerwerden's vote was then sworn in.

The vote in the district was not particularly large, only 140 votes being cast. Of these, 74 were Republican and 66 Citizen. Comparatively few pasters were used. Runyon ran 4 ahead of his ticket and Mr. Mellick gained 2. There was no disposition to cut the name of Dr. Richards.

Hezikiah Hand challenged several colored voters on account of their age but there was little else happening in the district.

THIRD WARD, 1ST DISTRICT.

The election in the First district of the Third ward passed off without incident. The vote was heavy and the Republicans banked up a large majority for their ticket. There were 425 ballots cast. The Republican ticket ran well together, with the exception

PLIGHT OF POOR WOMAN.

WITHOUT A HOME AND CANNOT SPEAK ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

Through an Interpreter it is Learned That Her Husband Died While on Their Way Across Ocean—Mother of Baby

A few days ago, as will be remembered by Press readers, a Sytian woman and baby was found in this city in a helpless condition, and unable to talk any language but her own. Persons interested in charity met her and she and her little one were soon objects of pity. Every effort to secure an interpreter was made, but without success until yesterday, when through the efforts of Mayor Fisk and his wife a Syrian from the Syrian mission in Philadelphia, who is known to Mr. and Mrs. Fisk, was induced to come to Plainfield and talk with the woman. When the woman met the native of her country her face lighted up and she expressed joy beyond measure. The two talked together and a sad and interesting story was learned.

It appears that her name is Mrs. Mary Abraham, and that she and her husband left their native country to come here and make a sufficient amount of money to assist aged parents at home. When four days out on the water the husband died, leaving the wife alone and among entire strangers. When she arrived in this country she wandered about and finally reached Elizabeth. From there she walked to Fanwood, she says, and having 10 cents she rode from there to this city. During her stay here she has been stopping at the Industrial Home. She says that her husband was buried at sea. Since her arrival in this country the baby was born.

When considering the advisabity of sending the woman and her baby home it was decided that it would be inexpedient. She would be imprisoned for debt, according to the customs of her country, for not taking care of her parents, and life would be made a drudge for her. According to another custom of the country when a woman's husband dies she takes his first name for her last name. In this case her name would be Mary George. She is a highly interesting woman and appreciates thoroughly all that has been done for her. Mrs. W. A. Woodruff, the agent of the Organized Aid Association, has made every effort to make things as comfortable as possible for the woman and her child and to secure assistance for them. Further inquiry will be made into Mrs. Abraham's history.

This improvement is one that will be greatly appreciated for it will place the large and increasing edition of The Press in the hands of every patron at an early hour.

Wm. Brokaw Met With Sad Experience.

LIVES AT SOUTH STERLING.

CLAIMS WM. DARBY DEPARTED WITH HIS PROPERTY.

Overcoat, Pair of Boots, Watch and Cash Said to be Missing—County Authorities Have Tried to Keep the Case Quiet—Warrant Out for Darby—Accused of Having Robbed Mr. Winans.

Nearly a month ago William Brokaw claims to have been victimized by the man he attempted to befriend. It happened near South Sterling. The county authorities tried to keep it quiet, but the facts have leaked out and are now being discussed by many of the Somerset county farmers.

William Brokaw lives in a little hut near South Sterling. He is a bachelor and looks after himself in his tiny abode. He is a farm hand and finds work wherever he can without having any steady employer. He has known William Darby for several years. They have worked together many times. It was about a month ago when Darby came to Brokaw and told him how he couldn't find work and was without a place to lay his head. Brokaw offered to share his own quarters with the man in hard luck and the offer was accepted.

Darby had been partaking of Brokaw's humble store for nearly a week, the latter says, when Brokaw went off one day to a distant farm. Darby remained at the hut. When the proprietor returned his guest had disappeared and so had an overcoat, a pair of boots, a silver watch and chain and $5 in cash. Then Brokaw railed at the falsity of human nature in general and Darby in particular.

Darby wasn't seen in that neighborhood since. A warrant was immediately issued by Justice Austin, of Warrenville, for the apprehension of the departed Darby and the constables have been looking for the missing man but in vain. Meanwhile, Brokaw says that he is not going to play the good Samaritan again.

Several years ago, Darby was in Washingtonville and was sent by Silas Winans to collect a bill of $15 for him. Both Darby and the money, it is said, disappeared and were seen no more for a year, then Darby, minus the $15, returned.

There was a large attendance of members and friends and a profitable evening was passed in playing all sorts of games, and in listening to several pleasing piano selections by Miss Laura Ayres. During the evening the committee served refreshment and after a social time the happy affair terminated.

OF THE NEW DISCOVERY IN MEDICINE.

Dr. Wurth in commenting on recent discoveries in medicine said: There is none which is certain to be so valuable and far reaching in benefit as Stuarts Dyspepsia Tablets, the new stomach remedy; I say far reaching, because people little realize how important a sound stomach and vigorous digestion is to every man, woman and child.

Indigestion is the starting point of consumption, heart disease, Bright's disease, diabetes, nervous prostration, liver troubles; why is this so? Simply because every nerve, muscle and tissue in our bodies is created and nouri-hed from the food we eat. If that food is by reason of a weak stomach, compelled to lie for hours, a sour, fermenting mass of half digested food, it poisons the blood and nervous system, creates gas which distends the stomach and bowels, causing pressure on the heart, lungs and other organs, and seriously impeding their action.

He says further, the point to direct attention is not the nerves, nor heart, nor lungs, nor kidneys, but the stomach, the first cause of all the mischief.

The remedy to use for indigestion and weak stomachs is not some cathartic, but a remedy which will digest the food, increase the flow of gastric juice, absorb the gases, and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will accomplish exactly this result in any case of stomach trouble, because these tablets are composed of the digestive acids, aseptic pepsin, Golden Seal and bismuth pleasant to taste, and not being a patent medicine, can be used by anyone with perfect safety. I believe Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any form of indigestion and stomach trouble except cancer of stomach.

Full size packages of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by druggists at 50 cents or by mail from F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. A book on stomach diseases together with thousands of testimonials will be sent by addressing above or call on your druggist for them. 12 5-7-9

THE HAWAIIAN REPORT

Commission Advocates Territorial Form of Government.

CHANGES IN PRESENT PLAN

Citizens of the Republic to be Citizens Under American Control. Two Houses of an Island Legislation Provided for.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The president has transmitted to Congress the report of the Hawaiian commission, consisting of Senators Cullom and Morgan, Representative Hitt, President Dole and Justice Frear of Hawaii.

Three bills are formulated for the consideration of Congress. The first and principal one outlines a general plan of government, and the other two deal with subordinate questions.

The main bill provides for the erection of the islands into a territory of the United States, to be styled the territory of Hawaii.

A governor, secretary of the territory, a United States district judge, a United States district attorney and a United States marshal are to be appointed by the president and an internal revenue district and a customs district are created. The offices of president, minister of foreign affairs, finance, public instruction, auditor general, deputy auditor general, surveyor general and marshal are abolished.

The territory will have an attorney general with similar powers and duties as now possessed by the attorney general of the Republic of Hawaii, with a few exceptions; a treasurer, with similar powers and duties to the present minister of finance, and such powers and duties regarding licenses, corporations and companies and partnerships and registration of prints, labels and trade marks as are now possessed by the minister of the interior, except as changed; also a superintendent of public works, a superintendent of public instruction, an auditor and a deputy auditor, a surveyor with the powers and duties of a surveyor general and a chief sheriff to succeed to the duties of the marshal of the republic, all to be appointed by the governor.

Probably the most important portion of the bill is section 4, defining citizenship, which provides that "all white persons, including Portuguese, and persons of African descent, and all persons descended from the Hawaiian race, on either the maternal or paternal side, who were citizens of the Republic of Hawaii immediately prior to the transfer of the sovereignty thereof to the United States, are hereby declared to be citizens of the United States."

Provision is made for a legislature to consist of two houses—a senate to consist of fifteen members, as at present, and a house of representatives, consisting of thirty members, double the number under the Hawaiian republic. The members are to be elected at a general election to be held on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1899, and biennially thereafter. The supreme court is to be the sole judge of the legality of election to a seat in either house in case of contest. No member of the legislature is to be eligible for appointment or election to any office of the territory, and no officer or employe, notary public or agent of the territory is to be eligible to election as a legislator.

There is also a provision that no person who, having been entitled to qualify and vote prior to October, 1897, and since July, 1894, failed to register as such voter, shall have a vote, unless he shall take an oath to support the constitution of the United States. The sessions of the legislature are limited to sixty days in duration, and each member is allowed $400 as salary and ten cents a mile for travelling expenses.

Comment on the Message.

London, Dec. 7.—The Pall Mall Gazette says that, considering the circumstances under which it was composed, and the nature of the events with which it is necessarily concerned, President McKinley's message may be said to be conspicuous in respect of its moderation.

Speaking of the Nicaragua canal, the Gazette says the two nations stand upon an equal footing in respect of its control, and this fact will affort the United States a ready made opportunity for demonstrating practically her present assurances of friendship.

"We are convinced," the paper adds, "that when the time comes there will be no disposition on the part of the United States to question our position of friendly equality."

The St. James Gazette says that new issues have been faced in a broad-minded way and the solution of various problems suggested upon large and generous lines.

Army and Navy Expenses.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—Mr. Cannon, Republican of Illinois, chairman of the appropriations committee, in the House of Representatives yesterday reported the deficiency appropriation bill covering the extraordinary expenses of the army and navy for the six months beginning January 1, 1899.

The bill carries for the war department and military establishment $60,711,539; for the naval establishment $5,568,853; a total of $66,280,392. This amount, however, is a reappropriation of funds heretofore allowed, but not available after the close of the present year.

The Dawes Commission.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—Secretary Bliss has received important official dispatches from the Indian Territory, indicating a change of sentiment on the part of some of the Indian tribes with whom the Dawes commission has been negotiating treaties.

Another meeting of the Cherokee Council is about to be called to frame a treaty. The Creeks also are said to be preparing to negotiate another treaty.

Not to Buy the Carolines.

Berlin, Dec. 7.—The Deutsche Warte says it learns on high authority that Germany will not acquire any of the Carolina islands.

CONGRESS OF HEBREWS.

To Occupy the Week at Richmond Va. Its Biennial Session.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 6.—There is now in biennial session in this city the Union of American Hebrew congregations. The delegates of which it is composed come from every section of the United States, from the far South, from the far West, from Minnesota, from Maine, from many cities and states come the leaders of Jewish thought for the purpose of discussing the work of Judaism and planning for the furthering of that cause, peculiarly dear to the heart of the Hebrew.

Leading members of the congregation under the leadership of Dr. Calisch, form the committee of arrangements, and they have perfected plans that will undoubtedly give the visitors a most exalted idea of the hospitality of the Hebrews of Richmond.

REV. B. N. CALISH.

The annual address, which is always a feature of the union's meetings, will be delivered this afternoon by Honorable Simon Wolf of Washington.

The objects of the union are to establish and maintain institutions for instruction in the higher branches of Hebrew literature and Jewish theology, with the necessary preparatory schools in such cities as may be designated; to establish relations with kindred organizations in other lands for the relief of Jews from political oppression, and for rendering them such aid for their intellectual elevation as may be within the reach of the union; to promote the religious instruction of the young by training of competent teachers, and generally encourage the study of the Scriptures and of the tenets and history of Judaism.

All this is done, however, without in any manner interfering with the worship, the schools or any of the congregational institutions.

DR. ISAAC M. WISE.

The Hebrew Union College at Cincinnati will receive much attention during the session. It is the pride of every Jewish heart, and is the leading Jewish theological seminary in the country; indeed, until the past few years, it was the only one. It has a reputation second to none of its kind in the world. The college was founded in 1875, and the first ordination of rabbis from the institution took place in 1883. Since then 55 rabbis have been graduated from the college. These graduates now occupy some of the most important pulpits in America, and are among the leaders in Hebrew thought and work.

The president of the faculty is the venerable Rev. Dr. Isaac M. Wise, probably the most distinguished Hebrew theologian in America.

May Settle With Mr. Barnes.

New York, Dec. 7.—It is now generally believed that the suit for one million dollars brought against the syndicate known as the American-China Development Company by Thurlow Weed Barnes for his services in obtaining valuable railroad concessions from the Chinese government, will never be brought to trial. It will be settled out of court in all probability.

Former United States Senator Brice is the leader of the syndicate, which has already made fifteen million dollars profit in nine months on an investment of two hundred thousand dollars, it is said.

This profit is on bonds issued on franchises granted by the Chinese government.

After the bonds had been issued by the railroad company, acr eature of the syndicate, they were guaranteed of the Chinese government. Then the bonds were sold to the syndicate by the railroad company at a price sufficiently above cost to clear $15,000,000. Mr. Barnes says.

For his services in obtaining the concessions Mr. Barnes believes he is entitled to $1,000,000.

Mr. Brice, it is said, fears that the publicity of such a suit might interfere with his arrangements with English banking concerns to furnish the $44,000,000 of five per cent. imperial Chinese gold bonds which will be issued to cover the cost of the railroad from Canton to Kan-Kow.

The Last of Camp Wikoff.

Easthampton, L. I., Dec. 7.—A small detachment of the Sixth United States Artillery, the last of the troops at Montauk Point, with their horses and mules and impediments, were shipped from Camp Wikoff yesterday for New York on a Long Island Railroad freight train of five cars.

This ends the military encampment at Montauk, only a few quartermaster's men remaining.

THE PROGRESS OF PEACE

A Spanish Request Refused By Our Commission.

A COMPLETED TREATY SOON

What Is Learned About the Contest for Advantages Now Going on at the Joint Session. Spain Wants Equal Shipping Rights with the United States in Cuba and Porto Rico.

Paris, Dec. 7.—The Spanish and American peace commissions met in joint session at two o'clock yesterday afternoon. It has just been learned that Monday's session was of far greater importance than has been generally supposed.

It resulted in the Americans uncompromisingly rejecting Spain's request that, for a term of years, the ships of that country and its products be admitted to Cuban and Porto Rican ports under the same regulations and customs tariff as American ships and products.

The two commissions for several days have been finessing. The Americans were anxious for a decision on the question of a coaling station in the Caroline islands, religious tolerance in the Carolines, and the release of political prisoners.

The Spaniards were unwilling to answer these points until they heard what the Americans proposed to do for their industries which had been built up by the Cuban and Porto Rican trade.

This is why Spain was contented that the articles of the treaty be disposed of in their order, while the Americans wanted first to settle their pressing needs.

This session was practically a fight on the order of procedure. Finally the Americans yielded and then the Spaniards proposed their shipping and commercial question, which the Americans rejected in its entirety.

The session then adjourned with neither side in an amicable frame of mind.

An American attache of the commission said last evening that he believed the work would be completed by Friday.

Madrid, Dec. 7.—The Correspondencia, semi-official, says that the American commissioners insist upon the discussion of matters which are not connected with the treaty of peace, namely, extradition, commercial and literary conventions, etc.

The Spanish government, it says, is unable to yield, and is determined that such matters be discussed between the cabinets of Madrid and Washington. In conclusion, the Correspondencia has the following to say:

"The Americans are seeking to profit by their victory in order to improve their own condition on all subjects."

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—The cabinet at its meeting yesterday discussed in a general way matters in connection with the movement of troops to Cuba, but nothing new was developed at the meeting.

The president's message to Congress was also talked over, as well as the prospective early signing of the Paris treaty.

It was the opinion of the members that the commission probably will be able to leave Paris with the signed treaty within the next few days.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

Brief Session of the House.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—The session of the Senate Tuesday was devoted mainly to routine matters, the introduction of bills, and presentation of reports.

Mr. Morrill, Republican of Vermont, presented a petition from the legislature of Vermont asking for the revival of the grade of admiral, and recognition of Rear Admiral Dewey.

Mr. Hale, Republican of Maine, presented a bill to revive the grade of admiral and vice admiral.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—The House of Representatives held a brief session yesterday and adjourned out of respect to the memory of the late Representative Northway of Ohio and Love of Mississippi.

Before adjournment the president's message was distributed to the various committees of the House in the usual manner.

AGAINST COLONIES.

Senator Vest Introduces a Resolution Against Holding Them.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—Senator Vest of Missouri has introduced in the Senate a joint resolution declaring that under the constitution the United States has no power to acquire territory to be held and governed as colonies.

The resolution says that the "colonial system of European nations cannot be established under our present constitution, but all territory acquired by the government, except such small amount as may be necessary for coaling stations, correction of boundaries and similar governmental purposes, must be acquired and governed with the purpose of ultimately organizing such territory into states suitable for admission into the union."

Mr. Vest asked that the resolution lie on the table, as he desired to speak on it at an early date.

Report of Secretary Gage.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—The annual report of the secretary of the treasury was sent to Congress yesterday.

The total receipts of $494,333,953.75 were exceeded by the total expenditures of $532,381,201.25, leaving a deficit of $38,047,247.50.

It is interesting to note that the receipts from internal revenue, $170,900,641, were greater than the receipts from customs, $149,575,062.

The internal revenue receipts were $24,212,067 greater than in the previous fiscal year, while the customs receipts were $26,979,064 less.

The increase in ordinary expenditures was $77,594,423.

The Moores Arraigned.

New York, Dec. 7.—William A. E. Moore, who was tried on the charge of extortion, in securing money from Martin Mahon, the proprietor of the New Amsterdam hotel, the jury disagreeing, was, with his wife, Fayne Strahan Moore, arraigned before Judge Newburger in part one of the general sessions yesterday morning on the charge of grand larceny.

This new charge is the taking of silverware, valued at two hundred dollars, from the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, where they were guests.

The indictments against the Moores were returned by the grand jury on Monday.

The Buffalo's Second Start.

New York, Dec. 7.—The United States cruiser Buffalo, Commander Hemphill, left the local navy yard at 11.30 a. m. Tuesday for Manila.

This is her second start, the vessel having put back once by way of Newport, R. I., for repairs, owing to sea valves getting out of order.

The Buffalo has on board seven hundred sailors for Admiral Dewey's fleet, to supply the places of those whose terms have expired. She also carries miscellaneous stores.

The Portland Victims.

Chatham, Mass., Dec. 7.—Four more bodies from the steamer Portland came ashore during yesterday. All of them apparently had been buried in the sand and uncovered by the gale of Sunday.

One of the bodies was that of a woman; of the others, one was that of a colored man.

This makes a total of thirty-one bodies thus far recovered from the wreck of the Portland.

The Maine Victims.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—Senator Hale, Republican of Maine, yesterday introduced a joint resolution authorizing the secretary of the navy to erect a monument in Havana, Cuba, to the memory of the sailors and marines who lost their lives by the explosion of the Maine.

The bill is recommended by the navy department.

THE KAISER FOR PEACE

Will Use His Powers to Promote Eternal Truths of Christianity.

ADDRESSES THE REICHSTAG

Emperor William Approves the Czar's Proposal in His Speech Opening the Reichstag. He Favors the Promotion of Economic Relations with China.

Berlin, Dec. 7.—The reichstag was opened yesterday by Emperor William, who, after announcing the introduction of a series of social and labor bills, and the completion of the organization of the army, said that Germany's relations with all the foreign powers continued to be friendly and that the principal object of his policy would be to contribute to the maintainence of peace.

Therefore, his majesty hailed with warm approval the czar's magnanimous proposal for the furtherance of that object.

Continuing, the emperor referred to the assassination of the Empress of Austria as being a savage and ruthless act, which had caused him deep pain and which had evoked the most sincere sympathy throughout Germany.

Referring to the anti-Anarchist conference at Rome, the emperor said the readiness with which the invitation had been accepted by the powers justified the hope that its deliberations would have practical results.

Alluding to the war between Spain and the United States, his majesty said Germany's neutrality was conscientiously and loyally observed toward both belligerents.

Then, dealing with colonial affairs, Emperor William pointed out the measures taken for the economic development of Kiao-Chou, declaring that while conscientiously respecting the well acquired rights of third parties, the German government would direct its efforts to the further promotion of its economic relations with China, which are yearly growing more important.

The emperor concluded with referring to his visit to Palestine, saying he hoped the brilliant reception accorded him by the Sultan and the Turkish people everywhere would prove to be of permanent benefit to German prestige and national interests.

He said that it was with deep emotion that he had visited with the empress spots rendered dear to the whole of Christendom by the sufferings of the Savior, adding:

"The anxious desire of my three predecessors on the throne of Prussia was to erect there a place of worship of the evangelical confession. That it was granted to me to fulfill this desire and hand over the Redeemer's church at Jerusalem to the service of the Lord is a fresh incentive to me to further employ the power vested in me by the grace of God in behalf of the eternal and fundamental truths of Christianity."

His majesty, who arrived at noon yesterday, was accompanied by his sons and the Persian Prince Mirza. The empress sat in the grand balcony.

After the Centrist leader, Lingens, had called for three cheers for his majesty, the imperial chancellor Prince Hohenlohe, handed the speech to the emperor, who read it in a loud tone of voice.

Judge Robertson Dead.

Katonah, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Former Congressman and Collector William H. Robertson is dead at his home in this place.

For the last year he had been suffering from paralysis of the brain. He was about 70 years of age.

Mr. Robinson's appointment to the office of collector of the port of New York by President Garfield, without consultation with the senators from this state, Roscoe Conkling and Thomas C. Platt, led to a split in the Republican party and the resignation of the senators.

This occurred in 1881. Out of it grew indirectly the assassination of the late President Garfield, and a quarrel in the Republican party that shattered the hopes of its leaders for many years in succession.

Hospital Ship Explosion.

New York, Dec. 7.—An explosion occurred at 10.30 o'clock yesterday morning on the marine hospital ship Bay State, lying at the foot of Pacific street, Brooklyn.

One man was killed, another seriously injured and eleven were overcome by ammonia fumes.

The explosion occurred in the ice making machine, which was in charge of Robert Twist.

A force of men was engaged in cleaning out the coils which contain ammonia.

Mine Kills Four Men.

Boston, Dec. 7.—Four men were killed and several seriously injured at Fort Independence on Castle Island, in Boston harbor yesterday afternoon by the explosion of a mine which had been removed from the channel by a diver.

The men were engaged in carting the mine from the shore to the interior of the island to replace it with other implements of the same nature which had been taken there since the war ended.

Fatal Elevator Accident.

New York, Dec. 7.—Shortly after two o'clock yesterday afternoon the elevator in the building at 55 William street, in the borough of Manhattan, was crushed to atoms by the dislodgment and falling of the heavy engine drum at the top of the elevator shaft. One man was killed, one fatally and two slightly injured.

Ultimatum to Chinese.

Peking, Dec. 7.—The French minister, M. Gerard, has sent an ultimatum to the Chinese foreign office, threatening that unless the French missionary now held a prisoner by the rebels in the province of Sze-Chuen, be released within ten days, a force of French troops will be ordered to cross the frontier.

M'KINLEY'S IMMENSE POWER.

Belief that Congress Will Concede Everything He Wants.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—Ex-Congressman S. V. White and other prominent financiers, who attended the opening session of Congress, have left the capital convinced that President McKinley has the power to put through Congress everything that he wants, the Nicaragua canal, the reorganization of the army and the treaty of peace. The opponents of the president's policy are disheartened and without hope.

They cannot make any combinations that are worthy of the name and do not know which way to turn in their dilemma.

A prominent Democratic senator made this remark on the floor of the senate yesterday:

"I hope President McKinley will be renominated and elected. I can get more out of him than I ever could out of a Democratic president." And so it goes.

Although Congress has only been in session twenty-four hours, President McKinley has already seen and conversed with nearly all of the leaders, both Democrats and Republicans. He knows them all personally and they all personally like him.

He also knows the men who can be of no service whatever to him. Upon these he never wastes any patronage, so that what he gives is given with discretion and great political judgment.

The politicians respect him and do not hesitate to say that he is the cleverest politician that has ever been in the White House and that by the time he gets through handing out the immense patronage that will shortly be at his disposal, he will have Congress in a position to concede anything that he desires.

NEW ARMY BILL.

It Increases the Regulars to the Number of 100,000.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—The bill for the increase of the army is completed and will be reported to the House to-day by Chairman Hull. It is not a bill for the reorganization of the army.

Mr. Hull says: "The bill provides for the increase of the army as required by the war. What I want is to get our volunteers discharged by so increasing the number of regulars, as to do away with the necessity of keeping the former in the service. The measure provides for the increase of the regular army to one hundred thousand men. It has been estimated that the companies will be increased to about 144 men. It does not provide for additional second lieutenants, as I proposed, nor for a general increase of officers, except as new organizations are formed, or, in other words, only where under the increase new regiments are necessary. The bill, however, increases the number of noncommissioned officers.

It does not go as far as General Miles recommends in the higher ranks, for it only provides for the revival of one lieutenant general.

General Miles recommended one general and two lieutenant generals. The new bill provides for an increase in the departmental staffs, such as those of the adjutant general, quartermaster general, commissary general, medical and other departments.

There is a large increase in the latter department.

Keep Old Glory Pure.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—At a meeting of the American Flag Day Association at the Great Northern Hotel, a bill, to be presented to Congress, was adopted by the meeting.

It makes it unlawful to use the flag for advertising or trade purposes or in any way that will tend to its desecration.

The penalty for the first offense is fixed at a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, and for the second offense an imprisonment of one year and a fine of not less than one thousand dollars.

The association is to be supported in its undertaking by the Sons of the American Revolution, the Grand Army of the Republic and the Society of Colonial Wars of Illinois.

Embalming Examiners.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Governor Black has appointed the board of embalming examiners of the state of New York, as authorized by chapter 555 of the laws of 1898. The appointees are:

William J. Phillips of Albany, Cornelius E. Burns of Troy, H. T. Selfridge of Poughkeepsie, J. Charles Burnton of New York city and John T. Gallagher of Brooklyn.

The law creating this board provides that no person shall hereafter practice embalming in this state unless he shall have passed an examination of fitness which is to be prepared by the state board of embalmers and has received a certificate of qualification from the board.

Food Adulterations.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 7.—State Dairy Commissioner McGuire's annual report for the fiscal year ending the first of November, which is now ready for the printer, will contain a full review of the commissioner's work in the analysis of food and drugs under the various acts prohibiting adulterations.

The report will show that 752 samples were analyzed, and that of these 208 were adulterated.

The commissioner says that he has had a good deal of trouble to prevent the sale of oleomargarine for butter, because of the small amount of money at his disposal to make the necessary inspection.

For Currency Reform.

Baltimore, Dec. 7.—At a meeting of the Baltimore Board of Trade yesterday a resolution was adopted asking the Maryland delegation in Congress to use its influence toward persuading President McKinley to call an extra session of Congress after March 4, 1899, to enact legislation firmly establishing the gold standard and providing for a reformation of the currency system.

Another resolution also asks the delegation to support legislation in favor of the proposed exhibition in the interest of exports which is to be held in Philadelphia.

The Result of Election.

A wave of Republicanism swept over Plainfield yesterday. It extinguished the struggling Citizens who were striving for municipal officers and buried them out of sight. While a Republican victory was generally predicted, the size and completeness of the one that appeared had only been anticipated by the most sanguine. When the battle came, the strength of the opposition to the Republican machine did not prove as formidable as was expected.

After the municipal election last year when the Citizens made such an excellent showing without organization and united effort, it was predicted that this winter would see the complete and utter downfall of the Republican party from power in municipal affairs. So the campaign that is now at an end was watched for with unusual interest. Early in the fall, the rumblings of the storm that was threatening the Republican party began to be heard and it was said that this election would see the Citizens in the race more able to cope with their rivals than ever before.

Then came the movement looking toward the reorganization of the Democratic party and the putting of a Democratic ticket in the field for the municipal election. The plan was defeated by some of the party leaders, but there can be no doubt that it figured in the causes of the Republican victory. When election day came, there were many Democrats who refused to vote at all and others who voted the straight Republican ticket believing it preferable to give their support to an organization rather than to a ticket not accountable to any one.

The campaign that closed yesterday has been an exciting one. Most of the work was one of a personal nature although the Citizens held several mass meetings in the Fourth ward and published a little campaign newspaper, the Plainfield Citizen, which was distributed broadcast through the city. Two issues appeared, the last one Monday afternoon. Criticism there was plenty of by both parties. A little metaphorical "mud" was slung. It was, however, a pretty orderly campaign in which both sides took an active part. It was the first time in several years that the Republican machine was called to buck up against anything like organized opposition.

Senator Reed's Chances Good.

The polttical fates seem to be looking kindly upon the aspirations of Senator Reed with respect to the Presidency of the State Senate. Yesterday the G. O. P. politicians gathered at Trenton to see how things were going, and it was the general sentiment that the Tall Sycamore of Somerset was practically sure of gaining the honor of being the second officer of the State.

The boom for Senator Ketcham for President of the Senate has fallen flat. The great majority of the Senators are pledged to either Senator Reed or Senator Johnson, of Bergen, and the declaration of United States Senator Sewell, and State Chairman Murphy in Mr. Ketcham's favor has not changed any Senator's preference. The fact that the South Jersey Senators are sticking to Senator Reed gives color to the statement that Senator Sewell is not seeking to force Ketcham's election. The friends of Senator Johnson are not forcing the fight. He has simply announced himself as a candidate and is leaving the results to the Senators themselves.

Senator Reed and his friends have been more aggressive, and claim pledges enough to win. It operates in Senator Reed's favor that Senator Johnson has three years to serve, having just been re-elected, and that he can be made President another year, while this is Senator Reed's last year of his term, and Somerset is a very close county politically. If Senator Reed is made President Senator Johnson will be urged to take the leadership on tee floor.

It is a matter of interest to all Plainfielders that when the business of the local postoffice increases the postal facilities also increase. It is well for residents to bear this fact in mind when they feel like finding fault, and make their stamp purchases in town instead of New York.

The excellence of the report of The Daily Press of the city election yesterday is seen at a glance, though it is the reading of the details that evidence the strict attention and enterprise which characterizes the work of The Daily Press reporters.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The return by Game Warden Shriner to a Plainfield man convicted of having rabbits unlawfully in his possession, of the State's share of the fine, is an admission that the conviction, if strictly legal, was unjust, and that the law which permitted it needs amendment. The Plainfield man shot the rabbits lawfully in New York, where the open season begins earlier than in New Jersey, and brought them to his home. He was in ignorance of the fact that the game laws of New Jersey impose a heavy fine upon any person having rabbits in his possession at any other time than during the open season, no matter how he may have obtained them. The Plainfielder made no effort to conceal his game, and among those who saw the rabbits were two who knew the provisions of the law, and that a large share of the fines went to the informer. They lodged a complaint against the gunner, and his conviction followed.—Newark News.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Some of the advantages of having only one session in the public schools, as now prevails in the Stillman and the Whittier schools, are thus presented.

1—The attendance of the school has been better. 2—The work of many pupils has improved 3—It has enabled those students that wished to do their home work in the afternoon by daylight, leaving the evening free. 4—In some cases it has permitted out-of-door exercise that was needed. 5—In many cases it has made it possible for pupils to return in the afternoon and get needed help from the teacher.

On the other hand it will be a disadvantage to many mothers; 1—Because the pupils will not get home to dinner until 1:15 or 1:30. 2—Because they must get breakfast early, to reach school at 8:20

Queer Antics of an Old Man Who Prowls About at Night.

James Gordon is an old man who resides with a cousin on Jefferson avenue. Gordon is supposed to be out of his head. Not violently, but is said to be incapable of taking proper care of himself or to conduct himself as people with sane minds do.

His latest caper is a desire to get up in the middle of the night and go around the house from room to room, tapping softly at the doors, and awakening the people with his queer movements. Gordon would not harm a child, but imagines there is a need of some one in the house keeping awake nights to prevent a surprise which he anticipates.

The members of the family have applied to the authorities to have Gordon placed somewhere for safe keeping. Chief Grant will have him sent to the Morris Plains asylum as soon as possible.

A LARGE store, a large experience and a large stock places us in a position to do the toy business of this community. Never before have the people of Plainfield been shown so great a variety of choice toys, selected for their attractiveness, durability and inexpensiveness. The time is now here for making your selections. Our stock is growing beautifully less day by day, and the crowds of shoppers are increasing accordingly. We cannot impress upon you too strongly the importance of making your purchases now. Later on our facilities for promptly serving the rush of buyers will be greatly taxed. Not only so, but our stock will be greatly depleted.

Don't get the impression from all this that toys are the only Holiday goods we have to offer. Sensible fancy goods in variety are scattered throughout the various departments. New, original and exclusive.

The little ones always associate Christmas time with the pantomine and in many parts of the world it is always the feature of the theatres in the holiday season. When George Thatcher's Fashionable Vaude ilies appear at Music Hall Christmas afternoon and evening, this form of entertainment will be one of the features. Santa Claus in all his glory will be represented, and the merry harlequin and dancing columbine will add greatly to the many novelties to be presented.

What the Colored Pastor Said.

The Daily Press is glad to correct the error made in quoting the remarks of Rev. Mr. Mitchell at the colored mass meeting Saturday evening. Instead of stating that he hoped the time would never come when the negro would be in power, he did say that he hoped the time would never come when the negroes would attempt to establish a separate party and leave the ranks of the Republican party. The negro's duty, he said, was to consider his condition and absorb and cultivate the civilization by which he is environed.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

YOU'RE READING THIS?

CERTAINLY!

Well, Mr. Merchant-who-thinks-of-advertising, this is only one of the many corners in THE DAILY PRESS—it isn't the best located one, either; we can give you better—and if this attracts your attention in our endeavor to tell you how good advertising will get you a hearing before the purchasing public, doesn't common sense teach you that if you were having people reading your trade story instead of you're reading our argument about it, that it would be better for your business.

THE DAILY PRESS reaches the purchasing public that makes the profits for the merchant.

We can give you big or little space—but in advertising it is'nt always economy to be sparing in your appropriation.

CLEAN TOWEL SUPPLY COMPANIES.

They Originated in Chicago and Are Now Located in all Large Cities.

The clean towel supply business, which originated in Chicago, was introduced in New York in 1884. It has thrived here, and there are now about twenty-five concerns engaged in the business in this city, with thousands of customers, whose number are constantly increasing. There are a great many towel users who never dreamed of taking towels from towel supply concerns when the business was first started who now wouldn't think of getting them in any other way.

Cabinets are supplied with a place to keep the towels in, and they are also provided with a comb and brush, a whisk broom, a soapdish and soap. The cabinets are made in a variety of styles and sizes, each having a mirror in the front. Either hand or roller towels are provided, or both. The minimum supply furnished is four clean hand towels a week, and once a week the used towels are taken up and replaced with clean ones, the soap renewed if it is out, and the other articles of the equipment looked after.

Towels are supplied to banks, stores, offices and pretty much all sorts of business places, in many of which a large number are used, the supply being renewed as often as may be required. There is one concern that supplies towels with the customer's initials on them, using a double set for each customer and supplying each with the same towels always. There are now supplied bootblacking outfits, with polishing brush, dauber and blacking, the blacking supply being constantly renewed, all for so much a month. The towel supply business has now spread all over the country and it is established in all the large cities.—New York Sun.

Frederick as a Flut'st.

Frederick the Great made generous presents to all musicians except flute players. He played the flute remarkably well himself, and his proficiency sometimes led to acts that caused disappointment to his brother artists. A famous flutist once visited Potsdam, and asked permission to play to the king, hoping that Frederick would show his appreciation of his skill by some valuable gift. Frederick received him graciously and listened attentively while he played a difficult piece. "You play very well," he said, "and I am very glad to have heard of such ability. I will give you a proof of my satisfaction." So saying he left the room. The musician waited, guessing at the probable nature of the "proof." Presently the king returned with his own flute and played the same piece which had just been executed for him. Then he bade his visitor "Good day," saying: "I have had the pleasure of hearing you and it was only fair that you should hear me."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

No Blood Relation.

Not long ago some young people out in the country who were to give a ball thought they would be badly disappointed because the old man who had fiddled for all their balls as far back as they could remember suddenly lost his wife.

She died the very day the dance was to come off, and her funeral was to take place the day after, so, of course, they gave him up and tried to make the best of things without him.

Imagine, then, their amazement when the time for the ball came to see him come marching in just as usual, fiddle and all, and take his seat in the old accustomed place. They were delighted, and yet a little shocked, too, and one of the young men went up to ask him the explanation.

"Wall, ye see," drawled the old man, as he twanged his fiddle into tune, "ye see I didn't like t' miss th' dance, an' then it ain't so much, 'cause arter all the ol' lady warn't no blood relation, ye know."—Cleveland Plaindealer.

Doctor—Why don't you marry the girl?—Tid-Bits.

"Trifles," said the Cornfield Philosopher, "are well known to make the greater sum of women's happiness, which is doubtless the reason a woman is generally so happy with a trifling man."—Indianapolis Journal.

"My papa makes pictures, and he's a painter," said one little tot proudly to another.

"My papa," declared the other, as she swelled to the limit of her tiny proportions, "makes busts and he's a—he's a—he's a buster, that's what he is."—Detroit Free Press.

Husband (at the breakfast table). Oh, for some of those biscuits my mother used to make!"

Wife (sweetly). I'm sorry you haven't got them, dear. They would be just about stale enough by this time to go well with that remark.—Chicago News.

They have been "keeping company" for eight years, and when he finally proposed and was accepted, in his ardor of his enthusiasm he exclaimed: "Darling, you are worth your weight in gold!" With almost cruel facetiousness she replied, "That is saying a good deal, for it was an awful long wait."—Richmond Dispatch.

AN OLD BUT GOOD ANECDOTE.

The Story of the Irishman's Experiences in Battle.

This gallant son of Erin need never fear that he will be cornered. He was among the first to offer his services at the beginning of the war, but his employer, who did not want to lose his services, whispered into the ear of the examining surgeon that Mike had once been made temporarily deaf by an explosion in a mine and that his hearing had never been good since.

"Do you hear well?" asked the doctor, when Mike was under medical inspection.

"Loike a weasel, sor."

"Has your hearing always been good?"

"Splindid, sor."

"See here, my man, weren't you in a mine explosion before you came to Detroit, and wern't you totally deaf for weeks after?"

"Not me, sor," replied Mike without hesitation. "I could hear ivery wurrud that wore wrote to me, sor."

Mike was accepted, as he deserved to be, and was in the great land battle of the war. He was wounded in the chest and came home on furlough. He was made so much of that he felt justified in exaggerating his experiences. Among other things he got to telling that "the bullet wint right t'rough me here," as he put his hand over his heart.

Mike told this to the same surgeon when a number of others were present, and the doctor saw a chance to get even. "Mike! Mike!" he exclaimed, "stick to the truth. If the bullet had taken the course you say, it would have gone plump through your heart. Tell that to some ignoramus that does not know anything about anatomy."

"Phat are yez talkin' about?" retorted Mike, who was evidently thinking fast. "Shure, it's the book l'arnin' that's foolin' yez, doc. There wasn't a mother's son wint up the blazin' bloody hill thot day as his heart wasn't in his mout.'"—Detroit Free Press.

OUR CURIOUS ANATOMY.

We are All Partly Blind and Insensible to Pain.

It will probably be a shock to many readers to learn that, without any exception, they are all partly blind and insensible to pain.

It has been clearly demonstrated by exhaustive experiments that every human eye is blind in one particular part, varying in locality and size with the individual. This can be easily proved by tracing a hundred curved and parallel lines on a large sheet of paper, and passing up and down each meridian in turn a disc of black paper one inch in diameter, until the whole area of the sheet of paper has been covered. In following the movements of the disc it will be found that at a certain part of its progress it cannot be seen at all; and this is when the "blind spot" in the eye is focused on it.

This blind spot, which is irregular in shape, is caused by the optic nerve which enters the retina, and thus obscures part of the picture photographed (as it were) upon it. The entire scene looked upon is clearly depicted with the exception of the part which should appear on the point of the retina covered by the optic nerve at its point of entry.

Similarly, scientific experiment proves that there are thousands of minute parts of the body which are incapable of feeling. You may touch them with a hot needle, or even, to push the experiment further, you may thrust the needle deeply into the part without any pain being felt. All parts of the body share this peculiar insensibility to pain; but the unfortunate thing is that these "dead points" are so mixed up with parts that are keenly alive, that, unless the point of contact is confined to the dead point, the pain is all too manifest.

Scent Bottle of Sydney.

One of the oddest ornaments of which a city ever boasted stands in Sydney, Australia. It is called "the scent bottle of Sydney," and is for the purpose of drawing the gases from the sewerage system of the city. It is constructed of brick work, rended over with cement stucco, and is eighty-seven feet high to the top of the casting surmounting the brick work.

When the shaft was completed it was intended to purify the air escaping from the sewer by means of charcoal, and trays containing charcoal were placed in the bottom of the shaft so that all air escaping from the sewer must pass the material. This was, however, found inoperative and was discontinued. Subsequently fire was suggested, but this in turn proved unsatisfactory.

The "scent bottle" is not an eyesore. Its business is so disguised that it is an object of beauty, and is readily mistaken for a monument. Indeed, it is the biggest, most conspicuous and picturesque of all the notable monuments in New South Wales.—New York Herald.

Just Like a Boston Boy.

There is a certain bright small boy in town who is the son of a gentleman who was born in England, and who remains a British subject. The boy goes to an American school, and lately has been taking his first dip in patriotic American school history. The other night he looked up from his book musingly and said: "Papa licked you awfully in 1812, didn't he?"—Boston Transcript.

Local-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Oesterreich.

Wien. Die Einwölbung der Wien macht jetzt starke Fortschritte. Die gewaltigen Bogen, auf welche eine Betonschichte aufgelegt wird, wölben sich schon bis nahe zur ehemaligen Elisabethbrücke. Das herrschende günstige Wetter kommt den Arbeiten so sehr zu Statten, daß die Einwölbung des Flusses bis zur Schikanederbrücke noch im heurigen Jahre durchgeführt sein dürfte. —Die Pfründnerin Ludmilla Strobel hat sich in der Neulerchenfelder Kirche, weil ihr der Pfarrer eine Unterstützung versagte, mit einer Scheere die Pulsadern an der linken Hand durchschnitten. Die Person, die sich in unzurechnungsfähigem Zustande zu befinden schien, wurde nach Anlegung eines Nothverbandes in's Allgemeine Krankenhaus gebracht.

Bozen. Von der am Fuße des Kollererberges befindlichen Felswand, nächst Seit im Etschthal, ist der Realitätenbesitzerssohn Friedrich Hofer abgestürzt und wurde als verstümmelte Leiche aufgefunden.

Budapest. Von Wien aus wurde kürzlich hier ein schändliches Börsenmanöver durch die Verbreitung des Gerüchtes von einem Attentat auf den Kaiser Franz Joseph in Goedoelloe versucht.

Graz. Auf den hiesigen Friedhöfen belegte die Polizei die Leichensteine der bei den vorjährigen Tumulten vom bosnischen Militär getödteten Arbeiter mit Beschlag.

Laa. Der hier wohnhafte Vater des in Wien an der Beulenpest gestorbenen Laboratoriumsdieners Barisch ist von einem Düngerwagen überfahren worden und hat schwere, wahrscheinlich tödtliche, Verletzungen erhalten.

Oedenburg. Der nach Preßburg zuständige Sozialist Heinrich Kalmar, der als Hilfsredakteur beim hiesigen Sozialistenblatte angestellt war, wurde vom Stadthauptmannamte wegen Aufreizung gegen die Ordnung in öffentlichen Versammlungen aus Oedenburg ausgewiesen.

Rudolfswert. Hier wurde der wegen Raubmordes zum Tode verurtheilte Arbeiter Mathias Rezek hingerichtet. In Krain hat seit 30 Jahren keine Hinrichtung stattgefunden.

Spillern. Als neulich der Bahnwächter Joseph Kolb im berauschten Zustande mit seinem Dienstrevolver hantirte und zum Scherz den Lauf an die Stirne anlegte, entlud sich ein Schuß. Die Kugel blieb im Kopfe stecken und führte den sofortigen Tod des Unglücklichen, der keineswegs einen Selbstmord beabsichtigte, herbei.

Schweiz.

Bern. Die Weltausstellung in Paris 1900, für die eine reichliche Bundessubvention durch die eidgenössischen Räthe beschlossen worden ist, hat trotz dieser und anderer nicht ungünstiger Bedingungen unsere industrielle Welt bis jetzt äußerst kühl gelassen. Ausstellungsmüdigkeit und gewisse Verhältnisse in Frankreich wirken dabei mit.—Die Zahl der Studenten und Zuhörer an den schweizerischen Universitäten und Akademien im Sommer 1898 betrug im Ganzen 4090 (immatrikulirte Studenten 3494, Hörer 596). Auf die Schweiz entfallen 1881, auf das Ausland 1613 Studenten. Von der Gesammtzahl der Studirenden gehören 3314 dem männlichen und 676 dem weiblichen Geschlechte an.

Zürich. In Zürich wurde der Hauptkassirer der Aktiengesellschaft der Wiener Lokalbahnen, Robert Ullepitsch v. Krainfels, der nach Unterschlagung von 10,000 bis 15,000 Gulden flüchtig wurde, als er gerade von einem Ausflug zurückkehrte, verhaftet.

Luzern. In Luzern werden mindestens 400 Fremdenbetten für die nächste Saison in Folge der diversen neuen Hotelbauten mehr als bisher zur Verfügung stehen. Luzern verzeichnete vom 1. bis 15. Oktober noch 3834 in den Gasthöfen abgestiegene Fremde. Total seit 1. Mai 102,168 gegenüber 95,258 im Vorjahre.

Graubünden. Die Stadtgemeinde Chur bewilligte 500,000 Francs Subvention in Aktien für die Albulabahn. Damit ist die Finanzirung vollständig gesichert.—Im Beverserthal ist der Tunnel für die Albulabahn in Angriff genommen worden. Die Tunnelausmündung liegt 1818 Meter über Meer.

Wallis. Dieser Tage ist E. Kathrein aus Brieg, Besitzer des Hotel „Jungfrau" am Eggishorn, mit Frau nebst Sohn und Tochter und 60 Personen nach dem Kap der Guten Hoffnung ausgewandert. Die Engländer, welche seit Jahren die Sommermonate auf Eggishorn zubrachten, haben am Kap unter Leitung Kathreins ein Hotel ersten Ranges erbaut. Die Führung des Hotels soll nach schweizerischem System gestaltet werden, darum hat Herr Kathrein, der schon letztes Jahr eine Reise an's Kap unternahm, Walliser und Walliserinnen, lauter vertraute Hotelbedienstete, mitgenommen.

CHARACTER IN HANDWRITING.

Easy Way to Make Accurate Analysis of a Person's Disposition.

For a little impromptu fun when a few friends happen to drop in ask each one to write any quotation that pops into his or her head and carefully sign name in full. Pen and ink are better than pencil, but the latter will answer in a pinch. If the writing is dark this shows a leaning toward athletics and a love for outdoor life and sports. If the letters are slender and faint the writer is reserved and rarely shows emotion or becomes confidental. Sloping letters indicate a very sensitive disposition, whereas those that are straight up and down evince ability to face the world and throw off the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune."

Curls and loops are out of fashion nowadays, but any inclination to ornate penmanship is a sure indication of a leaning toward the romantic and sentimental, while the least desire to shade a letter shows imagination and a tendency to idealize common things. If the same letter is formed differently by the same person this shows love of change. Long loops or endings to the letters indicate that the writer "wears his heart upon his sleeve," or in other words, is trusting, non-secretive, and very fond of company. If the "y" has a specially long finish, this shows affectation, but if the same person is also careless about crossing the "ts," the combination is an unhappy one, as it points to fickleness in work and affectation. A curved cross on the "t," or the incurving of the first letters of a word shows an affectionate and good-natured disposition if taken separately; but if the two are indulged in by the same writer it is a sign of jealousy.

Writing that is rather small points to cleverness, quick intuitions, a liking for one's own way, brilliant intellect, and fine powers of penetration. Round, jolly, comfortable looking letters betoken a disposition to correspond.

With these hints in mind it will be surprising how many caps may be found to fit ourselves and our friends. —Chicago Inter Ocean.

CACHES IN THE ARCTIC REGION.

Places Where Explorers Store their Provisions.

An Artic expedition moving overland practically always intends to return by the same route. Even in these days of compressed foods the weight of several months' provender for a large party is considerable. Therefore it is stored in caches along the route, several days' journey apart.

What is simply a hole in the ground is first dug—a matter of extreme difficulty at times. Then, painfully digging elsewhere, earth is brought to the surface, and a quantity of this is dumped into the hole. Ice is melted and the water from it poured upon the earth, the entire mixture freezing in a few moments into a compact cache. On it the provisions the party want to put aside for a future day are laid, so many pounds for each man, carefully calculated. There should be just enough to support life comfortably until the next cache is reached on the return, with two or three days' rations over for emergencies.

With stones, ice and snow the walls of the cache are now built up, water being poured over the snowy structure hermetically to seal it. It is a point of honor, among even the poorest natives, not to rifle a cache unless in cases of the direst necessity; but the provisions must be kept safe from the bears. Properly built, the structure is impregnable, and it needs the work of pickaxes to tear it open.

It is marked by anything the explorers can spare or find in the vicinity, generally by a staff of wood. In Siberia the tooth of a mammoth is not infrequently used. Despite this precaution, however, many caches can never be found again.

If rendered provisionless in this manner, the party must resort to its guns and hunt for the musk ox, the white bear and the seal, which sometimer are in easy reach, but more frequently not to be found at all. Game in these regions is never to be depended upon.

Painting the Emperor's Portrait.

Not long ago the German Emperor wished to have his portrait painted by an English painter, and a certain well-known artist was recommended to him. The artist received and accepted the imperial commission, arrived at Berlin, and made the acquaintance of the Kaiser. The artist prepared for the first sitting with some considerable dread. He was conducted to a very large room in the palace, scantily furnished in cheerless splendor, where the Kaiser awaited him. "You don't like this room?" said the Kaiser, before many minutes had elapsed. "What sort of a room would you like?" "Oh," said the artist," "a small room, cosey and com- furnished." "I thought so," aiser; I didn't choose this hey inspected rooms to- artist was satisfied. egan. "Now," said inutes later, "you at home; you are w do you like oat off—hat on— st tersely. "Just ser, "that is exactly e you to paint. Now, lf at home and com- e will talk about Eng- nd there the German English artist each o-day.

A DUBIOUS COMPLIMENT.

But the Man Possessed the President's Endorsement on His Note.

"I'll tell you a story about President Cleveland that you probably never heard," said a prominent Detroiter the other day. "One of those rascally loafers in Washington who sometimes find their way into office, rented the house of an aged widow who was dependent on that source for her entire income. He put her off from month to month and finally laughed in her face as he told her that he wouldn't pay, and that she couldn't make him pay. He would not go out till the law put him out, and he would avail himself of all the delays possible. She consulted a lawyer who had been a friend of her family for years, but the loaferish officeholder was even more impudent to him. The case was so hard that he went personally to the president, who heard the facts and then said in an indignant tone: 'Get the fellow's note.'

"'But his note isn't worth the paper it is written on.'

"'No matter. Get his note and bring it to me.'

"There was no trouble in carrying out this request, the debtor expressing his delight at being allowed to settle at the trouble of writing a worthless obligation. The lawyer took it to the president and said: 'Now what?'

"'This,' replied the president, as he wrote his name across the back. 'I indorse it; now demand payment.'

"The officeholder was in a leading hotel when the lawyer walked up to him and asked a settlement as he handed him the note. The fellow sneered until he turned the paper over. Then he turned purple, stammered out a request that the lawyer wait there for ten minutes and inside of that time he was back with the money. From then on he was smart enough to pay as he went, and now plumes himself on the fact that the president of the United States once indorsed his personal note."—Detroit Free Press.

HER DETERMINATION WON.

Miss Dix Gained the Interest of the Chairman for Insane Asylums.

In her early attempts to right the wrongs of the insane, Dorothy Dix met only discouragement and coldness, or indifference, which is worse; but she did not cease to labor, and if she lost heart no one but herself knew it. She asked for an interview with the chairman of the most important House Committee in the Carolina Legislature. He declined the interview under the pretext of pressure of business.

"Very well," wrote Miss Dix, "I must see you. You will call on me or I shall call on you."

The chairman then went to see Miss Dix. He entered the room, hat in hand, a bundle of papers under his arm, and declined the proffered chair.

"I have called," he said. "I am in haste. Will you make your business known as quick as possible?"

The lady began to speak. Eloquently she pleaded the cause of the insane. She spoke from a full heart and a well stored mind. Her listener became interested; he forgot that he was in a hurry, sat down, piled his papers on the floor and heard with rapt attention. The interview lasted three hours, and the chairman was won over to the cause, and he was after a strong ally of Miss Dix in her noble work. Thirty-three lunatic asylums in this country owe their beginning to Miss Dix.—Youth's Companion.

A Land Without Women.

There is only one territory of any size—and never has been but one—occupied by any considerable population from which woman is absolutely excluded. Yet such a place exists to-day and has existed for centuries. As far back as history reaches, to all females it has been forbidden ground. This country without women is situated on a bold plateau, between the old peninsula of Acte, in the Grecian archipelago, and the mainland. Here in the midst of cultivated fields and extensive woodlands dwells a monastic confederation of Greek Christians with twenty-three convents, and numbering more than 7,000 souls. Not one of the monasteries dates from a later time than the twelfth century. A few soldiers guard the borders of the main land, and no woman is allowed to cross the frontier. Nor is this all, the rule is extended to every female creature, and from time immemorial no cow, mare, hen, duck or goose has been permitted to enter this territory.—Chicago Record.

JUST MY LUCK.

By Mary F. Haynes.

"It's just my luck!" said Reuben Starbird. "Just my luck! Never knew it to fail. It's always just so."

"What is your luck?" asked Melissa Bird, to whom this speech was addressed. "What do you mean by luck, any way?"

"Why, just what I say," responded Reuben, his chin a trifle less in the air than it had been during his first speech. The crisp, impatient way in which Melissa had spoken was not without its influence. Her voice was pleasant, her smile was pleasant; yet they made him feel that she meant a good deal.

"I mean—why, I mean just this," continued Reuben, making another beginning, since the first did not seem to amount to much. "I mean that, whatever I try to do, things seem to go against me, somehow. I don't see why it is, but I never seem to have no luck," he concluded. This seemed, even to himself, to be rather a lame conclusion, but he did not see his way towards making it any better.

He stood rather awkwardly before her yet much inclined to hold his own, even against his sweetheart.

"What have you been trying to do?" Melissa went on, with the most exasperating coolness and precision.

"Well," said Reuben, desperately, after a considerable pause, during which Melissa stood composedly surveying him with her shapely hands quietly folded over each other. "Well, f' instance, now, I started this morning to get on that seven-thirty train for New York. There's the whistle, and here'm I, a good half mile away."

"Luck!" said Melissa. "I shouldn't think luck had much to do with that. If you had managed to get up half an hour earlier, say, or had walked a little faster"—here she stopped, and blushed in spite of all her efforts.

"If I had not stopped to see you, that is," interposed Reuben, eager to seize the first advantage which he had been able to get in the whole conversation.

"You shouldn't have stopped for anything," retorted Melissa, severely. "If it was really your business to get to that train this morning, you should have been there without any regard to anything else. Did Mr. Travis send you to buy goods?"

"No, no; I'm going on other business. Fact is, Melissa," he said, endeavoring to put on an air of superior smartness and elevating his chin in air, in that aspiring, ineffectual fashion which was as characteristic of him as the pretty air of decision with which Melissa held her well-shaped, softy rounded chin slightly inclined downward was of her; "the fact is, I'm tired of a country store. You never get ahead any; drudge all your life, and never get anywhere. Now, in New York just see what luck a fellow gets into sometimes. Look at all those rich old chaps who went there from the country without a dollar and just see what luck some of 'em dropped into!"

Up went Reub's chin, higher and higher, as he felt himself lifted upon the tide of his own eloquence and ambition.

"They had pluck, and you haven't," said Melissa, with that horrible, relentless directness of speech which always made Reuben tremble in his shoes; "they had what some folks call stickativeness, and you haven't; they——"

"Now look here, hold on, Melissa!" cried Reuben, immensely aggrieved. "Here are you and I, that have been what you may call courting these two years, and this is the way you talk to me, just as I'm really starting out to do something at last. And it's for you as much as for myself that I want to try and be somebody, and get money, and all that."

"Then why don't you go back and attend to the business that you know how to do and can do well, if you only choose to give your mind to it, instead of mooning off after things you can never get?"

Melissa's own heart was sore; but she dared not give way to weakness now. She felt that the critical moment had come for both of them. It was now or never.

"If you take that view of it," said Reuben slowly, "perhaps——"

"I'm trying to take a common-sense view of it," returned Melissa, resolutely choking down a rising sob. "Common sense is the surest thing to depend on in this world. You have a good place here, Reuben, and you will not lose it, unless you lose it by your own fault. Mr. Travis has a good trade, and he is growing old and getting tired of the business. You might just as well have it as anybody. But who is there that you know in New York? Where could you get a place? Do you know anything about the way people do things there?"

"I suppose I'm not such a fool but that I could learn," said Reuben, with much dignity.

He lifted his hat; he turned away. Melissa's heart felt like lead within her breast. But she had done her duty; she had delivered her soul. The issue lay in the hands of Providence. She was a devout believer in Providence; she trusted that "Providence would overrule everything for good." But in spite of all her faith, a horrible secret unbelief kept hinting, "But suppose Reub should be let to go, after all!"

She was very miserable as she sat down on a green bank beside the path through the fields. She could not go any further. The tears began to come thick and fast into the gray eyes. All the fire was gone out of them now.

Would Reuben go, or would he not? That was the only thing which made any distinct impression upon her mind. On that question hung her whole future. She had set her foot down, and she must be firm. Long enough had she endured Reuben's shilly-shallying; either he must change, or she must. Oh, if she could but make him change! Reuben was so kind, so pleasant, so full of fun, so nice, so agreeable; she was so fond of him.

But on the other hand, he was so irresolute, so easily disastisfied with things about him. If he did not stop pretty soon and turn square round and try to stick to something, he would come to be just nothing at all. He would be just like his father, old Isril Starbird!

Melissa could not bear the prick of that thought. She sprang up and walked on fast until she got into the orchard. She paused to wipe away all traces of her tears before she went up the little path, half hidden in the tall grass, up to the back door. Poor girl! She thought it was all for Reuben that she was crying, because he was letting himself down, because he was not going to be the man he might have been. But some of it, too, was for her own pride, for the loss of that secretly longed for, that comfortable and dignified position as the wife of the village storekeeper who always wore a silk dress on a Sunday, and had her bonnets from the city. She, too, had had her fine little air-castles, though they were built upon more solid foundations than Reuben's. It was partly for these that she wept; but more—how much!—for her life which was going to be wasted on account of Reuben's folly, for the home and the happiness which were never to be.

Yet she could not yield. She could not even go to him and say, "If you love me, Reuben." No; she must put it on the solid footing of reason and common sense. If these prevailed, there was hope that Reuben might yet be a man worth loving and marrying. But if they failed, why, then, perhaps it was better——

Here she broke down utterly. She could not help it. Melissa was a heroine in her way; but heroines are human, after all. She meant to be a heroine; but she suffered just like any other woman.

She stole in noiselessly, and shut herself up in her own room. "She had a headache," and that was the last of her for that day. The night was long and sleepless. Next morning she came down stairs, and tried to take up the burdens of life again.

"Melissa," said her mother, "you must go down to the store before breakfast, and see if those things came yesterday; spices an' things, you know. I want 'em to cook with the first thing this forenoon."

"I can't go!" faltered Melissa. "I never slept at all, and I have such a headache. I don't believe I can!"

She shivered at the very thought.

"But you must go. Your father says just ask Mr. Travis which mower's the best."

She stood still for a moment; then she took down her hat and went out. Once on her way, she walked with feverish haste. It would soon be over now. The first glance behind the counter would tell the story for her.

Oh, sight of joy! There stood Reuben, in his blue overalls, briskly opening a cask of molasses, and drawing off two gallons for old Miss Symonds, who stood by, with a Shaker on, intently inspecting the operation.

The sudden relief was too much for her. She felt as if she should have to sit down on the steps of the store. She put her hand on one of the wooden pillars which supported the piazza, to steady herself. Everything was swaying about her eyes; old Jacob Parkins, in the tilted-back chair by the rusty, fireless stove, was dancing up and down, and the hollows and ridges of the uneven floor kept coming up to meet her like the deck of a ship.

Mr. Travis came down from his perch and got the spices for her himself, chuckling, and saying that as Reuben was so busy he didn't suppose she would want to disturb him!

Melissa smiled sweetly, and said,—

"Oh, no! certainly not!"

And she never spoke to Reuben at all. But as she came back across the floor their eyes met, and he colored very red, while she grew pale. But they understood each other, though they did not speak; to say the truth, she could not.

It was all that she could do to walk steadily along the road, and answer the ignorant, unconscious people who addressed her. They did not know that anything had happened. They did not dream that she had lived her life all through since yesterday morning—lived her life all through and given up everything in it that ever she wanted; but now here it was, all before her again, to do just as she pleased with it.

And there was Reuben, back again in his place, with his blue overalls on, just as if nothing had happened. It was nothing to the rest of the world, but it was a great deal to them.

Got It Right at Last.

A farmer who had lost a son in the war, employed the village poet to write an obituary, which ran as follows:

"He for his country fit an' fout Until Death blowed his candle out."

"That won't do," said the bereaved parent, "kaze they don't use candles now. Take another whirl at it."

The poet squared his jaws and presently produced the following:

"He fit and fout with gun and knife,
Till Death blowed out the gas of life."

"That's better now," exclaimed the farmer. "I've blowed out the gas myself many a time."—Atlanta Constitution.

A NEW THEORY FOR MARRIAGE.

Professor's Charts, Not Cupid's Darts, Governed Two Young Hearts.

On the assurance of an expert that they were physically and mentally adapted to each other. John Ward Ellis and Miss Mattie Weaver of Scranton, S. D., were married after an acquaintance of less than an hour. Both were present not long ago at a lecture by Prof. William McShane on "Love, Courtship, and Marriage." The Professor's contention was that men and women pay too little attention in choosing life partners, to similarity of temperament, taste, and education. He urged that these considerations be made peramount in the selection of husbands and wives rather than mere blind passion. To illustrate his theory he picked ten young ladies at random from the audience, defined their characteristics and explained why they should wed husbands of such and such dispositions and habits. Then he made selections for them from among his male hearers.

Ellis and Miss Weaver were among the ideal couples pointed out thus. Neither had ever seen the other before, but so deep an impression did the Professor's words make on them that a brief consultaion between them followed immediately after the lecture at which they determined to act on the speaker's suggestion. It was already so late that it was necessary to drag the Clerk of the Court and a Justice of the Peace from their beds to issue the license and tie the hymeneal knot. Prof. McShane appeared as a witness at the ceremony and emphatically expressed the opinion that a union so wisely formed could not end otherwise than happy.

Ellis is a young farmer near Scranton. His bride is the 22-year-old daughter of a merchant of the town. —Minneapolis Tribune.

HOW IS ENGLAND TO BE FED.

A Great Nation Which Is Living from Hand to Mouth.

A writer in the Nineteenth Century says: I found a general confidence in England that theories of some kind, or luck, or a kind of Providence, or something, would bring them through all right; but I found no one able to satisfy me as to how England could be fed under war conditions. No one seemed to appreciate that in the great wars with Napoleon the United Kingdom was able to feed itself, and that even as late as the Crimean war in 1854-5 the home production was, after deducting seed, 16,427,742 quarters and the imports only 2,983,000 quarters. The present condition of Great Britain is without a parallel either in its own history or the history of any great nation.

England is living from hand to mouth more than people have any idea of. I found from the best authority I could get in Liverpool that in August, when I was there, the supply of wheat in the hands of importers was for between three and four weeks only, inquiry in a number of bakers' shops disclosing the fact that the average supply in them was for about four or five days, in the large bakeries less than a week, in the mills three or four weeks. Two months' stoppage of foreign corn would reduce the rations for the people about one-fourth of what is required, and half of it would have to be secured by the command of many divergent and lengthened sea routes.

THE FINDING OF GUTTA-PERCHA.

It Is Sometimes Erroneously Confounded with Caoutchouc.

Dr. E. F. A. Obach says that gutta-percha began to be recognized in the arts about the year 1845. One of those who called attention to it was Dr. William Montgomery, who states that he first became acquainted with gutta-percha in 1822, when he acted as assistant surgeon to the presidency in Singapore, but lost sight of it until, in 1842, he noticed in the hands of a Malay woodman a parang (woodchopper), the handle of which consisted of a substance which appeared new to him. His curiosity was still further aroused when he learned that the material had the remarkable property of becoming soft and plastic, like clay, in boiling water. He at once made terms with the Malay for the parang, and soon after procured a large quantity of gutta-percha, which he sent to the Society of Arts in London. Gutta-percha has often been confounded with caoutchouc. Dr. Obach gives some points of differentiation, the principal of which is that gutta-percha, becoming soft and plastic on emersion in hot water, retains any shape then given to it in cooling, becoming hard, but not brittle, like other gums. Caoutchouc, on the other hand, does not soften in hot water, retaining its original elasticity and strength always. She seemed to locate the eye of most unimpaired.

Enjoyed It.

"I do so enjoy being at sea, away out of sight of land," said the ingenue.

"It is romantic," assented the soubrette.

"I hadn't thought of that. But when I look all around and see the horizon at the same distance everywhere, there comes over me a delightful sensation of occupying the center of the stage."—Indianapolis Journal.

An Irishman went to a Scotch contractor several times and asked him for a job. The Scotchman, tired of the man's perseverance, told him to go to the devil and see if he could get a job there.

"Ah! shure, be mi sowl, I've been to him," said the Irishman, "and he's taking nobody on but Scotsmen."

QUEER LITERARY CHAP.

CHARACTERISTICS OF NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE DWELT UPON.

The Fifth Lecture in the University Extension Series Delivered Last Night by Prof Albert H.Smyth, of Philadelphia

The apostle of the weird, Nathaniel Hawthorne, formed the subject of the University Extension lecture delivered last night in the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, by Albert H. Smyth, of Philadelphia. This lecture was the fifth in the course on American literature, and was exceedingly interesting, conveying much information in a popular and entertaining way.

Hawthorne's family relations and his early surroundings were first described by Mr. Smyth. His recluse habits, remaining indoors during the day at his writing, and issuing forth at night for a solitary prowl; his early writings and his first publication, "Fanshawe," which he afterwards tried to suppress, were also dwelt upon. The great romancer early showed a fondness for the marvellous; his home, "The Wayside," especially recommended itself to him because a man had lived there who believed he should never die. An odd episode in Hawthorne's life was that of Brook Farm, when that little company lived their almost monastic life together, doing the daily work of the farmstead, studying Greek and writing poetry.

Hawthorne's acquaintance with and admiration for Emerson is shown for us in "The Great Stone Face." The writing of "The Scarlet Letter" was described and the author's view of it given. Hawthorne's later years and his mature work also received attention. This lecture on "The Ghost of New England," as someone has called the representative American author, closed with a careful, clear and sympathetic estimate of the man as a writer. Hawthorne's thoughts turned towards the right side of human nature; it was a gift to him that he could not write a sunshiny book. A selection, "The Dolliver Romance" was also read by Mr. Smyth, showing the smooth construction and easy dialogue. The usual conversation class followed the lecture, during which Mr. Smyth recommended to the university extension students a number of books relating to Hawthorne.

There will be only one more lecture in the American literature course. It will be given Tuesday of next week and will have as its subject, "Lowell and American Culture."

RECEPTION TO PASTOR.

PLEASANT AFFAIR OF PARK AVENUE BAPTIST PEOPLE.

Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Richardson Met Their Parishoners and Enjoyed a Very Pleasant Time Last Evening.

The annual reception was tendered to Pastor Rev. J. W. Richardson and wife, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night, and the affair was a most pleasing one in every respect. These receptions have come to be yearly occasions for the meeting together of pastor and people, and are always well attended and enthusiastic affairs.

Last night's reception was no exception to the rule, for the Sunday-school room was crowded, the members of the church being well represented. Rev. and Mrs. Richardson received standing in front of the pulpit, and they were assisted by Mrs. J. W. Johnson, Mrs. Harry Johnson and Mrs. J. J. Coard. The rooms was decorated with a few pretty lamps and curtains.

The reception was informal, and was an opportunity for many of the church people to become better acquainted.

During the evening a varied programme of music and recitations was rendered, consisting of vocal solos by Mrs. H E Rider, violin solos by Mrs. Nellie Vdel Smith, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Lewis; recitations by Miss Rita Pond, piano solos by Mrs. Harry Johnson, and banjo selections by Fletcher Hallock.

Prior to this Rev. Dr. Yerkes delivered a short address of welcome in which he spoke briefly of the pastor and church. "It is a good thing," he said, "to let your pastor know that you appreciate him. There are many pastors who are liked by the people, but never are told so."

At the close of the programme, refreshments were served. The reception was given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. Thomas A. Cuming was master of ceremonies.

Those who assisted in the cake-room and with the refreshments were: Miss Elizabeth Joseph, Miss Emma V. Fish, Miss May Thompson, Miss Cora Brokaw, Miss Essie Thompson, Miss Nellie Udele Smith, Miss Bessie Giles, Miss Anna Wyckoff, Miss Mary Giles, Miss Jennie Giles, Miss Emily Runyon, Miss Elizabeth Runyon, Miss Ada Runyon, Miss Helen Cuming, Miss F. G Hawkins, Harry Johnson, Fred Dorman and Harry Cuming.

Rider, both of Plainfield, was tried before Judge Vail this morning and the judgment set aside and no cause of action declared. The case was for $200 of commissions claimed by the plaintiff. It was first tried by Justice Moffett in Plainfield, who rendered a verdict for the full amount. Mr. Miller was represented in court by Pope & Runyon and W. S. Angleman. The attorneys for the victorious side were Reed & Coddington. The case will be appealed again.

Judge Gordon, in whose court the trial was to have been held, created surprise by resigning.

THE CITY ELECTION.

of Dr. Richards and B. Frank Coriell, who were scratched on some 20 ballots. One man was challenged on account of his age.

Both parties had their workers in the field, but the G. O. P. ites were in the majority and kept things busy.

THIRD WARD, 2D DISTRICT.

Citizens' Candidates All Run Ahead of Their Ticket, C. C. Burnet Doing Best.

Things were vere very quiet in the Second district of the Third ward. There were 111 ballots cast which was a good showing there. Of that number 72 were Republicans and 39 Citizens'. All the Citizens' candidates ran ahead of their ticket, C. C. Burnet doing the best. Dr. Richards suffered correspondingly on the Republican ticket.

FOURTH WARD, 1st DISTRICT.

Vote Not as Large, by Four as That at State Election in November.

For some reason, the vote in the First district of the Fourth ward was not as large by 4 as the vote at the State election last November. There was another surprise, the Republicans carried the district by 13 votes and Rockfellow received a majority of 14 over Lounsbury. Councilman William N Runyon ran best on the Republican ticket being accorded a majority of 46 over his Citizen opponent. C. C. Burnet and Peter V. Weaver, the Citizen candidate for constable, was the only ones of the ticket to lead their opponents.

The election was very quiet although there were many workers at the polls. A large crowd watched the counting.

FOURTH WARD, 2d DISTRICT

Smith the Only Republican Candidate to Get a Majority.

The excitement over the election in the second district of the Fourth ward reached a high pitch. Both sides had out workers and everybody that passed had to run a gauntlet of them. The vote was heavy. 377. of which one was rejected. The Citizens' ticket led by some 70 votes. Runyon partially overcame that lead. Davis was scratched many times and so Smith managed to carry the district by 29 votes.

When the count was made the polling place was visited by several of the Republican leaders who were refused admission. This district was the last to complete its count, the old method of tallying being used.

FOURTH WARD, 3d DISTRICT.

Republicans and Citizens Broke Even with 155 Votes Each.

Honors were equally divided in the Third District of the Fourth Ward, of the 315 ballots, of which 5 were rejected, the Republicans had 155 and the Citizens 155. Runyon and Smith both ran somewhat ahead of their ticket.

There was no trouble at the polling place during the day, although both parties worked actively all the time the polls were open.

CELEBRATING THE VICTORY.

Drum Corps and New Brooms Played a Prominent Part in it.

As soon as it was assured that the Republican party was victorious all over the city, preparations were made to celebrate the victory in hearty fashion. An immense bonfire was soon roaring away in the centre of Park avenue, just south of the railroad bridge. Anything combustible was quietly hid away to add to the blaze. The light from the fire illuminated all the surrounding neighborhood and soon attracted a large crowd.

John Keeley started to take up a collection among the politicians in the City Clerk's office to get a drum corps or band. A sufficient sum was speedily raised and some of the local drummers and fifers roused out. With the drum corps at the head of the procession it started along Park avenue, stopping at Demarest & Son's grocery. There some fifty new brooms were distributed among the paraders and were soon waving in the air.

The procession of cheering and enthusiastic Republicans made a tour of the city and returned to Park avenue and Second street. A few words were said and all the candidates cheered. Then some of the adventuresome ones seized hold of the night lunch wagon and gave its proprietor a ride. The wagon was pulled around on Park avenue and then up North avenue to the station. After a time it was again hauled back to its old place.

CASE OF MURDERER ROESEL.

United States Supreme Court to Be Asked to Adance the Hearing.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Dec. 7—Prosecutor N. C. J. English, of Union county, appeared Monday in the United States Supreme Court at Washington and served notice through the court on Lawyer Frank Bergen, counsel for Louis Roesel, the condemned murderer of Farmer James C. Pitts, of Summit, that on Monday, December 19th, the Prosecutor would make a motion in the United States court that the hearing on the appeal be advanced on the calendar.

As the matter now stands, the case of the regular course would not be reached for several months. Prosecutor English's object is to expedite matters and have Roesel's fate definitely settled by the court of final resort. The Prosecutor hopes the court will grant his motion. Should it refuse, the condemned man will have a respite of nearly a year.

REPUBLICANS CARRY THE CITY BY 300 MAJORITY.

Citizens Utterly Failed in the City Election Which Was Held Yesterday.

MAYOR ELECTED BY 306 AND CITY JUDGE BY 517.

The Vote Was Large Enough to Show that the Result Was the Will of the People—Next Council Will Consist of Seven Republicans and Four Citizens.

The Citizens' movement failed in the accomplishment of its purpose. The municipal election was held yesterday and the Independent Citizens' did not wrest the control of the city government from the hands of the Republicans who have been in power for so many years. Instead, the Republicans swept the city and elected every one of their candidates except Justice of the Peace and Constable in the Fourth ward. The vote was a large one, but not sensational. It was large enough to show that the result was undoubtedly the will of the people of the city.

The Republican ticket was carried to victory by over 300 majority. George W. Rockfellow was elected Mayor by 306 majority. Councilman William N. Runyon's majority for the City Judgeship was 517. James A. Martin was made City Collector with 401 votes over A. T. Gallup. Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards was elected a School Trustee with a majority of 215.

The Common Council for 1899 will be Republican. All the four Republican candidates for the ward Councilmen, Ralph I. Tolles, George P. Mellick, B. Frank Coriell and Frank H. Smith, were elected by majorities varying from 158 to 56. The coming Council will, therefore, be composed of seven Republicans and four Citizens'.

STORY OF THE ELECTION.

The Citizens Failed to Show up Their Expected Strength and Were Defeated.

It was admitted early in the campaign that the Fourth ward would be the fiercest struggle and so it was. The Citizens' were confident of carrying it and hoped for a big majority from there with which to overcome the Republican lead. They carried it, but by so small a margin as to do little in offsetting the Republican majorities in other wards.

The Third ward was considered the Republican stronghold and the Citizens' efforts were directed toward cutting down the majority there as low as possible. Their efforts did not meet with any great success, and a majority of practically 200 was given to the Rupublican ticket.

Last year the Citizens' elected their Councilman in the Second ward and they were hoping for another success this time. It failed to materialize and the Republicans carried the ward by a majority of over 125.

The First ward was somewhat doubtful, but it fell into line and gave the Republican candidates a small majority of in the neighborhood of fifty votes.

The big majorities in the Second and Third wards insured the election of the G. O. P. men. As soon as the returns made it evident that both those wards were strongly Republican, it was only a question of how high up the majorities would run. The close finishes in both First and Fourth wards kept up the only hopes of the Citizens for victory.

Outside of the Fourth ward the Republican broom swept clean. In that ward the Citizens' made a strong fight over Justice of the Peace and Constable, and the Citizens' candidates for the two offices, Adam Young and Peter V. Weaver, were elected by majorities of 17 and 62 respectively.

Particular stress was laid in all the wards on the contests for the seates in the Common Council. R. I. Tolles, a former Councilman, was the Republican candidate in the First ward, and J. C. Blimm, candidate for Councilman-at large on the Citizens' ticket last year, was the choice of that party. Tolles made an exceptionally good run and ran way ahead of his ticket in both districts.

In the Second ward George P. Mellick was somewhat behind the Republican ticket on which he was the candidate. Most of the faction that worked against his nomination at the primary turned out and supported him loyally despite the efforts of the Citizens.

There was little doubt in the Third ward about the candidacy of B. Frank Coriell. He was a little behind his ticket, but had a comfortable majority of 158.

The Republicans centred their strength in the Fourth ward on Frank H. Smith, their candidate for the Council. He left his ticket far behind and defeated his opponent, James Davis, a Democrat, in every district in the ward.

George W. Rockfellow made a good run for Mayor. While he was cut in some instances, he did not fall far behind his ticket. Councilman William N. Runyon made the greatest run of the day. He was the only Republican candidate, beside Councilman-elect Smith, who carried the Fourth ward, where his majority was 31. In all, he ran nearly 100 ahead of his ticket. James A. Martin, Republican candidate for Collector, made a good showing, keeping a little in advance of his ticket.

It was was recognized that the weakest point on the Republican ticket was in the candidate for School Trustee. While nobody questioned the integrity and ability of Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, there were many that opposed him on the ground that clergymen should not enter politics. While his name was scratched all over the city, the result was only to reduce his majority some 100 votes.

AT HEADQUARTERS.

Republican Leaders Were Confident of the Result From the Start.

The Republicans were undoubtedly better organized in yesterday's election than the opposition. The experience of past years served the G. O. P. machine in good stead and its workers conducted the campaign in great shape. The Citizens' had workers and carriages but lacked the systematic methods of their Republican rivals.

While campaign headquarters were established in every election district by the Republicans, the headquarters for the leaders was in the City Clerk's office. The Citizens' met wherever they happened to be although the store of E. M. Laing, on Park avenue and the law offices of W. S. Angleman were leading congregating places.

The Republicans were confident from the start. The day before, the conservative leaders had placed their majority at 300 and predicted victory. The Citizens' were not quite so sure but were of the opinion that they would divide the honors.

As the Roger Murray system of tallying was used in most of the wards the returns came in far earlier than usual. At 9:30 o'clock it was evident that the Citizens would have to roll up a big majority in the Fourth ward to win. When the returns from the Second and Third wards were received and the way in which the tickets were running at the First ward polls, the election of all the city ticket was conceded by all. That was by 11 o'clock. Until the returns were all in however, the Citizens were loath to believe that they had not captured the Fourth ward Councilman.

There were great times up in the City Clerk's office as the evening wore away. Faces began to expand into smiles and everybody shook the hand of his neighbor. Then John Keeley started a subscription to get out the drum corps. All joined in and soon after Assemblyman Roger F. Murray marshalled the long line of politicians who participated, leaving the City Clerk's office to the waiting reporters.

SECOND WARD, 1st DISTRICT.

The First District of the Second Ward had a little excitement to break the monotomy of the election. Special Officer Dennis Carney was the officer detailed to the polling place, and he had all sorts of adventures with several of the workers for the Citizen's Ticket. First he cautioned J B. Mills, he said he was giving out tickets inside the hundred yard line. Next he ran afoul of John Venable, a colored worker for the Citizens' ticket. Carney claimed that Venable was working inside the very room where the booths were. He ordered him out and then tried to prevent him from working inside the hundred foot limit. Venable pushed the officer back and Carney lifted his club to strike. A fight seemed imminent but the cooler heads prevailed and trouble was averted. Carney was advised to have Venable arrested, but finally did nothing about it.

The Citizens' leaders had looked to the district to make the showing that it did last year for their ticket. The G. O. P. men were pretty confident, however, and early predicted a handsome majority for the Republican ticket. The colored vote was unusually light this year, but the Republicans polled most of those who did come.

There were 435 ballots cast, of which 5 were rejected. Of the number 283 were Republican tickets. W N. Runyon ran 15 ahead of his ticket, while Dr. Richards was 6 behind. Mr. Mellick in the fight for Councilman lost 19 of the Republican votes. Mr. Mills gained correspondingly, but not enough to make any appreciable difference in the final result in the ward.

Mr. Mellick went to New York and was not seen around the polling place until evening and then only for a short time. W. N. Runyon made his headquarters in the office of the Crescent Rink. Mr. Mills was at the polls nearly all day.

FIRST WARD, 1ST DISTRICT.

Two Ballots Less Than Number Reported at the State Election.

A quiet election was reported in the First District of the First Ward. The vote was 424, 2 less than the vote at the state election last month. Eight of the ballots were rejected. The Republican ticket ran very even with a slight increase for Mr. Tolles for Councilman.

FIRST WARD, 2d DISTRICT.

Pasters Were Freely Used and a General Mixup was the Result.

Although the vote was not quite as was expected, the Second district of the First ward had a good turnout, 165 votes being cast. The showing was greater than at the State election last month. Everything was quiet and orderly about the polling place on East Second street, beyond Richmond street. Both parties had workers at the polls all day, but the Republicans were the more numerous

Pasters were freely used, and the result was a general mixup in the ticket. Rockfellow was cut on the Republican ticket in many cases. It was expected that the district would give him a small majority. Instead, it gave Lounsbury a majority of 25. W. N. Runyon made a strong run for City Judge and carried the district by 4 votes. Dr. Richards, although a resident of the district, was scratched and ran behind his ticket. R. I. Tolles gained 6 over J. C. Blimm for ward Councilman.

SECOND WARD, 2d DISTRICT

C. H. Hand Objected to Councilman VanHerwerden's Vote on Ground He Was No Citizen.

Open hostilities between Councilman John Van Herwerden and Assessor Charles H. Hand marked the election in the Second District of the Second Ward. A letter was sent to election officers of that district by Mr. Hand stating that Cornelius Van Herwerden and son, Councilmhn John Van Herwerden, of South avenue, had been born in an European country and that it was Mr. Hand's belief that they had never been naturalized. He therefore protested against the voting and stated that he thought that they should be required to prove their eligibility to voto,

When the elder VanHerwerden came to vote, the letter was brought up and Mr. VanHerwerden swore in his vote without comment. The Councilman by that name went to the polling place in the afternoon at 4 o'clock. He asked if the election officers believed the charge and all but one said no. Nobody could tell whether a vote could be challenged by letter or not. While it was being discussed, Hezikiah Hand, one of the Committee of Forty in the Citizens' party, announced that he would challange Mr. Van Herwerden had not been naturalized, he said. Councilman VanHerwerden's vote was then sworn in.

The vote in the district was not particularly large, only 140 votes being cast. Of these, 74 were Republican and 66 Citizen. Comparatively few pasters were used. Runyon ran 4 ahead of his ticket and Mr. Mellick gained 2. There was no disposition to cut the name of Dr. Richards.

Hezikiah Hand challenged several colored voters on account of their age but there was little else happening in the district.

THIRD WARD, 1ST DISTRICT.

The election in the First district of the Third ward passed off without incident. The vote was heavy and the Republicans banked up a large majority for their ticket. There were 425 ballots cast. The Republican ticket ran well together, with the exception of Dr. Richards and B. Frank Coriell, who were scratched on some 20 ballots. One man was challenged on account of his age.

Both parties had their workers in the field, but the G. O. P. ites were in the majority and kept things busy.

THIRD WARD, 2D DISTRICT.

Citizens' Candidates All Run Ahead of Their Ticket, C. C. Burnet Doing Best.

Things were vere very quiet in the Second district of the Third ward. There were 111 ballot- cast which was a good showing there. Of that number 72 were Republicans and 39 Citizens'. All the Citizens' candidates ran ahead of their ticket, C. C. Burnet doing the best. Dr. Richards suffered correspondingly on the Republican ticket.

FOURTH WARD, 1st DISTRICT.

Vote Not as Large, by Four as That at State Election in November.

For some reason, the vote in the First district of the Fourth ward was not as large by 4 as the vote at the State election last November. There was another surprise, the Republicans carried the district by 13 votes and Rockfellow received a majority of 14 over Lounsbury. Councilman William N. Runyon ran best on the Republican ticket being accorded a majority of 46 over his Citizen opponent C. C. Burnet and Peter V. Weaver the Citizen candidate for constable, was the only ones of the ticket to lead their opponents.

The election was very quiet although there were many workers at the polls. A large crowd watched the counting.

CELEBRATING THE VICTORY.

As soon as it was assured that the Republican party was victorious all over the city, preparations were made to celebrate the victory in hearty fashion. An immense bonfire was soon roaring away in the centre of Park avenue, just south of the railroad bridge. Anything combustible was quietly hid away to add to the blaze. The light from the fire illumunated all the surrounding neighborhood and soon attracted a large crowd.

John Keeley started to take up a collection among the politicians in the City Clerk's office to get a drum corps or band. A sufficient sum was speedily raised and some of the local drummers and fifers roused out. With the drum corps at the head of the procession it started along Park avenue, stopping at Demarest & Son's grocery. There some fifty new brooms were distributed among the paraders and were soon waving in the air.

The procession of cheering and enthusiastic Republicans made a tour of the city and returned to Park avenue and Second street. A few words were said and all the candidates cheered. Then some of the adventuresome ones seized hold of the night lunch-wagon and gave its proprietor a ride. The wagon was pulled around on Park avenue and then up North avenue to the station. After a time it was again hauled back to its old place.

FOURTH WARD, 3d DISTRICT.

Republicans and Citizens Broke Even, with 155 Votes Each.

Honors were equally divided in the Third District of the Fourth Ward, of the 315 ballots, of which 5 were rejected, the Republicans had 155 and the Citizens 155. Runyon and Smith both ran somewhat ahead of their ticket.

There was no trouble at the polling place during the day, although both parties worked actively all the time the polls were open.

FOURTH WARD, 2d DISTRICT

Smith the Only Republican Candidate to Get a Majority.

The excitement over the election in the second district of the Fourth ward reached a high pitch. Both sides had out workers and everybody that passed had to run a gauntlet of them The vote was heavy, 377, of which one was rejected. The Citizens' ticket led by some 70 votes. Runyon partially overcame that lead. Davis was scratched many times and so Smith managed to carry the district by 29 votes.

When the count was made the polling place was visited by several of the Republican leaders who were refused admission. This district was the last to complete its count, the old method of tallying being used.

—Friday evening the Grand Orient Council will attend the meeting of Perseverance Lodge, Knights of Pythias, and several candidates will be initiated.

A CITY UNDER WATER.

Old Port Royal Can Be Seen on a Clear Day. Destroyed in 1692.

The traveller who visits the capital of Jamaica should pray for clear weather without wind, that he may see the sunken city of Port Royal. When the water of the harbor is ruffled by breezes the city is obscured from view. But on a cloudless, still day, when the surface of the sea is perfectly smooth, the ruins of the phantom city may be plainly seen in the depths of the transparent water.

The spire of the old cathedral is the most prominent object. In the clear water you can see the fishes, lazily swimming in and out among the ruined turrets, more suggestive of owls and bats than of the finny inhabitants of the sea. Occasionally glimpses can be had of the ruins of other buildings—buildings which for more than two centuries have kept their ghastly secrets and will keep them until the end of time.

Down there, in that peaceful depth, lie the bones of three thousand men, women and children, carried down into the sea with their homes on that awful day in 1692. An earthquake, suddenly and without warning, smote the profligate city of Port Royal, which slid into the sea. The waters opened and swallowed it up, and there, beneath the silent waves, was hidden the wickedness and debauchery of a community described by historians as being almost without parallel.

From the richest city of its time it has dwindled into insignificance, until now it is a most wretched place, used only as a naval station. Disaster after disaster has overtaken it.

After the earthquake the town was rebuilt, only to be completely destroyed by fire in 1703. On August 22, 1722, it was swept into the sea by a hurricane. It was once more reconstructed, but again, in 1815, it was reduced to ashes, and as recently as 1880 it was visited by another hurricane. Every disaster was attended by great loss of life.

The city of Port Royal was originally built upon a narrow strip of land extending out into the sea, which accounts for its strange disappearance at the time of the earthquake. Like the house of the foolish man of Biblical lore, which was builded upon the sand, it literally slid into the water when the earthquake shock came.

Previous to that fateful seventh day of June, 1692, Port Royal had been known as "the finest town in the West Indies, and the richest spot in the world." It was, as it now is, a British colony, but there was little either in its government or its customs of British morality. We are told that it was a place of luxurious debauchery; that in their excesses the colonists rivalled the profligates of ancient Rome.—New York Herald.

Character in the Pitch of Voices.

T. H. Brand, of Chicago, thinks he has discovered in his occupation of "voice building" that human beings are individualized or made known to each other by the pitch of their voices, and says it is a fact that the disposition of an individual is indicated by the key tone of the voice, just the same as the tone of an E-flat cornet or any other musical instrument enenables people to identify the instrument with which the sound is produced. It will be found that persons whose voices are pitched in the key of "C" are of a social nature, and their whole make-up is amiable. "D" voices indicate hopefulness and cheerfulness; "E" indicates a sanguine temperament. Those whose voices are pitched in "F" are earnest and sincere; those in "G" are egotistical and domineering; those in "A" are fretful, nervous and pathetic, while those in "B" are timid and apprehensive and lack confidence and self-control. The semi-tones are similarly distributed, but we give the diatonic scale as a sample. With this key any one can judge of the qualifications and the disposition of those with whom he comes in contact.

Arabian Sheep Without Wool.

The principal kind of meat consumed by the people of Arabia, both native and foreign, is the mutton of the Somali, or black-head sheep, and, no matter by whom eaten, all pronounce it the best mutton ever tasted. This sheep, as its name indicates, is from the Somali county, on the African coast. These sheep have no wool, but short, fine hair, similar to that of a dog. The most peculiar thing about them is that they have a large lump of pure fat growing right at the root of the tail, and this fat varies in size and weight according to the conditions of the sheep. A medium-sized lump of this fat weighs about four pounds. Such a sheep, which weighs from thirty-five to forty pounds, is sold at from four to five rupees (85 cents to $1.05). The skins, when sun-dried, are exported, and large quantities of them go every year to the New York market, where they are known as "mocha skins," but, like the "mocha coffee" of commerce this is merely a term and nothing else.—New York Press.

FRANKLIN PIERCE'S RING.

Made of California Gold and Weighs Nearly a Pound.

The ring treasured by the descendants of Franklin Pierce, president of the United States, is interesting for several reasons. For one thing, it weighs nearly a pound.

It was presented to him by his friends in California and has no equal in the world. It is of gold dug from a California mine; the circular portion is cut into squares, which stand at right angles to each other, and each is embellished with an odd design, the entire group representing a pictorial history of California.

There are a grizzly bear in a menacing attitude, a deer bounding down a slope, an enraged snake, a soaring eagle and a salmon. Upon another square are an Indian bow and arrow and a native mountaineer on horseback throwing his lasso. Next peeps out a California tent and a miner at work with his pick. These designs are surmounted by two American flags, with the poles crossed and groups of stars in the angles. The part of the ring reserved for the seal is covered by a deeply carved plate of gold, with California's arms, surmounted by the flag and inscribed "Frank Pierce," in old Roman characters.

This lid opens with a hinge and shows beneath a square box divided by bars of gold into nine separate compartments, each containing a pure specimen of the varieties of ore found in the state.

The inscription within reads: "Presented to Franklin Pierce, the Fourteenth President of the United States." The ring is valued at $2,000.

THEY LOVED AT FIRST SIGHT.

And Had About the Quickest Courtship and Marriage on Record.

"You may talk about your brief courtships and marriages on short notice," said an old conductor, "but I think I witnessed the quickest made match on record. I was running between Russellville and Owensboro, and on a trip in the winter of 1881 I got a pretty country girl passenger at a little flag station south of Central City about 9.45 a. m.

"A few miles further on, at another small station, a big, strapping-looking farmer, dressed in brown jeans, with his trousers tucked in his tall boots, got on my train. The fellow hadn't opened the car door till he spied the rustic lass, and before he took his seat in front of the girl he had smiled at her. I punched his ticket, went in the smoking car, and on my return to the regular passenger coach found the Green River tiller of the soil sitting in the same seat with the maiden, chatting with her as if he had known her since birth.

"In twenty-five minutes after they had first met the fellow called me to him and said: 'See here, podner, we want 'er git hitched. I hain't knowed Mirinda Jane here but thirty minutes, but we both like, and she's willin' an' so'm I. Whur's the nighest parson, podner?' I took them on to Owensboro, and the happy bridegroom and his blushing other half were passengers back on my train that afternoon. For hurry-up nuptials it does strike me that these ought to have the cake and other special prizes offered for quick-yeast love matches."—Philadelphia Record.

The Lost Rivers of Idaho.

One of the most singular features in the scenery of Idaho is the occurrence of dark, rocky chasms, into which creeks and large streams suddenly disappear and are never more seen.

The fissures are old lava channels produced by the outside of the mass cooling and forming a tube, which, when the fiery stream was exhausted, has been left empty, while the roof of the lava duct, having at some time fallen in, presents there the opening into which the river plunges and is lost.

At one place along the Snake, one of these rivers appears gushing from a cleft high up in basaltic walls, where it leaps a cataract into the torrent below. Where this stream has its origin or at what point it is swallowed up, is absolutely unknown, although it is believed that its sources are a long way up in the north country.

Besides becoming the channels of streams, the lava conduits are frequently found impacted with the ice masses which never entirely melt.

Origin of Calling Cards.

A French journal says that visiting cards are not of recent invention, nor even of European origin. They existed in China twelve centuries ago, but their use did not spread to France until the last century. The Chinese cards, however, had little resemblance to those in use in Europe to-day. They contained often wonderful designs, expressing all sorts of good wishes for those for whom they were intended. The size of the card indicated the respect the owner had for its recipient.

In the seventeenth century, the English ambassador at Pekin received from the Chinese government a card eighteen feet long, which was carried by six men. Cards were illustrated with designs, the work frequently of artists of reputation, when first introduced in France. Mythological subjects were most in vogue.

These were in fashion until the first empire, and it was not until 1845, when the use of cards became universal, that the name on them was engraved in the simple form of to-day.—Golden Days.

ROSA BONHEUR AT HOME.

Place Where She Hides Herself From the World.

Among the great artistic personalities of our time none is better appreciated or less known than Rosa Bonheur. It is to art that Rosa Bonheur has sacrificed everything, burying herself in the depths of a forest far from the world and carefully closing her doors against the curious who have sought out her hermitage, the chateau of By.

The chateau of By is the only home of Rosa Bonheur worth mentioning. The greatest part of her life has been passed in this house, whose interior is strikingly bizarre and arranged to suit her special tastes. In 1850 she bought a piece of ground in the depths of the forest near Thomery and had her house built there. It is large and original in plan, somewhat after the Dutch style, and is filled with beautiful and curious things. There too is the famous cabinet of "etudes." Rosa has never been willing to part with any of these. Then there is the "capharnaum," a long room, containing panels, frames, brushes, old canvases, photographic apparatus, in short a thousand things. It is here that Rosa planes, hammers, files and saws, a genuine companion of duty, and so gay, so cheerful withal. And what a good comrade this great artist is, who knows so well the fitting word of consolation or encouragement, uniting with the qualities of an honest man a true woman's heart, simple and loving.

Her tenderness was well shown in the care of her dearst friend, Mlle. Nathalie Micas, her faithful companion for forty-five years. While young they had united their destinies and had aided each other along life's difficult pathway. Upon Mlle. Nathalie devolved the important duty of superintending the household at By. She watched over and cared for Rosa's "pensionnaires," a numerous family, not easily managed. Mlle. Nathalie died in 1893, and the grief of her adopted sister is of the kind that can never find consolation.—The International.

FORCED TO TAKE PITY ON HIM.

How a Youth Took a Refusal From the Girl He Loved.

"I happen to know how closely pity is akin to love," declared the prosperous merchant to some of his cronies who were enjoying his hospitality in the library. "I can draw upon personal experience and am not left to the uncertainties of theory.

"At twenty-two I was as love-lorn a youth as ever heaved a sigh or wrote doggrel ditties. She was pretty and sweet and smart, and all that. I was big and awkward and undeveloped. But no one was ever hit harder. I mooned, was never happy out of her sight, and robbed my sleep to build castles in the air with her as the presiding princess. Girls are always more mature and wiser at that time of life, but she was tolerant and considerate, for blind devotion from any man is flattering to any woman.

"Time and again I had fixed a time for proposing, but my courage would ooze as fog yields to the sun, and she had a tactful way of changing the subject whenever my language was headed toward the fateful question. But one evening the crisis came with an irresistible rush. I have no idea of what I said, but I proposed and pleaded and swore that my life was in the balance. She refused in the kind of way women have under such circumstances. I was mentally wrecked for the time. Rushing into the hall, I hustled into the old gentleman's hat, her brother's overcoat, and her mother's overshoes, seized her umbrella and started, as funny a looking object as any made up for the stage. She called me back, laughing through her tears, helped me to replace the stolen property, called me a dear, foolish boy, and took me into the parlor again.

"She is now in the next room, playing with the children."—Detroit Free Press.

SCOLDED FOR TAKING A FORT.

Piece of Heroism Which Was Called a Breach of Discipline.

In 1781 a man-of-war's man, Strahan by name, captured almost singlehanded one of the forts on the Hoogly. The fort, which was strongly situated, was invested by the Admiral, and Strahan, during the time of midday repose, wandered off "on his own" in its direction. Gaining the walls without discovery, he took it into his head to scale a breach made by the cannon of the ships, and, on reaching the platform, he flourished his cutlass and fired his pistol at the "niggurs," shouting, "The place is mine." The native soldiers attacked him, and he held his own with indomitable pluck till reinforced by one or two other tars, who had straggled out of camp and heard his huzzas.

The enemy, unprepared for this illtimed attack, and fearing further invaders, fled from the fort upon the opposite side, leaving twenty cannon and a large store of ammunition. Much to Strahan's surprise, he was lectured by the Admiral for his breach of discipline, and he was dismissed with hints of future punishment. "Well," said Strahan, "if I'm flogged for this here action, I'm —— if I ever take another fort as long as I lives!"—London Sketch.

Republican Institutions.

The hated foreigner—If I catch the idea, this is a country where you consider yourself as good as any other man.

Native—Exactly, sir; exactly.

"And every other man as good as you are."

"Er—ah—ain't the weather fine for the time of year?"—Washington Star.

THE "BELLS" ON BOARD SHIP.

How the Sailormen Keep Track of the Time of Day.

Every one who has read stories of the sea has wondered why sailors keep time by "bells" instead of by hours. The "sad sea dog" of the tale says, "It's eight bells, and all's well," and the reader wonders why he calls them "eight bells," instead of the hour. There are people who think "eight bells" is 8 o'clock, and so with all the hours told off by bells.

At sea "bell" is equivalent to o'clock on shore. A bell is struck every half hour. The day, beginning at midnight, is divided into watches of four hours, except the watch from 4 to 8 o'clock p. m., which is divided into two dog watches. A full watch thus consists of eight half hours and its progress is noted by the number of strokes on the bell. For instance, beginning at midnight, the end of a watch, the bell is struck eight times; half past 12 is one bell, 1 o'clock is two bells, 1.30 o'clock is three bells, 2 o'clock is four bells, 3 o'clock is six bells, 4 o'clock is eight bells, and so on.

The bells, except the odd bells, are struck in pairs, thus: Three bells are struck clang-clang, clang. Four bells are struck clang-clang, clang-clang.

It is a pleasant diversion on ship board to hear the officer of the watch strike the bells on the bridge and to hear them answered by the bells in the fo'c'sle, and all over the ship.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

THE REINDEER MOSS.

It Flourishes in New England as Well as in Lapland and Siberia.

Though the common name of this little plant of a gray tint is reindeer moss—cladonis rangifernia—it really belongs, says the Boston Transcript, to the family of lichens. These are a little lower in the scale of life than the mosses, which have roots and leaves, and may grow flat upon the surface of the trees, rocks or ground, or may, as in the present case, grow up in numerous thread-like parts.

The reindeer moss is very common in the old pastures and open woods of New England where the soil is poor. Indeed, it often covers the ground so closely with its compact masses, that it would seem as if cows put out to pasture would find it a hard task to get a sufficient quantity of grass for their daily meal. It fairly tinges the ground with a whitish gray hue. When dry it is quite brittle and very pretty, its stem-like parts being hollow like little tubes. They branch out and stand up some four or five inches high. After a rain this lichen is soft to the touch. It makes a beautiful addition to a fernery, where it needs no care. The reindeer lichen grows in other parts of the world as well as in New England. It covers the barren plains of Lapland and the northern parts of Siberia, growing well where nothing else would. There it forms the principal food of the reindeer, from which fact it has received the name of reindeer moss.

Why His Heart Was Light.

He gazed with unseeing eyes out of the window and whistled softly with a time broken now and then by a smile that crossed his bearded lips.

The young girl directly opposite thought him handsome, and ascribed his preoccupied air to romantic reasons. And the older woman who sat with her glanced sharply across from time to time, to see what the young man meant by rudely whistling in a public conveyance. But the looks of youth and age were alike lost on him, and after awhile he turned his face toward the light and sang with such hearty untunefulness that his spectacled neighbor felt bound to remonstrate.

"Young man," she said, grimly, "have you hired this car for your own use?"

He stared at her blankly a minute, and then flushed to the roots of his hair.

"Was—was I singing?" he questioned shamefacedly.

"You were making a horrible noise," she replied, tartly. Then he laughed a wholesome, honest guffaw, and leaned forward confidentially.

"The joke's on me," he owned. "Tell the truth, my baby has just cut a tooth, and—and I was thinking how cunning the little chap looked when he grinned."

The war light faded in the woman's eyes and a smile touched the corners of her mouth as she beamed on the young father and questioned with deep interest:

"Upper or under?"—Chicago Journal.

Largest Map in the World.

The Ordnance Survey map of England contains over 108,000 sheets, and cost in preparation $1,000,000 a year for twenty years. The scale varies from ten feet to one-tenth of an inch to the mile. The details are so minute that maps having a scale of 25 inches "show every hedge, fence, wall, building and even every isolated tree in the country. The plans show not only the exact shape of every building, but every porch, area, doorstep, lamppost, railing and fire-plug."—New York World.

THE TRIAL OF SENATOR QUAY.

Few court proceedings of recent years have attracted so much attention as the trial of Senator Matthew Stanley Quay, his son, Richard R. Quay, and ex-State Treasurer Benjamin J. Haywood of Pennsylvania, charged with conspiracy in the misuse of commonwealth funds and also funds of the People's Bank of Philadelphia. Judge Gordon, in whose court the trial was to have been held, created surprise by resigning.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Officers of the Government have been obliged to eject 85,000 sheep from Yosemite Park. To teach the owners who have so little regard for Government property a lesson the animals should have been confiscated. Nothing but a loss in cash will make some persons realize the proprieties.

According to the agricultural papers the farm products of the United States this year will be worth at least $1,000,000,000 more than in 1895. The balance of trade in favor of this country during the past two years reaches the same amount. This nation could carry on a tolerably expensive war out of its annual profits alone.

There is a great deal of talk about the suffrage in the Louisiana Constitutional Convention, but one of the state papers tells the delegates that the man who will devote his energies to measures for the relief of the maimed confederate soldiers, and the other man who will labor to further the cause of education will be the true heroes, and will be largest and most gratefully remembered by the people of the Pelican State.

If battle-ships are to be faster and to have an increased steaming radius, they must be larger. The speed of Cervera's ships was due to the fact that they were protected rather than armored. But battle-ships must be completely encased in heavy armor, and to be swift the size of the engines must be considerably enlarged. Such vessels will require deep harbors and immense docking facilities. All of these conditions can and will be met in the future American navy, but the problem is not as simple as might be supposed.

Advices from Honolulu show that the annexation of Hawaii has attracted to the islands a host of newcomers—most of them persons of small means—who might better have remained at home. While the territory undoubtedly offers many attractive opportunities for business men commanding large capital, it has very few, if any, for those lacking money and influence. Hawaii is by no means a new country. It is already well developed; its resources are under the control of men who settled there long ago, and the person who goes out expecting to make his fortune without taking a reasonable amount of capital along with him is bound to be disappointed.

A new device, by which every cannon may be made a dynamite gun, has been brought forward, and the inventor shows some strong testimonials of its efficiency. Various plans for doing this have been published in the past, and all have failed in practice; but with the American genius for invention, the finding of a successful device is only a question of time, and it may have come now. If so, every vessel may become a Vesuvius, and the difficulty they find in reducing land batteries, as noted at Santiago, will disappear. Still, the danger in carrying large quantities of dynamite without destroying the vessel that contains them will remain to be solved.

Congressman Eddy, of Minnesota, was, some years ago, a "cruiser," or timber expert in the Wisconsin pineries, and he still has a fondness for the Joseph's coat of many brilliant colors which the lumbermen wear in the woods to guard against being mistaken for a deer, a bear, or anything else sportsmen are gunning for. Mr. Eddy's smoking jacket, or house coat, is the envy of all his neighbors and rivals the brilliant jackets worn by the members of the Chinese legation. It is not foreign, but peculiarly American, and a relic of his cruiser days, when it was worn as a signal to hunters, and said as plainly as any sign, "I am a woodman, not a deer. Don't shoot!"

The Points of the Compass.

"Do you know your orders, sentinel?" was asked of a not over-bright Irish soldier on guard duty.

"Yis, sor," was the reply.

"Know the points of the compass?" continued the officer.

"Yis, sor."

"If you face the rising sun your left hand would be on the north of you and your right hand to the south of you. What would be behind you?"

"Me knapsack, sor," sententiously answered the soldier.—Golden Days.

Bare Feet and Two Steers.

The Bath, Me., Independent reviews the career of Governor William King, who when nineteen years old received as his share of his father's estate a pair of two-year-old steers and with these started out barefooted to seek his fortune, being too poor to own shoes and stockings; who first worked in a sawmill, then was a merchant, became president of a bank, a member of the Legislature, a major-general, and finally Maine's first Governor—and then draws this moral: "While, of course, the Governor owed his first successes to being steered right, his life victories were mainly due perhaps, to the fact that, being a barefooted boy, he was unhampered by the refinements of society, and had to get a hustle on at an age when boys of today are just learning how to play a fair game of billiards."

The Attractive Woman.

A clever woman, provided she be not sarcastic and too fully alive to a sense of her own importance, is generally an attractive one. Men may be charmed for a time by a pretty face, but they soon tire of mere prettiness. Nor does it follow that all women of good sense and sharp intellect are necessarily plain. Bright thoughts enliven the most ordinary face, until the reflection of the mind shining out in all its radiance makes one forget that the features are not pure Grecian, and leads us to believe that such a woman is in reality a great beauty. The vivacious creature of varying moods and quaint fancies is the one charm. A man forgets the type of beauty she may or may not possess, so interested does he become in the pleasing study of a mind that renders her face ever winning, irresistible, and pleasing, because, like the surface of a lake, there comes a change with every varying emotion. The attractive woman should cultivate the mind, for grace of soul and education of spirit count for more than limpid eyes, a rosebud mouth, and a dimpled chin. She should be ever teachable, for there is not one iota of lovableness in the man or woman who thinks he or she knows it all.

A Corner Sofa.

A pretty sofa corner may easily be made with a little expense for a sitting or drawing room. The platform, one foot in height, may be made by any amateur carpenter. Upon this is fitted a mattress or cushion, which may then be covered as elaborately or as simply as desired, the same scheme being carried out in the curtain at the back, which should be lined with a plain cover.

The looping is done by drawing the fullness through brass curtain rings, the last on either side being finished with an ornament, such as a Japanese fan, or any other effective bit of color. Piled up with cushions this makes a charming piece of furniture.

The Way to Practice.

The object of all practice is to establish that reflex action of the muscles known as mental automatism. This is best secured by practising a difficult passage a great many times at so slow a tempo that there is time for deliberate thought in advance of the muscular action.

When the passage has been played, say, ten times in this manner without the slightest variation from the correct order of notes, fingering, touch and shading, exactly doube the speed. At this new tempo there will be time for thought.

After, say, eight repetitions without error, again double the speed. There is now no time for thinking each separate note, but the passage must be conceived "in a lump," so to speak, or exactly as we read a word without stopping to think of the letters of which it is composed. At the appearance of the least mistake return to the slow tempo, and go through the series as before.

A Royal Editor.

The Emperor of China is a newspaper editor, and his paper, which is called the "Pekin Gazette," is a very remarkable production. The unique distinction belongs to it of having been issued daily for upwards of eight hundred years. Its circulation is limited to a single copy of each issue, which is nailed up on a big board outside the Purple City, where the Emperor resides. The "Pekin Gazette" is the organ of the Court, and it contains some sixteen pages, which are all news, no advertisements ever being permitted to vulgarize them. Most of the articles are dictated by the Emperor, and they usually consist of official acts and reports. The Emperor's sub-editor is his mother.

Washing Woolens.

The secret of washing well any woollen goods lies chiefly in having the different waters of equal temperature with none of them at any time too hot to put the hand in comfortably. Soap should not be rubbed on the article, but used in the form of thin suds. It should be a good, white soap, too. A little borax is probably the best thing to soften the water. For washing blankets or baby flannels it is to be preferred. Woollen should not be wrung by the hand, but rinsed or dried by squeezing. Woollens of any sort should never be allowed to freeze.

MARK HANNA'S COURTSHIP.

He Loved His Love With Young Love's Devotion a d Youth's Determination.

Mrs. Mark Hanna has a love story, though it happened many years ago, before her hair was silvered and before the senator tipped the scales at quite his present figure, "though he was always a sturdy chap," Mrs Hanna will tell you.

This is the tale, as it is told by a Cleveland woman:

"Mrs. Hanna, then the young and lovely heiress, Miss Rhoades, was destined to marry a man of wealth, possibly a title, for nothing was too good for her.

"Her brother, the historian, had his place in the field of letters, and the family boasted no less than five celebrities in the world of art, literature and science, not to mention social prestige.

"A course in a New York finishing school was decided upon for her; and upon her return she was to be launched into society to enjoy its brilliancy for several seasons, heart whole and free to taste the cup of belledom to its sweetest drop.

"But parents propose—and Mr. Hanna disposed. The senator, whose early struggles and history are now well known, fell in love with the young girl in her first season, when the touch of the finishing school was fresh upon her and undimmed by the world. He vowed he would wed no other.

"In vain the parents pleaded. They had other missions for their daughter and one of these was a year of social life abroad.

"'Suppose you take her to Paris now,' suggested her father, 'and put her through a month of London society afterward, until she forgets.'

"The mother consented, and I believe the tickets were all but bought. But day and night the girl wept and pleaded—just to be allowed to remain at home. And the mother relented.

"Finally the hearts of both parents were touched, and the father, too, consented. And then came the marriage, when the young business man, Mr. Hanna, with nothing but love and ambition, got he girl of his choice.

"That was a long time ago, and in sickness and sorrow, and in the whirl of political life, many changes have come. Success has touched the career of the man, and the wife has had a chance to go into society, greater than would have been her privilege had she married what was said to be her mother's ambition—a title!"—Philadelphia Press.

THE CAREFUL SERVANT.

General Wheeler Was Like All Other Men to Him.

One of the Michigan officers who was at the front during the brief war had with him a colored attendant who was as proud of his place as though he were commander-in-chief, and whose ideas of military discipline were as rigid as those of the veriest martinet. Owing especially to the thieving proclivities of some of the Cuban hangers-on, he was under strict command not to let anything go from the officer's tent without a personal order from him.

One evening as the officer and General Wheeler met some distance from the camp, the general said, with a smack of his lips, "I hear, sir, that you received some very fine brandied peaches from home."

"Yes, general, they're prime, and I'm going to send you some. Mean time you had better stop at my tent on the way in and have my man give you a can."

When the officer reached his quarters he was approached by his attendant, with an elaborate salute, and "Did you tell dat Gen'l Wheeler, sah dat he could call heah, sah, and procu' a can ob dem brandied peaches sah?"

"Yes. Of course you gave them to him?"

"No, sah," with another athletic salute; "no, sah. I knows my duties sah. I done tole Gen'l Wheelah dat all men lok alike to me, sah, an' if he didn' hab no ohdah he couldn' hab no peaches, sah, 'less he obacome me by powah of supeiah numbers, sah."

"Why, you black rascal; what did he say?"

"He jes' grin and bo' it, sah."—Detroit Free Press.

Surgery Performed on Snakes.

Snakes in captivity, it seems, sometimes find difficulty in getting rid of the skin which is shed every year and an Australian diamond snake in the Bombay museum seemed likely to succumb. It was quite blind and refused all food.

A European sympathizer, therefore, pressed the native snakekeeper into service to hold the snake, and himself with a pair of sharp pointed scissors performed the delicate and risky operation of clipping away the membrane which adhered to the eyes.

J. M. Phipson, editor of the Journal of the Bombay Natural History Society, performed a far more dangerous operation a couple of years ago. His patient was a large hamadryad or king cobra, the most vicious and poisonous of all Indian snakes, and a most powerful creature to boot. Mr Phipson gripped the king cobra round the neck, and a native literally held on for his life further down, and when the reptile's struggles were over a third man, armed with a surgeon's scalpel, removed eight layers of membrane from each eye.—Sketch.

Teacher—"Bobby, if your mother gave your sister six apples to divide equally with you, how many would you get?"

Bobby—"None."

Bobby—"You don't know my sister."—Chicago Record.

HE GOT A LESSON IN SPANISH.

Chicago Student Who Mastered the Mystery of the "J."

One of the students of the University of Chicago went to a restaurant on Jackson street with two friends who had fought with the First regiment at Santiago. Naturally they talked of the war, and although the student showed considerable knowledge of the campaign, his pronunciation of Spanish proper names was bad. Invariably he gave the Spanish "J" its English sound.

His companions who were better posted on the Castilian tongue, stood it as long as they could, and finally one of them said: "See here, if you want to talk war with us you must pronounce those Spanish words as they should be. Say 'San Huan' and 'Montcho,' and remember that 'Hunta' is proper. Don't give the words the 'J' sound. There is no 'J.' It's pronounced 'H,—always."

"Is it," returned the student, sneer of sarcasm, for he was angry. "Then I suppose your name 'Hohn,' not 'John,' as it used to be before you went to Cuba; and perhaps you want me to tell you that this restaurant is on 'Hackson street.'

The derisive laugh that followed so angered the student that he leaped to his feet.

"I want you to understand," he shouted, "that I am a 'hentleman! Hump onto me, you hackasses and I'll show you this is no hoking matter. By the humping Herusalem, you haven't any more sense than a hackrabbit. If you insinuate that I'm a country hake, I'll break your haw. By Himiny, I'm going."

Brakemen as Amateur Oculists.

The ease with which brakemen on railroad trains remove from passengers' eyes cinders which fly into them every time the engine sends out a puff of smoke is a cause for comment. On a New York Central train running between here and Niagara Falls is a young man who is a genius as an oculist, and his services are in great demand. It is whispered among the train hands that his income is very largely increased through his ability to operate on passengers so afflicted, and that gratitude after the removal of the disturbing cinder is not measured and his largesse is real and in proportion to the pain borne by the sufferer.

A young man who wore the uniform of the New York Central service with whom the writer talked recently while on a train for Niagara Falls said that he was kept busy after the train had crossed the Harlem Bridge in removing cinders.

"They accumulate in the tunnel," he said, "and I always walk through the train after we leave the 138th street station and relieve the sufferers. By that time they have succeeded in rubbing the cinder into a bad corner and are ready for any kind of treatment. When I first went to railroading I discovered that it would be a good thing to know something about removing cinders, so I went to an oculist and took a course of lessons. As a result I am able to remove the most stubborn one without trouble or pain to the patient. Yes, I have earned the amount I paid the oculist for the lessons many times over."—New York Herald.

Wise Forethought of an Elephant.

One winter, at St. Louis, two elephants were stabled in an outhouse near the writer's rooms. One warm, bright day early in the spring one of these creatures was brought out into the alley behind the stable, in order that it might be given a bath. A horse attached to a loaded coal cart became frightened and ran at full speed down the alley toward the elephant. The latter heard the noise and saw the horse rushing toward him. He seemed to take in the situation at once; for, dropping to his knees, he drew in his trunk beneath his body, threw in his legs, and bowed his head. The horse, in his mad rush, ran completely over the elephant, dragging the heavy cart with him. Beyond a few slight scratches and bruises the elephant was uninjured. Had it not been for his wise foresight and his efficient method of self-protection, he might have been severely injured perhaps killed, by impact of the maddened horse and heavy cart. In this instance there was an undoubted manifestation of correlative ideation. The immediate adoption of the only efficient means of avoiding injury clearly demonstrates the truthfulness of this assertion, especially so since there was nothing instinctive in the action of the elephant. In a state of nature, elephants are not confined in narrow alleys, neither are they charged by runaway horses.

Story of Ben Butler.

An old friend of General Butler tells a new story of the soldier lawyer. According to it, toward the close of his career, when he ranked well toward the top of the bar for criminal cases, Butler was sent for by a prisoner charged with murder. Upon his arrival in the cell of the accused man, a distressing scene was enacted. The prisoner at once became hysterical and implored the lawyer's assistance. "General," he cried, "I want you to defend me. You must defend me. I'm in danger of being hanged, and I know you can get me off if anybody can." "Are you guilty or are you innocent?" calmly inquired the general. "Oh, I am innocent, entirely innocent," protested the prisoner with tears. "Then you don't need me," quietly responded General Butler, rising and reaching for his hat. "Innocent men are not hanged in Massachusetts. Good day, sir."

AN INDIAN POETESS.

And Other Bright Women From the Original Inhabitants of America.

The most distinguished literary Indian woman in America is undoubtedly Pauline Johnson, the daughter of a chief of the reservation at Brantford, Ontario. Miss Johnson is a poet of no mean ability. Her poems have been published in many periodicals for the last five years. Miss Johnson also reads from her own poems and gives impersonations of Indian character in costume. In London she is received by literary students on an equal footing.

Eugenie is an Indian princess, who lives with her father, Chief Philippe Vincent, of the Hurons, at the Indian Lorette, near Quebec. She is well educated, having spent eight years in the convent at Charlesbourg; speaks French and English as well as her own tongue, and plays, sings and composes strange, weird melodies. One of her official duties is to guard the medals presented to her family by George IV., Queen Victoria and the Prince of Wales.

There are two Indian girls on the stage—Go-Wan-Go-Mohawk and Gretchen Lyons. The former writes her own plays, and is stage manager as well as star. There is a very clever Pawnee girl, Maud Echo Hawk, who teaches in the Hope Indian School at Springfield, S. D. Minnie Cornelius, an ambitious Oneida Indian girl, was graduated from Grafton Hall, Fond du Lac, Wis. She speaks five languages fluently, and will practice medicine among her own people.—Chicago Chronicle.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Result of Election.

A wave of Republicanism swept over Plainfield yesterday. It extinguished the struggling Citizens who were striving for municipal officers and buried them out of sight. While a Republican victory was generally predicted, the size and completeness of the one that appeared had only been anticipated by the most sanguine. When the battle came, the strength of the opposition to the Republican machine did not prove as formidable as was expected.

After the municipal election last year when the Citizens made such an excellent showing without organization and united effort, it was predicted that this winter would see the complete and utter downfall of the Republican party from power in municipal affairs. So the campaign that is now at an end was watched for with unusual interest. Early in the fall, the rumblings of the storm that was threatening the Republican party began to be heard and it was said that this election would see the Citizens' in the race more able to cope with their rivals than ever before.

Then came the movement looking toward the reorganization of the Democratic party and the putting of a Democratic ticket in the field for the municipal election. The plan was defeated by some of the party leaders, but there can be no doubt that it figured in the causes of the Republican victory. When election day came, there were many Democrats who refused to vote at all and others who voted the straight Republican ticket believing it preferance to give their support to an organization rather than to a ticket not accountable to any one.

The campaign that closed yesterday has been an exciting one. Most of the work was one a personal nature although the Citizens held several mass meetings in the Fourth ward and published a little campaign newspaper, the Plainfield Citizen, which was distributed broadcast through the city. Two issues appeared, the last one Monday afternoon. Criticism there was plenty of by both parties. A little metaphorical "mud" was slung. It was, however, a pretty orderly campaign in which both sides took an active part. It was the first time in several years that the Republican machine was called to buck up against anything like organized opposition.

In resources, agricultural and mineral, Cuba is one of the very richest islands in the world. But under oppressive taxation and the worst imaginable administration the greater part of the country remains an untamed, unused wilderness. The coming invasion of American merchants and manufacturers will quickly change all that. There will be roads built—which is the first necessity. The rude trails that render the transport of goods almost impossible will give place to thoroughfares of modern construction. Bridges will safely span streams that now bar the way to trade and intercourse. Railroads and telegraph, built by American energy and with American capital, will lace the country. Its waste places will be converted into fertile fields. Way will be opened for the marketing of crops that it has not hitherto been worth while to grow, and minerals which it has been a needless waste of toil to dig out of the ground. Whatever may be decided as to the political future of Cuba, its industrial and commercial future will be directed by American enterprise and stimulated with American capital. This next invasion will be benificent to Cuba, enriching to us, and gladdening to the world at large.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Hawaii paid her obligation to Japan, and retired with balanced accounts. The life of the island republic was not very long, but it was distinctly business-like and honorable.

An emigrant from the blue grass region to the Klondike gold fields has written home that a man can live better and save money by working for $1 a day in old Kentucky than he can by digging for the precious metall in Alaska.

Shafter is another of the exceptions to the rule that fat men are inert and slothful. Shafter's case is such a startling exception that it would seem to be enough to upset the rule. By the way, are fat men really slothful? What is your experience?

Medical treatment by music is the system adopted by a woman practicioner in New York. She claims that the remedial influences of music are important and that the nervous organization can be stimulated or soothed, and permanently braced up, by the proper selection of compositions and instruments. That the nerves can be irritated by music at unseemly hours is a fact legally established. The other theory ought to have a chance.

After all, the best "school for the soldier" is in the field when strenuous fighting is on. Gen. Miles, the head of the army, was a clerk in Boston when he began his military career. Gen. Shafter was a farmer when he went into the army during the civil war. The best place to learn how to fight appears to be not in a military school, though that has its advantages, but on the lines where real fighting is in progress.

A novel sensation to be soon experienced will be that of buying coffee grown on American soil. No doubt some differences of flavor will be found in the product of Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines. There are over 200 coffee plantations in Hawaii. In 1896 Porto Rico exported over 58,000,000 pounds of coffee, valued at $13,378,000. The most of the Porto Rican crop has hitherto been consumed in Spain and Cuba.

Secretary of the Navy Long announces that in awarding the contracts for the three new battle-ships, preference will be given to bids offering to guarantee the greatest speed and coal endurance, and each vessel must be able to steam 5,432 knots at a moderate pace. That would carry a ship to Europe and back again, or from Honolulu to the coast of China. Events of the war with Spain have induced all navy departments to provide a higher speed for battle-ships about to be constructed. The new battle-ship Missouri will be at least two knots faster than any vessel of her class in commission in our navy.

Moncure D. Conway, who has long made a special study of Washington's life, says there is no truth whatever in the tradition that Frederick the Great transmitted a sword to Washington with the message: "From the oldest General in the world to the greatest." Carlyle told Mr. Conway that there is not the slightest foundation for the story, though it had found its way into several histories. Nor was Frederick the first sovereign to recognize the independence of the United States. In fact, he never recognized it, but allowed the Hessians to be sent to America in the service of King George.

Some of the English sea captains of the last century received immense sums of prize money during the wars with Spain and France. Commodore Anderson in one cruise captured Spanish vessels worth $5,000,000, of which his share was $350,000. Two years later Capt. James Talbot realized $600,000 for himself in twelve months. Capt. Pownal's share from one Spanish treasure ship in 1762 was $325,000; his three Lieutenants received $65,000 each, and $320,000 went to the Admiral and flag officers who were on the station, though not present at the capture. Those were the days when Spanish ships were loaded with treasure wrested from the always unfortunate colonists.

Admiral Cervera states in his official report on the destruction of his ships that the preparedness of our fleet was fatal to his plans. This readiness was based on the most vigilant work in the fire rooms. An officer connected with the engineer corps of the battle-ship Texas says the standing orders were to be able to go ahead at a moment's notice, which required the utmost care in watching the fires and turning the engines occasionally to free them from water. But this long strain was rewarded when the general alarm sounded on July 3, and the engines of the fleet soon worked at their maximum. The temperature in the lower engine rooms of the Texas was 136 degrees, and in the upper 130 degrees. When naval heroism and effectiveness are the theme, the men below decks deserves a full share of consideration.

THEIR MAIL COMES TOO OFTEN.

Country Folks Who Object to Modern Mail Improvements.

"The new revision of the star routes is doing a great deal of good in the South," remarked Chief Clerk Day, of the railway mail service, "and enabling lots of country folks to get their letters and papers daily where they formerly received them only once or twice a week. Strange to say, however, the change is not always hailed with joy.

"Over in Gilmer County, Georgia, a star route agent juggled things around so as to get a six-day mail into a weekly town, and was chuckling over the idea that he had been a benefactor to the whole district when the postmaster hunted him up with a face as long as a backwoods sermon. "I wish you would fix it to change that thar mail back agin like it was,' said the old fellow, earnestly. 'What!' exclaimed the agent, in amazement. 'Why, what on earth is the matter?' 'Well, it's like this,' said the postmaster. 'Our folks has been used to comin' fer their letters every Saturday an' was well suited. Now this here new scheme has been started, and it breaks 'em all up. They feel kinder uneasy like onless they come in every day, and they just can't do no work. The crops is gettin' plumb neglected. We all want you to switch her back agin as quick as you kin.'

"The agent went away deeply disgusted, and sent in a special report in which he intimated that an annual mail would about meet the needs of the county. At last reports, though, it was standing at the six-day schedule."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

MAYOR'S CRUSADE AGAINST GAMBLERS.

Mr. Wilson Discovers Another Card Playing Joint.

TALKS AND GETS PROMISES.

YATS FERRONRO SAYS HIS PLACE WILL BE RESPECTABLE.

Mayor Wilson Visits the Italian Fruit Dealer and Lays Down the Law to Him as Well as to a Certain Other Man Who is Said to be Sponsor for the Gambling That Was Going on There.

The recent crusade started by Mayor Wilson, of the borough, against gambling places has brought to light another place where men congregate and while their time away in playing for money. This time the place discovered was that of Yats Ferronro, an Italian doing a fruit business on Somerset street, opposite Manning avenue.

Ferronro erected a new building last summer and moved from this city to the borough, where he built a store with flats above. One of these rooms above was rented to a Plainfielder, who is addicted to gambling. The owner of the building professes that he did not know what was going on, but yesterday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock Mayor Wilson stopped at Ferronro's fruit store and made things quite interesting for the proprietor, as well as the sponsor for the game that was being played upstairs.

The Mayor laid the law down to the Italian and told him that if he did not keep a respectable place he could expect to go behind the bars. After lecturing the owner, the Mayor called for the leader of the gang. He warned him that if he did not desist from carrying on his nefarious work he would see what the law could do for him. This man was caught only a short time ago, and if he is detected the third time it will probably go hard with him.

The proprietor of the establishment was very much excited over the Mayor's visitation and made all sorts of promises to keep a respectable place in the future.

As for the leader of the gang, he made a promise to the Mayor that he would stop playing and would be a good citizen. The other members of the gang remained upstairs in the room while their leader was being interviewed. They held their breath with an anxious expectancy not knowing what minute the Mayor would appear. His Honor did not appear unto them, but the next time measures of a more severe nature will be adopted.

BAPTISTS BARRED FROM JURY.

Members of O. U. A. M. Also Could Not Sit on Buckalew Case

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Dec. 8th—Members of the O. U. A. M., members of the Baptist church, constables, justices of the peace and others having dealings with the county were barred out of a jury selected here yesterday. When both sides had exhausted their challenges there were eleven men in the box.

The case was that of John J. Buckalew, who is accused of assaulting Miss Mabel Ayres, 13 years old. The case was tried at the last term, but the jury disagreed. The State refused members of the Mechanics' Order because the defendant is a member, and the defense objected to Baptists because there are Baptists to testify against the accused.

There will be a special meeting of the City Council tomorrow evening, at which time the trolley extension matter will be introduced for consideration. Other important business will also be considered.

The people of Mountainside borough are agitating the question of building a borough hall, and will endeavor to have an appropriation voted for that purpose at the spring election.

TO TOWN IN A BARROW.

ELECTION BET PAID BY RETURNED WAR VETERAN.

John Scott Trundled Patrick Reilly In a Wheelbarrow to Music of Drum Corps Around the Streets Last Night.

A Fourth ward election bet was paid last night amid the shouts of the victorious and the roll of the drums. As a result of it all Patrick J. Reilly, an enthusiastic Republican down in the Fourth ward, had a jolly ride about town in a wheelbarrow, for which John Scott, the returned veteran from the war, furnished the motive power.

John Scott, of Essex street, was in the 22d New York Volunteers during the war. He was discharged in time to participate in the charter election. Scott is a Democrat and gave his support to the Citizens' movement. So sure was he of the result that he boasted long and loud. Patrick J. Reilly, of Lee place, is employed at the Pond Tool Works. He is a strong advocate of Republicanism. He was equally sure of a Republican victory.

"We will win," remarked Scott.

"We will win," quoth Reilly with equal firmness.

Then the listeners wondered how it could be. After trying to convince each other of the sure thing he was backing, the two men agreed on a little bet. The man who lost was to wheel the other to town and back in a wheelbarrow. The story of the bet went forth, and the Fourth warders watched the result with interest.

Reilly's predictions were realized and Scott was informed that he had lost and must pay the penalty. Some of the friends of the two secured a colored drum and fife corps for the occasion.

Last night, a procession was formed at the corner of West Third street and Plainfield avenue. It was headed by Former Councilman W. A. Westphal and Daniel Galbraith, two of the Republican leaders in the ward. Then followed a guard of the other G. O. P. workers. Next came the principal part of the procession, the wheelbarrow with Reilly comfortably seated therein and Scott trundling it along. The drum corps brought up the rear. All the small boys in the neighborhood came rushing out to see it, and hoots and cat-calls were heard on every side.

The column, growing in strength as it advanced, went to West Front street and thence to Park avenue, East Second street, Watchung avenue, North avenue, Park avenue, West Front street and out Plainfield avenue to the starting point. Scott stuck to his task bravely, despite the jokes hurled at him from every side, and completed the line of march without upsetting his passenger, much to the latter's satisfaction.

DRANK LIQUOR ON BET; IS DEAD.

A Westfield Man Came to His End Through a Quart of Whisky.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, December 8.—An investigation is being made of the death of John Keenon, who died of alcoholism yesterday. It is said that Keenon made a bet with a man as to his capacity to hold liquor, and that he drank a quart of whisky and four glasses of beer.

After doing this Keenon went into a barn, where he was found by the Overseer of the Poor. Keenon died an hour later.

Coroner McConnell, of Cranford, and County Physician Westcott, of Fanwood, came to Westfield this morning and are making the investigation. An inquest will be held this afternoon.

M'INERNEY THE WINNER

WON INDIVIDUAL BOWLING TOURNAMENT AT P. C. C.

It Lasted a Month—McInerney Made an Average of 209 1-6—John Moran Was Second—Hines Won Novice Prize.

Last evening saw the close of the individual bowling tournament at the Plainfield Catholic Club. For a month the bowlers of that organization have been busy trying to win out in the contest. Frank McInerney was the winner.

The contest was for the highest average in any twelve games that the contestants rolled. They were allowed the privilege of rolling as many games as they wished and picking the highest from them. For the past two weeks the contest lay between Frank McInerney and John Moran. McInerney rolled nearly a hundred games. His twelve highest scores averaged 209 1-6, which gave him first place. Moran ran close to him and rolled almost as many games. His average was 205. A gold medal was given to the winner and a silver one to second.

A box of cigars was offered to the bowler, out of the regular team, making the higest score. John Hines was the winner with an average of 174 1-6. He finished third in the contest after a lively race with Edward Flynn, whose best twelve scores average 170. There were some twelve competitors in all. The tournament lasted a month.

The highest single score of the month was made by Hugh Higgins. It was 249. McInerney rolled 215, Moran, 222; and Hine 215. These were their best single scores.

Next week a handicap tournament will be started which will end Christmas eve.

MRS. BUSHNELL'S AT HOME."

Affair Given to Introduce Her Daughter, Miss Helen Frances.

Yesterday afternoon was the first of Mrs. John Bushnell's days for receiving callers after the large reception recently given to introduce her daughter, Miss Helen Frances Bushnell. The handsome home on Central avenue was prettily decorated with flowers and colored lights, while in the dining room the effect of carnations and pink shaded candles, with the pretty gowns of the young girls, combined to make a pretty picture. Mrs. Bushnell and her daughter, Miss Helen Frances Bushnell, received their many guests in the parlor. In the dining room, Mrs. Raymond and Mrs. Masters, of Germantown, presided at the table, assisted by Mrs. William D. Murray and the Misses Louise Bushnell, Martha Tracy, Laura Lovell, Belle Patterson and Miss Porter, of Ottawa, Ill.

Dr. Carroll to go Back to Porto Rico.

Dr. H. K. Carroll, of the borough, commissioner to Porto Rico, will sail for the latter place in about two weeks. He and C. E. They will return by the way of Florida, preferring that to so much sea voyage.

DEFIED BUCKSHOT; KILLED BY RAMROD.

The Wild Steer Finally Brought to Bay

NEAR NEW PROVIDENCE.

LOUIS CLARK ENDED HIS CAREER BY SHOOTING HIS RAMROD.

Steer Disappeared Into Great Swamp Friday—Next Seen by Milkmaid By Cornell's Farm, Near New Providence—Farmers Used Buckshot in Vain—Clark Tried Ramrod With Success.

A steer, supposed to be the one that has been vainly pursued for the past weeks through the wilds of Somerset county, invaded New Providence Monday afternoon. After defying buckshot for several hours the steer was finally killed with a steel ramrod, that pierced his heart.

The Daily Press has already told of the exciting pursuit of the steer from the time when he escaped from the Newark stockyards a month ago until he disappeared into the Great Swamp back of the Passaic Valley last Friday. The small army of pursuers could not follow into the recesses of the swamp and they therefore had to content themselves until the animal came out, if he ever did.

Nothing more has been seen of the steer in the neighborhood of the swamp and the watchers have looked long and vainly. Monday afternoon, a milk maid was passing along a country road near New Providence, close by the farm of Abraham Cornell where she was going. Suddenly her glance rested on an immense steer, standing in the roadway pawing the earth. Greatly frightened, she fled to the farm house nearby and notified the man. Other neighbors were summoned and the farmers prepared for a general assault all along the line.

Several loads of shot were poured into its body, but instead of dropping, it leaped into the field owned by Abraham Cornell and attacked a batch of cows. It drove its horns into several of them, and then made for the farmers. They scattered, two of them firing as they retreated.

The steer continued to leap fences and to invade farm yards. Louis Clark had fired five handsful of buckshot into the steer, and was surprised that he could not phase it.

"He must be an armored cruiser," he remarked to Lem Hanks. The letter said a cannon might prove effective.

"I'll just give him a taste of this," said Clark, as he emptied his powder horn into the gunbarrel and shoved his steel ramrod after it.

"I'll give him the rod in the back, where the schoolmaster used to give it to me."

Thus armed, he proceeded against the enemy. Within a few feet he discharged the weapon, and there was a report like a boiler explosion. When the smoke lifted the steer was lying dead in the field. The rod had taken a forward course and pierced the animal's heart.

The steer will be eaten in barbecue fashion Saturday.

WAGON AND MAN GONE.

HORSES TROTTED HOME TO NEW MARKET THIS MORNING.

Pat Left Calvin Boice's Farm Yesterday Morning—Was Going to Millstone After Beer Grains—Hasn't Been Seen Since.

Pat and the wagon are gone completely but the horses have returned. Calvin Boice wants the wagon. Pat, he believes, can take care of himself. Pat was employed at the farm of Calvin Boice on the Brunswick road, just beyond New Market. His last name nobody in that neighborhood knows.

Yesterday morning Farmer Boice instructed Pat to take the big team of greys and the big wagon and drive to Millstone after some beer grains. Pat departed early in the morning. The afternoon came and went but no Pat. Boice began to worry about it and went forth but found no trace of missing man, horses nor wagon.

This morning at 5 o'clock Fred Boice, a son of Calvin Boice, was driving his milk wagon in the direction of Plainfield. He was surprised to meet two horses coming along without a wagon or driver. Then he recognized them as the missing steeds that Pat has driven to Millstone. Under ordinary circumstances they should have come from the direction of New Brunswick instead of back by Dunellen. The horses showed no sign of hard usage. They were harnessed and the traces were knotted as if they had been unharnessed from the wagon and stabled.

Now Mr. Boice wants his wagon and today resumed the hunt for it. He believes that Pat was either overcome by the thought of the beer grains or else partook too freely at some resort en route and forgot to come home. It might be added that both horses were very hungry when returned to their stalls.

Said the Boys Broke a Window.

Sherman Haberle and John Haberle, two young boys residing in the borough, were arraigned before Recorder Long this morning on a complaint made by Samuel Toby, a shoe dealer doing business on Somerset street. The latter complained that the boys had been annoying him and had broken a glass in his store. The boys disclaimed all knowlege of the charge, and upon their promise to behave and not do anything that would bring them into court again, Recorder Long suspended sentence.

TREATED HORSE CRUELLY

FOR HIS BRUTISH CONDUCT OSCAR TENEYCK WAS FINED $25.

Borrowed a Horse and Made It Haul a Heavy Load From New Brunswick to Irvington—Tried Before Justice Nash.

Oscar TenEyck, colored, was tried yesterday afternoon before Justice Nash on a charge of cruelty to animals, and was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $25. It was a hard story of cruelty which witnesses swore to, and they made TenEyck out little better than a brute.

The offense was committed November 12th. That morning TenEyck went to Hetfield and Gallup, the ice dealers, and borrowed one of their horses. TenEyck said he wanted to use it an hour, but instead of that he drove into Middlesex county, hitched the horse, which only weighed 1,000 pounds, to a load af household goods, weighing, truck and all, 3,100 pounds, and drove to Irvington. The start was made at 11:30 o'clock in the morning, and TenEyck was not back until 9:30 o'clock at night.

In the meantime Messrs. Hetfield & Gallup had notified the police, and ordered them to arrest TenEyck if they saw him. At 9:30 o'clock he drove in town and was caught by Patrolman Totten who locked him up. The horse, the witnesses said, was so weak that it couldn't draw the empty truck, and when it was unhitched went staggering home.

The defendant denied the whole story, except that he drove to Irvington. The horse, he said, balked, and that was what delayed him.

F. J. Blatz reprerented the State, and William G. DeMeza was counsel for the defendant.

A Fine Concert.

The musical people of Plainfield will have an opportunity of hearing again Mendelssohn's "Athalie" at the First Baptist church Monday evening next. A large chorus, under the direction of E. J. Fitzhugh, has been studing this favorite cantata for several weeks. The solos will be sung by Miss Harris, soprano, Mrs. Samuel Case, mezzo-soprano and Mrs. Ward, contralto. A popular reader from New York will render the dramatic parts of the High Priest. The price of admission has been fixed at 25 cents and reserved seats 50 cents, the object being to give all the privilege of hearing this charming work.

Soon to Be Discharged.

Rev. A. E. Main has received good news from Washington. It is to the effect that his son, Daniel C. Main, will soon receive his discharge from the regular army, where he has been serving in the ambulance corps. The order of discharge will come from Governor's Island under directions from Washington. Young Main is in ill-health as the result of heroic work for the soldier boys on the field, and his father has succeeded in effecting his discharge on those grounds, a favor not always granted.

Funeral of Mrs. Lenox.

The funeral services over the remains of the late Mrs. J. P. Lenox took place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of her son-in-law, William H. Smalley, near New Brunswick. Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, of this city, of whose church Mrs. Lenox was for many years a faithful member, was the officiating clergyman. The remains were temporarily placed in the receiving vault in the cemetery at New Brunswick. Mrs. Lenox was the mother of David Lenox, who is well known in this city.

Practicing Military Tactics.

The boys of Leal's School have returned to the practice of military tactics as they did last year. This year the cadet corps of the school is under the direction of a young militia non-commissioned officer from Pennsylvania. He was formerly a first sergeant in the 12th Pennsylvania Volunteers and was discharged this fall when the regiment was mustered out. He is now a law student at Columbia College.

Seventy-first Hero a Guest.

Harry Phillips, first sergeant in the 71st New York Volunteers, has been a guest at the home of H. H. Aikenhead, of Watchung avenue. He has now fully recovered.

CHANCE OF SILK MILL COMING TO THIS CITY.

Propositions Made to Board of Trade Last Evening.

IS LOOKED AT FAVORABLY.

WILL BE NECESSARY TO SUBSCRIBE TO $25,000 WORTH OF STOCK.

Paterson Manufacturers Desirous of Making a Change in Location—They Want a One-third Interest in the Company—Large Dividends are Assured—Would Employ Skilled Workmen.

Will Plainfield soon have a silk mill within its borders? This is the question that is agitating the minds of a number of local business men just at present, and the prospects appear to be excellent for the introduction of such an industry in this place.

Last evening Messrs. Zimmerman, W. J. Young and Thomas Bullock, of Paterson, all of whom are experts in the silk business, came to this city and met the board of management of the Board of Trade for the purpose of learning what chances there are for organizing a stock company among Plainfielders. President Lounsbury was in the chair and there was a number of the members out.

After the object of the meeting was recited by Harry Runyon, secretary of the board, Mr. Young made a short statement of the plan to be carried out. He stated that he and Mr. Bullock were anxious to locate a silk mill in Plainfield from the fact that it is near New York, outside of the strike district of Paterson, and is altogether a desirable place to have a mill. He said that it is their plan to organize a stock company with a capital of $25,000. All they wanted was a one-third interest in the company with a salary of $25 per week, and they will also pay for five shares each of the stock.

Mr. Young informed those present that Mr. Bullock and himself understood the silk business from the bale of raw silk to the silk fabric turned out for wear. They are thoroughly conversant with every detail of the manufacture of broad silk and ribbons, and if such a mill was started they expect to go in the mill and work just the same as anyone else. They claim that a dividend from 70 to 75 per cent. annually could be declared, that the money invested could be turned over at least six times a year. The idea was expressed that silk operatives are a desirable class of people in a place, as they have to possess a little more than the average intelligence. With a capital stock of $25,000 one hundred people could be employed. Mr. Young stated that he already had promised orders amounting from $60,000 to $100,000. It was thought best to start with a good sized number of looms, and the visitors said that there is now an opportunity to purchase one of the two plants or both of them. They are located in Paterson, and can be purchased for $3,200, or one can be purchased for $2,400. They could be moved to this city and started with comparatively little trouble.

It was stated that wages ranging from $10 to $20 per week could be paid for fifty-five hours work, and that young women will average about $15 a week.

After the remarks by the visitors Charles H. Hand, who was present, said that he was deeply interested, and that he would offer his Crescent Rink building for three years for the plant as his interest in the business. This offer was well received by all.

Remarks regarding the great profit on various kinds of silk were made and it was shown that there is large money in the business. The fact of being outside of the influence of the labor organizations makes a saving in labor 25 per cent.

The new industry was discussed pro and con and finally Mr. Hand offered a motion that a committee of three be appointed by the chair to go to Paterson to examine the plants in question and to examine into the character and standing of the gentlemen who come from there with the proposition. J. Fred MacDonald, Charles H. Hand and Fred C. Lounsbury were appointed as that committee. They will go to Paterson tomorrow for the above-mention purpose, and then report to the Board, when, if everything is all right, the work of securing subscribers to stock will be taken up. It was thought by all present that if the shares and payments were arranged properly there will be no trouble in securing the necessary amount of money.

Alex. Muir, of Elizabeth, has been visiting Plainfield friends for a short time.

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

Don't Look.

There are some diseases which do not arouse our sympathy—the disease is not deep, and therefore our sympathy is shallow. But we often make serious mistakes—such as calling a backache a light affliction. Backache means kidney trouble every time, and if you don't drive it away it will never go of its own accord without taking you with it. But it does not continue simply as a backache. Don't you think a backache dangerous? We do, but we must add just a few words and they are, Doan's Kidney Pills cure every time and all stages of kidney disease, but it is always best to keep as far from the danger line as possible, and the cure is easier.

Mr. S. J. Conklin, Travelling Salesman for a New York Confectionery House, living at 134 W. Front street, says:—"I have been subject to kidney complaint for 6 or 7 years. My symptoms were, pain in the back and hips which at times I felt in my side; if I sat for any length of time in one position when I rose, a sharp, shooting pain struck me through the small of my back and caused me great agony. I was also troubled with a bladder difficulty.

The latter trouble annoyed me very much at night and caused more or less loss of sleep. I tried different kinds of kidney cures but received little or no relief. I had read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills and I went to L. W. Randolph's drug store and got a box. On using this I felt great relief and procured a second box. I have now taken 3 altogether and am wonderfully improved. I am troubled very little with backache and bladder trouble has been greatly benefitted. Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy and accomplished all that is claimed for them."

BRISK TIMES IN SENATE

Mr. Hoar Objects to Senators on Commissions.

HAWAII THE CASE IN POINT

The Practice of Appointing Senators on Presidential Commissions Rebuked. Their Independence Lost Thereby.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—The Senate had a long debate in executive session yesterday upon the subject of confirmation of the Hawaiian commissioners. The debate was started by Senator Hoar, Republican of Massachusetts, who made a vigorous protest against the practice of appointing senators upon such a commission.

He said that these senators were, when appointed, acting under the direction of and became the duly authorized agents of the president to carry out his ideas and wishes. What became of their function as senators, he asked, when the report they make, as in the case of the Hawaiian commission, came before the Senate, a co-ordinate branch of the government?

In the case of the joint high commission now negotiating a treaty with Great Britain, and the peace commission now in Paris, there were the same objections, but applied with greater force. Senators should hold aloof from such positions because their acts as commissioners were to be passed upon by the [illegible] senator, a very reprehensible practice.

The senators acting for the president as a commission which, when dealing with a foreign country, had to act as a body, might be placed in the position of supporting a cause which they as senators would reject.

The method of appointing senators on commissions was defended by Senators Morgan, Democrat of Alabama, and Platt, Republican of Connecticut, who claimed there was nothing inconsistent in acting in such capacities.

The debate then became somewhat general, and the constitutional prerogatives of the president and the rights of the Senate were discussed at length upon the legal and technical phases of the subject.

Other speakers in the controversy were Senators Chandler, Republican of New Hampshire, and Bacon, Democrat of Georgia, in oppisition to the too free exercise by the president of the power of appointing senators to other positions.

They pointed out that there was a law on the statute books inhibiting citizens from holding two offices with pay at the same time, and insisted that such appointments were contrary to the spirit of American institutions.

Senator Aldrich, Republican of Rhode Island, was among those who contended for the right of the president to call into the service of the country the talents of senators and members of Congress in other lines than those in which their offices indicated.

The contention on this side was to the effect that the practice was an old one, and they cited a supreme court decision to show that two offices might be occupied by the same person in cases where the services did not conflict.

At 2.15 p. m. the Senate resumed business in open session.

Marsh Pleads Guilty.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 8.—Gideon W. Marsh, president of the Keystone National Bank, which failed in March, 1891, was arraigned in the United States district court yesterday and pleaded guilty to indictments charging the misapplication of funds of the institution and the making of false reports of the bank's condition to the controller of the currency. Sentence was deferred.

Marsh disappeared in May, 1891, his bail of twenty thousand dollars being forfeited, and he was a fugitive from justice until November 3 last, when he returned to the city and voluntarily surrendered himself to the court.

William Steele, former cashier of the wrecked Chestnut Street National Bank, was also arraigned yesterday and pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with aiding and abetting President William M. Singerly (now deceased), in the misappropriation of the funds of that institution.

War Investigation.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—The war investigating commission examined yesterday Paymaster General Stanton and Colonel Hecker, the quartermaster in charge of the transportation of troops.

Colonel Hecker was examined in detail as to charters and purchases of vessels by the war department.

He said he knew of no instance where more than the actual cost price was paid for vessels, despite the pressing necessity of the department, nor was there a single instance where any influence outside the government and the contracting parties could have been used.

"Was there any possibility for any third party to be benefitted by these sales?" he was asked.

"In the cases of the Port Victor and the Scandia there certainly was," was the reply. "To what extent, however, I cannot say."

Senator Simon at the White House.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—Among the visitors at the White House yesterday morning was the new senator from Oregon, who was presented to the president for the first time, by his colleague, Senator McBride.

The swearing of Mr. Simon as a member of the Senate this week gave to that body a complete membership of two senators from each state for the first time in several years.

Brewers Protest.

New York, Dec. 8.—About three hundred delegates from all over the country gathered yesterday in Arion Hall, Fifty-ninth street and Park avenue, at the special meeting of the brewers, to protest against the continuance of the war tax of one dollar a barrel on beer. All the largest brewing concerns in the United States are represented at the conference.

THE PATHFINDER LAUNCHED.

The Latest Addition to the Fleet of the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

Elizabethport, N. J., Dec. 8.—The launching of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey steamer Pathfinder took place at 2.05 o'clock yesterday afternoon, at the Nixon shipyards. Miss Ruth W. Crandon, a niece of Secretary Gage of the treasury department, broke a bottle of wine on the vessel's bow as it entered the waters of the Sound.

After the launching Mr. Lewis Nixon entertained the guests at luncheon.

Among those present were Secretary and Mrs. Gage, Miss Griggs, Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, superintendent of the coast survey; Frank W. Grogan, naval architect, and superintendent of construction; Governor-elect William A. Stone of Pennsylvania and President Low of Columbia University.

The Pathfinder is a steel screw steamer, 196 feet long over all and 165 feet on the water line, with 33 1-2 feet beam, and has a draught of eleven feet with all stores aboard.

MISS RUTH W. CRANDON.

She will travel fourteen knots an hour, and will have a steaming radius of seven thousand miles.

A portion of the bottom is double and there are seventeen water tight compartments.

She will carry seventy people, but there is room for three times that many.

The engines are triple expansion, 18.27 and 45 inches in diameter, with 28-inch stroke.

The boat will be fitted out with a full complement of motor launches, sounding apparatus and instruments to carry on the work in which she will be engaged.

The vessel cost $165,000. Her keel was laid August 22, 1898, and it has taken but a little more than one hundred days to nearly complete her.

THE NICARAGUA CANAL.

A Modified Bill to be Pressed in the Senate.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—The Senate committee on the Nicaragua canal yesterday decided upon some changes in the bill for the construction of the canal and authorized Senator Morgan, Democrat of Alabama, to press the matter upon the early consideration of the Senate.

The most important change made is one leaving to the president to decide whether the bonds of the government shall be issued to aid the construction of the canal, or the proceeds of the sale of the Pacific railroads be devoted to that purpose.

The bill as now to be reported leaves the details of the construction in the hands of the Maritime Company, as before, and will contain a special provision limiting the amount of cash in the United States treasury that may be devoted to its use to five million dollars.

Senator Morgan was authorized to make a new report on the bill covering the changes and giving much historical data concerning the projected enterprise.

A Socialist Mayor.

Haverhill, Mass., Dec. 8.—At the city election here the Socialists elected their mayor by a plurality of about four hundred, elected three out of the seven members of the board of aldermen and three members of the common council.

Their vote surpassed all expectations.

The victorious organization is not the Socialist Labor Party, which made such a showing in the state election, but the Debs Social Democracy, which has flourished in this city almost to the extinction of the other branch of the Socialists.

To Observe the Eclipse of 1900.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—An appropriation of five thousand dollars has been asked for by the secretary of the navy to enable the superintendent of the United States Naval Observatory to take observations of the total eclipse of the sun in the month of May, 1900.

This eclipse will be total in the southern states and many scientists from abroad will come to this country to observe it.

THE EMERGENCY FUND

How the Fifty Million Dollars Were Expended.

FULL REPORT SUBMITTED

Details Submitted to Congress from Heads of Departments and Bureaus. Allotments for Ivestigation in Porto Rico and for the Board of Inquiry Into the Conduct of the War.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—The manner in which all war funds were spent is told in detail for the first time in letters sent from all the departments and bureaus to the House committee on appropriations, and made public as part of the report on the urgent deficiency bill.

Of the emergency national defence fund of fifty million dollars, the navy department got the largest amount, viz., $29,973,274. Of this the department proper spent $17,706,884, mainly in buying ships; bureau of yards and docks, $1,038,480; equipment, $1,290,883; navigation, $124,000; ordnance, $7,912,084; construction and repair, $1,115,315; steam engineering, $430,613; supplies and accounts, $211,484; medicine and surgery, $37,000; Marine Corps, $106,529. The navy has a balance of $275,000 of this emergency fund.

The war department expenditures of the emergency fund amount to $13,951,303, as follows: Office of secretary of war, $116,206; ordnance bureau, $4,797,036; engineer bureau, $5,369,787; quartermaster's bureau, $1,988,880; medical bureau, $1,233,693; paymaster's bureau, $136,944; chief signal officer, $238,890; lighthouse board, $69,866.

Secretary Hay says, in a letter to the committee, that the state department received $393,000, in five allotments, from the emergency fund.

Of this amount the sum of $100,000 has been transferred to the bankers for the department at London, England, for the use of the peace commission at Paris, and $30,000 was advanced to the disbursing officer for the commission prior to their departure for Paris.

The amount disbursed by the department, including drafts of ambassadors, ministers and consuls, also for transportation of consular officers, Cuban refugees and others from Cuba, telegrams, etc., was $48,276.

Assistant Secretary Spaulding writes concerning the treasury's expenditures of the emergency fund:

"Allotments of $10,000 for investigating the administration of civil affairs in Porto Rico have been made to this department, all of which will probably be expended. An allotment of $75,000 for expenses of commission of inquiry into the conduct of the war, has also been made to the treasury department, of which $20,000 have been advanced to the disbursing agent of the commission. How much more will be required the department is unable at this time to state."

Peace Negotiations.

Paris, Dec. 8.—There was no joint session of the peace commissions yesterday. The Spaniards are still translating the American note in regard to the status of Spanish subjects in the annexed territories.

As previously cabled, the eight principal articles of the treaty are agreed on, and all that remains is the settlement of the minor points of the treaty.

The latter will probably be signed on Saturday next, for the Spaniards are as anxious as the Americans to finish the work in hand.

Secretary Ojeda of the Spanish commission said:

"It is very painful for us to remain here haggling over details, since the main points have been settled, and we have been obliged to relinquish our colonies. All the work will be finished this week.

"The commercial treaty between the United States and Spain will be negotiated upon the re-establishment of diplomatic relations, and the question of Spanish ships and products in Cuba and Porto Rico will be included therein."

The Lafayette Monument.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—The Paris Exposition commission has received a letter from the French officials conveying the information that the Lafayette memorial monument in all probability, will be given a site in the garden of the Tuileries. Premier Dupuy is said to favor this site.

A meeting of the commission has been called at Washington for next Tuesday, when the plans of the monument will be decided upon.

An enclosure from the state of Washington for one thousand dollars, the contribution of the school children of that state, was received.

Soldier Vote All In.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 8.—Secretary of State Palmer is satisfied that all the soldier votes that have been cast in the field are in his possession, and he has decided to open the packages today at noon in the presence of Mayor Van Alstyne and William Barnes, Jr., of this city, who will act as the representatives of the Democratic and Republican state committees.

They will then be sent to the various county clerks for distribution to the boards of election inspectors.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S REPORT.

Tells of Prize Vessels and Recommends Many Changes in Alaska.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—Attorney General Griggs has submitted to Congress his annual report:

"The war revenue act," he says, "has been especially productive of doubtful questions, and many instances of advice and direction to the commissioner of internal revenue relative to different features of that statute will be found in the report of that officer.

"Very soon after the outbreak of the war with Spain the department was called upon to take charge of legal proceedings for the condemnation of vessels and cargoes captured by our navy as prizes and brought into our ports for adjudication.

"As early as April 22 two Spanish vessels—the Beuna Ventura and the Pedro—were so taken, and thereafter similar captures were made by our warships during the progress of the war until a total of fifty-six vessels were brought into various ports and libeled as prizes. Of this number fifty were taken to Key West, within the jurisdiction of the southern district of Florida; four were taken to Charleston, one to Savannah and one to New York.

"All but eight of the fifty cases brought in the Florida district have been heard and decided, those still undecided being cases of capture during the later stages of the war.

"The amount realized from the sale of captured vessels and cargoes condemned as prizes is $71,034. In ten cases appeals have been taken on the part of the claimants to the United States supreme court and are pending.

"The attention of Congress is called to the necessity of providing a more complete and adequate form of government for Alaska. The efforts to administer justice and maintain order in the territory, with the large accessions of population that have recently gone into that region, restricted by the very limited machinery provided for Alaska in its original sparsely populated condition, are attended with great difficulty and embarrassment.

"The machinery of justice is entirely inadequate. There should be an increase in the number of judges, the number of United States commissioners, and United States district attorneys.

"Much complaint arises from the operations of the fee system in connection with the office of United States commissioner. I recommend that a change in the method of compensating these officers be made, so that their compensation shall be paid entirely by a fixed salary, and all fees covered into the treasury."

Havana in a Terrible Shape.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—Advices received by officers of the war department give a terrible picture of the sanitary conditions in Havana. The statement is made that the death rate is higher for the last month than for any preceding period in twelve months, the months of the war not included.

The condition of the streets in the poorer sections is said to be shocking.

Emphasis is placed on the danger to the United States troops, who will be landed soon, but it is said that the camps outside of Havana have been well selected and fitted up with due care for the health of the troops.

It is feared that any troops quartered in Havana will soon be in great peril.

It is suggested by one of the officials that if permission could be gotten to begin the wholesale cleaning of the city now, much danger could be averted.

Santiago has been helped some in this way, but even there the illness is alarming.

Joint High Commission.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—The joint high commission has been obliged to rearrange its sessions, making them from 9.30 to 11.30 a. m., daily, in order to permit Senators Fairbanks, Republican of Indiana, and Faulkner, Democrat of West irginia, and RepVresentative Dingley, Republican of Maine, who are members of the commission, to attend to their congressional duties.

After yesterday's session it was said that the outlook for concluding a treaty was fairly good, although it was not yet certain that such a result could be brought about.

Choate Said to Be the Man.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—The Ambassadorship to the court of St. James has been offered to Joseph H. Choate, and he will probably accept.

This statement is made by a senator who is very close to the president, and who is in a position to know.

While it is known that Senator Platt is unfriendly toward Mr. Choate, his friends assert that he will not make serious objection to any New Yorker selected by the president.

To Change Jury System.

Exeter, N. H., Dec. 8.—At the present term of the law court a committee appointed to recommend changes in the jury system has advised that the selection of jurymen be left to a board of jury selectors to be appointed by the supreme court.

A bill embodying this idea has been drafted and will be presented to the next legislature.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 8.—A new computation at Yale University brings the Chase comet to perihelion on January 4, 1899.

TWO NEW ARMY BILLS

Reorganization Measures Brought Before House and Senate.

AN INCREASED ARTILLERY

Chairman Hull's Plan Includes Hospital Corps of 3,000 Men. It Differs Widely from that of Gen. Miles. Miles' Plan Regarded too Elaborate.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—Representative Hull, chairman of the House committee on military affairs, has introduced his bill providing for the reorganization of the army on a peace footing of one hundred thousand men.

The bill was drafted by Mr. Hull in conference with officers of the war department, and differs radically from the plan submitted Tuesday by Major General Miles to Secretary of War Alger.

The principal feature of the bill is the fact that the increase is rather in the strength of the companies than in the number of the regiments. Provision is made for the appointment of officers from civil life and from the volunteer army.

A lieutenant general is named as the commanding officer of the army. The bill provides for six major generals and twelve brigadier generals of the line.

The greatest increase in the number of regiments is in the artillery, of which forty-two regiments are provided. The artillery corps is to have a brigadier general, two colonels and fourteen lieutenant colonels.

To do away with the difficulty in handling volunteer artillery a sufficient number of regiments in this branch of the regular service are provided in skeleton form in which enough men can be enlisted in case of war to bring the regiments to their full strength.

The opposite principle is followed with the infantry. In this branch it is intended to keep the regiments on a war footing all the time, the number of enlisted men being increased to 145 for each company.

In case of war the regular army with the full quota of trained men would be called upon to form the first line of defence, behind which the volunteers would form the second line.

The infantry is increased by five regiments and the cavalry by two regiments.

The full strength of this army is approximately one hundred thousand men and officers.

One of the principal features of this new army is to be the hospital corps, in which there is to be a brigadier general, ten colonels, twenty lieutenant colonels, one hundred and ten majors, and three hundred and sixty assistant surgeons.

There are to be three thousand hospital men with the necessary non-commissioned officers.

Chairman Hull said that he had read General Miles's plan of reorganization and was of the opinion that it was too elaborate in the matter of rank to receive the assent of Congress.

General Miles's plan of army reorganization was introduced in the Senate by Chairman Hawley of the military affairs committee.

It is likewise on a basis of one hundred thousand men, divided as follows:

Fifteen regiments of cavalry, of one thousand men each; fourteen regiments of sea coast artillery, of twelve hundred men; two regiments of engineers, of one thousand men each, and fifty regiments of infantry, containing twelve hundred men each.

The bill proposes to raise the grade of the general in command of the army to that of a full fledged general.

It also provides for two lieutenant generals, six major generals of infantry, one major general of cavalry, one major general of artillery, eighteen brigadier generals of infantry and two each of cavalry and artillery.

Nominated by the President.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—The president has sent these nominations to the Senate:

To be major generals of volunteers—Brigadier General Guy V. Henry, U. S. A.; Brigadier General Leonard Wood, U. S. V.

Archie D. Sanders, collector of internal revenue for the Twenty-eighth district of New York.

William G. Malin, agent for the Indians of the Sacs and Fox agency in Iowa.

Among the nominations also were those of the officers of the navy advanced for eminent and conspicuous conduct in battle, among them being Rear Admirals Sampson and Schley and other officers who fought in the Spanish war.

Uproar in Hungary.

Budapest, Dec. 8.—In the lower house of the Hungarian diet yesterday the letter of Dr. D. de Szilagyi, president of the Chamber of Deputies, announcing his resignation, was read and Dr. L. Lang, one of the vice presidents, personally announced his resignation.

Francis Kossuth, in behalf of his party, and Palonyi for the Independents, proposed that no cogniance be taken of Dr. Szilagyi's resignation.

When the premier, Baron Bannfy, arose to reply, for a time his remarks were inaudible, owing to the great uproar.

Finally the premier denied that the government desired Dr. Szilagyi to make illegal use of the rules of the house and employ force.

A resolution was adopted requesting Dr. Szilagyi to withdraw his resignation.

INNOCENT YET SENTENCED FOR LIFE

Convicted of Murder, Ogle Declared His Innocence, but Was Not Believed.

New York, Dec. 8.—George Ogle, who has served eleven years of a life sentence for murder is to be released from prison just as soon as the necessary formalities can be arranged.

It has been discovered that he was convicted on perjured evidence and never should have been imprisoned at all.

Governor Black issued a pardon for Ogle after the details of the case had been presented to him by John McCullagh, superintendent of elections, and formerly superintendent of police here.

At the time of the murder McCullagh was a police sergeant. Ogle and his brother Samuel attended a ball on the night of Thanksgiving day, 1885. On their way home, with a party of friends, they went to a saloon on Eighth avenue, between Twenty-second and Twenty-third streets.

Nearly all in the party were more or less under the inuence of liquor, and before long the boisterous merriment led to a quarrel. Somebidy stabbed James Brown and the wound proved fatal.

The fact that Brown had been hurt was not discovered until all the others had left the bar room.

Arrests followed and the Ogle brothers and others were taken into custody, but there was no evidence upon which to hold them. All were released and the identity of Brown's assailant was as much of a mystery as ever.

Two years passed and the crime was forgotten. Then one day two men, who had not figured in the case before, accused Geoge Ogle of giving Brown his death wound.

Ogle was rearrested and convicted, the men swearing that they had seen him plunge the knife into his friend's back. That was in 1887.

With life imprisonment before him, George Ogle swore that he had been convicted on perjured testimony. Many a man had said the same thing many times before, so little attention was paid to Ogle.

Eleven years passed and Ogle had given up all hope of establishing his innocence. Then one day, not long ago, the two men who had swore away his liberty were arrested on a serious charge.

They were taken before John McCullagh, then superintendent of police.

McCullagh remembered them, and in the course of conversation the old case came up, and the superintendent learned that the men were not present when Brown was stabbed. McCullagh immediately took steps to have Ogle released.

PRESIDENT M'KINLEY'S TOUR.

Will Start on Tuesday for the Atlanta Peace Jubilee.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—The president and members of his party who will attend the peace jubilee exercises at Atlanta will leave Washington over the Southern Railroad Tuesday afternoon, December 13, at two o'clock, reaching Atlanta between eight and nine o'clock the following morning.

They will spend Wednesday and Thursday at the jubilee, where the president will deliver an address and attend the banquet to be held Thursday evening.

The party will leave Atlanta on Thursday, at midnight, reaching Tuskegee, Alabama, the following morning at nine o'clock.

Three hours will be spent inspecting the Normal and Industrial Institute, of which Booker T. Washington is the president.

It is expected that President McKinley will make a short address to the students.

The company will start for Savannah on Friday afternoon, either by way of Montgomery or Macon, reaching Savannah Saturday morning between eight and nine o'clock, where there will be a military parade a public reception and a banquet to the president.

They will spend Sunday quietly and will start on the return trip just after midnight, reaching Macon the following morning between eight and nine o'clock.

Here several hours will be spent by the president and party in reviewing General Wilson's command, of which about eight thousand troops are stationed at Macon.

COMING EVENTS.

December 9—Self-entertaining table conference of directors and ex-directors of the Y. M. C. A. of New Jersey at Davis' restaurant, Newark.

December 11—S. B. Frank, Jr., the Hebrew Christian, of Newark, will address the Y. M. C. A meeting at 4:15 p. m.

Deceiving Jersey Stomachs.

It is an old and somewhat trite saying that when you touch a man's pocketbook you touch him in a tender spot, but it is equally as true that the ordinary citizen is as sensitive about the welfare of his stomach. Especially is this so of Jerseymen, who enjoy living high as well as any class of people on top of the earth. Therefore when the people of New Jersey learn, from State Dairy Commissioner McGuire's annual report, how their palates and stomachs have been cruelly deceived by the ingenious venders of food products, they will want to take an ax to somebody.

Commissioner McGuire reports that during the past year 752 samples were analyzed, and that of these 208 were adulterated. The greatest amount of adulteration was found in cream of tartar, tomato catsup, honey, syrup and coffee. In the case of cream of tartar, one-half of the samples examined were found to contain foreign substances, chiefly starch and sulphates. In honey and syrup more than one-half of the samples were found to contain glucose; this was also the case with molasses. Chicory was the principle adulteration in coffee. Over one-half of the samples of tomato catsup were found to contain salicylic acid.

The people of Plainfield are to be congratulated upon the defeat in the municipal election of that city of the ticket which apparently represented no issue except hostility to the commuter element. Plainfield has won a deserved reputation for progressiveness, public spirit and municipal improvement. The credit for this is largely due to business men of New York who have been attracted to Plainfield by its healthfulness, advantages of location and natural beauties. These men have made Plainfield their home, have invested their money in property there, and have taken an active part in local affairs, and to them is due its attractive residences, park-like streets and rapid growth in population and wealth. But for the contempted commuters Plainfield would still be the country village of a few years ago, provincial and unprogressive. The fight against the commuters was an outbreak of latent provincialism.—Newark News.

The News is in error when it speaks of hostility to the commuter element as the only issue of the late municipal campaign in this city. There were many others, but the early attack on commuters—which, however, turned into praise at the fag end of the campaign—did its share in defeating the Citizens' movement.

Editor Runyon had his usual "blow" about the alleged superior election report of the News. As a matter of fact, however, The Daily Press' report was recognized on all sides as the best in every respect. As is usually the case, the News treated the election news in a hodge-podge, amateurish manner. The practice of the News is to jam in the news any old way; that of The Daily Press to be skillful and reliable. Comparing the slip-shod methods of News reporters with the painstaking details of The Press reporters tends only to reflect more credit upon The Daily Press.

It has been the common practice of legislators to hold their party caucuses the night before the Legislature convened, but this year the Republican members of the Assembly will change the custom and hold their caucus one week from today. At that time they will settle upon the plan of organization and select the list of the faithful who will fill the appointive offices. Incidentally, it might be stated that there are several Plainfielders who are looking with longing eyes on legislative jobs this winter.

The State Board of Taxation has completed the compilation of the tax exemptions on all property in the State. The total valuation in the State is $844,365,198, and the exemptions aggregate $90,554.155, an increase of more than $2,000,000 over last year. The school property exempted is valued at $18,198,990. This is an increase over last year of about a half-million dollars. The value of church and charitable property exempted this year aggregates $29,098,779.

Since it is reasonably sure that Senator Reed will capture the presidency of the State Senate it is hinted that Senator Johnson, of Bergen, would be as well pleased to lead the Republican forces on the floor during the coming session as he would to occupy the platform. In that capacity he would be pitted against Allan McDermott, the Democratic chieftain, and would have an opportunity to show his ability as a debater and a lawmaker.

The faculty of Princeton University stamped their approval of the undergraduate resolutions forever abolishing hazing in Old Nassau, by adopting them without a dissenting vote. Hereafter the sophomores will not molest verdant freshmen.

The big advertisement of the Republican managers in The Daily Press Monday, exploiting the qualities of regular Republicanism, would seem to indicate that they considered "advertising the key to success."

Those Democrats who ran for office in Plainfield Tuesday have one consolation anyway. Their trip up the Salt river was made in the company of some Republicans.

The Christmas present that the soldier boys in the Third Regiment would welcome as a blessing would be the orders to be mustered out.

Vice-President Hobart uses an inkstand in his office at Washington that cost $1,000. Nothing comes too good for a Jerseyman.

The Christmas edition edition of The Daily Press will be issued December 17th. It will be a beauty.

"Roosevelt consults Low," comes the news from New York. That must be galling to Platt.

The regular Republicans say that it was a case of the "survival of the fittest."

Now get down to business.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Notwithstanding the presence of well-known Republicans on the opposition ticket, the regular Republicans won the municipal election in Plainfield by a substantial majority. Plainfield voters are rather independent individuals, especially in local affairs, and the Republican victory was due to the fact that the nominees were representative and popular men of unquestioned integrity and ability.—New York Tribune.

* * * *

Plainfield held its municipal election yesterday and, as the Journal predicted, the Republicans won a decided victory over the Democrats, Citizens, Disaffected, Mugwumps and all others combined. This goes to show that those who felt alarmed over the reports that the Plainfield Republicans were split to pieces and in a bad way, were unduly agitated. The Plainfield Republicans do not think so little of party affiliations and party success as some have imagined. The Plainfield Republicans are not only faithful to their political principles, but also to the city government entrusted to them, and herein lies their strength. To have won a local election by 400 majority, soon after a State election, shows that the people of Plainfield are still in favor of good government and the principles of the Republican party.—Elizabeth Journal.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The following "impressions" of Julia Ward Howe in The Atlantic will prove interesting to scores of Mrs. Howe's friends in this city: "I remember when a thimble was first given me, some simple bit of work being at the same time placed in my hand. Some one said, 'Take the needle in this hand.' I did so, and placing the thimble on a finger of the other hand, began to sew without its aid, to the amusement of my teacher. This trifle appears to me an early indication of a want of preception as to the use of tools which has accompanied me through life. I remember also that, being told that I must ask pardon for some childish fault, I said to my mother, with perfect contentment, 'Oh, yes, I pardon you,' and was surprised to hear that in this way I had not made the amende honorable. I remember the difficulty of acquiring the 'th' sound, when my mother tried to teach me to call her by that name. 'Muzzer, muzzer,' was all that I could manage to say. But the dear parent presently said: 'If you cannot do better than that you will have to go back and call me mamma.' The shame of going back moved me to one last effort, and, summoning my utmost strength of tongue, I managed to say 'mother,' from which achievement I was never obliged to go back."

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

The comic situations of Geo. H. Broadhurst's success "What Happened to Jones," which will have its first presentation here at Music Hall next Wednesday night, keep large audiences amused wherever the farce is presented. The Kind You Have Always Bought Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

A LARGE store, a large experience and a large stock places us in a position to do the toy business of this community. Never before have the people of Plainfield been shown so great a variety of choice toys, selected for their attractiveness, durability and inexpensiveness. The time is now here for making your selections. Our stock is growing beautifully less day by day, and the crowds of shoppers are increasing accordingly. We cannot impress upon you too strongly the importance of making your purchases now. Later on our facilities for promptly serving the rush of buyers will be greatly taxed. Not only so, but our stock will be greatly depleted.

Don't get the impression from all this that toys are the only Holiday goods we have to offer. Sensible fancy goods in variety are scattered throughout the various departments. New, original and exclusive.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 8th—C. W. Blain is grading the lawn in front of Mr. Sutphen's new house on South avenue. Mr. Sutphen, who lives in New York, has been quite ill, and now it is not fully decided whether he will come out here to live after all.

Mrs. William Carman, who has been ill for several weeks, died yesterday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock. Her death has been expected for days. Mrs. Carman was a member of the Presbyterian church, and leaves a husband and two children. She was about forty years old. Arrangements for the funeral will be made later.

Miss Rand, of Somerville, while walking through one of the streets Tuesday, had the misfortune to lose a handsome feather boa. Mrs. William H. Terry happened to find it, and a day or two afterwards returned it to its owner.

Dunellen seems to be overrun this season with peddlers and salesmen of all kinds anxious to sell their goods. They must meet with good success or they wouldn't be so plentiful.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church held their regular monthly meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wm. H. Terry.

Mrs. Jane Apgar, of West Front street, is confined to the house as the result of a bad fall three weeks ago.

Mrs. Charles Carpenter, of Washington avenue, is confined to the house with an attack of the grip.

Mrs. C. M. Bowyer has returned from a two weeks' visit with relatives in Camden.

Mrs. John Wehrley and Mrs. Wilson Fredericks spent Tuesday in New York.

Miss Minnie VanMiddlesworth visited friends in Plainfield yesterday.

Miss Rand, of Somerville, visited friends in the borough Tuesday.

Mrs. R. J. Swackhamer visited relatives in Somerville Wednesday.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, Dec. 8.—Mrs. Jane VanNess, a woman of about 54 years of age, died yesterday morning. Her funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from the house. Rev. Frank Fletcher, of the Baptist church, officiated. Mrs. VanNess leaves a large family of children.

Rev. Frank Fletcher read a paper entitled, "Is Modern Christianity Christ Like?" at the meeting of the Ministers' Association Tuesday morning. The meeting was held in the study of the Presbyterian church at Dunellen.

Rev. Mr. Wright, of Somerville, preached in Holy Innocents' church last evening.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 8 —That part of town known as "The Commons" was aroused to fever heat Monday evening by the action of one of its residents named Warta, who with his wife, occupy one of the little cottages along the principal street in the settlement. Mrs. Gustave Warta was entertaining two women of the neighborhood, when her husband returned from the villiage. Warta happened to be full and started in at once to abuse his wife, striking and knocking her down. The company started to interfere and this made Warta all the worse and he began to clean house. The women screamed and Warta, it is said, pulled out his revolver and threatened to kill all. This only added to the excitement which had already aroused the whole neighborhood. Among the first to arrive was the son of one of the women who had been calling upon Mrs. Warta. He ran into the house just in time to see Warta make a rush for his mother, but before he could stike her, he was upon him and soon overpowered the brute. The neighbors who had arrived had hard work to restrain him from doing the old man serious harm.

Several young men of the villiage have issued a call for a meeting tonight in Emery's parlor of the young men in the villiage who are interested in forming an athleting club, for the purpose of forming such an association.

There is no truth in the article appearing in Monday evening's News, stating that E. L. Hand and F. R. Allen would give a "game" dinner to their friends at "The Central" Thursday evening.

George L. Dunn who has been quite ill at his home, has so far recovered that he has resumed his position in New York.

John Bornmann is erecting a windmill on the Stagg property, corner Grand street and Stout avenue.

George Schick and Randolph Drake have been drawn as petty jurymen for the January term of court.

Fanwood B. & E. Co. held their regular monthly meeting in their rooms last evening.

Mrs. Stites M. Parse is spending a few days with her sister, who is quite ill in Newark.

Miss Mary Dunn, of New Market spent Tuesday with her brother, Norman Dunn.

Dr. Parks is confined to the house suffering from an attack of the chills.

Robert Walpole is spending a few days with relatives in New York State.

Mrs. Joseph Schwalbach is detained at home with illness.

Miss Eva Baker visited friends in Plainfield Tuesday.

WESTFIELD.

A small quantity of Ely's Cream Balm placed into the nostrils spreads over an inflamed and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation, cleanses, heals and cures. A cold in the head vanishes immediately. Sold by druggists or will be mailed for 50 cents by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

CERTAINLY!

Well, Mr. Merchant-who-thinks-of-advertising, this is only one of the many corners in THE DAILY PRESS—it isn't the best located one, either; we can give you better—and if this attracts your attention in our endeavor to tell you how good advertising will get you a hearing before the purchasing public, doesn't common sense teach you that if you were having people reading your trade story instead of you're reading our argument about it, that it would be better for your business.

THE DAILY PRESS reaches the purchasing public that makes the profits for the merchant.

We can give you big or little space—but in advertising it is'nt always economy to be sparing in your appropriation.

ROSA BONHEUR AT HOME.

Place Where She Hides Herself From the World.

Among the great artistic personalities of our time none is better appreciated or less known than Rosa Bonheur. It is to art that Rosa Bonheur has sacrificed everything, burying herself in the depths of a forest far from the world and carefully closing her doors against the curious who have sought out her hermitage, the chateau of By.

The chateau of By is the only home of Rosa Bonheur worth mentioning. The greatest part of her life has been passed in this house, whose interior is strikingly bizarre and arranged to suit her special tastes. In 1850 she bought a piece of ground in the depths of the forest near Thomery and had her house built there. It is large and original in plan, somewhat after the Dutch style, and is filled with beautiful and curious things. There too is the famous cabinet of "etudes." Rosa has never been willing to part with any of these. Then there is the "capharnaum," a long room, containing panels, frames, brushes, old canvases, photographic apparatus, in short a thousand things. It is here that Rosa planes, hammers, files and saws, a genuine companion of duty, and so gay, so cheerful withal. And what a good comrade this great artist is, who knows so well the fitting word of consolation or encouragement, uniting with the qualities of an honest man a true woman's heart, simple and loving.

Her tenderness was well shown in the care of her dearst friend, Mlle. Nathalie Micas, her faithful companion for forty-five years. While young they had united their destinies and had aided each other along life's difficult pathway. Upon Mlle. Nathalie devolved the important duty of superintending the household at By. She watched over and cared for Rosa's "pensionnaires," a numerous family, not easily managed. Mlle. Nathalie died in 1893, and the grief of her adopted sister is of the kind that can never find consolation.—The International.

FORCED TO TAKE PITY ON HIM.

How a Youth Took a Refusal From the Girl He Loved.

"I happen to know how closely pity is akin to love," declared the prosperous merchant to some of his cronies who were enjoying his hospitality in the library. "I can draw upon personal experience and am not left to the uncertainties of theory.

"At twenty-two I was as love-lorn a youth as ever heaved a sigh or wrote doggrel ditties. She was pretty and sweet and smart, and all that. I was big and awkward and undeveloped. But no one was ever hit harder. I mooned, was never happy out of her sight, and robbed my sleep to build castles in the air with her as the presiding princess. Girls are always more mature and wiser at that time of life, but she was tolerant and considerate, for blind devotion from any man is flattering to any woman.

"Time and again I had fixed a time for proposing, but my courage would ooze as fog yields to the sun, and she had a tactful way of changing the subject whenever my language was headed toward the fateful question. But one evening the crisis came with an irresistible rush. I have no idea of what I said, but I proposed and pleaded and swore that my life was in the balance. She refused in the kind of way women have under such circumstances. I was mentally wrecked for the time. Rushing into the hall, I hustled into the old gentleman's hat, her brother's overcoat, and her mother's overshoes, seized her umbrella and started, as funny a looking object as any made up for the stage. She called me back, laughing through her tears, helped me to replace the stolen property, called me a dear, foolish boy, and took me into the parlor again.

"She is now in the next room, playing with the children."—Detroit Free Press.

SCOLDED FOR TAKING A FORT.

Piece of Heroism Which Was Called a Breach of Discipline.

In 1757 a man-o'-wars's man, Strahan by name, captured almost single-handed one of the forts on the Hoogly. The fort, which was strongly situated, was invested by the Admiral, and Strahan, during the time of midday repose, wandered off "on his own" in its direction. Gaining the walls without discovery, he took it into his head to scale a breach made by the cannon of the ships, and, on reaching the platform, he flourished his cutlass and fired his pistol at the "niggurs," shouting, "The place is mine." The native soldiers attacked him, and he held his own with indomitable pluck till reinforced by one or two other tars, who had straggled out of camp and heard his huzzas.

The enemy, unprepared for this ill-timed attack, and fearing further invaders, fled from the fort upon the opposite side, leaving twenty cannon and a large store of ammunition. Much to Strahan's surprise, he was lectured by the Admiral for his breach of discipline, and he was dismissed with hints of future punishment. "Well," said Strahan, "if I'm flogged for this here action, I'm —— if I ever take another fort as long as I lives!" —London Sketch.

THE CHIPPEWA WAR.

PART PLAYED BY FATHER ALOYSIUS IN ENDING HOSTILITIES.

A Brave Missionary Averts Great Trouble by His Influence With the Chiefs—Historic Case of Father Marty In the Sioux Revolt.

The military authorities have been compelled to appeal to a Catholic missionary in order to open negotiations for the surrender of the Chippewa braves. In times of peace, or when the sects are clamoring for money to help their Indian missions, it is customary to question the influence of the Catholic priest among the Indians, but when the redskin prepares to go on the war-path the minister prepares to go home and is quite willing to leave the field to the Catholic missionary.

On a recent Sunday two of the hostile chiefs, although they are unbelievers, attended mass. They had heard that Father Aloysius, who has lived among the Chippewa tribe for 20 years, would speak on their trouble with the government and they wished to obtain his views on the subject. The little chapel was crowded with friendly Indians, among whom Father Aloysius is greatly respected.

Father Aloysius preached for two hours in the Chippewa tongue, counseling peace and pointing out to the Indians the futility of further resistance. The missionary's appeal seems to have greatly influenced the chiefs, as the following telegram received by the interior department testifies:

WALKER, Minn., Oct. 18.

The Secretary of the Interior:

Runners from the hostile camp came to the agency last night and report that the hostiles are willing to council at Sugar Point. A delegation under the direction of Father Aloysius started for that point by steamer this afternoon. The situation seems to look brighter.

TINKER, Inspector.

The intrepid Father Aloysius, "armed with only a box of hard tack and a side of fat pork," braved death recently by visiting the hostile camp of the Bear island Indians, who have been sending messages of defiance to the soldiers and the United States marshals. For any one but a Catholic priest such an act may have meant certain death, but the Chippewas have learned to trust and respect Father Aloysius and his co-laborers in the missionary field.

Father Aloysius and his two companions were received very cordially by the Indians. A council, which lasted three hours, was held in which the Indians bitterly complained of having their pine lands stolen from them. Father Aloysius promised if they would lay down their arms and make known their grievances to the Indian commissioner that justice would be done them. The hostiles readily believed the brave missionary and consented to the plan.

The history of the brave missionaries among the Indians makes one of the noblest chapters in the annals of the church. For centuries they have endured fearful privation and torture and death in their efforts to bring the savages to a realization of religion.

This incident recalls the historic case of Father, afterward Bishop, Marty, who took such a great part in the protection of white settlers in the days when Sitting Bull was on the warpath. Father Marty had been laboring with much success among the Sioux tribe and had become a great favorite with Sitting Bull, and in the troublous days of the Indian revolt the United States government appealed to the missionary to conciliate the savages and save the settlers whom the Indians had sworn to massacre. He was a man of heroic courage and did not hesitate to undertake the task. He visited the hostiles, among whom he was greatly beloved and respected, and by wise counseling he averted what promised to become a general massacre. Father Marty's efforts thus opened the way for immigration in Dakota.—San Francisco Monitor.

Two Catholic Admirals.

The death of Rear Admiral William A. Kirkland has followed swiftly upon that of Rear Admiral Daniel Ammen, the close of the war with Spain thus witnessing the loss to our navy of its highest commanders. Happily both were spared long enough to enjoy the spectacle of America's new glory on the seas. Both of these officers were deeply interested in problems of naval construction and strategy. Ammen was Kirkland's senior in naval service by 14 years, having become a midshipman in 1836, but the now departed ranking rear admiral had undergone 48 years of duty and had witnessed the evolution of the navy from its old days of wooden ships to its present supremacy of ironclads. As a lieutenant commander of the Winnebago in the gulf blockading squadron (1864-5) Kirkland took a distinguished part in the capture of the city of Mobile.—Philadelphia Record.

Archbishop Chapelle's Appointment.

In sending Archbishop Chapelle to Cuba the pope once more shows how good a statesman he is. Of French birth, the archbishop is a genuine American in his ideas, and his popularity among all classes in New Orleans is amply deserved. There are delicate questions to be settled where he is going and no mere reactionary could settle them. But Dr. Chapelle's liberality and good sense may be counted upon to smooth over many difficulties. — Providence Journal.

Pope Encourages Art.

Pope Leo XIII has always done his best to encourage art. Some time ago he offered the sum of $2,000 to the artist who could paint the best picture of the holy family. Forty-six paintings were accordingly submitted to a special commission recently to be judged, but as none was considered of sufficient merit to gain the prize another competition is to be held. His holiness expressed disappointment as the result of the competition, which was open to all Italy.

DEFENDER OF THE JEWS.

Influence Exerted by the Church Against Their Oppression.

In Catholic countries, and in Catholic times in those countries which later on became Protestant, prelates of the church exerted their influence to protect Jews, even, as it were, compelled kings and great nobles to protect them. For such a purpose the powers of the church were threatened. Now, so far as I know, Jews were not favored in Protestant countries. Nay, more, excellent men opposed the removal of their disabilities in England. There are excellent men among the clergy and laity of the English church who still maintain that the admission of Jews to the bar, to the houses of parliament, to the army and navy, is incompatible with the claim of England to be regarded as a Christian country.

We shall pass from this unpleasant feature in the case made for Dreyfus, informing "Huguenot," the editor of The National Review, the Protestant Jew, Mr. Goschen, and his agent, Mr. Chamberlain, who is converting the colonial office into a chamber for conspiracies against other nations, that so anxious were popes to protect the Jews, from the eleventh century to the latest hour of their moral authority in Europe, that they to some extent succeeded in establishing as a rule of evidence the principle that no Christian should be believed in a charge against a Jew unless he was corroborated by a Jew. In one country, the most intensely Catholic in Europe—Poland—this rule became part of the law of evidence, and it was the recognized law in the papal states when Jews were persecuted everywhere else.—Cor. Catholic World.

NEWMAN ON GENTLEMEN.

The Cardinal's Idea of the Best Type of One.

Cardinal Newman defines a gentleman as one who never inflicts pain, his great concern being to make every one at ease and at home. He has his eyes on all his company; he is tender toward the bashful, gentle toward the distant and merciful toward the abused; he can recollect to whom he is speaking; he guards against unreasonable allusions or topics which may irritate; he is seldom prominent in conversation and never wearisome; he never speaks of himself except when compelled, never defends himself by a mere retort; he has no ears for slander or gossip, is scrupulous in imputing motives to those who interfere with him, and interprets everything for the best; he is never mean or little in his disputes; never takes unfair advantage; never mistakes personalities or sharp sayings for arguments, or insinuates evil which he dares not say out. From a long sighted prudence he observes the maxim of the ancient race that we should ever conduct ourselves toward our enemy as if he were one day to be our friend. He has too much good sense to be affronted at insults; he is too well employed to remember injuries, and too indolent to bear malice. We take it as the best type of the gentleman, and the only true one is to do unto all men as you would have them do unto you. This is the golden rule. Neither wealth, fine surroundings, fashionable dress nor a finished code of etiquette will make the gentleman if he lacks in the strict observance of this rule.—Exchange.

Catholic Church In Our New Colonies.

The Catholic church must be maintained in full efficiency in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines. It is the church of the people, the church in which they have been brought up, the only church that can reach, influence and restrain them. Many of them, of course, are of no church—simple pagans—but the very considerable number who are of the Roman faith exercise a wholesome and regenerating influence on the whole mass. The Cubans and the Filipinos without a church, uninfluenced and unbefriended by the prelates and given over to irreligion would be distinctly more difficult to govern. They would advance toward good citizenship slowly if at all. The moral and political future of the islands would be darker, and we should find it a hard task to prevent a progressive degradation and relapse toward savagery. It is very much for our interest that the Catholic church establishment shall be maintained in a fit condition to continue and increase its saving labors.—New York Times.

A Notable Reception.

A notable reception took place in the Church of the Passionist Fathers, Paris, recently, when the Vicomtesse Lionel de Dampierre embraced the Catholic religion. The ceremony of reception, which was performed by the Rev. Father Cuthbert, vicar of St. Joseph's, consisted of the profession of faith usually required on such occasions, followed by baptism administered under the conditional form and absolution from heresy. At the close of the function the "acte d'abjuration" was signed in the sacristy by the newly received convert, together with the Vicomte Gerard de Dampierre, Mlle. Beatrice de Dampierre, Mlle. Marie de Rochelaillee and Mme. Theimard, who were present in the capacity of witnesses. His eminence Cardinal Richard administered the sacrament of confirmation to the Vicomtesse de Dampierre the other day.

The Pope on the Future.

The Roman correspondent of The Figaro says: "I have it from a high personage in the Vatican that the pope, while taking a walk in the palace gardens, said to one of the nobles who accompanied him, 'Yet once again they have, so to speak, given me up for dead, but it appears that God has not willed it so.' Then, as if his mind had become illumined by a vision of the future, his holiness added: 'It is true that the hour cannot be far off now. The new pope will be able to accomplish many things, but to me, however, there rests something still to do.'"

FRANKLIN PIERCE'S RING.

Made of California Gold and Weighs Nearly a Pound.

The ring treasured by the descendants of Franklin Pierce, president of the United States, is interesting for several reasons. For one thing, it weighs nearly a pound.

It was presented to him by his friends in California and has no equal in the world. It is of gold dug from a California mine; the circular portion is cut into squares, which stand at right angles to each other, and each is embellished with an odd design, the entire group representing a pictorial history of California.

There are a grizzly bear in a menacing attitude, a deer bounding down a slope, an enraged snake, a soaring eagle and a salmon. Upon another square are an Indian bow and arrow and a native mountaineer on horseback throwing his lasso. Next peeps out a California tent and a miner at work with his pick. These designs are surmounted by two American flags, with the poles crossed and groups of stars in the angles. The part of the ring reserved for the seal is covered by a deeply carved plate of gold, with California's arms, surmounted by the flag and inscribed "Frank Pierce," in old Roman characters.

This lid opens with a hinge and shows beneath a square box divided by bars of gold into nine separate compartments, each containing a pure specimen of the varieties of ore found in the state.

The inscription within reads: "Presented to Franklin Pierce, the Fourteenth President of the United States." The ring is valued at $2,000.

THEY LOVED AT FIRST SIGHT.

And Had About the Quickest Courtship and Marriage on Record.

"You may talk about your brief courtships and marriages on short notice," said an old conductor, "but I think I witnessed the quickest made match on record. I was running between Russellville and Owensboro, and on a trip in the winter of 1881 I got a pretty country girl passenger at a little flag station south of Central City about 9.45 a. m.

"A few miles further on, at another small station, a big, strapping-looking farmer, dressed in brown jeans, with his trousers tucked in his tall boots, got on my train. The fellow hadn't opened the car door till he spied the rustic lass, and before he took his seat in front of the girl he had smiled at her. I punched his ticket, went in the smoking car, and on my return to the regular passenger coach found the Green River tiller of the soil sitting in the same seat with the maiden, chatting with her as if he had known her since birth.

"In twenty-five minutes after they had first met the fellow called me to him and said: 'See here, podner, we want 'er git hitched. I hain't knowed Mirinda Jane here but thirty minutes, but we both like, and she's willin' an' so'm I. Whur's the nighest parson, podner?' I took them on to Owensboro, and the happy bridegroom and his blushing other half were passengers back on my train that afternoon. For hurry-up nuptials it does strike me that these ought to have the cake and other special prizes offered for quick-yeast love matches."—Philadelphia Record.

The Lost Rivers of Idaho.

One of the most singular features in the scenery of Idaho is the occurrence of dark, rocky chasms, into which creeks and large streams suddenly disappear and are never more seen.

The fissures are old lava channels produced by the outside of the mass cooling and forming a tube, which, when the fiery stream was exhausted, has been left empty, while the roof of the lava duct, having at some time fallen in, presents there the opening into which the river plunges and is lost.

At one place along the Snake, one of these rivers appears gushing from a cleft high up in basaltic walls, where it leaps a cataract into the torrent below. Where this stream has its origin, or at what point it is swallowed up, is absolutely unknown, although it is believed that its sources are a long way up in the north country.

Besides becoming the channels of streams, the lava conduits are frequently found impacted with the ice masses which never entirely melt.

Origin of Calling Cards.

A French journal says that visiting cards are not of recent invention, nor even of European origin. They existed in China twelve centuries ago, but their use did not spread to France until the last century. The Chinese cards, however, had little resemblance to those in use in Europe to-day. They contained often wonderful designs, expressing all sorts of good wishes for those for whom they were intended. The size of the card indicated the respect the owner had for its recipient.

In the seventeenth century, the English ambassador at Pekin received from the Chinese government a card eighteen feet long, which was carried by six men. Cards were illustrated with designs, the work frequently of artists of reputation, when first introduced in France. Mythological subjects were most in vogue.

These were in fashion until the first empire, and it was not until 1845, when the use of cards became universal, that the name on them was engraved in the simple form of to-day.—Golden Days.

Farmer—Look here, my son, it is time to repair our mill. The artists are beginning to paint it.—Fliegende Blaetter.

"Goin' pa'tridge huntin', be ye?" Hiram Hull asked as he poured four pounds of No. 6 shot from the scoop of the scales into one of the conical packages that our shot used to be done up in by storekeepers before the era of paper bags.

"Well, no, not exactly hunting," I answered with a view to the possible need of excuses for an empty bag. "I'm going over to Bradley's to spend Christmas, and didn't know but I might see a pa'ridge." It would have been "stuck up" to call our best game bird "partridge," and no one would have recognized it under the name of "ruffed grouse."

"You hain't goin' to hoof it over the maontain?" he asked with the end of the string between his teeth as he wound the package with a frugal allowance of packthread. I nodded an affirmation while I silently admired his thrifty habit of putting the few spilled pellets into the box of unsold shot.

"Wal, then, ye'd better let me put ye up a pound or two o' buckshot."

No, sir," I said in a tone expressive of reproof for the suggestion. "I've no use for buckshot this time of year," for the close time for deer began this month.

"Of course not, but you'd want something bigger'n number sixes if the wolves got after ye," said Hiram, making a persuasive dip into the box of buckshot.

"Wolves," said I contemptuously; "why, there hain't been a wolf around here for twenty years."

"Wal, there is, naow, a pack o'seven, anyway, an' mebby more. Why, hain't you heard? Amos Barker seen 'em full tilt after a deer an' counted 'em, seven of 'em. His man at was a helpin' of him on his coalin' job said there was thirteen, but Amos reconed he see double or counted some of 'em twice, an' there's lots o' folks 'at 's heard 'em. There's wolves ha'ntin' the maountain, you may depend. Better le' me weigh you about a couple o' paound."

"No, I guess it won't pay to carry any extra weight on the chance," I said, admiring the store-keepers cunning attempt to sell me something I did not want. "But you may put up that small doll and that Jack-in-the-box for me. They're light and they'll tickle Billy's two little shavers. Then put up a half dozen crackers and a bit of cheese for lunch, fill my tobacco box, and let me have an extra pipe, and I'll be off. I want to make the trip by daylight."

"I hope ye will. I ra'ly do. I wouldn't want to have you get ketched in the dark on the maountain. So you're goin' right over to Bradley's, be ye?" he continued as he shuffled about behind the counter to put up the articles for me, and then began rummaging in a drawer of odds and ends. "Now, I wonder if you wouldn't jest as lives take him a pair o' bullet molds 'at Aaron Clark left here for him, last spring, I guess it was. I guess he borried 'em some time or 'nother an' fetchin' 'em here is as nigh as ever he come to returnin' of 'em. If Bradley's ever needed 'em he must be beginin' to feel the want of 'em, an't it won't burden you no great to take 'em, if you're willin', an' they'll be off'm my mind."

"GOIN' PA'TRIDGE HUNTIN', BE YE?"

Hiram found the mould after a short search, and, slipping them into my pocket with the other articles, I retired to my bachelor quarters over Miss Diantha Gridley's tailor shop, where, after transferring the shot to a spring-top pounch, and filling my flask with better powder than Hiram sold, and exchanging my leather boots for a pair of the sheepskin boots tanned with the wool on, which were then the most approved winter footgear, with my double gun on my shoulder to lighten my steps, I set forth on the ten-mile tramp.

"Good-by, Mr. Markham," called Miss Gridley, coming to the door, red in the face from a close interview with her goose, "I wish you a merry Christmas, but I should feel easier about you if you hadn't got no gun. I'm always afraid of a gun's goin' off."

"Well, mine's going off in a way that won't hurt you, Miss Gridley. Good-by."

Crossing the little river that turned the mills and forge of our village, and following the road as far as it ran in my direction, I held across the fields to the woods, before entering which I set my compass for my intended course.

This was through six miles of mountain woodland, unbroken but for the clearings made in the operations of lumbering and charcoal burning. It was rough, but not very difficult traveling, for the mountain was not high nor very steep, except at the peak, which was not in my route.

I did not deviate much from my course for the sake of hunting, but held straight on, contenting myself with the few shots that chance offered, which were few indeed, for one seldom finds many ruffed grouse in the heart of the woods, where congenial food is not so abundant as in the outskirts.

When the backbone of the mountain was reached and my journey half accomplished, I had but one partridge, but there was a chance of more in the stretch of forest that lay before me, partial glimpses of which I now had through the stunted oaks and pines that scantily clad the rocky ridge.

Beyond the woods, bits of the valley farms could be seen and the clustered buildings of homesteads with banners of smoke floating from the chimneys, signaling the preparation of Christmas cheer.

The weather was exceedingly mild for the season, a circumstance which proved very fortunate for me, and as I was quite comfortable in the warmth of the low midday sun, I gave my legs a good rest while I ate my lunch and lazily smoked and dreamed in the midst of the quietude.

There was not a sound to be heard above the constant murmur of the pines and the occasional rustle of an unfallen withered leaf, nor a living thing to be seen but a mite of a winter wren exploring the intricacies of a fallen treetop, and a few flies that were buzzing about the sunny side of a tree trunk. There was no snow even on those heights, and, in proof of the exceptional mildness of the season, a flower of herb robert bloomed beside me, paler than its own scarlet leaves.

At last, after a considerable continuance, this silence was broken by the sound of light, cautious footfalls on the dry leaves at some distance behind me, evidently on my trail, drawing nearer, then it ceased behind a screen of underbrush, and, as I looked and listened, receded, giving me but a glimpse of gray fur.

I guessed that it might be a lynx, sneaking inquisitively along my track, and was quite willing he should satisfy his curiosity without showing more of himself, for I would not have liked to let him go unshot at, if fairly seen, nor yet risk a shot with such charges as were in my gun, a possible contingency that made me wish for a pound of Hiram's buckshot.

As I began my way down the mountain a glance at the sun showed me we were likely to part company before my journey was ended. Half a mile further on, in an old charcoal clearing, I flushed a partridge, at which I took a snap shot that knocked a cloud of feathers out of the bird without retarding its flight, but I was sure it was hard hit, and began a diligent search where it had disappeared at the edge of the clearing.

Looking the ground over carefully, step by step, I had gone much further than one who does not know how far a mortally wounded grouse can fly would think it of any use to search, when I heard, far behind me, what I took to be the piteous howl of a lost hound.

I was wishing the poor fellow might find my track and come up to me, when the long-drawn, plaintive wail was repeated at a point so distant from the first that it was evident it could not have been uttered by the same animal, and presently it was taken up at another distant point.

Still groping over the ground in search of the dead bird, I wondered at so many hounds having gone astray that day, when, just as I found my bird lying belly up, stone dead, I also came upon something that gave me a startling enlightment.

The fallen leaves and the soil were torn and furrowed and stones and patches of moss were overturned, in evidence of a desperate struggle, the result of which was plainly shown by the antlered skull and scattered bones of a deer and a mat of coarse gray hair trodden into the mold.

Hiram's wolves were no harmless creatures of the imagination, but savage realities, and a chill ran down my back as I realized the probability that the pack was now rallying on my trail. I did not doubt that I had heard their voices.

I took my bearings and went forward at my best pace with far less thought of hunting than the fear of being hunted. Thus I went on for half an hour, hearing nothing but the snapping of twigs and swish of branches made by my own rapid progress till clamor of jays broke out forty rods in my rear. As I drew near it was mingled with the rustle and patter of many swift feet. I was near the crest of the ledges that ridge crosswise the long westerly incline of the mountainside, and, looking backward down the slope, I saw two wolves break through the undergrowth of whortleberry bushes, and had glimpses of others behind them.

My next look was for a tree that could be climbed, and I was fortunate in discovering one close at hand, a low-branching pine of more than two feet in diameter at the base of the trunk, which for ten feet up to the whorls of sturdy green boughs bristled with stubs of dead limbs that made convenient steps.

My gun was of German make, rigged with a sling, which till now I had always thought a useless appurtenance, but in this emergency it proved quite otherwise, when by slinging the gun over my back I got up, easily and quickly. None too quickly, for in two minutes the leaders of the pack were beneath me, and glaring up at me with cruel, hungry eyes, having evidently seen my ascent, for they were not at fault a moment.

Others came until there were seven in all, some circling about the tree, some sitting on their haunches and treading impatiently with their forefeet, like a dog waiting for a choice morsel, and licking their slavering chops; some gnawed at the trunk or made prodigious leaps at the lower branches.

I climbed to a secure and comfortable seat on a limb twenty feet from the ground, and, after getting my breath, and my nerves were a little settled, I tried the effect of a charge of No. 6 on one of the besiegers, as I got a tolerable fair aim at his uplifted muzzle through an opening. There was a yelp of surprise and pain, followed by a general commotion among the crew, and when the smoke had lifted above me I caught glimpses of the stung brute clawing his head with alternate forepaws.

I fired several times as opportunity offered, but desired when it became evident that instead of driving off my assailants the sting of the small shot made them the more savagely persistent. I tried slugging the shot in a cartridge made of a bit of the lining of my coat, but it amounted to nothing. Bewailing the incredulity which had made me refuse the buckshot, I was at my wit's end how to raise the siege.

Perhaps my supply of provisions would last till the enemy was starved out, if the weather did not turn cold and freeze me on my roost, which was a prospect less agreeable than that of subsisting on raw partridge flesh.

Then it occured to me to climb to the top and see if there was any chance of making alarm shots heard down in the settlement. Slinging my gun I began the ascent. But ten feet further up the pine came to an end, for there above a whorl of stout branches on to which I climbed, but could get no outlook through the tree tops.

I filled and lighted my pipe, and, chancing to throw the unextinguished match onto the stub, which was broken about square across, and was at least a foot in diameter, it ignited a handful of dry pine needles that had alighted there. The flame lasted but a moment, yet long enough to suggest the idea that fire enough might be built here to roast small bits of the partridge, and close upon this followed another, which gave me hope of deliverance.

There was the bullet mold in my pocket, and if I could but manage to turn my paltry shot into a dozen solid balls I would soon rid myself of the wolves. As I was refilling my pipe with a view of stimulating invention my tobacco box gave me a clew to a solution of the problem. It was an old-fashioned steel box with a hinged cover and square corners that would serve as a spout to pour melted lead from.

I transferred the tobacco to a pocket, made a cut of a small green limb firmly on to the open cover for a handle, and had what promised to be a serviceable smelting ladle. Then, reaching out, I gathered some dry twigs and bits of branches, and I soon had a small fire burning in the center of the stub. When it was well going I held the improvised ladle, with a couple of ounces of shot in it, over the hottest place, and, after some patient waiting, had the satisfaction of seeing the separate pellets become a little puddle of molten lead, I managed to pour most of it into the mold and got three good bullets at the first smelting, but lost one, which fell to the ground.

I GOT UP QUICKLY.

Better luck attended three more successive trials, which gave me thirteen bullets, making fifteen, in all, which I thought might answer my purpose, and I whipped out the fire with a green branch.

It was now near sundown, so there was no time to be lost if I was to get away by daylight.

The bullets were much too small for the bore of my gun, therefore I put two in each barrel, with a light charge of shot, and descended to the lower branch, where I seated myself upon the one where I could get the clearest view of the ground.

The wolves greeted my reappearance with a chorus of savage yelps as they gathered eagerly beneath me, snapping and snarling, each struggling for the nearest place that he might be first at the expected feast. One grizzled old fellow, the patriarch of the tribe, who had curled himself up in the fallen treetop, to bide my downfall, now had his philosophical patience overcome and limped forth from his lair, sneaking around the outskirts of the crowd with his hungry eyes constantly upon me. The largest and strongest of the pack kept the position directly under me, now springing upward more than his length, then tumbling back upon his mates that crowded beneath him, now standing upright on his hinder feet and pawing the air and snapping his fanged jaws viciously. While he was in this posture, I fired one barrel straight into his mouth.

The recoil almost unseated me, but I recovered myself with no greater mis*hap than losing the toys out of my* pocket. The big wolf made no motion, but to sink in a lifeless heap with his back of his head blown out. The others scattered a little, but presently returned, sniffing at their dead comrade and lapping his blood. Poor dolly got a cruel bite from one that spoiled her beauty forever. Another nosing jack-in-the-box unhooked the lid, whereupon the little imp filliped his snout, and I could not help laughing at the fright it gave the great cowardly brute.

I fired the second barrel at the old grandfather as he warily skulked past, beyond the others, and the charge broke his back. He writhed about, biting the wound a moment, and then dragging his paralyzed hinder parts, crawled out of sight. The others were getting somewhat shy, but plucked up courage during the cessation of hostilities, while I reloaded, and then came close under me again.

A third shot killed one nearly outright, and the fourth broke the shoulder of another as he ran. He retreated to a safe distance and amused himself with his wound, while the unhurt survivors stood off, now regarding curiously their dead and wounded companions, now me, with growing respect, and evidently doubting whether it was worth their while to continue any longer in my neighborhood.

When my gun was reloaded I settled the question for them with two shots. The first one bore such a hole in the belly of one that his entrails dragged upon the ground, and the second stung another so sharply that he stood not on the order of his going, but made off in all speed in company with his unscathed comrade, while the fellow with the broken shoulder hobbled after them, and the other poor wretch tried to follow them, turning now and again to bite his own entrails, entangling his feet and catching on stubs and stones.

Evening was already deepening the forest shadows, and I had little time to spare in mercy to the merciless brute, but when I got to the ground I hastily loaded my gun and finished him with a shot in the head.

Then, picking up the toys and taking my course by the compass and the evening star, I held forward at such speed as the rough and darkening way would permit. Fortunately, the almost full moon was well up in the clear sky, and I had little difficulty in finding my way down the mountain, and reached Bradley's before their early bedtime.

Little Molly Bradley prized the doll all the more for the scars which proved her hair-breath escape, and her brother looked upon the jack-in-the-box that had scared the wolf as a hero as doughty as Jack the Giant Killer.

Their father seemed to doubt my story till I led him to the scene of my adventures the next morning, and showed him the four wolves, for we found the broken-backed patriarch after a short search.

When we returned with the pelts the Christmas dinner was ready for us, no mean part of it being the partridges, much more nicely cooked by Mrs. Bradley than I could have done on the tree stump had I been obliged to.

When I went home the next day there was a full pouch of buckshot in my pocket, but I found no use for it.

A PARSON'S CHRISTMAS.

Amongst the Many Gifts Only One Was Worth Accepting.

"Has any one sent in anything yet?" Parson Preachem had just returned from a round of wearisome parish calls, and he had known before he went away that his larder was almost as bare as old Mother Hubbard's, and the next day would be Christmas.

"Sister Sharper has sent in a jar of rhubarb, but I think that it is working, and Sister Wealthy has sent her card wishing us a happy Christmas."

"Is that all?"

"Brother Meek has sent us a fowl, but I'm afraid to use it."

"Why?"

"Well, I heard Sister Meekly say at the Dorcas Society the other day that their chickens were all dying with cholera, and"——

"Oh, throw the foul fowl away! Anything else?"

"The Smalls sent in half a pint of maple syrup and a dozen eggs, but only three of the eggs were good, as I found out when I tried to make a cake with them. Sister Pyous sent in some specked apples and Brother Roarer called a little while ago with what he called some Christmas cheer, in the shape of some spongy turnips and a frost-bitten squash. Brother Whiner sent in a pound of broken candy."

"And he the richest man in the parish!" groaned the parson. "And that is all?"

"Sister Brass told me at the Dorcas Society that she intended sending me a jar of gooseberry preserves that none of her family would touch, so we might as well have it as not, and Sister Gall chimed in and said that her mincemeat had begun to spoil and I could have some of it if I wanted it."

"That all?"

"Not quite. Old Susan Goode, the humblest, kindest and almost the poorest woman in the parish, has just been overflowing with happiness because some friends of hers in the country have sent her a big turkey and everything else needed for a complete Christdinner, and she wants us to come and dine with her and bring all the children. She simply wouldn't take no for an answer, and she almost cried for joy when I finally accepted the kind old soul's invitation."

"Heaven bless her!" said the parson. "And as for the others, may they not be rewarded according to their deeds!"

When Lawyers Were Profane.

A curious old minute in the Temple indicates that English lawyers did not always curb their speech in Christmas time. It orders:

"That no gentleman of this society, nor any other, by appointment, choice or assent of any gentleman of this house, should in time of Christmas or any other time, take upon him or use the name, place or commandment of the Lord, or any such like; or break open any chamber, or disorderly molest or abuse any fellows or officer of this house, within the precincts of the same, upon pain to be expulsed for the abuse or disorder."

SPORTING.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

There will be a match bowling contest on the alleys of the Plainfield Catholic Club tomorrow evening.

The game which was to have been rolled between the Orange Valley Bowling Club and the team from the Catholic Club, on the alleys here tonight, has been postponed until tomorrow night.

There is now bowling on the Hope chapel alleys every Tuesday and Thursday evenings, and the old-time bowlers are becoming interested. There is talk of arranging a series of matches for the winter months.

GOLF.

The links of the Park Golf Club have been closed for the winter. They will open again for play in the spring. In the meantime a watchman will remain at the links all winter to see that the club house is not disturbed.

If the weather will allow and there is a sufficient amount of snow the grounds of the Park Golf Club will be used this winter for a toboggan. This can be done owing to the rolling nature of the ground. The members hope that they will be able to enjoy plenty of this kind of amusement.

A Richard Wagner Monument.

During the past summer an exhibition was held in the Exposition Palace in Berlin, for the benefit of a fund to erect a monument in that city to the memory of Richard Wagner. The exhibition was held under the auspices of Princess Charlotte, of Prussia, and was especially devoted to music and musical instruments. Besides a large collection of Wagner relics, consisting of manuscripts, autograph letters, portraits, etc., there was an exhibit of modern musical instruments, and prizes were awarded by a jury of eminent musicians. The only honor conferred upon an American manufacturer was the diploma and gold medal of the first-class awarded to the Mason & Hamlin organs, because, as the diploma states, of their "superior quality of tone and great variety of tonal effects." Truly a gratifying honor from such a source. c

No More Transferring.

The Brunswick Traction Company, of New Brunswick, announces that work will be begun at once on the link to connect the terminal of the New Brunswick-Bound Brook line just outside the borough of Bound Brook with lines already built in Bound Brook, from which the company has lines radiating to Plainfield, Dunellen, Lincoln and Somerville. The Borough Council of Bound Brook has passed the franchise and the company can now lay the connecting link. It will do away with all the inconveniences of transferring.

FUNERAL OF ISAAC LAING.

Services Held in the Friends' Meeting House This Morning.

The funeral of the late Isaac W. Laing, of Dunellen, was held this morning in the Friends' meeting house. The services were simple, as Quaker services always are, and lasted half an hour, during which time the casket was opened and an opportunity was given the relatives and friends to take a last look at the remains before they were closed forever.

Rev. I. A. Martine, of the Presbyterian church, Dunellen, spoke a few words in which he told of the necessity of being prepared to die. Having known the deceased personally, the pastor was able to speak from the heart. Margaret F. Vail also read a poem from The Young Friends' Review, a publication printed in Canada.

The casket was covered with grey cloth, the Quakers' color, and on it were laid several floral pieces. Among the pieces was a green Maltese cross, sent by the members of Court Dunellen, I. O. F. The bearers were Albert Randolph, Adam Dealaman, Fred Sandford, George VanNess, Theodore Day and George Smith, of East Orange. Interment was in Hillside Cemetery.

Last evening a service was held at the home in Dunellen, under the auspices of Court Dunellen, I. O. F., at which Rev. Mr. Martine spoke very tenderly.

SPECIAL BUYING and EXTRAORDINARY PRICE CUTTING in

Men's Up-to-Date Clothing

at 214 W. Front St., Plainfield, N. J.

Clothing manufactures are compelled to confess from the weather standpoint that October and a part of November has been a serious disappointment to them. They counted on cold weather to create a demand for the surplus stock they had made up. From two manufacturers we were able to buy a large stock of winter suits, overcoats and trousers at about 40c. on the dollar for what they could ordinarily make the goods for. It is an ill wind that blows nobody good. The present cold weather brings you now at the proper time for your winter clothing at cut prices that you could otherwise not secure and for the values read them careful they are worthy of anyone's attention for we can say without contradiction, that strictly high-class, well-made and absolutely first-class suits, overcoats, ulsters and reefers for men and boys', were never sold at such prices at any other store in all the land.

Men's splendid business suits made of strictly all-wool material worth $7.50 at $2.50. Men's black and blue smooth thibet cloth suits, or the rough surface serge effects, made in the popular double breasted styles with silk faced lapels worth $15.00 at $6.90 Men's black clay diagonal coats and vests made of eighteen ounce winter weight Washington Mills clay diagonal worsted, the kind that will not fade or wear shiney at $4 90 worth $12.00. Men's suits in fine all-wool tweeds, cheviots and also homespuns, absolutely fast color and all-wool worth $14 00 at $6 50. Men's fine winter overcoats made of fine gloss surface, English Kersey cloth; these coats are lined with the highest grade plaid worsteds or with silk or satin, the tailor would charge you $25.00 for such a coat, our price is $8.90. Men's extra fine Castor beaver and frieze overcoats made with raw edges and lap seams, a bargain at $15.00 now at $6.90. Men's fine all-wool overcoats made of Wanskucks Mills kersey, the smooth closely shaven kind that will stand lots of wear, worth easily $12.50, now at $5 90. Men's overcoats made in foreign and domestic coverts at $4.50 worth $10.

Men's driving ulsters, black or brown, at $2 75, worth $7. A genuine Montagnac, extra heavy, as fine as split silk, ulster good for Sunday wear, worth $25. at $8.90. Boys' ulsters at $2.50. worth double. Children's ulsters from $1.50 up. Children's reefers from 75c. up Boys' 3 piece suits in black or blue at $2.75, ages from 11 to 16 years, worth $6.50.

Boy's vested suits, navy blue and fancy cheviots, ages from 3 to 8 years, worth $2.75, at $1; a wonderful bargain. Boy's double breasted suits, good quality, pure wool, tweeds, cheviots and homespuns. The pants have double seat and knees, $1.50, $1.90 and $2.25, worth from $3 to $6. Men's working trousers, well made, heavy weight, at 85c., worth $1.50. Holiday News and Holiday Buying

The news is told briefly as possible for the reason that the buying is already in full swing throughout the store. Never was there a season when the best of distinctly holiday things approached the lowness of prices that now rule here. Other than holiday lines of merchandise bid for your favor with equal force by reason of their exceptional merit and exceptional value. SENATOR REED FIRES POLITICAL HOT SHOT.

He Does Not Mince His Words About Somerset Politics.

ANSWER TO DISGRUNTLED.

SAYS SOME SOMERVILLE REPUBLICANS ARE TRAITORS.

The Senator Declares That They Want to Rule or Run and That They Applied These Tactics When They Voted Against VanDoren for Sheriff, Who Had Been Honestly and Regularly Nominated

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, December 9—Senator Charles A. Reed has thrown a veritable bomb shell into the Republican camp in this place by a letter published over his own signature in the Unionist Gazette yesterday. Senator Reed's letter is inspired by the recent communications published in the local papers anent the result of the late election, in which Mr. Reed's candidate for Sheriff, VanDoren, was defeated through the failure of Bridgewater Republicans to support him loyally.

After introducing his letter, Mr. Reed hits out straight by saying:

It is a fact that unless the candidate is nominated who is favored by certain elements, such candidate suffers on election day. He is cut.

This practice is carried to a greater extent in Bridgewater than anywhere else in the county. The excuse is always the same. Those who are unsuccessful in convention, at once set up a shout that they were not fairly beaten. "Peculiar tactics" and other like vague forms are used to influence voters. There is no denial of this—on the contrary, as appears by the correspondence in your last issue, it is defended and justified. That some one is responsible for this state of affairs is apparent, and the three thousand and more Republicans who consistently vote straight, have a right to know where to place the blame.

We of the outside townships are not satisfied to allow these self-constituted high priests in Bridgewater to determine just what Republicans shall be defeated. We are not wholly satisfied with their honesty. We find that the man who fails to measure up to their standard invariably resides in some other township.

It is safe to say that ninety per cent. of the Republicans in Somerset county want this practice ended. They are not deceived by the vague charges of improper influence at conventions and the like. They are familiar with the old game of "claiming everything" before the convention meets, and then crying "fraud" if you don't get it. They are Republicans upon principle and not for pelf, and they are becoming very restive under the present condition of affairs and not without reason.

"Straight Republican" assumes that because there was a cut against VanDoren, amounting to 122 in the First district in Somerville, the gentleman in charge of that poll is responsible. This must be entirely unwarranted, for that gentleman is the Hon. L. A. Thompson, who has been honored by the Republican party more frequently and more substantially than any other man in Somerset.

Where, then, is the reason to be found?

Your correspondents have something to say on that subject, and one of them says it was the result of a desire to prevent the "turning down of an old leader and his adherents;" another says it was because "sharp practices and unsavory tactics were used to secure his nomination;" another says practically the same thing; another says "we do not propose to put a man in office who was not fairly nominated, but got the nomination through the schemes of Thompson's political enemies," while one says it was because Schoonmaker supplied the people with coal and gave them time in which to pay for it.

If we are to be ruled by the majority,

ROSELLE'S FIRST DEFEAT

PARK CLUB BOWLERS WIN ONE GAME AT ROSELLE CASINO.

First Defeat of Home Team in the Tournament—Parks Won One Out of Three Games Last Evening—The Scores.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Roselle, Dec. 9—For the first time since the Central New Jersey Bowling League began its tournament this fall the Roselle Casinos found out what it was to be defeated last evening. Three games were rolled between the Casino team and the Park Club from Plainfield. The visitors lost the series but won one game out of the three, spoiling Roselle's clean score.

In the first game the home team rolled in good form and won out by over 100 pins. The Parks were not in the game. The next game was far closer. The Parks improved, while the Roselle bowlers lost their heads at times. As a result the Parks were victorious by a margin of 19 pins. Bound to make up for their defeat the Roselle team snowed their opponents under in the next game by 118 pins.

F. O. Ball, captain of the Parks, did the star work for his team, scoring 191 in the first game and practically winning the second game through his score of 213.

The individual scores were as follows:

EARLY MORNING FIRE.

Barrel of Rubbish Caught Fire But Did No Damage.

The fire department had another early morning run today. An alarm came in from Box 47 at the Pond Tool Works at 6:50 o'clock. The apparatus responded promptly but were not needed.

A barrel of rubbish in the barn of Mr. Wenzel, 212 McDowell street, caught fire. A lad saw the flames and rushed over to the Pond Tool Works shouting "fire." An alarm was sent in and the men hurried to the barn and put out the flames before they set fire to the structure itself. The damage was slight.

Death of Miss French.

The death of Miss Adelia H. French, daughter of the late Moses H. French, occurred this morning after a severe illness with bronchitis and pneumonia, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Morgan C. Bird, of Park avenue. Miss French had been ill since a week ago Monday. She was born at Washingtonville and during recent years she resided in this city. She was a member of the First Baptist church from girlhood and was a faithful attendant. She is survived by a mother, two brothers and three sisters. The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon next at 2:30 o'clock from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan C. Bird, on Park avenue.

Cake-Walk the Attraction.

A cake-walk was the attraction at the Sons of Veterans' fair last night. The walk was participated in by a number of couples, all of whom walked gracefully. The judges, R. M. Clark and Harry Shirley, awarded the cake to Miss Mamie DeNise and Harry Milligan, but those who were looking on raised such a protest, claiming that John Lynch and Miss Katharine Higgins were entitled to the prize, that the Sons of Veterans, to satisfy every one, secured another cake and presented it to the last named couple.

Too Hot a Fire in the Furnace.

Wallace V. Miller came near having a disastrous fire in his house, 924 West Fifth street, yesterday morning. There was too hot a fire in the furnace and after awhile the woodwork surrounding one of the heater pipes took fire. It was discovered in time to quench it with a few pailsful of water.

IN FINE VOICE THEY SANG

FIRST SUBSCRIPTION CONCERT GIVEN IN THE CASINO.

Fashionable and Critical Audience Was Present—Artists Appeared to Excellent Advantage in the Progamme of Music.

The first of a series of two subscription concerts to be given at the Casino took place last evening. A fashionable and critical audience was present to enjoy a programme of real merit. Frank J. Smith, organist of the Crescent Avenue church, had charge of the programme and presided at the piano during the evening. The artists included Madame Anita Rio, soprano; Miss Marguerite Keys, contralto; Dr. Ion A. Jackson, tenor; Dr. Carl E. Dufft, basso; assisted by Messrs. E. D. Barnes, S. T. Wilkinson and F. Metcalf with the mandolin, and E. F. Higgins with the guitar.

The programme opened with the rendition of "Excelsior," by Balfe, which was given by Dr. Dufft and Dr. Jackson. Both of these artists have appeared here before, and they received an ovation that was sincere. This was followed with a soprano solo by Madame Rio, who gave "Ave Maria," by Schubert. This singer is not a stranger here and her work of last evening was fully up to the standard. She also sang "Devotion," by Schumann, in a meritorious manner.

The next two numbers were given by Dr. Dufft, "The Linden Tree," by Schubert, and "The Two Grenadiers," by Schumann, and the audience assured this artist of his ability to please. Dr. Dufft's reception was flattering, showing that he had lost none of his popularity. His voice sounded as natural as it did when he appeared so frequently in the Choral Society concerts.

The next three selections, "In Winter I Got Up at Night," "Oh! That We Two Were Maying," and "I Once Had a Sweet Little Doll, Dears," all by Nevin, were given by Miss Marguerite Keys. Her work was of a superior character. Miss Keys has a deep, rich contralto voice over which she has perfect control.

Dr. Jackson, tenor, was one of the favorites on the programme, and his excellent voice was heard to good advantage. His higher notes possesses strength and purity that is delightful. He gave "It Was Not So To Be," by Neesler, in a careful and painstaking manner. The last number in part one was a quartette selection and it was a gem. Mme. Rio, Miss Keys, Dr. Jackson and Dr. Dufft took the parts with mandolin and guitar accompaniment. The selection was "Funiculi, Funicula," by Denza. Each voice was allowed a wide scope and the parts were given with precision.

In part second Madame Rio sang a "Lullaby," by Fairlamb; "The Dandelion," by Chadwick; "The Sweet Red Rose," by Bartlett; Dr. Dufft sang "Gipsey John," by Clay; Miss Keys gave "On the Wat to Kew," by Foote; Dr. Jackson rendered "My Heart and Lute," by Kjerulf; "A Dream," by Bartlett. The programme was concluded with the final trio from "Faust," by Gounod, which was given by Mme. Rio, Dr. Dufft and Dr. Jackson.

The encores during the evening consisted of "Coming through the Rye," by Mme. Rio; "Annie Laurie," and "My Old Kentucky Home," by Dr. Drift; "Ben Bolt," by Miss Keys; "Bonnie Dundee," and "Forgotten," by Dr. Jackson.

There was not a meritorious feature that escaped the attention of the audience. The work of Mr. Smith, pianist, was, as usual, superb.

CONFERRED A DEGREE.

Initiatory Work Conducted by a High Masonic Official.

The regular convocation of Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., was held last evening, at which time Excellent Companion George C. Woolson, the Grand King of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of New Jersey, was present to make an official visitation. The Mark Master's degree was conferred on James H. Rogers, a member of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., after which a banquet was given in the banquet hall. There were remarks made by Mr. Woolson and members of the Masonic fraternity present. The initiatory work performed by the members of Jerusalem Chapter was highly commented upon by the Grand King, as being fully up to the standard.

TO SUE BRUNSWICK TRACTION COMPANY.

Clark T. Rogers Claims $1,000 Damages Due Him.

RESULT OF AN ACCIDENT.

HIS WAGON WAS RUN INTO BY CAR NEAR DUNELLEN.

Claims the Lights in the Car Were Out and That the Car Was Running at a Speed Which Prevented Its Being Stopped in Time—Traction Company Claims That Mr. Rogers Was Asleep

(Special to The Daily Press)

New Brunswick, December 9.—Summons were issued yesterday in the Middlesex County Circuit Court in a suit against the Brunswick Traction Company which promises to attract considerable attention. The suit is brought by Clark T. Rogers, of New Market, for damages received in a collison with one of the trolley cars on the Dunellen-Bound Brook line, November 7th.

Clark T. Rogers is a contractor in the wholesale clothing business. He distributes the materials among the farm houses of Somerset and Middlesex counties and then collects the garments as they are completed. He was returning the evening in question after a long trip over the mountains with a load of clothing. He came down the Mizzen Peak road and turned into the Bound Brook turnpike just beyond the Dunellen borough line. As he crossed the tracks to avoid an approaching carriage, a trolley car rounded the curve leading from Dunellen and crashed into his wagon, killing one horse, injuring the other and giving Mr. Rogers a pretty bad shaking up. The wagon was also damaged.

The claim advanced by Lawyer William Newcorn, counsel for Mr. Rogers, who started the suit, is that the car was coming round the curve at such speed that it was impossible to stop it in time and further that the fuses in the car had all burned out and the only light in it was a faintly burning lantern that could hardly be noticed.

The suit is for $1,000 for loss of the horse, damages to the wagon, and for the serious nervous shock to Mr. Rogers.

The Brunswick Traction Company alleges that the accident was due to the fact that Mr. Rogers was asleep at the time and so did not try to avoid the car.

WORK OF KING'S DAUGHTERS.

Semi-Annual Meeting of the City Union Held Yesterday Afternoon.

The semi-annual meeting of the City Union, King's Daughters, was held yesterday afternoon in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church. Mrs. Charles A. Reed, chairman of the union presided, and in the absence of Mrs. William C. O'Donnell, who is the secretary, Mrs Edward Caldwell, the vice-president, filled the position.

After the transaction of the routine business, the members listened to an address by Mrs. Isabelle Charles Davis, corresponding secretary and business manager of the International Order of King's Daughters and Sons. Mrs. Davis spoke distinctively along the lines of work of the order and gave many valuable suggestions as to furthering the interest of the order.

After the address reports from various circles were received and the money pledged for the support of the city nurse and her work was given. All but five of the circles reported and the amount received is about $500.

The business portion of the meeting closed after a slight amendment was made to the consititution, and a social time followed during which tea was served under the direction of the Daughters of the Cross and Brightside Circle. Those in charge in the tea room were Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen, Mrs. Frank Jones and Mrs. George T. Rogers.

Burglars at the Plains.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 9.—Burglars last night entered the houses of Ira G. Walker and George Goodborough, which adjoin each other. In Walker's house they succeeded in getting $5, but in the other place they did not get anything. There is no clew to the guilty ones.

Improved His House.

H. C. N. Johnston, of 308 East Front street, has improved his house by the addition of a fine vestibule. He is also remodeling the interior, which will make it more convenient. Byron Young is doing the work.

Scalded His Hand.

Andrew Nolan, engineer at Marshall's laundry, slipped and fell this noon, while carrying a pail of boiling hot water, and scalded one of his hands quite badly.

THE UNION SOCIABLE.

ENDEAVORERS MET IN A PLEASANT WAY LAST NIGHT.

An Informal Musical Programme Rendered and Then an Address by a Missionary Worker Was Listened to Endeavorers gathered in the parlor of the Crescent Avenue church last night to enjoy a social hour. It was another one of those successful union sociables when the workers from all the societies in the city and neighboring towns are brought together to become better acquainted with each other.

The parlor was crowded, but not enough to prevent easy moving about, and after a short programme had been rendered, consisting of selections on the violin by Arthur Mosher, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Allis, on the piano, and an address by Mrs. Dassori, of New York, the members of the reception committee set to work to make every one feel at home.

Mrs. Dassori is a cultured and refined woman who is consecrating her life to missionary work among the Italian poor of lower New York. She told something of her work among them, of how they live, and how regular they are in attendance when they become converted and leave the Roman Catholic church of which all of them are members.

At the close of her remarks, Mrs. Dassori appealed to her audience for a generous collection to enable her to prepare a good Christmas for the Italian children who are looking forward to this event with all the expectation of children situated in better circumstances, and Mrs. Dassori does not want to disappoint them. She also asked for old clothing so that the mothers as well as the little ones can be more warmly clad. When the collection was taken up $16 was given, and promises were given for several articles of clothing.

The room was decorated with the local union colors, green and white. The presidents of all the societies formed a general committee, with James E. Kimball, president of the Crescent Avenue society, as its chairman, and the chairmen of all the social committees of the societies formed a general social committee, with I. W. Travell as chairman. Miss Anna Wyckoff had charge of the refreshments.

RAIDING COAL THIEVES.

Detective Blackford Had a Tussle With a Pair of Bad Ones.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Dec. 9—Central Railroad Detective John Blackford and another detective made a raid on coal thieves at Graceland, a mile west of here, last Wednesday night, and caught two men, who, after a sharp tussle, succeeded in getting away.

The railroad people have been much annoyed lately by coal thieves, most of whom are said to live near Graceland, who never buy coal but depend on getting their supply from loaded coal trains that stop near the station. The detectives connected with the railroad expected to make a wholesale raid in a few days and catch the whole bunch, but Blackford's raid will probably make the coal car jumpers more careful for awhile.

STARVED HORSE TO DEATH.

Abram Mifford Will Have to Stand Trial for the Brutal Action.

Abram Mifford, who is charged with cruelty by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was to have been tired yesterday morning before Justice Nash, but by consent of the counsel was postponed until Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mifford is charged with starving his horse to death, and yesterday the animal was killed, as it was too weak to get up from where it had fallen and walk into the stable.

No Evidence to Hold Him.

Peter Dickerson, a colored man, was arraigned before Judge Stillman last night charged with picking up a pocketbook containing $31 in money, and belonging to Miss Alice Miller, of 918 College place, Saturday afternoon, and refusing to return it. J. P. D. Kirch represented Dickerson, who was discharged, as there was not sufficient evidence to hold him.

Entertained at Whist.

The Thursday Evening Whist Club was entertained last evening by Miss Freeman, of East Fifth street, and a very enjoyable time was had by all. There were four tables and playing was continued until a late hour, after which refreshments were served. The club will meet again in four weeks, when it will be entertained by Miss Gillem, of Duer street.

—Arrangements are being made for the Christmas entertainment of the Sunday school of the Seventh-Day Baptist church which will be held Christmas week.

JURY WAS NOT WANTED.

ABRUPT ENDING OF A CASE IN JUSTICE MOFFETT'S COURT.

The Jurors Demanded Fifteen Cents Each as a Fee, But They Were Refused—Fred Hand Was the Defendant.

The case in tort in which the Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage Company are plaintiffs and Fred Hand the defendant, which was to have come up before Justice Moffett this morning, had an abrupt ending. Constable Mattox was given the venire yesterday to summon a jury, and this morning appeared in court with twelve men who had come "truly and lawfully to try the cause."

The Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage Company are suing Hand for $71.18, which they claim is money Hand collected and converted to his own use after he had sold out his ice business to them two years ago. Pope & Runyon represented the company, and after the jury had assembled, Mr. Pope arose and moved for an adjournment on the ground that one of their witnesses was ill, and this was granted.

It is whispered about that this was not the real reason that the adjournment was asked for, but that the plaintiffs were afraid to try the case before that jury for fear that the men were prejudiced.

When the adjournment was granted the jurymen demanded fifteen cents each as the fee to which they are entitled when a case is adjourned after they are assembled in court, but this the court refused to grant. Several of them besieged the office of the Cold Storage Company and pressed their claims, but again were refused. The case comes up again next Friday morning.

CENTRAL LODGE ELECTS.

Members Select Those Who Are to Govern Them Next Year.

At the meeting of Central Lodge, A. O. U. W., last evening the following officers were nominated and elected: Master workman, Edward B. Mosher; foreman, William Larrabee; overseer, George Blythe; recorder, N. C. Mague; financier, William Newcorn; receiver, Charles H. Randolph; guide, Harvey R. Thorn; inside watchman, Adam Hurlich; outside watchman, John Cashman; past master workman, James R. Dunham; trustee, (for three years,) William H. Brokaw; representatives to grand lodge, Clark T. Rogers and James R. Dunham; alternates, N. C. Mague and C. H. Randolph; medical examiners, Drs. O. L. Jenkins, William J. Nelson and Marion Whitford. There were thirty-nine applications received at the meeting.

PLAYED AN OLD TRICK.

Strange But Slick Woman Buncoed Dunn's Grocery Out of $10.

Fred Dunn, the grocer, was buncoed out of about $10 a few nights ago by a slick woman. She went into the store and made a 50 cent purchase, offering a $20 bill in payment. She received her change, then suddenly turning back to the desk asked to have the bill back again as she had a 50 cent piece in her pocketbook.

The woman got the bill and laid down a pile of bills which the cashier supposed to be the change she had just given, but after the stranger had gone out, it was found to be $10 short. A hurried search was made for her, but she was not seen again.

Celebrated Her Birthday.

A birthday party was given yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock by Ruth Frances Stryker, of 304 East Front street. The little one was six years old. There were about eighteen little folks present and everyone joined heartily in the festivities of the occasion. The young hostess received many nice presents as remembrances of the event. During the afternoon they were entertained with the graphophone, after which refreshments were served and they departed for home tired, but well satisfied with the afternoon's play.

Looking for Leaks in the Sewer.

The Street Commissioner's men are opening the sewer trenches on Richmond street, along that wet portion, between LaGrande and Putnam avenues, looking for leaks, a few of which are supposed to be there. So far the men have discovered nothing but a few cracks in the mortar.

MANY HONOR MEMORY OF LATE JAMES M'GEE.

Funeral Services Held at Monroe Avenue Church.

A VERY SIMPLE SERVICE.

MANY DISTINGUISHED MEN WERE PRESENT YESTERDAY.

Services Were Conducted by Rev. W. C. O'Donnell and Rev. H. B. Munson—Church Crowded—Large Delegation From Standard Oil Company and Produce Exchange—Buried at Hillside.

In the place where the interests of his last years on earth had been largely centred, the friends and associates of the late James McGee gathered yesterday afternoon to do honor to his memory. Never in the history of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church was that sanctuary so filled to its utmost capacity. There were those old and young who had known Mr. McGee during the years of his connection with the church; others who had found him a kind and courteous friend in their social relations with him; and then those whose daily business life brought them in close touch with him, where his integrity, activity and clear-sightedness were very evident. As his life had been, so were the funeral services, quiet and unostentatious. There was no attempt at eulogy, and it seemed best that it should be so, for there was so much to say that none could do justice to it.

It seemed fitting that the last sad rites should be held at the Monroe Avenue church, although it would not accommodate as many as the other church of the same denomination. Everything was very simple, according to the wishes of the late Mr. McGee. On the platform palms were grouped about a simple little desk above the resting place of the casket. On either side a profusion of white roses stood in relief against the green foliage.

In the main body of the church were seated the friends from the church and the city. In the alcoves on either side the business associates and friends were gathered. Every seat was filled and all available standing room occupied, for James McGee had been a grand, good man and there were many, indeed, anxious to do honor to his memory.

Shortly after 3 o'clock the service began. The swinging doors to the left of the front of the church were opened and the cortege entered. Rev. William C. O'Donnell, pastor of the church, and Rev. Herbert B. Munson, of Amityville, L. I., the first pastor of the original chapel, led. Rev. Mr. O'Donnell repeated in solemn voice a Scriptural quotation. Following was the casket, half hidden by floral decorations of white and green, and borne by Rev. Herbert Welch, of Middletown, Conn., and James R. Joy, of North Plainfield, sons-in-law of the late Mr. McGee, and Clifford A. McGee, Henry L. McGee, Raymond A. McGee and George A. Horne, all of this city, his grandsons.

After the casket was placed in position a quartette, composed of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Bigelow, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, sang "Rock of Ages" very impressively. Miss Jessie Utter was the organist.

A spiritual passage was read by Rev. Mr. Munson, and he then offered an earnest prayer, invoking divine comfort on the bereaved ones and thanking God that the departed one had been allowed to do so much good ere he was called to his Heavenly home. "Abide With Me" was rendered by the quartette.

Rev. Mr. O'Donnell gave another appropriate Scripture reading and then also offered prayer in heartfelt words of sympathy and sorrow for the loss. "Hark, Hark My Soul," by the quartette, was an effective ending to the simple services.

Then, one by one the silent witnesses of it all passed by the casket and looked for the last time on earth at the face of their friend, co-worker and associate. There were many tears shed for the face, calm and serene even in death, recalled to all his goodness and Christian example and how he had passed away forever.

It was a very distinguished group of New York's leading financiers and business men who came out to attend the funeral. The officers of the Standard Oil Company on Broadway, New York, where Mr. McGee had been, were closed at 1 o'clock. A large delegation, composed of the officers of the executive board of the Standard, of which Mr. McGee was a member, together with his more intimate associates in the company, was present. The Produce Exchange, of New York, sent fifty-three of its members, headed

OF THE NEW DISCOVERY IN MEDICINE.

A Remarkably Successful Remedy for Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Stomach Troubles.

Dr. Wurth in commenting on recent discoveries in medicine said: There is none which is certain to be so valuable and far reaching in benefit as Stuarts Dyspepsia Tablets, the new stomach remedy; I say far reaching, because people little realize how important a sound stomach and vigorous digestion is to every man, woman and child.

Indigestion is the starting point of consumption, heart disease, Bright's disease, diabetes, nervous prostration, liver troubles; why is this so? Simply because every nerve, muscle and tissue in our bodies is created and nourished from the food we eat. If that food is by reason of a weak stomach, compelled to lie for hours, a sour, fermenting mass of half digested food, it poisons the blood and nervous system, creates gas which distends the stomach and bowels, causing pressure on the heart, lungs and other organs, and seriously impeding their action.

He says further, the point to direct attention is not the nerves, nor heart, nor lungs, nor kidneys, but the stomach, the first cause of all the mischief.

The remedy to use for indigestion and weak stomachs is not some cathartic, but a remedy which will digest the food, increase the flow of gastric juice, absorb the gases, and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will accomplish exactly this result in any case of stomach trouble, because these tablets are composed of the digestive acids aseptic pepsin, Golden Seal and bismuth, pleasant to taste, and not being a patent medicine, can be used by anyone with perfect safety. I believe Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure any form of indigestion and stomach trouble except cancer of stomach.

Full size packages of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by druggists at 50 cents or by mail from F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. A book on stomach diseases together with thousands of testimonials will be sent by addressing above or call on your druggist for them. 12 5-7-9

VEST'S PENSION TALK

He Thinks It Time This "Spoliation Was Stopped.

THE SOUTH TO OBJECT NOW

Recent Events Have Obliterated Sectionalism and Make It Possible for the Senator to Make a Few Statements. Deficiency Bill Taken Up in the House.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—At the opening of yesterday's session of the Senate it was decided to give one hour to the consideration of pension bills.

This moved Mr. Vest of Missouri to say:

"I do not want to be captious about this pension business, and do not want to set myself up as a reformer, but this thing of passing a lot of pension bills simply by the reading of the titles and when a quorum of the Senate is not present has got to be stopped."

After further referring to the methods by which pension bills are passed by the Senate, Mr. Vest said:

"Men of the South have sat here and permitted these bills to be passed, having some delicacy about entering objections to the course of procedure. Recent events have obliterated sectionalism and we are once more united and are one country and one treasury. We can therefore come here and object to this spoliation, and I use the word advisedly, without fear of having our motives impugned or our words misconstrued.

"We are paying out in round figures $141,000,000 annually for pensions, and it is our duty to find out why it is that thirty-three years after the close of the civil war, this thing of pension claims shows so enormous a sum. I have been criticised by some of my people because I have not taken a more determined stand upon this pension question. I want, however, to pay munificently and liberally in pensions. I regard such payment as a sacred duty, but I do object to the passage of these bills without proper consideration and without the same restrictions that are hedged about other measures."

Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire, as chairman of the pension committee, agreed with Mr. Vest in his desire to have the pension bills carefully considered.

He thought a quorum of the Senate ought to be in attendance when the pension calendar was considered.

Deficiency Bill in House.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, premier of Canada; Lord Herschell, Sir Louis Davies and Mr. James Winter, premier of Newfoundland, members of the high commission, occupied seats in the gallery of the House yesterday, being the guests of Mr. Dingley, the floor leader of the majority, who is a member of the commission.

They seemed greatly interested in the proceedings and processure.

Mr. Dingley pointed out to them the celebrities of the House.

On motion of Chairman Cannon of the appropriations committee, the House went into committee of the whole immediately after the reading of the journal.

Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania took the chair and the urgent deficiency bill for the support of the military and naval establishments during the six months beginning January 1, 1899, was taken up.

After debate, the items cimprising the paragraph covering expenditures in the ordnance department in the army were increased by the sum of $432,500, making the total appropriation for that department $1,106,000.

When the point in the bill was reached at which Mr. McRea desired to insert the amendment he had proposed earlier in the day, it was read as follows:

"Provided, That nothing in this act shall be construed to change, extend or modify the provisions of section 4 if the act of April 22, 1898, and subsequent acts."

The amendment was adopted without division.

The bill was then reported to the House, and as amended passed without a division.

The House then adjourned until Monday.

The Nicaragua Canal Bill.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—The first test vote on the Nicaragua canal scheme was taken yesterday in the Senate, when Mr. Morgan, Democrat of Alabama, moved to take up the canal bill, and Mr. Pettigrew, Silver Republican of South Dakota, moved to adjourn.

The viva voce vote seemed pretty evenly divided, and Senator Stewart, Silverite of Nevada, called for the yeas and nays.

The yeas were forty-two and the nays were fourteen, so the motion to adjourn was lost, and the Senate took up the bill.

Mr. Morgan then, having got his bill in the parliamentary position desired, moved to adjourn.

The motion was agreed to and the Senate adjourned.

Lieut. Hobson Promoted.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—The president yesterday sent to the Senate the nomination of Assistant Naval Constructor Richmond P. Hobson to be a naval constructor.

The president also sent to the Senate several naval nominations which had previously been announced and a number of minor postmastership nominations.

Naval Constructor Hobson has been detached from the New York and ordered to the Asiatic station for duty in connection with raising and repairing vessels captured from the Spaniards.

McCoy to Meet Sharkey.

New York, Dec. 9.—Articles of agreement were signed yesterday by Tom Sharkey and Kid McCoy to box twenty rounds before the Lenox Athletic Club on the evening of January 9, 1899, for a purse of twenty thousand dollars offered by the club.

AN ETHICAL CONGRESS.

It Will be Convened in Milwaukee for a Three Days Session.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 8.—Within a few days there will assemble here a convention of the Ethical societies of the United States. The conference will last three days and will bring together the most prominent workers along the lines of ethical culture in the country.

Professor Felix Adler, the founder of the ethical movement in America, and lecturer of the Ethical Society of New York, will be present and so will William Salter, lecturer of the Chicago Society; W. S. Sheldon, lecturer of the St. Louis Society; S. Burns Weston of Philadelphia, and other well known speakers and promoters of the ethical movement, besides many delegates from various societies and other people interested in the work.

DR. FELIX ADLER.

The programme for the entertainment of the visitors will include a reception on one of the evenings and two sessions daily for the reading of papers and reports.

A lecture by one of the visiting delegates will be the feature of the evening meetings.

CONTRACT SCHOOLS.

Cardinal Gibbons Petitions Congress to Reopen the Subject.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—Cardinal Gibbons, in behalf of himself and the archbishops of the Catholic church in America, has submitted a petition to Congress asking that the question of the contract school system be reopened and that Congress go over the subject of Indian education.

The petition sets forth at length the history of the Indian school question and the legislation applying to it, up to the recent provisions in appropriation bills looking to the gradual discontinuance of government aid to sectarian schools.

The petition asks that a congressional inquiry be made in place of departmental inquiries, so that the merits and defects of contract schools and government schools may be shown and "not kept as a secret of state concealed in the files of any department or office."

The petition was presented to Representative McIntyre of Baltimire, and was referred to the House Indian committee, which is preparing the Indian appropriation bill.

The Paris Exposition.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—Willard A. Smith, of Chicago, has been named for the position of director if the department of transportation and civil engineering of the United States cimmission to the Paris exposition by Commissioner General Peck.

Mr. Smith will at once assume the duties of his office and will proceed with the organization of his exhibit.

His assistant, who will be an eastern man, will be chosen within a few days.

The department will be one of the most important ones.

In the showing of automobile carriages Americans are making a special effort to surpass all other countries. The exhibits of bicycles will also be very extensive.

Burglars Near Gloversville, N. Y.

Gloversville, N. Y., Dec. 9.—J. P. Rosa's clothing store at Broadalbin, Vosburgh's general store at Vell Mills were entered by burglars on Wednesday evening and property worth $1,000 was taken.

Rosa is the postmaster at Briadalbin and this is the third time that his store has been robbed since he became postmaster two months ago.

His safe was blown open and two hundred dollars in stamps and cash taken.

Japan's Finances.

Yokohama, Dec. 9.—The government has introduced in the diet a bill providing for increasing the land tax by fourteen million yen (seven million dollars), towards the estimated budget deficit of thirty million yen (fifteen million dollars), and the remainder of the amount required will be raised by other taxation.

It is believed that these proposals will lead to a serious rupture between the cabinet and the Liberals.

Twenty-four Seamen Lost.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 9.—A dispatch received at the office of the Furness line yesterday, from Baltimore, announced that Captain Lee and twenty-four of the crew of the steamer Londonian were lost and that forty-five survivors were rescued by the British steamer Vedamere.

Besides Captain Lee the lost include the first and third officers and the first and third engineers.

The Canal Scandals.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 9.—Attorney General Hancock declines to make any statement relative to the progress being made with the preparation for the canal cases, but it is understood that the matter is being handled with all possible celerity.

Evidently an effort is being quietly made to get the charges in shape for presentation to the grand jury, now in session.

Gen. Garcia Seriously Ill.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—General Garcia of the Cuban army, who has been confined to his hotel for some days, is announced to be quite seriously ill. There are some fears of pneumonia.

THE TREATY FINISHED

Judge Day Announces the Fact From Paris.

BITTER FEELING IN SPAIN

A Coaling Station in the Caroline Islands and Other Requests Refused by Spain. Senor Montero Rios's Proposal for a Maine Inquiry. France and Her Cuban Bondholders.

Paris, Dec. 9.—The treaty of peace between the United States and Spain has been finished. The Spaniardrs declined to grant most of the requests of the United States which were unsettled at the beginning of yesterday's joint session of the American and Spanish commissioners. They refuserr to cede a coaling station in the Caroline islands to the United States.

After the session Judge Day, president of the American peace commission said:

"We have settled all the points on which we can agree. It only remains to engross and sign the treaty. That will be done in two or three days."

The members of the commission say the treaty will contain little outside the scope of the Washington protocol and the matters directly based thereon, like the prorvisions for the evacuation of the ceded territories, the transfer of public property therein, and guarantees of the safety of the property and rights of the Spanish citizens remaining there.

The Madrid papers have shown a disposition to revive the question of the Maine, and excite public opinion against the United States on account of the reference made to this subject in President McKinley's message to Congress.

They say that President Montero Rios, president of the Spanish commission, made an impassioned denunciation of the commissions.

These reports are practically without foundation. Senor Montero Rios did refer to the Maine, but in only one calmly worded sentence, expressing regret that the president had spoken, as Spaniards thought, unjustly of them. The Spaniards had already proposed at this conference to have the responsibility of the Maine reported upon by a joint commission of the European powers. The American commissioners refused to listen to this, and permitted Senor Rio's reference to the president's message to pass unchallenged, as a discussion would have provoked debate and bad blood.

Diplomatic circles in Paris predict, as one of the results of the treaty, a diplomatic contest between France and the United States which may have an important outcome.

The French government is reported to have resolved to take up the case of the French holders of Cuban bonds, and the opinion is advanced in some quarters here, France will declare, that the repudiation of the bonds is the result of the treaty, which the victorious nation imposed upon Spain.

Those persons argue that through the treaty responsibility has been shifted upon America, and, therefore, the French government will endeavor to exact some pledge for the payment or guarantee of the bonds.

The Feeling in Spain.

Madrid, Dec. 9.—The cabinet at its meeting yesterday discussed letters and telegrams received from Senor Montero Rios, president of the Spanish peace commission.

The ministers, however, subsequently declared that they were unable to give any details regarding the matters discussed or the decisions arrived at.

The Imparcial says that the Spanish government yesterday decided to telegraph to Senor Montero Rios instructing him again to protest against President McKinley's reference to the Maine in his recent message to the American Congress.

The paper says that there is great indignation at the American commissioners' rejection of his request for a neutral investigation into the cause of the loss of the Maine.

A semi-official note just issued says: "Spain has been treated by the conqueror with unexampled cruelty, and is resigned to her rate. But she cannot tolerate President McKinley's accusation, for she is conscious of her complete innocence. It is understood that the government has decided to end the Paris conferences on the ground that the discussion of secindary questions is impossible."

Soldiers Vote Counted.

Albany, N. Y., Decv. 9.—Secretary of State Palmer yesterday opened the packages of soldiers' votes received in his office in the presence of Mayor Van Alstyne, representing the Democratic state committee, and Arthur L. Andrews, also of this city, representing Mr. William Barnes of the Republican state committee.

There were 4,502 votes cast by the soldiers according to the count. The ballots in each packet were compared with the poll list if the members of the company voting, and in only two instances were there mistakes.

In each of these instances there was one ballot short of the number voting according to the poll lists.

The lists now go to the various boards of election commissioners.

Bon Voyage to the Statue.

Havana, Dec, 9.—The statue of Isabelle la Catolica, which stands in the middle of Central Park, in this city, was found yesterday morning holding a valise in one hand and a steamer rug in the other.

An immense placard was slung across the back of the statue with the words: "Bon voyage" inscribed on it.

Heavy Snow in Michigan.

Ironwood, Mich., Dec. 9.—A heavy snow storm has been raging continually for the last two days. The snow is nearly three feet deep in a level, and in some places is drifted to a depth of from five to eight feet.

All incoming trains are delayed, and street car and other traffic is demoralized.

GEN. STERNBERG TESTIFIES.

The Surgeon-General Tells the War Commission of His Army Work.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—The conduct of the medical service of the army was taken up yesterday by the war investigating commission, and Surgeon General Sternberg was questioned in regard to his administration of that department.

The medical department, he said, was equipped only for an army of twenty-five thousand when the war brike out, and from year to year the estimates he submitted had been materially reduced by Congress in a policy of economy of appropriations. When there was a prospect of war he began preparations without expense.

He had models of chests made he said, and equipment developed, but when he suggested to Secretary Alger the propriety of making purchases for his service "the policy was to wait." At one time as many as six hundred and fifty contract surgeons were employed, mostly from thirty to forty years old, with hospital or active professional experience.

When permanent camps were established in this country he did not know that they were to be permanent.

He conceded that it was a mistake not to have appointed more contract surgeons from those who had experience in the civil war, as their experience would have been invaluable, but he was ignorant at the outset of the permanency of the camps.

The regimental surgeons, he said, were good, bad and indifferent; but he recollected no instance of dismissal for incompetence.

At the outset the maximum capacity of the division hospital was two hundred and fifty beds, but this was found inadequate.

He could not recollect whether the chief surgeon at Camp Thomas reported that the sanitation was bad. The department now, he said, has ample evidence that typhoid cases during the war were largely mistaken for malarial fever until the cases reached the division hospitals, and that malaria had been diagnosed as typhoid.

TELEGRAPH IN PORTO RICO.

Government Control for the Present.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—The situation in Porto Rico promises to force on this government for a time at least the experiment of federal ownership of telegraph and telephone lines.

The war department now controls all lines in Porto Rico and in the evacuated sections of Cuba. The latter, however, is looked upon as merely transient.

In both places the lines are being repaired and the government is handling commercial messages after government matter.

The signal service in charge of this work says that it is too soon to draw conclusions as to the expense of the service, as the cost for maintenance and long delayed repairs is just now more than the income from the lines. But in six months from the first of January the signal service expects to be able to furnish some interesting data as to the profit in the insular wire service.

The military occupation of the lines will naturally continue till the establishment of a civil government and considerable interest is expressed as to how the management of the lines will be disposed eventually or whether it will be permanently retained by the government.

Telephones are being substituted for telegraph instruments on most of the purely military lines, but the work of reconstruction in Cuba is very slow, as it is at least ten years behindhand in repairs.

The latest military line under construction is from Nuevitas to Santa Cruz, fifty miles.

Intervention for Picquart.

Paris, Dec. 9.—The court of cassation has indorsed M. Atthalin's report favoring the suspension of Colonel Picquart's court martial.

M. Atthalin is a well known barrister who was appointed by the court to report to it the proper procedure with reference to the precedence of the court martial of Picquart or the revision of the case of Dreyfus.

The court of Cassation has ordered a report of the proceeding against Colonel Picquart to be communicated to it, and until the report is received the court will suspend its sittings.

London, Dec. 9.—A dispatch from Paris to the Exchange Telegraph Company says that the secret Dreyfus dossier was communicated to the Court of Cassation yesterday.

The Figaro understands that the entire dossier has been examined by the court.

Cody Jury Disagrees.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 9.—After being out for more than twenty-four hours, the Cody jury was unable to agree, and was discharged last evening.

The jury stood nine to three for conviction. The three jurors who refused to convict were two farmers from Preston Hollow, and Thea, who lives in this city.

Miss Helen M. Gould and her attorneys, with the exception of Mr. Nicol, who returned to New York, remained here over night. Miss Gould did not attend the session of the court yesterday morning.

Mr Morgan's New Yacht.

GIGANTIC MILL COMBINE

Breadstuffs of the World in the Hands of a Trust.

PROMOTER McINTYRE HOME

He Returns to America After Having Engineered One of the Most Important Deals of the Century. Combined Mills Have a Capacity of 95,000 Barrels Per Day.

Thomas A. McIntyre, known in Wall street as the great combiner, returned from England yesterday on the White Star liner Majestic.

During the few months he was abroad Mr. McIntyre, with the aid of the British stockholders, succeeded in uniting the leading flour mills of the United States into a trust which will control the breadstuff output.

The magnitude of the gigantic combination can be better understood when it is known that the mills in the deal have a daily capacity of ninety-five thousand barrels. They use per diem five hundred thousand bushels of wheat, produce ten thousand tons of mill feed, and represent capital to the amount of one hundred and fifty million dollars.

This combination was the idea of the American stockholders of the following concerns:

Pillsbury-Washburne mills of Minneapolis, Hecker-Jones-Jewell mills of New York, Imperial Mill Company of Duluth, Anchor Mills of Duluth, Daisy Mills of Duluth, William Lispman Mills of Superior, Wis., Minkota Mills of Superior, Wis., Daisy Mills of Milwaukee, and the Northwestern Consolidated Flour Milling Company of Minneapolis.

A large percentage of the stock in these mills is held by English capitalists, and without their consent the combination could not have been formed.

As the Englishmen, when first approached on the subject of the gigantic deal, were averse to it, because the object of the scheme was to shut off competition and raise the price of flour exported from this country, Mr. McIntyre was consulted and he consented to talk the foreigners into the proposed plan.

Accompanied by his wife, Mr. McIntyre went to London. After a fight that at first seemed almost hopeless, Mr. McIntyre finally succeeded in convincing the English stockholders of the Pillsbury-Washburne mills of the desirability of a combine.

Before doing so, he found it necessary to cable last October for Richard Glynn, president of the Pillsbury-Washburne Company to come over to England.

Mr. Glynn finally indorsed the proposed scheme and the foreign stockholders yielded. This broke the opposition to the combination, and the English stockholders of the other concerns acquiesced in the idea.

Thus a giant flour trust, which will practically control the entire product of American mills, supplying three-fourths of the civilized world with breadstuffs, was formed.

Mr. McIntyre, when asked to-day concerning his mission abroad, admitted that it was in connection with the flour trust and that he had been successful.

He declined to go into particulars, saying that he wanted to learn how matters stood on this side of the Atlantic before he would consent to an interview. He was not surprised that his friends in the Produce Exchange had announced the great combination and Mr. Nash of the Hecker-Jones-Jewell Company had confirmed the news of the deal.

STAMP TAX CONTROVERSY.

Register Says He is Not Required to See that Stamps Are Affixed.

New York, Dec. 9.—There are no developments in the controversy between the register's office and the United States secretary of the treasury over the filing of papers and legal documents in the office of the register without the revenue stamps required to be affixed by law.

Register Fromme reiterates his opinion that the law did not put upon him the obligation of seeing that every legal document filed in his office had a revenue stamp attached. He says that the obligation of fixing the revenue stamp belongs to the person filing the document and that failure to do so puts the filer in the light of disobeying the law.

Colonel Robert Williams, who investigated the papers filed in the register's office, and ascertained the number of those which did not have revenue stamps affixed, holds that it is the duty of the register's office to enforce the law, in so far as it comes within the jurisdiction of that office.

It is likely that the matter will be tested in court.

It is said that the government has lost a hundred thousand dollars by failure of persins filing legal documents in the register's office to put the revenue stamps on the same.

At the Navy Yard.

Brooklyn, Dec. 9.—The cruiser Brooklyn and the battleship Massachusetts will leave this port on Saturday next to join the North Atlantic squadron for the regular manoeuvres under Commodore Phillips at Hampton Roads.

The cruiser New Orleans will also report there and become part of the squadron. She is now being fitted up with steam heat. At present stoves are being used to warm the vessel, the intense cold having sent one man to the hospital already.

The New Orleans was built for tropical regions and no provision was made for heating.

Manly to Publish His Paper Here.

New York, Dec. 9.—A. L. Manly, colored, the editor from Wilmington, N. C., where he published the Record, will resume the daily publication of his paper in this city, according to an announcement made yesterday by prominent members of the Society of the Sons of North Carolina, whose guest Manly has been for several days.

GEN. WHEELER'S FUTURE.

The President Wants Him to Become a Military Governor.

Washington D. C., Dec. 9.—Representative Bailey still threatens to make it unpleasant for General Wheeler, if the latter continues to hold his commission in the army and at the same time occupy his seat on the floor of the House. General Wheeler has not resigned, and is awaiting a conference with the president before deciding what to do.

The president desires the little general to remain in Congress, where his experience will be valuable to members in the discussion of the war.

The general desires to serve his constituents as well as his country, and has been in his place on the floor since the opening of Congress.

Representative Bailey declares that if General Wheeler does not resign his commission and attempts to take part in legislative business, he will challenge the general's right to hold his seat and vote while in the military service of the United States.

General Wheeler is the seventh ranking major general, and if he resigns he will lose his place, even if the president should reappoint him next March, for he will be put at the foot of the list.

This would seriously affect the importance of his future, for the president wants to send him to the colonies as a military governor next summer.

There is much indignation at Mr. Bailey's threatened action. He is the only member on the Democratic side who will challenge the Alabamian's vote.

The question has been raised as to whether the law which prohibits a man holding both military and civil office applies to the volunteer service.

It has been pointed out that during the war of 1812 half of Congress volunteered for the protection of the country and held their seats.

Rather than bring the matter before the House, General Wheeler in a few days will decide which place to hold, unless Mr. Bailey promises to withdraw his objections. If he does, General Wheeler will take a leave of absence in the army and keep his seat in Congress.

But Mr. Bailey says he never will withdraw his objection.

MILES TO URGE HIS BILL.

Will Urge the House Committee to Speedy Action on the Measure.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—General Miles expects to appear before the House military committee in a few days to set out personally the reasons why he thinks his army bill should be passed. The most urgent is the fact that immediately upon the formal announcement of the peace between the United States and Spain the United States army may be suddenly reduced almost a third and at a time when the need for troops for garrison purposes is still pressing.

This statement does not apply to volunteer troops. As stated by the president in his message, they having enlisted for the war, must all be discharged.

But when the war department, acting under the authority conferred by Congress at the last session, sought to recruit the regular army to a war footing, to stimulate enlistments it pledged itself in a formal order to discharge upon his own application any recruit who wished to leave the service upon the conclusion of peace, although the nominal term of enlistment was for three years.

Six Days Cycle Race.

New York, Dec. 9.—Of the thirty-one pink-skinned, athletic looking bicycle riders who started in the six day brutal grind in Madison Square arden on last Sunday night, nineteen remain.

Some of the others were ordered off for fear that the strain might cause them to drop dead on the track. Some quit of their own desire.

Those who remain are no longer athletes. The yare wrecks—hollow-eyed, wabbly-headed, tortured creatures, wheeling about in a haze of tobacco smoke, their eyes shielded by goggles, their hands clutching padded handlebars, saddle sore and half dead.

At one o'clock this morning the score was as follows:

COMING EVENTS.

December 9—Self-entertaining table conference of directors and ex-directors of the Y. M. C. A. of New Jersey at Davis' restaurant, Newark.

December 11—S. B. Frank, Jr., the Hebrew Christian, of Newark, will address the Y. M. C. A meeting at 4:15 p. m.

The Trolley Franchise.

The Common Council will give a public hearing this evening on the application of the Plainfield Street Railway Company for a franchise to the eastern limits of the city to connect with the proposed line from Scotch Plains.

The terms of the proposed ordinance granting the franchise have not yet come formally before the people, but it is understood that in the main they constitute a ninety-nine years' franchise, subject to two readjustments—one at the expiration of fifty years and another twenty-five years later. That is practically equivalent to a franchise in perpetuity.

All that was said and done when the former application of the Street Railway Company was being considered applies with equal force to the situation now.

Everybody wants to see the trolley extended, but it does not want to see it done with the city getting a bad bargain. But until the ordinance has been drafted and presented it will be impossible to arrive at a definite conclusion of how the city is to fare in the matter.

Senator Reed Speaks Out.

Senator Reed strikes out from the shoulder in his communication in the Somerville Unionist-Gazette this week concerning the late county election in which his favorite, P. V. D. VanDoren, was defeated for Sheriff on the Republican ticket. The failure of Mr. VanDoren in the face of the victory of all the rest of his running mates was attributed to the work of disgruntled Republicans in Somerville, who were put in a surly mood by the success of Senator Reed in securing the nomination of his friend.

Since election there has appeared several communications in the Somerville papers relative to the result, all the writers trying learnedly to seek out the exact causes of the outcome. Some half-dozen reasons have been put forward, as Senator Reed notes in his communication, which is reproduced in The Daily Press today, but the Tall Sycamore dismisses all but one—traitorship.

In plain English Mr. Reed gives his version of the result. There is no polished sentences glossing over what the Senator believes to be actually so. Figuratively, he "speaks right out in school." His little say is truly not pleasant to some, but he speaks it because he believes that it is the truth.

What effect the letter of the distinguished Senator will have upon those at whom its caustic thrusts are aimed remains to be seen. However, we doubt very much if any of the correspondents will have the temerity to answer the Senator over their own signatures.

Legislative Work.

There is every prospect of an unusually lively session this winter. Leon Abbett will revive the equal taxation movement in the House and will put into it some of the vim that made it one of the leading issues three years ago, when J. Wahl Queen had charge of it. John King, of Passaic, will undertake to put a Pure Beer bill through, and then there will be no end of trolley bills to be taken care of. Allan McDermott will introduce a "Greater Jersey City" bill, and Ketcham will probably father a "Greater Newark" measure, and Trenton will step up and ask to be allowed to annex several square miles of her suburbs. Measures of this kind are disposed of slowly because it is wise, if not necessary, to give the people a chance to be heard on them. These hearings consume much time, and unless the various committees are willing to do a good deal of their work evenings the session is apt to last fifteen weeks.

Councilman Ford, of Elizabeth, who was the Democratic candidate for Senator in Union at the recent general election, takes a different view of granting rights to electric lights and telephone companies to build underground conduits than prevails in Plainfield. Mr. Ford believes in the city building the conduits and then forcing all the companies to lay their wires in them, paying a rental to the city. In this way he thinks that the conduits would eventually become a constant source of income to the city.

The election of 1900 will be one of the most important in the history of New Jersey. Not only will a successor to President McKinley be chosen, but the State Legislature elected will name a successor to Senator Sewell.

A Newark man recently sold his wife for $5, and now he reposes behind the bars of the Essex county jail. That is a warning to all husbands to get higher prices for their better halves.

Sports that test the endurance in a way that is brutal prove the most popular nowadays. The cheering thousands at the six-day bicycle race in New York is an evidence of it.

Good wood choppers in South Jersey are finding lucrative employment now. There is a big demand for them.—Current News Item

Which reminds us that political log-rollers are as cheap as ever.

The New York Herald is the authority for an item stating that Senator Charles A. Reed will not be a candidate for renomination next year.

Advertising is indispensable to the merchant who wants to have a good holiday trade.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

That the people of Plainfield are of the same mind now, politically, as they were in November, and last year, only more so, was proven in yesterday's municipal election, when the Republicans swept the deck by a splendid and inspiring majority.—New Brunswick Fredonian.

* * * * * *

Nearly all the recent reports from Trenton agree in saying that Charles A. Reed, of Somerset county, is likely to be the next President of the Senate. As United States Senator Sewell has so forcibly declared, that is a matter wholly within the province of the Senators themselves. They know Senator Reed, and if they see fit to choose him as their presiding officer it is not probable that the politicians or the public will make serious objection. His ability is unquestioned, his sense of fairness few will contest, he is thoroughly familiar with parliamentary law, and he has nerve and self-possession in large quantities. These qualifications are likely to find room for play in the President of a Senate in which the minority may be depended upon to loose no opportunity for making political capital.—New York Tribune.

* * * * * *

Plainfield's Common Council has passed an ordinance making the tenure of office of policemen continuous during good behavior. It is right that policemen should be upheld and protected in the discharge of their duties, and this cannot be done nor can any municipality expect to get their best service while it is in the power of politicians to oust them at pleasure. On the other hand, it behooves the men so protected not to imagine that this protection will act as a cloak for neglect, carelessness or negligence, or that it will justify obtrusive interference in politics. A case in point is that of the policemen of Jersey City and other Hudson county towns who stood around the polls on November 8th, and openly electioneered against Assemblyman Michael J. Bruder because he had dared to vote against the Police Pension bill. Policemen have their rights, but they must remember that they are public servants, and that it is the part of wisdom not to make themselves offensively conspicuous as political workers or lobbyists.—New York Tribune.

* * * * * *

Plainfield's city election is over and the straight ticket won, the Republicans beating a "Citizens'" combination without any great difficulty. The result might have been anticipated. Such movements are rarely successful, because they are inspired by such motives that they cannot command either the respect or the support of the people. The experience of New Brunswick with the City Club movement is a case in point. That movement was due to no desire to help the city, but simply to the wish of a certain coterie of men to secure the downfall and overthrow of men against whom they had personal grudges and feuds. So far from being a general movement it was fathered and fostered by a little committee, every member of which was distinctly out of touch with the people, Democratic or Republican. A similar state of affairs prevailed in Plainfield. There the Citizens' ticket was named by a committee of a few interested members of an organization, at a meeting from which the reporters of the daily papers of the town were excluded. A nice sort of way to select candidates for the support of the people. Such movements are foredoomed to failure, and rightfully so. They have nothing in common with a Republican form of government, which, whatever its faults and its shortcomings, can settle its affairs in the open, and without assistance from institutions that savor of oligarchy.—New Brunswick Times.

Dunellen, Dec. 9.—Henry C. Staats has joined the Red Men, of Plainfield.

Because many members of the Presbyterian Christian Endeavor Society attended the Christian Endeavor sociable in Plainfield last night, the monthly business meeting was postponed for one week.

NEW MARKET.

New Market, December 9.—Great indignation is expressed at the recent arrest of Constable Luther Mundy at the instigation of William Roantree, and the charge will be withdrawn. Roantree claims that Mundy, when arresting him on a charge of assault and battery on William Smith, used him roughly. Instead of doing that Mundy's friends say the constable went out into the wild storm Saturday night, November 26th, to look for a man to go Roantree's bail.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 9—Miss Helen Whitenack was tendered a surprise party at her home last evening by a number of her young friends. The invited guests assembled at the home of John Maguire, and at about 8 o'clock marched to the home of Miss Helen in a body, completely surprising the young hostess. But as soon as she recovered her astonishment at the sudden appearance of so many of her young friends, she turned in and acted the part of the hostess to prefection. The evening was given up to playing games and having a good time. During the evening refreshments were served and about 11 o'clock the guests began leaving for home, after assuring the young hostess that it had been one of the pleasantest evenings ever spent. Among those present were: Miss May Marsh, Miss Ada Miller, Miss Mamie Miller, Miss Florence Wade, Miss Reger, Miss Gibb, Miss Marsh, of Plainfield, and Miss Adams, Messrs. WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Dec. 9—The investigation in regard to the death of John Keenan, who died in the township rooms Wednesday night, as told in yesterday's Press, began yesterday morning. About 9 o'clock County Physician Westcott arrived in town and went direct to the office of Hiram L. Fink, where he had a conference with Rev. N. W. Cadwell, Rev. George A. Francis, B. F. Crosby, James T. Pierson and other prominent church and temperance workers who have been trying to prevent Charles Burtis, in whose hotel the man was supposed to have got his whiskey, from getting a license. At 5 o'clock the jury was empanelled at the town rooms and consisted of the following gentlemen: Foreman, Hiram L. Fink; J. S Irving, B. J. Crosby, James T. Pierson, B. H. Woodruff and W. S. Welch. After they had been sworn in they went to the vacant store on Elm street, owned by James T. Pierson, where the body had been taken, and viewed the remains and then adjourned until next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

A fair and Christmas sale is being held at the Congregational church this afternoon by the Ministering Children's League and the Mission Circle of that church. The fair will be continued this evening.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

PERSONAL GOSSIP OF INTEREST TO CITY AND BOROUGH.

In Brief are Told the Daily Doings of Many Residents and Visitors Who Go and Come in a Social and Business Way.

Miss Hazel Craig, of Indianapolis, is visiting friends in town.

Miss Markham of West Front street, is detained at home by illness.

The condition of Auguste Saltzman, of the City Hotel, is reported as being improved

Miss Pearson, of Vine street, has almost recovered from her illness with typhoid fever.

Charles Conover, of Elmwood place, who was seriously ill with typhoid fever, is able to leave the bed.

Although Marshal Winn, of the borough, is much improved from his illness, he is still unable to go to work.

Robert Radford, of West Front street, seems to be improving from what appeared to be a critical illness.

Charles Leland, of the West End, is recovering from the effects of an abscess on his right hand. He will soon be able to go to work.

J. W. Yates, of East Seventh street, who has been critically ill, is now able to sit up a little. There seems to be hopes that he will recover.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Hull Western, of 1004 Watchung avenue, are spending two weeks with Mr. Western's parents at 522 West 142d street, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cox, of Liberty street, have taken half of Mr. Hibbitts' house on the same street, a few doors away from their former residence.

Mrs. Thomas Callahan and family, of Richmond street, have gone to Fort Hamilton, L. I., to attend the funeral of Mrs. Callahan's mother, who died Tuesday night.

Dr. Schencik, of West End Park, will entertain the Plainfield Ministers' Association at his home next Monday afternoon. Rev. C. L. Goodrich will present the paper.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob VanDoren, who reside near Whitehouse, own a number of interesting relics. The lot includes a deed written on a piece of sheepskin and dated the thirteenth year of the reign of George III., the seventeenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-three; two arm chairs, said to have been used by British soldiers during the Revolution; a sheepskin pocketbook; some queer currency; a strange article, resembling a rolling pin, supposed to have been used by the Indians to crack maze. [It bears these words: "This stone was found in the woods south of Clinton, Hunterdon county, N. J., by Henry Young, in the year 1725"]; two spinning wheels, one said to be 125 years old; a stone jug, resembling a hornet's nest, said to be 150 years old; an iron kettle, bearing the date of 1792; a table over 100 years old; Indian axe, moccasin and spear head; cream pitcher over 100 years old; a curious teapot, believed to be 300 years old; an odd pocketknife, and a 150 year-old workbasket made from a hat worn by Mr. VanDoren's great-great-grandfather.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

YOU'RE READING THIS?

CERTAINLY!

Well, Mr. Merchant-who-thinks-of-advertising, this is only one of the many corners in THE DAILY PRESS—it isn't the best located one, either; we can give you better—and if this attracts your attention in our endeavor to tell you how good advertising will get you a hearing before the purchasing public, doesn't common sense teach you that if you were having people reading your trade story instead of you're reading our argument about it, that it would be better for your business.

THE DAILY PRESS reaches the purchasing [public] that makes the profits for the merchant.

We can give you big or little space—but in advertising it is'nt always economy to be sparing in your appropriation.

THE SUNDAY LESSON.

INTERNATIONAL SERIES WITH COMMENTARY BY DR. STEARNS.

Golden Text.—The word of our God shall stand for ever.—Isa. xl: 8. Dec. 11, '98.

20. "And they went in to the king and told all the words in the ears of the king." This is King Jehoiakim, a son of Josiah, who reigned 11 years, but did evil in the sight of the Lord. In the fourth year of his reign the Lord told Jeremiah to write in a book all the words he had spoken against Israel since the days of Josiah and read them to the people if perchance they might turn from their sins to the Lord and have their iniquities forgiven. Both in the fourth and fifth years of Jehoiakim's reign these words were read publicly and privately again and again (see previous part of this chapter) and now some who heard them tell them to the king.

21. "So the king sent Jehudi to fetch the roll, and Jehudi read it in the ears of the king." Baruch, the scribe, who had written the words of the Lord from the mouth of Jeremiah had also read the book in the ears of the people and of the rulers (verses 6, 8, 10, 15, 16), but now Jehudi reads. It does not matter much who reads provided he reads distinctly and give the sense and cause the people to understand the reading (Neh. viii, 8) As to the origin of the words, they were from the Lord, the Lord's words. He used Jeremiah's mouth and Baruch's pen and mouth, but the message was neither from Jeremiah nor from Baruch, but from God. Now it is Jehudi's mouth, but it is still the same message from the Lord.

22, 23. "He cut it with the penknife and cast it into the fire that was on the hearth, until all the roll was consumed in the fire." Thus did Jehoiakim with the roll containing the message from the Lord. Thus he despised and treated with contempt the message from the Lord and would not harken to Him. What a contrast to Josiah in our last lesson, who humbled himself before God and turned to Him with all his heart! Jehoiakim was a Cain man, while Josiah, like Jeremiah's roll.

24. "Yet they were not afraid, nor rent their garments, neither the king nor any of his servants that heard all these words." The hard hearted, rebellious king would influence those about him in some measure to be rebellious, like himself. When once the heart turns away from God, the hardness ofttimes increases very quickly. When we receive not the truth in the love of it, God lets us believe a delusion and a lie (II Thes. ii, 11, 12). It is a fearful thing to even listen to a word against God or against His word, for, while holiness is not easily communicated, sin is, according to Hag. ii, 12, 13.

25. "He would not hear them." Three are mentioned who pleaded with the king not to burn the roll, but he would not listen to them. He thought that he knew better than his counsellors, he was in his own esteem wiser than his father who had humbled himself before God, he did not believe that "He that, being often reproved, hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy" (Prov. xxix, 1).

26. "But the Lord hid them." This refers to Baruch and Jeremiah, whom the king would now like to lay hands upon and put a stop to such words as these. In verse 19 we learn that when the book was about to be read to the king some advised them to hide so that they could not be found, and now we learn that in their hiding they were guided by God. Elijah was so securely hidden by God that he could not be found by Arab in any nation or kingdom (I Kings xviii, 10). There is a rock, the Rock of Ages, in whom we may so securely hide that no evil can befall us (Ex. xxxiii, 22; Isa. ii, 10; xxvi, 4, Margin). The life of all who truly receive Christ as their Saviour is said to be hid with Christ in God, for He is our life (Col. iii, 3, 4).

27, 28. "Take thee again another roll and write in it all the former words that were in the first roll." I have for some years reveled in the blessed assurance of Ps. cxix, 89, "Forever, O Lord, Thy word is settled in heaven." On my way home from India last year it was my privilege while spending a few days in London to rejoice in some blessed fellowship with my dear brother in the Lord, Rev. John Wilkinson, author of that wonderful book, "Israel My Glory." I found him one day greatly rejoicing in Ps. cxix, 89, on which he expiated somewhat after this fashion: "Just think of what we have here! What is settled? Thy word. Where is it settled? In heaven. For how long is it settled? Forever. Whose words is it? Thine, O Lord! Let the enemies throw out Jonah and his book, and Daniel and his book, and whatever they do not like, they can no more destroy the word of God than Jehoiakim could destroy the words of Abel, had faith in God.

29. "The king of Babylon shall certainly come and destroy this land and shall cause to cease from thence man and beast." These were some of the words in the roll which Jehoiakim burned that caused him to hate it and burn it. Jonah was a wondrous type of our Lord in His death and resurrection, and this the great truth which satan hates and may be one reason why he would if possible set aside the book of Joaah. In Daniel perhaps more than in any other book in the Bible the importance of the wisdom of this world to understand the things of God is made manifest, and for that reason, among others, the book of Daniel is disliked. Revelation tells of the devil's downfall and final doom and therefore he would like you not read that book.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week Beginning Dec. 11—Comment by Rev. W. J. Yates, A. M.—Topic, Walking With Christ.

Scripture Reading.—Luke xxiv, 13-29.—"While they communed together and reasoned Jesus Himself drew near and went with them."

Bishop Vincent often speaks of the Christian fellowship as a "brotherhood of Emmaus." It is one of the cheering signs of the times that there is less of acrimonious debate among the people of Christ than formerly and more of real harmony. People are not less tenacious of the truth than formerly. The search for the real nature of things is as keen as ever. Distinctions and definitions are not less exact and discriminating, but men are learning that logic is not life and that the heart of the gospel is deeper than intellectual apprehension. "The peace of God passeth understanding." Whoever possesses it knows it as loved and not as thought.

It was while the two were communing and reasoning together that Jesus joined them. No instance is cited of His aiding those who were engaged in disputing and wrangling. They were perplexed and in wonderment. Their minds were alert to discover the truth about the Crucified One. Their hearts were sorrowful because of hopes apparently crushed. They misunderstood or failed of right understanding of the way God was to save men.

In such condition the Lord enlightens the understanding by explaining His work. At the present time, in spite of the multiplication of Bibles and church services, great numbers of people, habitual attendants of religious services, have no clear apprehension of their own nature, the redemptive work of Christ, the office and power of the Holy Spirit or the right relation of men to God the Father.

Jesus explained to them the Scriptures. All genuine revivals of real piety have been preceded by close study of the word and will of God. It was so in all the Old Testament revivals under Jehoshaphat, Hezekiah, Josiah and Nehemiah. It was the same in the apostolic age and in all subsequent times. It is so today. Deep heart piety must be based on a deep knowledge of the Bible truths.

But the matter does not end with the opening of the understanding. The heart burns! This is the deepest test of spiritual life. Are you conscious of inner fire? Does truth melt your soul and make it glow and sparkle? This is the test of truth also. No falsity can do this. No hypocrisy can attain this experience. It is genuine companionship with Jesus alone which can do it.

The result is an irrepressible desire to let the friends know the facts. The return to Jerusalem to witness is to be expected after the walk with Jesus to Emmaus. If you find it hard to work for and talk of God, join the brotherhood of Emmaus and walk with Jesus a little. Then will the heart glow and the lips open and the feet run in His service.

Companions and Comradeship.

Young people have a need of companionship not fully recognized by many in older years. The social nature is developing. Childhood with its years of learning under close parental guidance has been passed. The personal powers of reason are developing. The whole nature is in process of transformation.

The need is felt for association with those of the same age. Ideas are to be interchanged, ideals compared, confidences shared and the man and woman life to emerge.

How essential for happiness and success that the right companions be found. What influence an evening walk, an hour spent in a social gathering, may have over the whole after life! More powerful than books are living words. What opportunities for good or evil lie in the attachments made in early life! Oceans may separate, business occupations may occupy attention, long years may pass, but the early friendship, if pure and generous, persists across all the distance and time. Even death itself is powerless to untwist the strands which true fellowship spins in early years around congenial souls.

Walking Together.

"How can two walk together except they be agreed?" is a very old question and must be answered now as ever in the past—it is impossible. If you are to walk with Jesus, you must keep step with Him. At this season of the year strong inducements are held out to Christians to mingle in the frivolities of worldly society.

In many churches the old time fire of revival work is no longer known or desired. If remembered, it is with a sense of shame. If mentioned, it is with a tone of apology. Fashionable entertainment, however esthetic, can never replace the moral earnestness of the fathers. Jesus Christ came to seek and save the lost. Conversion means a changed mind and life. If you walk with Christ, you will find a cross. If you walk with the world, you will find a heartache and a lonely grave. Walk with Jesus, and the journey shall end in joy and life.

Christmas Bells.

Hark! The bells of Christmas ringing;
All abroad their echoes flinging;
Wider still and wider winging
On the waste of wintry air.
On their solemn, swift vibrations
Rapture, rapture, through the nations—
Rapture till their glad pulsations
Million blissful bosoms share!

Glory! Glory! God descending,
Weds with man in bliss unending.
Hark! The ecstatic choirs attending
Smite their lyres with tempest sound.
Shout! Old Discord's reign is riven;
Peace on earth! Good will is given!
Shout the joy through highest heaven!
Make the crystal spheres resound!

Crown Him, monarchs, seers and sages!
Crown Him, bards, in deathless pages!
Crown Him king of all the ages!
Let the mighty anthem rise!
Hark! The crash of tuneful noises!
Hark! The children's thrilling voices!
Hark! The world in song rejoices
Till the chorus shakes the skies!

—George Lansing Taylor.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 11—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—"The minor virtues and their importance."—Phil. iii, 12-14; iv, 8; Math. v, 48.

The standard of life set before the Christian is a very high one. It is the character of heaven, it is godlike perfection. Paul declares that he will be satisfied with nothing short of heaven and its attainments. "Not," he says, "that I had already attained or were already perfect, but I follow after * * * but this one thing I do * * * I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." God has called him in Christ to the prize of eternal life in heaven, and his one aim in life is to reach the goal, the high standard of perfect life in Christ placed before him. Christ held the same high standard before His disciples. "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." He did not say that we could reach this goal of divine perfection in this life, but placed it before us as our ideal, and His word teaches us that we do reach it in the life beyond.

Godlikeness therefore in character is the Christian's standard and goal, but it does not imply that we are to ignore the minor virtues and characteristics of morality. Godliness is higher than morality, but it implies it. Although godliness is our aim, we are not to ignore the moral virtues, for it is by practicing them that we attain to godliness.

In Phil. iv, 8, Paul mentions some of the moral virtues upon which we are to think that we may be led to do them. They are:

1. "Whatsoever things are true." Truth and trueness are absolutely necessary to a Christian life. We are to seek the one and to cultivate the other. God is true. Christ is the truth, and all that is true comes from Him, and nothing false is to be found in Him. To have Christ is to have truth; to be like Christ is to be true.

2. "Whatsoever things are honest." The revised version translates the Greek word used here "honorable" or "reverend" rather than "honest," and this rendering is nearer the meaning of the original Greek word. It suggests the cultivation of a spirit of self respect, which is not inconsistent with true Christian humility.

3. "Whatsoever things are just," right or righteous before God and man.

4. "Whatsoever things are pure." Purity is an essential Christian characteristic. Only the "pure in heart shall see God." Our lives should be free from anything that stains or defiles.

5. "Whatsoever things are lovely * * * and of good report." All characteristics of life that are lovely, attractive to men, and which men admire and esteem, are to be cultivated, that by them we may win men to Christ.

Bible Readings.—Ex. xx, 15-17; Prov. iii, 3, 4; iv, 23-27; vi, 6-11, 16-19; xi, 1; xv, 1, 2; xvii, 1; xxii, 1; xxiv, 1, 2; Jer. v, 1; Ps. i, 1-6; Math. v, 1-12; Rom. xii, 9-21; Phil. ii, 1-12.

Try to Forget Them.

It is unwise to brood over our past sins. We should try to forget them. To recall them certainly does not develop goodness. It rather has the opposite effect. The thought of them dampens our ardor, makes us timid and distrustful of ourselves. When we have repented of evil and asked our Father to forgive us, we should dismiss the thought of it, shut it out, let it have no place in our minds. Let the dead past bury its dead. We must be busy with that which is new and living. By pure thoughts, noble purposes, good works, we must crowd evil out of our lives. God will help us to forget the wrong we once did if we live with Him. We must work with Him to produce that blessed oblivion to the past both by refusing resolutely to harbor the thought of old sins and by filling our lives with all that pleases Him. Blessed is the man who cultivates the forgetting of evil.—Lutheran Observer.

Self Denial.

To deny oneself and take up our cross willingly and daily following the commandments of God and walking in His holy ways require a fixedness of purpose that only those who are sustained by divine grace can endure. The temptations and allurements of the world are very enticing and often promise personal comfort and pleasure that for the time being involves happiness and perhaps profit. In some cases fidelity to the dictates of conscience awakens contempt upon the part of others and puts the man of God to great straits, certainly to much disadvantage and loss; but, steady to his purpose, he proceeds on the even tenor of his way, counting it, if it need be, better to suffer rather than sacrifice his sense of honor or piety.—Philadelphia Methodist.

The Evil Continues to Grow.

The corruption and extravagance so plainly evident in state and municipal affairs are condemned and deplored by many who are strangely apathetic and indifferent when a call for action is sounded. Why cannot they be drawn out in resistance and in an effort to overcome? Some think it would be of no use, and some are afraid to be classed among "reformers," and others think it looks small to object to the size of salaries and amount of bills, and so the evil continues to grow and American liberty is imperiled by the easy going popular allowance of governmental corruption and extravagance.—Presbyterian Journal.

A New Life.

Christ will accept no faith, whatever its merits, that does not live and blossom.

He will accept nothing as the evidence of one's truth save the fruits of the truth. Creeds do not become saving by being true or by being sincerely received and held. They become saving only as they become the germs of a new life and growth of character.—Evangelist.

A CHRISTMAS MUSING.

I.

A truth lies veiled in Christmastide,
Taught by the Saviour crucified,
A spiritual truth too grand
For man to fully understand.
To me it is a single link
Of that sublime and viewless chain,
Which started at creation's brink
And ends when God shall cease to reign.

II.

From mist to sun in flaming robe,
From seething sun to mundane globe;
From cell to nerve, from nerve to brain,
Are links or fragments of the chain.
And so from seed to germ and root;
From leaf and bud to harvest gold;
From barn to elevator chute;
From ships to market manifold.

III.

From brute to savage in his cave,
From savage unto hero brave;
From those who died defending kin
To those who died to conquer sin.
From war to peace; from rage and hate
To joy and love; from force and fear,
The tokens of barbaric state,
To civilization's atmosphere.

IV.

From kith and clan to civic tie,
And thence to nationality;
From clashing tribes in endless feud
To universal brotherhood;
From babes around the Christmas tree,
With merry pipes and noisy drums,
To missions far beyond the sea
And Christian workers in the slums.

V.

From Him who died that sin might die,
Disclosing endless love on high,
To human kind in years to be
When sin is but a memory.
These are the links which brightly shine
For all on every Christmas eve;
This is the thread which hands divine
In every fairer fabrics weave.

A CHRISTMAS HOMILY

The establishment of the Christmas festival, now the most joyous of the yearly holidays throughout the civilized world, is the most recent in date of the great church days. Its social and secular significance, of course, followed its religious adoption. Yet, curiously enough, it derived its rites of merrymaking not from Christianity so much as from the customs of the heathen world. The rulers of the early church, from Constantine down, were shrewd politicians. They knew how important it was to include as many as possible of the old pagan usages and beliefs to which the people of the Roman Empire had been attached in the observances of the new faith.

Just why December 25 was selected as the natal day of the Saviour of the world nobody has ever been able to tell. Certainly there is no historic reason nor the slightest authentic clue, and it is well known that December is the rainy season in Judea, when neither shepherds nor flocks brave the open sky. It is more than probable that the celebration of Christ's birth, which up to the fifth century had not been observed at all, got them to be recognized as not less worthy of holiday consecration than Easter and Whitsunday. It was a happy thought to make this as nearly identical as might be with the old Roman saturnalia, which still survived in some of its forms, and with the annual feast of Thor, observed among the Teutonic races, even those which had accepted the white Christ. It was the more opposite, too, as the Roman festival and the Teutonic alike had symbolic reference to the great natural fact that the sun at or about that date rises out of the decadence of his power to augmenting heat and splendor. This was easily applicable to the first appearance of the Son of God and the Sun of the World among men.

So we see imported into the observance of the Christian holiday from the first on its social side the time-honored heathen usages and ceremonies. The universal presents ving of the saturnalia, especially to children, and the democratic equality which abolished distinction of rank at that period were at once followed by the Christian merrymakers. From the old Norse usages the day borrowed the customs of the huge bonfires, the Yule log of holy ash or oak to be burned indoors, the symbolism of the holly and misletoo boughs, alike sacred to the deities, the great boar's head served as the piece de resistance of the Christmas feast and the general bacchanalianism of the occasion. The latter, however, was also typical of the old Roman festival. Santa Claus (St. Nicholas) came by and by into the rich symbolism of the Christmas show as the successor of Odin, the all-father and all-giver. The Scandinavian god on the occasion of the festivities of his eldest son, Thor, distributed universal gifts, the father of each family being his special agent in the matter. As Odin, or Woden, became in later myths the mighty huntsman who ranged the forests, we see how the Christmas tree and evergreens found their places. Why, however, the functions of Odin should have specially been finally transferred to St. Nicholas out of all the Christian canon roll, unless from the fact that this fine old saint was the special patron of children and schoolboys, it is not easy to divine. These things go to show what a curiously tangled composite our Christmas is and how lustily it has grown out of diverse elements till it has become the most significant and hallowed of holiday seasons, marking really an epoch of the year.

Among the causes which have enshrined this day so deeply in the heart of the world the fact that it is peculiarly children's day is probably the most fetching in its magic. The young people everywhere among Christian peoples constitute the factor which dominates the social observance of the season. Rich wassail at the dinner board, seraphic music and pomp of church service, even the giving of rich gifts among the elders, were these all, would leave Christmas but little different from other holidays, notably so in the case of Easter, when present giving among the rich has become so common. The Bambino, or infant Christ, as the idol of the occasion, would then have but little significance, but when the juvenile world declares that it rules the jubilee the keynote is struck which sends its thrilling music ringing throughout humanity. How Charles Dickens, the prose poet of Yuletide in fiction, has spun this pregnant fact into exquisite episodes is probably the highest measure of his success in imaginative work. The images he has created will live forever in the Christmas procession far more than puppets to the warm hearts of countless readers. And it is not among the children of the rich that Christmas most diffuses its felicity in real life any more than among the offspring of the great Christmas romancer.

It is among the poor and the lower middle classes that Christmas joy reigns with most potency. The trifle spent to secure a Christmas tree with its burden of cheap toys and sweets in the tenement house represents vastly more than the corresponding splendid show among the affluent. The story of the little cripple, "Tiny Tim," sets its canticle to more resounding strains of harp and cymbal than can ever attend the festival music of a palace. The true "Chrissom child" was found in the humble manger.

The feeling that Christmas Day is peculiarly consecrated to the poor as well as to the children has always been quite characteristic of the usages of the day. The lowest classes in medieval times were made to share fully with their superiors in feasting and merrymaking. At the present period we see an ever-increasing benefaction in the way of helping the poor to enjoy Christmas more generously—the turkey or goose for the home table, toys and clothing for the youngsters, and public dinners, often supplemented by substantial presents for the homeless waifs. On this special occasion such philanthrophy shows its most sweeping and liberal form, and the human heart is softened to the thought that in spite of earthly distinction all men are equal before Him whose natal day as man is thus observed. The democratic influence of Christmas thus stands out a great social factor.

When classes are driven by so many other influences to become hostile, it is a pregnant thought that more and more should be done to intensify the spirit and tendencies of the Christmas season as an object lesson in kindly sympathy between rich and poor. What wealth does for poverty is sometimes turned from blessing to bane by a haughty and patronizing air in the giver. The Christmas spirit is that of the fortunate man, who cordially helps his unlucky brother, the spirit of the good Samaritan. The habitual exercise of this feeling on one day when all tradition and religious sentiment turn toward it helps to extend it to other days, and that is the true function of Christ's natal festivity.

A QUIET CHRISTMAS.

According to the Western Idea Things Were Not Lively in Gulchville.

Cherokee Bill, of Gulchville, called on Cactus Kit, of Rocky Bend, shortly after the holidays and inquired of the latter how he had spent Christmas Day.

"Oh, I never seed sich a durned quiet day as C'rismas wuz yere!" exclaimed Kit in tones of disgust.

"Nothin' goin' on 'tall, eh?" continued Bill.

"Wall, nothin' to speak of—nothin' to speak of. S'pose ye heard 'bout the hangings we had yere on C'rismas, didn't ye?"

"No; I hadn't heard of 'em."

"Yaas, we hung a few hoss thieves soon arter breakfast. Did anybody tell ye 'bout the dawg fights yere on C'rismas?"

"No—not yit."

"Wall, thar wuz seven as terrible fights as ye'd wish to see, an' I won clus to a hunured dollars on 'em. I might hev won more, but about noon thar' wuz a big riot over at the county jail."

"Big riot, eh?"

"Yaas, the prisoners kicked up a rip-roarin' ole fuss fur some reason, an' it took ten of us an hour to quiet 'em with our guns. Arter that the town got on fire, but ye've heard o' that, in course?"

"Yaas—heard a word o' two 'bout it. Much damage done?"

"Wall, yaas. Fourteen or fifteen places burned up an' a dozen or so people injured. Arter we got that out we heard the stage had bin held up, an' we helped the Sheriff chase the robbers."

"Ketch 'em?" queried Cherokee Bill with a longing sigh.

"Yaas, we got 'em arter a fifteen-mile run an' arter three or four on both sides had bin wounded. Say, did ye h'ar 'bout the big poker game we had yere on C'rismas night?"

"No."

"Wall, that wuz the biggest game ye ever seed. Why, it cost a man twenty dollars to git in the smallest pot. A fuss up at the Prairie Saloon, though, busted it up at midnight."

"What wuz the trouble over thar'?"

"Oh, a shootin' scrape, in course, an' everybody took a hand in it. I reckon twenty-five fellers wuz hurt, an' the saloon wuz totally wrecked. When that wuz settled thar' wuz another hangin', another dawg-fight an' the post-office wuz robbed."

"And—and wuz that all that happened yere on C'rismas?" asked Cherokee Bill with another deep sigh.

"Yaas, blame it, that's all!" exclaimed Cactus Kit. "As I said afore, I never did see sich a durned quiet C'rismas as it wuz in this town, an' ye kin bet yer gun that next y'ar I'll go to some place whar' thar'll be 'nuff goin' on to keep a feller from fallin' ter sleep!"

The Father of Our Country.

The Christmas occurrence perhaps, the most glorious in all the annals of America is that of Washington crossing the Deleware, which has been celebrated in at least two famous paintings. On Christmas night, 1776, Washington, having previously gathered all the boats which were to be had on both sides of the river, crossed the stream from Pennsylvania, at McConkey's Ferry, Trenton, during a snowstorm. All of his troops were gathered on the New Jersey side till 4 o'clock in the morning. Washington surprised the Hessians and routed them, killing their commander. It was a complete surprise and victory; such a one, perhaps, as could have occurred on no other day, unless it were New Year's.

Christmas in England.

Christmas is just as pre-eminently an English festival as New Year's Day is in New York. The English are a week ahead of us. They never forget the sacred origin of the day they celebrate, and they never fail to think of religious traditions on that day, and of religion itself as a joyful thing, a part of life remote from cares and gloom. It is a day of kindly remembrances to and for everybody.

THE "BELLS" ON BOARD SHIP.

How the Sailormen Keep Track of the Time of Day.

Every one who has read stories of the sea has wondered why sailors keep time by "bells" instead of by hours. The "sad sea dog" of the tale says, "It's eight bells, and all's well," and the reader wonders why he calls them "eight bells," instead of the hour. There are people who think "eight bells" is 8 o'clock, and so with all the hours told off by bells.

At sea "bell" is equivalent to o'clock on shore. A bell is struck every half hour. The day, beginning at midnight, is divided into watches of four hours, except the watch from 4 to 8 o'clock p. m., which is divided into two dog watches. A full watch thus consists of eight half hours and its progress is noted by the number of strokes on the bell. For instance, beginning at midnight, the end of a watch, the bell is struck eight times; half past 12 is one bell, 1 o'clock is two bells, 1.30 o'clock is three bells, 2 o'clock is four bells, 3 o'clock is six bells, 4 o'clock is eight bells, and so on.

The bells, except the odd bells, are struck in pairs, thus: Three bells are struck clang-clang, clang. Four bells are struck clang-clang, clang-clang.

It is a pleasant diversion on ship board to hear the officer of the watch strike the bells on the bridge and to hear them answered by the bells in the fo'c'sle, and all over the ship.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

THE REINDEER MOSS.

It Flourishes in New England as Well as in Lapland and Siberia.

Though the common name of this little plant of a gray tint is reindeer moss—cladonis rangifernia—it really belongs, says the Boston Transcript, to the family of lichens. These are a little lower in the scale of life than the mosses, which have roots and leaves, and may grow flat upon the surface of the trees, rocks or ground, or may, as in the present case, grow up in numerous thread-like parts.

The reindeer moss is very common in the old pastures and open woods of New England where the soil is poor. Indeed, it often covers the ground so closely with its compact masses, that it would seem as if cows put out to pasture would find it a hard task to get a sufficient quantity of grass for their daily meal. It fairly tinges the ground with a whitish gray hue. When dry it is quite brittle and very pretty, its stem-like parts being hollow like little tubes. They branch out and stand up some four or five inches high. After a rain this lichen is soft to the touch. It makes a beautiful addition to a fernery, where it needs no care. The reindeer lichen grows in other parts of the world as well as in New England. It covers the barren plains of Lapland and the northern parts of Siberia, growing well where nothing else would. There it forms the principal food of the reindeer, from which fact it has received the name of reindeer moss.

Why His Heart Was Light.

He gazed with unseeing eyes out of the window and whistled softly with a time broken now and then by a smile that crossed his bearded lips.

The young girl directly opposite thought him handsome, and ascribed his preoccupied air to romantic reasons. And the older woman who sat with her glanced sharply across from time to time, to see what the young man meant by rudely whistling in a public conveyance. But the looks of youth and age were alike lost on him, and after awhile he turned his face toward the light and sang with such hearty untunefulness that his spectacled neighbor felt bound to remonstrate.

"Young man," she said, grimly, "have you hired this car for your own use?"

He stared at her blankly a minute, and then flushed to the roots of his hair.

"Was—was I singing?" he questioned shamefacedly.

"You were making a horrible noise," she replied, tartly. Then he laughed a wholesome, honest guffaw, and leaned forward confidentially.

"The joke's on me," he owned. "Tell the truth, my baby has just cut a tooth, and—and I was thinking how cunning the little chap looked when he grinned."

The war light faded in the woman's eyes and a smile touched the corners of her mouth as she beamed on the young father and questioned with deep interest:

The Harrisburg Telegraph speaks in the following complimentary manner of the production of "Rupert of Hentzau," which was given in that city Monday, and which will be presented in Music Hall tomorrow night: "The play is a sequel to the 'Prisoner of Zenda,' the characters being the same, but contains more opportunities for the display of romantic ability. The star was James K. Hackett, who is one of the leading romantic actors of today. His work proved this. His portrayal of the character of the peevish old king, and his transformation to the handsome, manly lover, fearless in his efforts to right a wrong, showed remarkable ability. The climax was reached in the third act, when, with 'Rupert of Hentzau,' the most realistic duel scene ever witnessed in this city is enacted. It is a duel to death and after a struggle he manages to place the revolver against the breast of his opponent and fires, the audience is aroused to such a pitch that an outburst of applause followed that lasted several minutes. The people were not satisfied with six curtain calls, but gave the seventh, and called for a speech. Mr. Hackett responded briefly. Throughout the play his work was faultless. His support was of the highest order possible."

"What Happened to Jones," which will be seen at Music Hall Wednesday night of next week, is one of the cleanest farces on the American stage. The seventh commandment is not even hinted at and the deceived wife and injured husband are conspicuously and joyously absent. The company is the same as when the farce was played at the beginning of the season and includes Bert C. Thayer, Soldene Powell, Barney McDonough, Frank Hope, Philip Calvert, Charles Greene, Cora Williams, Blanche Johnson, Eleanor Broadbey, Helen Harcourt, Kate Weston and Frances Lois Clarke.

POLITICAL HOT SHOT.

then we find that four of your six correspondents practically agree that VanDoren was beaten because his nomination did not suit a certain element referred to by them, while the other two think it was owing to Schoonmaker's popularity. As it is four to two, it is not fair to assume that the 503 votes in question were influenced in the same proportion? If so we will have to charge up about 335 to that sentiment, and 168 to Schoonmaker's popularity, which would have come 168 short of electing him!

Now, if upon such grounds the "Wise Men" of Somerville justify the defeat of an exceptionally well qualified candidate, who was the deliberate choice of a convention, which, without hesitation, made his nomination unanimous, is there not danger that other "Wise Men" in other townships, who fail in securing the nomination they prefer, will learn to play the same game?

Mr. Editor, it is time an end was put to all this, and it is hoped that The Unionist-Gazette, as the Republican newspaper of the county, will do its duty to the party at large, without regard to individuals or factions, without fear or favor. Let those who make charges of improper methods in conventions come forth and produce the evidence on which their charges are based, or, if they refuse to do this, denounce them.

Let those who feel inclined to ruin if they cannot rule, understand that the Republican party is greater than any man or set of men, it makes no difference to what faction they belong.

To accommodate the friends of Mr. McGee who came out from New York, the club car Netherwood was tendered by the members of that club. It was attached to the 1:30 train from New York. The car was arranged to carry some eighty passengers and was completely filled. In addition, there were a number of other prominent men in the other cars of the train.

It was first the intention to leave the Netherwood at Plainfield and transport the occupants to the church by trolley. On account of the large number, however, it was deemed best to go through to Grant avenue. From the station it was only a short walk to the church.

In the Standard Oil Company delegation were William Rockafellar, John D. Archibald, Charles Pratt, H. H. Rogers, O T. Waring, John Bushnell, Dan O'Day, W. C. Folger, A. H. Brainard, Gus Heye and A. J. Pouch, of New York; J. H. Alexander, vice-president of the Standard Oil Company, of New Jersey; Malcom Lloyd and N. V. Harkness, of the Atlantic Refining Co., of Philadelphia, together with a number of others from the Standard Oil Company.

Samuel Q. Brown, president, and J. H. Cuthbert, treasurer, of the Tide Water Pipe Company, and A. A. Sumner, treasurer of the Tide Water Oil Company, were also in the party.

The delegation from the New York Produce Exchange was headed by its president, Frank Brainard, Vice President Elliot T. Barrows, Secretary Fred H. Andrews, and ex-President Evan Thomas. Among the other well-know members in the delegation were Charles W. W. McCutchen, J. H. Parker, John Valiant, James W. Jackson, S. G. Nelson, A. Whitman, S. B. Joseph, R. F. Murray, Timothy Hogan, F. A. Ferris, John R. Livermore, J. Otto Koch, W. D. W. Miller and Adolph Goepel.

In addition to the delegations mentioned there were also present a number of prominent business men from New York and Philadelphia who had been associated with Mr. McGee in various ways and had early learned to admire and honor him.

All the local clergymen, who were able, were in attendance at the services. Several prominent divines from other cities were present and included Rev. Dr. Jesse L. Hurlbut and Rev. Dr. Tuttle, former pastors of the First M. E. church in Plainfield.

At the close of the service the remains were taken to Hillside cemetery where a brief service was held by Rev. W. C. O'Donnell and Rev. Herbert B. Munson. Only the members of the family were present at the interment.

Resolutions.

WHEREAS, Our beloved brother and benefactor, Mr. James McGee, has been suddenly called to his heavenly reward, and

WHEREAS, His connection with the Monroe Avenue Methodist Episcopal church was of such unusual character and value, be it therefore

Resolved, That we, the Official Board of the Monroe Avenue church, and on behalf of the entire membership, Sunday-school and congregation, give this expression of our deep sorrow in this our time that no greater calamity could have befallen us than the loss of him whose wise counsel and fatherly care was the main source of our present prosperity.

Resolved, That we assure the sorrowing family of our sincerest sympathy and highest regard, and that we make special mention of them in our petitions to the Throne of Grace.

Resolved, That we give publicity to these resolutions, that all may know with what love and veneration we regarded our honored brother. As local preacher, as treasurer, as teacher of the Bible class, as founder and librarian of Epworth House library, as the generous donator of valuable property, and as a safe leader in every praiseworthy enterprise he occupied such a position among us as to be frequently called "The Father of Monroe Avenue Church."

His industry, his high sense of honor, his benevolence, his self-abnegation, his devotion to duty, his earnest spirituality, his sublime faith, his tireless attention to all the exactions of his church life, his marvellous sympathy and Christian courtliness, have been a benediction to all who have been permitted to colabor with him in the Lord's vineyard.

NOT FULLY APPRECIATED.

The Snub a Famous Lecturer Received From His Native Town.

There are others besides prophets who are not rated at their true worth in their own country, says the Youth's Companion. A boy who grew almost to man's estate in a semi-rural community went into the great world, and became famous as a lecturer and writer. Unspoiled by fame, his heart often turned to his boyhood home. On one occasion he found that in passing from one lecturing point to another he would go through the old town, and that he would have time to pass a whole day there. Accordingly he wrote to one of the principal men of the township as follows:

"Dear Friend: Being about to pass through my native town and having a day at my disposal, I should be greatly pleased to greet my old friends and companions of earlier days; and I know of no better way to do this than to make an appointment to talk to them at the old brick schoolhouse next Thursday evening. I shall be happy to give them my best lecture, entirely free of charge. Invite everybody. Yours faithfully,

"—— ——."

Having thus arranged to do the bless-you-my-children act, as those versed in latter-day slang would say, his sensations may be imagined when he received, two or three days later, this letter in response:

"Mr. —— ——: Dear Sir—Your favor of 14th inst. rec'd. In reply would say that I have conferred with the trustees of the School Disct. No. 11 in regards to opening the bldg. next Thursday evng. for a lecture, and they request me to say that the same will not be convenient. With great respect, yours truly,

"ABSALOM SHACKELFORD."

"For a week after I got that letter," said the famous lecturer, in telling of the incident afterward, "I had a curious feeling as if I were about four sizes too small for my clothes."

Curiosities of the Bible.

The following Bible curiosities are said to have been gained by a study of the good book by the Prince of Granada, heir apparent to the Spanish throne, during his thirty-three years' imprisonment at the Place of Skulls prison, Madrid:

"In the Bible the word Lord is found 1,853 times; the word Jehovah, 6,855 times, and the word reverence but once, and that in the ninth verse of the 111th Psalm. The eighth verse of the 118th Psalm is the middle verse of the Bible. The ninth verse of the eighth chapter of Esther is the longest verse. The thirty-fifth verse, eleventh chapter of St. John is the shortest. In the 107th Psalm four verses are alike, the eighth, fifteenth, twenty-first and thirty-first. Each verse of the 136th Psalm ends alike. No names or words with more than six syllables are found in the Bible. The thirty-seventh chapter of Isiah and the nineteenth chapter of II Kings are alike. The word girl occurs but once in the Bible, and that in the third verse and third chapter of Joel; and the word boy but once, Zach. 8:5. There are found in both books of the Bible 3,586,483 letters and 773,693 words."—Presbyterian Review.

ASSEMBLYMAN OPPOSES PROPOSED FRANCHISE

Says That a Term of Ninety-Nine Years Is Too Long.

VIGOROUSLY OPPOSED IT.

HE THINKS TWENTY-FIVE YEARS' FRANCHISE LONG ENOUGH.

Chandler Riker, Who is Now Asking for This Long Franchise, Said Last Winter That Twenty-five Years Was Long Enough for a Franchise—Mr. Kinsman Heard — Another Hearing.

The special meeting of the City Fathers, held last evening, was a tame affair, so to speak, and the only interest afforded came from the people in the lobby, of which there was a goodly number.

The special subject under discussion was the proposed extension of the trolley, and the first part of the evening was given up to a public hearing, wherein those in the lobby were given a chance to have their say. Assemblyman Roger F. Murray was present and spoke on the subject. He stated that he opposed the original trolley extension ordinance on certain grounds, and that he was called down for not appearing before the Council and stating his objections. He said that he had seen members of the Council and told them what the city should receive as just compensation for the franchise. He thought that the concession of the trolley company to run through Arlington avenue a good one, but he objected to the fifty-year clause. On this point Mr. Murray said that Chandler Riker, president of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, appeared before the Legislature last winter and emphatically opposed the granting of a franchise for more than twenty-five years, and thought a law should be made making twenty-five years the limit.

Mr. Murray said in explanation that the remarks made by Mr. Van Herwerden at a recent meeting, regarding Mr. Riker's remarks at Trenton about franchise for a limited term, were true. He said that he understood that the Plainfield Street Railway Company would not again touch the franchise, but he noticed that they were after it again.

Mr. Murray advocated that the Council hold out for a longer time, and thus secure more advantageous terms. He favored a less number of years than fifty, and a more frequent adjustment of conditions. He cited the road between Elizabeth and Newark, and said that Elizabeth gave that franchise for nothing and are thus depriving themselves of a nice income. He expressed the opinion that the Council would appreciate their mistake if they granted the franchise under the present condition. He was sure that the city could get anything they wanted from the trolley company if they would ask for it.

Following Mr. Murray, remarks were made by F. E. Kinsman, who rehearsed at length his objections as offered at previous meetings. He considered that matters stand as they did several weeks ago, and the value of the franchise is increasing. He cited the fact that the secretary of the Board of Trade secured consents for the trolley and it was he who urged the trolley company to again apply for a franchise. Mr. Kinsman quoted a member of the Council as saying that the Council is sick and tired of the trolley business and they were going to vote on it to get it out of the way. Mr. Kinsman related the disadvantages of the present franchise and urged the Council to go slow and not grant it at present.

At this point the Council took a recess for one hour and a half to allow President Riker an opportunity to make certain changes in the new ordinance. During the recess all terms were settled in a satisfactory manner, and after the Council reconvened, Mr. Barrows moved that

SUGGESTED BOOK TITLES

INTERESTING AFFAIR GIVEN IN THE TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH.

A Chance for Book Worms to Show Their Talent—Various Curious Devices Made to Represent Book Titles.

One of the most unique entertainments given in any of the churches here this season was the "library sociable" at Trinity Reformed church last night. The sociable was of a literary nature, as the name infers, and to really enjoy it one needed to be somewhat acquainted with books and their authors.

The plan was to set the people to guessing the names of books and their authors from articles hung about the room. These were newspapers, a clock, pieces of pasteboard with a picture on them, or sometimes just a letter or a figure. Each one of these bits of paper or cards represented some book. The figure or number or something about it suggested to the mind of the one trying to guess, a certain book, of which there were eighty altogether, and the young folks, armed with book and pencil, went from one to the other of the objects in succession and jotted down a guess as to what book the object suggested. Some of the guesses went pretty wide of the mark, but then it was all for fun and everyone enjoyed it. There were no prizes, but refreshments were served towards the close.

Some of the articles suggested the following books: The New York World, folded, and with a paper band around it, stood for "Around the World in Eighty Days," that marvelous story of travel and adventure by Jules Verne. A little card on which was a picture of a group of Indians, suggested "Redskins," by James F. Cooper. Two more newspapers, The New York Press and The Daily Press, hanging side by side, stood for a "Tale of Two Cities." The word "Beauty" on a white card everyone guessed to be "Black Beauty."

An object that drew considerable attention, and seemed hard to guess, was a white card with the picture of a loaded van on it and over it the letter "D." This was "Donovan," by Edna Lyall.

The sociable was in charge of the social committee of the Christian Endeavor Society, consisting of Miss Cora Laire, Miss Lottie Wilson, Miss Cora Young, Miss Edith DuBois and Miss Nellie Backer. Much credit is due to Miss DuBois and to Robert M. Davis for the success of the affair.

A CHARMING TEA.

Given by Miss Bushnell in Honor of Mrs. Howard Wade Beebe.

A very charming tea was given yesterday afternoon by Miss Mary Bushnell, daughter of Frank Bushnell, of Madison avenue, in honor of Mrs. Howard Wade Beebe, formerly Miss Gertrude Baker.

The parlors were handsomely decorated with pink roses, and the same color prevailed in the dining room. The table was crossed with broad pink ribbons, which terminated in large bows, and with the shaded candles and pink dresses of the young girls, produced a charming effect.

All the young lady assistants, with the exception of three, were bride maids at the wedding of Mrs. Beebe, which occurred a few weeks ago. Miss Bushnell and Mrs. Beebe were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Frank Bushnell, Mrs. Thomas Baker, Mrs. Masters, of Germantown; the Misses Nancy Lawson, Mary Whiton, Katherine Reinhart, Florence Abbott, Annie Miller, Helen Bushnell, Jessie Bushnell and Miss Porter, of Ottawa, Ill.

Attended Y. M. C. A. Conference.

Seven men from this city, who are either members of the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. or interested in Y. M. C. A. work, took dinner last night with other directors and Y. M. C. A. workers from all over the State at Davis' restaurant, Newark. Those who attended from here were F. H. Andrews, Stephen Cahoone, William D. Murray, J. Harry Manning, Geo. S. Clay, A. C. LaBoyteaux and George Rittenhouse.

WANTS KEEP FOR ROSS.

W. H. ROGERS BRINGS SUIT AGAINST NORTH PLAINFIELD TOWNSHIP.

He Kept the Pauper Imbecile While the Townships Quarrelled About the Question of His Support.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Somerville, December 10.—Somerset county is not yet through with poor old Mulford Ross, the pauper imbecile, after all. When Judge Bartine decided that it was the duty of North Plainfield township and not Warren township to support the old man, it was supposed that all litigation of the subject was at an end. Yesterday, however, papers were filed in the Somerset County Circuit Court for a suit brought by W. H. Rogers against the township of North Plainfield for board for old Ross.

Rogers is the chairman of the Warren township committee and part of the time, when the question was unsettled as to which township would have to support Ross, Rogers boarded him at his house. Rogers has now brought suit as an individual to secure the cost of the keep of the imbecile pauper.

PARKS LEAD AT WHIST.

ELIZABETH'S DEFEAT BREAKS TIE FOR FIRST PLACE.

Park Club Team Has a Good Prospect of Winning in the Central Section of the New Jersey Whist League.

There seems to be something in the air over at the Park Club that is conducive to good whist playing. The famous whist team from that club won many State and National honors in the game. This year they withdrew from active service and a "pony" team was called upon to defend the name of the club in the whistic arena. Now the "pony" team stands first in the central section of the New Jersey Whist League, with a fair prospect of remaining there to the end.

There were four teams in the Central section when the contest started, the Parks, the Elizabeth Chess and Whist Club, the Jersey City Club and the New Jersey Athletic Club. The latter team has withdrawn now.

The Parks have now played three games, of which they won two, defeating the Jersey City and Elizabeth Clubs. They lost one game to the Elizabeth Club. Up to Wednesday night, the Elizabeth team also had two victories and one defeat while the Jersey City team had two defeats. Wednesday night the Elizabeth Chess and Whist Club was defeated by the Jersey City Club at the latter's clubhouse. The winning team was composed of O. S. Mecabe, D. Bowly, C. A. Bowly and J. L. Watson.

The defeat of Elizabeth broke the tie for first place leaving the Parks there alone. Next Wednesday evening the Parks will meet the Jersey City Club for a final game. A victory for the Parks will give them the championship in the section with a chance to play for the State championship. A defeat will make all three clubs tie with two victories and two defeats each.

COLUMBIA LODGE ELECT.

A. O. U. W. Choose Their Officers for the Ensuing Year.

At the last meeting of Columbia Lodge, A. O. U. W., the following officers were elected for the coming year: Master Workman, R. V. Kinney; foreman, F. C. Lounsbury; financier, E. M. Laing; receiver, Henry Liefke; recorder, V. W. Nash; guide, Peter VanFleet; inside watchman, W. F. Slater; outside watchman, M. Kollar; overseer, B. A. Meeker; trustee, three years, O. R. Pearson, Jr., medical examiners, Doctors J. H. Carman, T. S. Davis and D. C. Adams; representatives to grand lodge, Henry Nischwitz and E. M. Laing, alternates, J. W. A. Bauersachs and G. Q. Dunham.

These officers will be installed on the first meeting night in January. At last night's meeting two new members were initiated and three propositions for membership were received.

Justice Didn't Refuse Fees.

The adjourned case of the Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage Company against Fred Hand, which was adjourned in Justice Moffett's court yesterday morning, will be tried again Friday next. Justice Moffett does not wish the readers of The Press to think that he refused to allow the jury, who were discharged, jury fees, for he says that is something that the court has nothing to do with, but that the attorneys for the plaintiffs were the ones who refused to pay the jury the fifteen cents apiece that they demanded.

—Press want ads bring results.

Miss Christy Coddington, of Mount Horeb, who was visiting her cousin, Mrs. G. S. McGinnis, of Somerset street, has returned home.

CONSOLIDATION TO BE PUT TO VOTE.

Will be Presented to Borough at Next Election.

THE CITY WILL ALSO VOTE.

SOME WANTED TO PUT BILL BEFORE LEGISLATURE AT ONCE.

It Was Opposed on Ground That There Had Been no Expression of Public Opinion as Yet to Support it—Adverse Report on Consolidation Without Changing County Lines—Committee Appointed.

The people of Plainfield and North Plainfield are to be given a chance to say whether they want to consolidate into a Greater Plainfield. Such was the decision reached by the consolidation joint committees at a meeting held in the Board of Trade rooms last evening. It was only done after long discussion.

After one unsuccessful attempt, a quorum was secured for a meeting. Those present were Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, president of the committee, Former Mayor W. L. Saunders, secretary, Senator Charles A. Reed, Former Councilman S. A. Ginna, Former Councilman George T. Rogers and Editor Frank W. Runyon.

At a former meeting of the committee, the possibilities of a consolidation without changing county lines were discussed and a sub-committee appointed to look into the matter. The report of the sub-committee was submitted by its chairman, Senator Reed. It was as follows:

Gentlemen—As chairman of your sub-committee to which was referred the question "Is consolidation without a change of the county lines practicable and desirable?" I beg to submit the following:

Dr. H. K. Carroll, of this sub committee, I have been unable to discuss the subject with because of his absence. The third member, Mr. F. W. Runyon, feels that the question submitted involves so much that is purely legal in its character that he hesitates to express any decided opinion.

So far as I am personally concerned, I wish it distinctly understood that I am not opposed to consolidation if it can be accomplished in such a manner as to be beneficial to both communities concerned, and without injury to the county I represent.

This brings me to the real question in hand. To consolidate without a change of county lines means to maintain a separate existence for two different portions of Greater Plainfield so far as concerns many of the most important phases of municipal life.

For instance, there must be two taxing districts, with different rates of county tax. The county tax from one district being accounted for to Union county and from the other to Somerset county.

Separate school districts, with consequent differences in government and taxes. Different taxing officers, the Assessors for instance in one district being members of the Somerset County Board of Assessors and the others of Union.

Separate courts, with all their machinery, suitors and parties from one district being subject to the forums of one county and from the other district to those of the other county. No district having jurisdiction over the whole city would be possible. Separate election districts, in some of which the citizens must vote for one set of county and federal officers, while in others they vote for another set. Separate machinery for licensing of hotels and saloons. Joint action of two separate Boards of Freeholders would still be required to procure bridges across the brook. Indeed, there are a hundred and one instances which might be cited, many of which may seem of little importance in theory, but which would in practice result in constant irritation and interminable litigation. I have discussed this subject with many lawyers of ability and experience, several of them residents of Plainfield, who favor the general proposition that consolidation would be a good thing, but every one of them has emphatically stated that consolidation without change of county lines is both impracticable and undesirable. When I say impracticable I do not mean impossible, for that involves an answer to constitutional questions which could only be decisively given by a court of last resort. It is sufficient to say on that point that there are serious constitutional questions involved, and that the proposition under discussion may be impossible of attainment in this State.

After careful consideration I am

BOTH CLAIM THE LAND.

NOW TOLLEY, OF MOUNTAINSIDE, IS GOING TO BRING SUIT.

Stone Has Built a Factory There and Claims the Land by Right of Possession—Property is in Pennsylvania.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Dec. 10—Herbert Tolley, of Mountainside, has long been trying to secure possession of certain lands in Pennsylvania that he claims are his property and he is now proposing to take the matter into the courts to secure his alleged rights.

There is a tract of land at Charlottesburg, Pa., that Tolley claims has long been his property. Ten years ago he had a blacksmith shop there which afterwards burned down. He claims to have paid the taxes ever since. Howard Stone, of that city, has built a factory on the land and claims it by the right of possession, holding that he has been there twenty years without being disturbed.

Suit will be started at the Superior Courts in Charlottesburg next week by Robert M. Clark, attorney for Tolley.

VISITED CATHOLIC CLUB.

DELEGATION FROM ORANGE VALLEY PLEASANTLY ENTERTAINED.

The Visitors Were Outclassed at Bowling But Held Their Own in the Music and Dancing That Followed.

Some twenty visitors from Orange Valley were the guests of the Plainfield Catholic Club last evening at the clubhouse of the latter. A bowling match opened the evening in which the visitors were completely outclassed. The scores were as follows:

CATHOLIC CLUB.		ORANGE VALLEY.
Moran	192	E. Finneran	168
Higgins	168	Welch	152
Meinerney	184	B. Finneran	150
Shannon	140	Harrington	154
Carty	147	Hassett	155
	831		779

An informal musical entertainment followed in which the local participants were Miss Daly, Miss Day, T. J. Cumerford, J. O'Brien and William Claassen. Refreshments were served and the evening's pleasure closed with a dance.

FOR THE MUSICALLY INCLINED.

Choral Concert to be Given in the First Baptist Church.

The concert to be given Monday evening next at the First Baptist church will be an event of great interest to lovers of music. The work selected, Mendelssohn's "Athalie," has always been a favorite in Plainfield, having been rendered by the Choral Society twice, the last time in December, 1892. There is an unusual charm in the music which the great composer created as a setting for the sacred drama by Racine, the renowned French poet. The incidents are taken from the narrative of the acts of "Athaliah," contained in the Scriptures, (second book of Chronicles, chapters xxii and xxiii.) The action centres around the infant king, Joas, who was hidden in the Temple at Jerusalem by the priests to escape the murderous purposes of "Athaliah," who supposed he had been killed. He is proclaimed king at the age of six years amid great pomp and ceremony. The movement of the music throughout is exceedingly dramatic. The reader, Mrs. Frank J. Smith, will have ample scope for her eminent histrionic talents.

The chorus of about forty voices will be under the charge of E. J. Fitzhugh, and will be assisted by Miss Harris, Miss Ward and Mrs. Case, the soloists of the First Baptist church, and Howard Case at the organ, and Miss Utter at the piano.

Exciting Mock Trial.

A very exciting mock trial was held at the meeting of Somerset Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., last evening in their rooms in the Babcock building. It was a breech of promise case in which Michael Kollar, attired in women's clothes, appeared as the plaintiff, and George Wikoff as defendent. Isaac P. Runyon made a very dignified and worthy judge. The plaintiff's case was conducted by Fred Pope, and Robert M. Clark was attorney for the other side. There was a jury of twelve men. Five witnesses were sworn by each side, of which Louis Randolph made a decided hit as a three-year-old infant. The jury decided that the defendant wasn't guilty but he musn't do it again.

SALE AND FLOWER FAIR

GRATIFYING SUCCESS ACCORDED TO WOMEN OF ALL SOULS' CHURCH.

The Interior of the Church Filled With Articles Suggestive of Christmastide—Names of the Leaders Who Had Charge.

The women of All Souls' church met with gratifying success with the sale and flower fair that began Thursday afternoon and was continued that evening, yesterday afternoon and evening. The affair was arranged for the benefit of the church, and to give people a chance to select some pretty or useful present for Christmastide. During the entire time the pretty little church was filled with people who were much interested in everything they saw. Through the efforts of the women flowers of all kinds were perfectly imitated in paper, and these were artistically arranged about the various tables and rooms. There was placed on sale fancy and useful articles, candies that tempted everyone, and an attractive place was that which had for sale useful household articles. Everything needed in a useful way was here displayed, including baking powder, soaps, lamps and pictures. There was also on exhibition a portrait, the gift of John Wanamaker. Another attractive place was the children's department, where dolls and all sorts of things for children could be found. The little ones, as well as the older people, found much to amuse them at this place.

Another department was devoted to a display of decorated china, stationery of all kinds, and useful novelties of every description. A department devoted to embroideries of all kinds attracted considerable attention from all. Here all sorts of small and large articles of a useful nature were to be found, and the embroidery was the feature.

A very desirable place at the sale was that devoted to the dispensing of ice cream and cake. This place was generally filled and those in charge were kept very busy.

Among those who had charge of the affair were Mrs. A. C. Nickerson, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Draper, Mrs. Leonard, Mrs. Mumford, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Brown, Miss Brown, Miss Haviland, Miss Conklin, Miss Perry, Mrs. Conklin, Miss Reynolds, Mrs. L. B. Woolston, Mrs. Brownell, Mrs. Henry B. Wells, Miss Mary Wells, Miss Alice Thompson, Miss VanZandt, Miss Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Durar, Mrs. Buckle, Miss Buckle, Mrs. Osgood, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Phillip J. R. VanWyck, Miss Dorothy Wells, Miss Osgood, Miss Andrews, and Miss Walker.

Will Case Settled.

The contest over the will of the late Ephriam Randolph, of New Market, which has been before the Middlesex County Orphan's Court for some time, was settled yesterday morning at the law offices of Codington & Swackhamer in a manner satisfactory to the widow and the legatees. Codington & Swackhamer represented the legatees and Robert M. Clark was the counsel for the widow, Mrs. Addie A. Randolph.

A Lesson of the War.

One result of the Yanko-Spanko war has been to demonstrate the superior utility of smokeless powder, but whatever kind of powder the society damsel uses she can't afford to be without one of the cut-glas, silver-top powder boxes that are obtainable at Collier's for one dollar and a half. They are almost as pretty as the pretty girl that ought to have one.

Death of a Groceryman.

James Flynn, aged fifty-three years, a well-known grocer living at 227 Plainfield avenue, died last evening at his home after a long illness with a complication of diseases. The funeral services will be held from the late home tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, and from St. Mary's church at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Didn't Know It Was Loaded.

Miss Davie, daughter of Archibald Davie, of 32 Jackson avenue, was handling a pistol a few days ago and "not knowing that it was loaded" pulled the trigger. The bullet passed through the palm of her hand. The family physician, Dr. Jenkins, was called in and dressed the wound and no serious results are anticipated.

Went to Jail.

Oscar TenEyck, the colored man who was convicted of cruelty to one of Hetfield & Gallup's horses and sentenced to pay a fine of $25 or go to the county jail for sixty day, decided to take the days yesterday, so he was escorted to Elizabeth towards night by Constable Moffett.

A WAGON WRECKED BY TROLLEY CAR.

Exciting Crash on West Fourth Street Yesterday.

THE CAR WAS DERAILED.

MOTORMAN INJURED BY SUDDEN STOPPING OF CAR.

Powlison & Jones' Wagon Flew Into Two Directions—Driver Went Over the Dashboard After the Horse—Front Vestibule of Car Demolished—Motorman Says he Gave Warning Signal.

A trolley car crashed into one of Powlison & Jones' delivery wagons at the intersection of Madison avenue and West Fourth street yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. The wagon was practically demolished while the front vestibule of the car was wrecked. Motorman and driver escaped with no very serious injuries.

Car No. 3, in charge of Motorman E. P. Hoppock, of West Third street, and Conductor Charles Hepner, of John street, was passing along West Fourth street going west. According to the statement of the motorman he slowed down as he approached Madison avenue, sounded the gong twice and then seeing nothing increased his speed to the ordinary rate.

Just as he reached Madison avenue a horse and wagon came along at a good speed right in front of the car. The horse passed by safely and then the car struck the wagon just behind the front wheels. There was a loud crash. The front wheels and axle of the wagon were separated from the rest and tumbled twenty feet away to the right of the track. They were completely wrecked. The remainder of the wagon was thrown to the left and turned upside down. The top was demolished and the whole vehicle badly strained.

The horse was cut loose and left the traces behind. The driver clung to the reins and followed the horse, which was not injured. The driver, Charles Ellis, of Duer street, was stunned by his fall. He was bruised about the body and his face was skinned. He received no serious injuries, however.

The force of the collision bent in the dash board of the trolley car and wrecked the glass and frame vestibule that protects the motorman from the weather. A part of this wreckage fell on the track and turned the car wheels off the rails. The car left the rails entirely and ran to the right, stopping only a foot from the curb.

The sudden slackening of the speed of the car threw the motorman against the brake handle with much force. It was first thought that a rib was broken, but it only proved to be a bad bruise and strain. He was somewhat bruised in other places.

There were five passengers in the car, including women, who were badly frightened by the accident. None of them were injured, however. Wm. A. Woodruff, of East Second street, was one of the passengers, and he remembers very distinctly that the motorman rang his bell.

Ellis, the driver for Powlison & Jones, says that he never heard any bell. The house on the corner is so near the street that he could not see down Fourth street until he almost reached the track. The distance was too short to stop in, and so he tried to clear the tracks before the car came. It may have been difficult to hear the bell, as the wind was blowing fiercely toward the car and the wagon made considerable noise on the frozen ground.

Ellis and Hoppock were carried into the house of Dr. M. S. Simpson, where their wounds were dressed. They were then taken home. Neither is on duty today. The damage to the wagon will amount to in the neighborhood of $75.

Relief Corps Elect.

The regular meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps was held last evening in the rooms on East Front street, at which time officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Mrs. E. C Morse; senior vice president, Mrs. Charles Westphal; junior vice president, Mrs. Samuel Terry, Sr; treasurer, Mrs. Walter Walker; chaplain, Mrs. M. C. Dobbins; conductor, Mrs. Caspar Bolsterle; guard, Mrs. Charles Stephens; delegates to State convention, Mrs. V. W. Nash, Mrs. Samuel Terry, Mrs. Seargent, Mrs. Bogert and Mrs. Cox. The balance of the officers will be appointed by the president at the first meeting of the corps in January, when installation will take place.

—Do not forget Dr. Tomlinson's address on "Physical Degeneracy" at the men's meeting in the Seventh day Baptist church tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

SHIPS FOR THE NAVY

House Committee Will Probably Report in Favor of Fifteen.

FORCE WILL BE INCREASED

The Recommendations of Secretary Long for Battleships and Cruisers to be Adopted. No Final Action Yet However.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—The House naval committee has practically decided to bring in a bill for the construction of fifteen new warships, and for the increase of the enlisted force to twenty thousand men, as recommended by Secretary Long.

The naval committee does not wish to be behind the military committee in carrying out the president's recommendations, and it is expected that a bill will soon be ready to report.

There will be three battleships of 13,500 tons, and great steaming radius; three 12,000 ton armored cruisers, three 6,000 ton armored cruisers, and six protected cruisers of 2,500 tons each, for service in the waters around our insular possessions.

These are the ships recommended by the bureau of construction, and while the committee has not yet finally acted its purpose has been very clearly indicated at the two informal meetings held this week.

Working on the Army Bill.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—The House committee on military affairs began consideration yesterday of the army measure. Such progress was made, that Chairman Hull said at the close of the meeting that he expected not only to report the bill to the House before the holidays, but also to pass it by that time.

Daily committee meetings will be held, beginning next Monday. Following them the various heads of staff, bureaus, the adjutant general, commissary general, quartermaster general, etc., will be heard.

The bill under consideration yesterday was the Hull bill. The other army bill, drawn by General Miles, was not before the committee, but it probably will be introduced in the House on Monday and referred to the military committee, so as to be taken up when General Miles is heard.

For yesterday, however, the committee confined its attention to going over the various provisions of the Hull bill.

The War Revenue Act.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—Chairman Dingley of the ways and means committee has received a letter from Commissioner of Internal Revenue Scott, recommending a number of amendments to the war revenue act.

The recommendations cover changes of an administrative character of excise taxes on sugar refineries and for a penalty for failing to stamp parlor car tickets.

Further provisions are suggested as to the examination by internal revenue office of articles subject to internal revenue taxes.

OUR INTERESTS IN CHINA.

Observations and Views of Ex-Minister Barrett.

Shanghai, Dec. 10.—John Barrett, ex-United States minister to Siam, has returned here after visiting Pekin and the principal Chinese ports.

He says that the situation in China is of the most critical nature, and that Manchuria is no longer Chinese, but Russian territory.

He asserts that New-Chwang, the chief northern port for the movement of American products, is also practically Russian, and is liable to be closed any day.

The only permanent safeguard to paramount American and British interests, Mr. Barrett says, is immediate and united action by the interested governments to defend the integrity of the Chinese empire, to enforce reforms in the government, to prevent further cessions of ports and provinces, and to insist upon the "open door" policy in all ports of China including the spheres of influence claimed by Russia, Germany and France.

Otherwise, Mr. Barrett contends, the impending partition of the Chinese empire will seriously curtail the field of trade, by disastrously affecting American and British influence in Asia.

Ignored the Empress Dowager.

Pekin, Dec. 10.—The new Russian minister, M. De Geirs, presented his credentials to the emperor yesterday.

The Dowager Empress was not present.

M. De Geirs, on his arrival here, refused to present his credentials to the dowager empress.

The emperor appeared to be weak and sickly.

John Anderson Dies.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 10.—When the death warrant was read yesterday to John Anderson, condemned to be hanged for the murder of the mate of the Olive Pecker, he was calm and said that he was ready to go. He protested his innocence.

Anderson was executed during the afternoon.

Morocco Yields to Italy.

Rome, Dec. 10.—The sultan of Morocco has complied with the demands of the Italian government regarding the detention and ill treatment of Italian proteges, and the Italian cruiser which was sent to Tangier to receive the answer of the sultan to Italy's ultimatum has sailed for Brindisi.

Powder Mills Blown Up.

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 10.—Three men were killed and eight were injured, three of them probably fatally, by the explosion of a press mill and four grinding mills in the Hagley yard of the Dupont Powder Works at a few minutes after ten o'clock yesterday morning.

Peace Commission's Return.

London, Dec. 10.—The members of the American peace commission are booked to sail from Southampton for New York on board the American line steamer St. Louis on December 17.

DUN'S WEEKLY REPORT.

A Larger Demand for All Products Than Ever Before at This Season.

New York, Dec. 10.—The most significant thing this week has been the entire absence of the customary nervous fright before or after the meeting of Congress, the president's message and the treasurer's report.

No one showed the least alarm, and nobody could find occasion for any. Money and stock and grain markets moved on exactly as if the government were automatic, certain to do or say no more than the people had already decided and expected, and so the gradual betterment since October continues.

There is a larger demand for products in nearly all the great industries, larger export demand for foreign needs, a more healthy domestic demand since seasonable weather arrived, and a comforting conviction that November business, the biggest ever done in this country in any month, was but a step toward something better.

Exports last year in December were marvelous, but this year are starting far ahead. The Atlantic wheat exports flour included, have been for the week 5,636,767 bushels, against 4,712,137 last year, and Pacific exports 556,523 bushels, against 973,083 last year, and the prices have declined 2 3-4 cents for cash, but western receipts of 10,135,189 bushels, against 6,212,471 from last year's great crop stops argument. The wheat does not come out at low prices if the people have less to sell than last year at twenty cents more per bushel. So the corn exports were 4,151,981, as against 3,313,066 last year, and such a foreign demand at prices much higher than last year, and with wheat cheaper, is proof of a state of things abroad which Americans hardly appreciate. The price declined only one-quarter of a cent with enormous receipts.

Cotton shared in the export movement fully, and nevertheless has risen three-sixteenths in price, with a feeling that estimates of yield may have been excessive.

At the extremely low price yet quoted foreign buyers do not stop to calculate commercial and mill stocks on hand.

Woolen goods have been in much better demand, and many of the smaller mills have been buying after concessions secured by the larger.

Sales of boots and shoes from the East were smaller for the week than in most other years because of the storm, but wholesalers here were at work night and day, some for six and eight days running until midnight to fill orders.

The volume of business, domestic and foreign, is very heavy. Exports from New York for the week were 11 per cent. larger than last year, and for five weks 28 per cent. larger, while imports were three per cent. larger and for five weeks about the same.

Payments through the principal clearing houses for the first full week of December were 22.4 per cent. larger than last year, and 14.8 per cent. larger than in 1892, a fact especially significant after the heavy excess of last month.

This week's failures have been 248 in the United States against 312 last year, and 22 in Canada against 29 last year.

The Londonian Survivors.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 10.—The survivors of the Londonian arrived here from Baltimore yesterday. The Boston agent of the Wilsin-Furness-Leyland line has furnished transportation to England on the Bostonian, sister ship of the Londonian, which sails from here to-day.

Second Officer Ketching has wired the company here that the primary cause of the disaster was the breaking down of the steering gear on November 23. Unable to obey her helm, the ship tossed in the trough of the sea, and sent out signals of distress. The 651 cattle became sick and filled the air with their bellowings. By evening the ship was rolling so heavily that the men prepared to launch the boats. A lurch of the vessel threw 400 tons of cattle on the lee side of the ship, giving her a list of 46 degrees.

Detroit Theatre Horror.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 10.—The coroner's investigation of the cause of the collapse of the roof of Wonderland theatre by which a dozen lives were lost, has returned a verdict to the effect that too heavy a weight was placed upon the roof, and placing the responsibility for the disaster upon the firm of John Scott & Co., architects of the building.

Gen. Garcia Better.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—The condition of General Garcia, who is suffering from pneumonia, is reported to be much improved.

TREATY YET UNSIGNED

Not Likely to Be Ready To-day for Signatures.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM GIVEN

Illness of Secretary Ojeda Causing Delay. Statement of Senor Garnica. The Final Spanish Protest. Summary of the Treaty's Provisions.

Paris, Dec. 10.—Senor Montero Rios, president of the Spanish peace commission, and Senor Ojeda, secretary of that commission, are still confined to their beds.

The illness of the latter delays engrossing the peace treaty, and it is doubtful whether it will be signed before Monday.

The American commissioners held their usual session yesterday. They preserve secrecy regarding the terms of the treaty. This is partly through the influence of the three senators on the body, who represent that it would be discourtesy to the Senate to publish the terms before the treaty is presented to that body by the president.

Senator Gray, though known to be radically opposed to the policy of annexation or imperialism, will vote in the Senate to ratify the treaty, considering that his signing that document binds him to support it.

The Spaniards continue making bitter comments concerning President McKinley's reference to the Maine.

When a correspondent of the Associated Press asked Senor Garnica of the Spanish commission yesterday for further details of the treaty, he said:

"The fact that you represent all the American and English papers is really a reason why I should say nothing. But what you show me as having been cabled is substantially correct. The exact number of articles is still undetermined. It depends upon how Secretaries Ojeda and Moore divide the treaty. It may be that there will be twelve or twenty articles. The Americans are to pay the indemnity within three months of the ratification. We shall appoint consuls in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippine islands without delay. The Cuban consul will be accredited to the power that may be in control."

Asked why the Spaniards refused to grant the United States a coaling station in the Caroline islands, Senor Garnica said:

"The Americans could hardly expect that we should agree to discuss matters outside of the protocol, after the lessons we have had from them on this point. When we wished to discuss the Cuban debt they absolutely refused to consider it, and then they ask us for whatever they want. Quel toupet! ('What cheek!'). Yet the Cuban debt remains an important question for settlement."

In regard to the Spaniards' final protest on the subject of the Maine, Senor Garnica said:

"That protest now becomes history, as it is embodied in the record. We do not wish to remain under an imputation which would perpetuate animosity and hatred against us, and which would be a source of constant irritation in Spain. It is neither loyal nor just that this thing should hang over the reputation of Spain. We cannot submit to it. It must be cleared up in justice to ourselves. There are many other causes to bring hatred between the two nations without the addition of such a one as this. As to the future relations of the two countries, that is one of the things history alone can determine. Many nations which have been deadly enemies have been speedily reconciled."

The record accompanying the treaty will contain every written statement presented on both sides during the conferences. The Spaniards made a final contribution Thursday, when Senor Montero Rios presented a vigorously worded protest in which the Spaniards declared that they yielded to force, but that they invoked the conscience of the nations against the abuse of the rights of nations of which hey were the victims.

Notwithstanding the secrecy observed by the Americans, it is learned that the treaty, in substance, consists of thirteen or fourteen articles.

The principal articles provide for the session and evacuatiin of Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippine islands, and the political, administrative and financial results thereof; the acquirement by the United States of public property and the relinquishment of archives.

An important provision is the guarantee of religious freedom in the ceded territories, in the same terms as the Florida treaty, the Americans having steadfastly refused to incorporate any guarantee of the United States' determination to favor the property if the Catholic church, leaving it subject to the general laws, in the same footing as private property.

Preparing for a New Census.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—The new selected committee of the House on the twelfth census, of which Representative Hopkins of Illinois is chairman, has found quarters in one of the terrace rooms, and will go to work next week upon the bill to authorize the taking of the census. It is one of the measures that the managers hope to see enacted into law at this session.

Jerry Rusk, will in all probability be made superintendent of the census. His principal competitor for the place was S. N. D. North of Boston, who has ben appointed a member of the industrial commission.

Removed to Arlington.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Arrangements have been made for the transfer of the remains of General John A. Rawlins, General Grant's chief of staff, from the Congressional cemetery to the National cemetery at Arlington.

A site has been selected at Arlington on the east front of the mansion, near the graves of Sheridan, Crook and other heroes of the civil war.

Embassy from Austria.

London, Dec. 10.—A Central News dispatch from Vienna says that it is reported that Count von Kuefstein, the Austrian minister to Switzerland, is to be transferred to Washington with the rank of ambassador.

A SMALL POX EPIDEMIC.

Two Hundred Persons Out of a Population of 2,200 Ill With the Scourge.

Bedford, Pa., Dec. 10.—A plague of small pox has smitten this town. No fewer than two hundred persons, by actual count, have been stricken with the terrible and loathesome disease, and how many others no one knows.

What an awful condition of affairs exists is evident when it is said that the entire population, including every man, woman and child, numbers hardly 2,800 souls. One victim in every 14 persons!

The presence of the dread disease was hardly suspected until Thursday, when Dr. W. B. Atkinson of Philadelphia, inspector of the state board of health, made an official statement that small pox is epidemic.

His word, uttered only after a most careful and thorough diagnosis, has thrown the people of the town into a state of great excitement.

For days the plague has been flourishing, spotting its unsuspecting victims, now here and then there, and branding them with the foul blotches peculiar to the disease.

All unaware of the pestilence that had stolen into their homes to blight fathers and mothers, grandparents and the babes in their arms, the people of Bedford have been mingling without restraint in the conduct of their modest daily life, and, worse still, many have been going abroad to carry the germs of the detested disease to all parts of the state.

Of course it was soon noticed that a mysterious skin affection had broken out here and was rapidly becoming epidemic. Those afflicted consulted the local physicians, but these confessed themselves sorely puzzled. Some said that the disease was chicken pox; others thought that it could not even be as serious as that, and was merely some ordinary skin disease. Their mystification semed complete.

The loathesome pest spread rapidly and a feeling of vague alarm became general, for the sick failed to respond to the treatment prescribed for them, while every day some new victim was recorded.

Then it was at last decided to call in the state health authorities. Not that there was any suspicion if small pox, but simply to determine what the trouble was and possibly apply a remedy.

The rapid spread of the disease was due to the inability of the local physicians to diagnose it.

Six Day's Cycle Race.

New York, Dec. 10.—Just half a dozen half crazy riders are all that is left of the thirty-one who started in the Madison Square Garden bicycle race. The strain has driven off all the rest.

Of those who remain Hale, Lawson, Aronson and Nawn are in bad shape. Hale is a physical wreck, and is riding only at the request of the management because he is a drawing card. He wants to quit.

The race at 2 o'clock looked more like a cinch than ever for Miller. He was riding strongly and was ahead of Waller, who was badly in need of rest. Miller was hustling in order to beat his last year's record.

The score at 2 a. m.:

	Miles.	Laps.
Miller	1808	2
Waller	1778	5
Pierce	1736	8
Albert	1669	3
Gimm	1616	4
Lawson	1598	5
Aronson	1559	0
Nawn	1529	8
Forster	1500	2
Stevens	1481	1
Hale	1384	7
Julius	1136	6

Miller's record at the corresponding hour in last year's race—1811 miles, 1047 yards.

Governor Elect Roosevelt's Slate

New York, Dec. 10.—Colonel Roosevelt's "slate," about which so many wild guesses have been made, will be made up as follows, unless circumstances arise to cause a change before January 1, when they will be announced:

Justice of the Supreme Court—Joseph F. Daly of New York.

Judge of the Court of General Sessions—W. M. K. Olcott of New York.

District Attorney of Kings County—Hiram R. Steele.

Superintendent of Public Works—Francis Hendricks of Onondaga.

Superintendent of Public Buildings—Harry H. Bender of Albany.

Commissioner of Labor Statistics—Charles J. Dumar of Queens.

Adjutant General—A capable Republican and member of the National Guard.

Hungarian Diet Troubles.

Budapest, Dec. 10.—Dr. D. De Szilaygi, president of the lower house of the Hungarian Diet, who tendered his resignation in December, but was requested to withdraw it, has definitely decided to resign.

In a letter he adhered to the declarations contained in the previous communication to the lower house announcing his withdrawal from office.

The Chamber was densely crowded yesterday and the reading of the letter was received with cheers by the party of the left.

The House accepted the resignation and adjourned, after the leaders of the opposition had expressed grave anxiety as to the future.

To Be Utica's Postmaster.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 10.—William M. Griffith who has been Governor Black's private secretary for the last two years will be appointed postmaster of Utica, it is understood, soon after he leaves the executive chamber in Albany on January 1.

Congressman James S. Sherman of Utica, it is understood, will ask for his appointment, and it is not likely that any opposition to Griffith's preferment will develop.

The Pope's Approval.

Rome, Dec. 10.—It is announced that the pope will shortly cause to be published the text of a letter addressed to Cardinal Gibbons at Baltimore, which is believed to contain his holiness's full approbation of the political conduct of the Catholic church in America.

Concession to Dreyfus.

BEFORE THE WAR BOARD

More Testimony About Transportation Contracts.

MANY FALSE STATEMENTS

Col. Hecker's Statement About Repatriating Spanish Troops. Denials of Alleged Influences Used by Abner McKinley and Others. The Miami and Montauk Camps.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—The transportation to Spain by the United States of the Spanish prisoners surrendered at Santiago was taken up by the war investigating commission yesterday, and Colonel Hecker, who made the contract for the United States, was recalled to testify on this point.

He said that there had been a combination of New York shipping concerns which would have caused an outlay of $1,400,000, while the actual outlay made was $513,000.

The lowest bid was from a Philadelphia junk dealer, who, however, had no visible means of executing the contract, and admitted his own doubt as to getting sufficient bond.

This Philadelphian, Colonel Hecker testified, protested against not being awarded the contract, on the ground that he had "a chance to make some money out of it."

The most feasible bidder was the Spanish Compania Transatlantica. Their bid unlike the others, relieved the government of all medical attendance, and finally, on the government's representations, the company agreed to reduce its figures about $180,000.

"What induced the government to send those people to Spain?" was asked.

"I do not know. The terms of surrender provided for it."

Colonel Hecker read a long statement signed by one William E. Ryan, telling of the alleged methods of the transportation bureau in connection with the attempted sale of certain ships to the government.

Colonel Hecker said that he did not know Ryan.

Several members of the commission said they would be glad to summon Ryan if he could be found.

Asked whether he was ever approached by Arthur McKinley, the president's brother, relative to the purchase of ships, Colonel Hecker replied:

"Never but once. He spoke to me once about a water barge, for which there was no use at the time, and I so informed him. I never had any other communication from him, either directly or indirectly."

"What part did the firm of which Abner McKinley is a member play in the sale of ships?" asked ex-Governor Woodbury.

"None at all as to the army," replied Colonel Hecker. "I do not know as to the navy."

Asked about Ryan's charge that there was a subordinate in Colonel Hecker's office who exercised much influence, and could be approached, Colonel Hecker replied that the negotiations were conducted directly, and that no subordinate in the office could have exercised any influence. That was the first direct charge of corruption he had seen against himself, as he considered himself responsible for what went on in his office. He should, he said, like to be confronted with Ryan.

The commission decided to summon Ryan if he could be found.

Surgeon A. E. Appell, the next witness, was examined about the camp site and division hospital at Miami, in Florida.

He did not think Miami was a good place for a camp, but knew nothing about the reasons for its selection. The equipment of the hospital there was good, but at times the water supply was insufficient.

The witness said that he had made a request to Dr. Kent for some Red Cross nurses for service with the typhoid patients but before they arrived he had been instructed by Chief Surgeon Moss not to accept them.

Asked as to the conditions at the Montauk camp, Surgeon Appel said that they were generally satisfactory. He found that there was much unfounded complaint.

He cited the case of Mrs. Arnold, a prominent New York woman, who complained of the neglect of soldiers at Bellevue Hospital. She reported to him that two soldiers were very badly treated, had been struck by their nurse and desired to get away.

He investigated and found that the soldiers were perfectly satisfied and opposed to being removed.

Reverting again to the camp at Miami, he said that the newspapers reported scores of deaths a day. As a matter of fact, in July, out of seven thousand men in camp there were only twelve deaths.

News from Manila.

Manila, Dec. 10.—The United States transport Pennsylvania has arrived here from San Francisco. The Kansas volunteers landed yesterday.

The Army and Navy Club has been organized here, with Colonel Smith of California as president.

The French transport Cachmire has arrived here for the purpose of repatriating Spaniards.

Sir Edmund Monson's Speech.

Paris, Dec. 10.—An explanation, evidently emanating from the British embassy here, has been published, declaring that the speech recently delivered by the British ambassador, Sir Edmund J. Monson, has been misunderstood.

The idea of any desire to interfere in internal affairs of France or criticise her policy, is repudiated. Moreover it is stated that the whole attitude of the ambassador contradicts the supposition of malevolent intention.

JAPAN AND THE PHILIPPINES.

Her New Minister to This Country Silent on Reported Offer of Purchase.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—The statement of Senator Kyle of South Dakota, following his recent interview with the president, that Japan had offered to buy the Philippines for $200,000,000, is greatly discredited in official circles.

At the Japanese legation the emphatic statement is made that no such offer has come to the knowledge of the legation. This is the official diplomatic statement, but it was learned further on the best authority that Japan had government are aware.

never submitted any proposition to buy the Philippines, and had no intention of doing so as far as the officers of this

It may be accepted as certain that the president has no intention of surrendering to any foreign power the newly acquired possessions of the United States in the far East, and that it would be useless for any country to offer $200,000,000 or more for them. They are not in the market.

The story that Japan has made the offer is probably an outgrowth of a similar rumor that gained currency during the early period of the war, shortly after Dewey's victory at Manila bay.

It was reported at that time that the United States would dispose of the islands to Japan for a monetary consideration. Emphatic denial was made of the story in Washingtin and in Tokio. What was stated then is now repeated that Japan wants the United States to maintain exclusive control over the entire Philippine archipelago. The friendliness of Japan toward the United States has been plainly manifest recently, and the entrance of this government as a factor in the eastern situation is regarded as more valuable to that country than her possession of the Philippines with the United States holding no territory in the east.

One of the officers of the Japanese legation said that while Japan had plenty of money to spend she was not looking around for opportunities to dispose of two hundred million. This was a diplomatic way of denying the statement of Senator Kyle.

New York, Dec. 10.—Sutaro Komura, the new Japanese minister to this country, who is staying in this city for a day or two, was seen yesterday in his apartments in the Waldorf-Astoria in regard to the rumor that his government had offered to purchase the Philippine islands from this country for $200,000,000.

Mr. Komura denied any knowledge of any such offer, and begged to be excused from discussing the possibility that his government might contemplate such a step.

Atlanta's Peace Jubilee.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 10.—Attorney general Griggs has notified the committee that he will come to the peace jubilee on December 14 and 15 with a party of New Jersey men, including Adjutant General William Stryker, Hon. William Hancock, state comptroller, and Colonel Oliphant, aid to General Stryker.

It is believed that the jubilee will surpass the celebrations held recently in the North and West, the signing of the treaty of peace making it the first real peace jubilee.

The ladies of Atlanta are taking an active part in the affair, and many receptions have been arranged for the ladies of the presidential party and other prominent women.

The Army and Navy League has sent out a number of invitations. Among the acceptances received is one from Miss Helen Gould.

Apartments for the president and the members of his party have been reserved at the Kimball.

The Anti-Scalping Bill.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—There is an excellent chance for the passage of the anti-scalping bill by this Congress.

It passed the House on Wednesday and went to the Senate Thursday, where, instead of being referred to a committee, it was laid on the vice president's desk.

The reason for this is that a similar bill has already been reported to the Senate by the interstate commerce committee of that body, and as it has a place on the calendar it can be called up and debated without losing the time in a committee.

If the bill passes the Senate the differences between the House and Senate bills can be fixed up in conference and then be soon accepted by both the branches.

Mr. Grace Dines Iglesias.

New York Dec. 10.—W. R. Grace on Thursday evening entertained at dinner a number of friends in honor of President Iglesias of Costa Rica, who is now sojourning in this country in search of health.

The affair, which was of a purely social nature, was held in the large private dining room of the Metropolitan Hotel.

There were about thirty covers laid, and all of the guests were seated at one big oval table. At the head of the board sat the host, at his right the guest of honor, and at his left Minister Calvo of Costa Rica.

Many prominent men were among the guests.

Federal Bankruptcy Law.

Milwaukee, Dec. 10.—Judge Seaman upholds the federal bankruptcy law and declares in an opinion that it divests the state courts entirely of jurisdiction in insolvency cases.

Judge Sutherland, of the superior court, held, a few days ago, that he had exclusive jurisdiction in insolvency proceedings commenced before him prior to the commencement of proceedings in the federal courts.

Judge Seaman declares that the state courts are absolutely without jurisdiction in such matters.

The Occupation of Cuba.

Havana, Dec. 10.—The United States transport Minnewaska arrived here yesterday and is now lying alongside the San Jose pier.

General Humphrey and his staff went on board of her soon after she reached this port.

The Spanish transport Forgas sailed for Santander, Spain, Thursday evening, with 1,487 Spanish troops aboard of her.

COMING EVENTS.

December 11—S. B. Frank, Jr., the Hebrew Christian, of Newark, will address the Y. M. C. A meeting at 4:15 p. m.

People are Forgetful.

We have not the slightest doubt but that when the eminent financiers who control the destinies of the Plainfield Street Railway Company hie themselves away to their downy beds every evening now they smile complacently and secretly congratulate themselves on the essence of truth contained in Puck's trite epigram: "What fools these mortals be."

Two months ago the people of Plainfield were wrought up to a point of indigantion over the proposition to grant an inestimably valuable franchise to that corporation for a slight and uncertain return in benefits. That indignation took form then and effectively stopped the deal that was not securing for the people the rights to which they were entitled.

With a somewhat dramatic finale the financiers withdrew from the field. Now, however, they have reluctantly (?) permitted certain enterprising citizens to stand sponsors for their application before the Common Council for a renewal of negotiations looking to the granting of the same franchise that they but a short time before rejected with "a ten thousand foot pole."

These trolley promoters are a sly lot. Their assumed reticence and disinclination to resume negotiations is but a plain subterfuge to gain that which they have been fairly defeated in once. They know full well the desire for trolley extensions. And from careful and experienced observation they also know how changeable and faltering are the people. It is a true but regrettable fact that the people forget easy, and that perhaps where a high state of indignation has existed once a few weeks will suffice to dispel all of it. The impatience of the merchants of Plainfield seems to be proving the salvation of the trolley capitalists in their attempts to get a highly prized public franchise.

The capitalists are seeing things coming their way because in a few short weeks the people have grown lethargic and apparently disinterested towards a proposed action of the Common Council that embodies practically the same effects that they rose up against in a vigorous manner a short time ago.

We have no desire to retard the extension of trolley facilities of the city, but we are very frank to say that a ninety-nine year franchise, subject to a readjustment in terms at the expiration of fifty and seventy five years, is a concession greater than the majority of Plainfielders will approve of.

The Consolidation.

After nearly four years of discussion and work on the part of those especially interested, the project of a Greater Plainfield seems in a fair way of coming to a question upon which everyone will have his share of determining whether or not it is to succeed.

The meeting of the consolidation committee of the city, borough and Board of Trade last night was important in the fact that Senator Reed rendered a report explaining definitely one phase of the consolidation talk, and also in the fact that resolutions were adopted which will result in the people voting on the project.

Senator Reed's rehearsal of the conditions that will prevail if the consolidation is effected without a change of county lines is clear and concise. He takes a rather dubious view of the situation of a Greater Plainfield in two seperate counties. He is right, however, in taking such a view. Were we one municipality in local government and two in county affairs we believe that it would not be a condition that would be conducive to peace of mind or an even-going administration of public affairs.

Even those who favor the consolidation without changing the county lines do so on the ground that it would stir up such a muss in local affairs that it would compel the changing of the county lines. But unless the consolidation can be accomplished without such friction it is best to leave the city and the borough remain as they are. As a matter of fact, who knows but that if the consolidation was accomplished without changing the county lines and the arrangement should not be satisfactory, that it might not result in the re-establishment of the borough on the other side of Green brook. Certainly, then it would be better to have never effected the consolidation.

The proposition of consolidating the city and borough upon a fair and satisfactory basis will be a serious problem. It will be one which will require diplomacy of a high degree, but if it can be secured without creating too much disturbance it will be warmly welcomed by the majority of both city and borough.

The Daily Press Calendar.

The Daily Press calendar this year, which will be delievered on Christmas, will be one of the most appropriate and prettiest that has ever been issued. It will bear the pictures of The Daily Press carrier boys grouped around Mr. Stout, the circulation manager, and what could be more appropriate and welcome to subscribers than to receive a gift that is not only serviceable every day in the year, but as well displays the face of the boy who faithfully leaves your favorite paper every afternoon.

And as for the beautiful part of it—well, you know what a healthy, cheery and admirable looking lot of lads constitute the carrier force of Plainfield's popular paper. They will be looking their best on Christmas day, too.

Incidentally, the latest corrected list of the fire-alarm boxes will be printed on the calendars as of yore.

Less than two months ago Councilman VanHerwerden publicly stated that he did not favor a franchise for the trolley company for a longer term than fifteen years. We understand that he now intends to vote for the ninety-nine year franchise. How can he adjust his present stand to the one he assumed so short a time ago.

The six days bicycle race ends tonight in New York. Tomorrow we may expect the usual half column editorial uttering scathing comment on the exhibition, which, however, will be topped off with a page, more or less, of fancy writing making the winners the prevailing heroes.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Commutation tickets on the trolley lines will be sold to the public whenever the steam railroads make a fight for the passenger traffic. The Pennsylvania Railroad has it in its power to control the bulk of the travel between here and Metuchen, and the Central road can take care of the traffic between Somerville, Bound Brook, Dunellen and Plainfield. What's to hinder the Pennsylvania and Central roads making a deal to reduce fares and run connecting trains between this city and Plainfield by way of Elizabeth, beating the trolley both in time and fare?—New Brunswick Home News.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Stretch Harris, of Lower Alloway Creek, Salem county, has a cat and dog that live together and hunt together. In long expeditions when the cat becomes tired the dog takes it by the nape of the neck and carries it home. While along the creek a few days ago this singular pair ran across a large snapper. The cat guarded the snapper while the dog ran to the house and summoned the children, who captured the loggerhead.

further hearing be postponed to next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. In the meantime the changes made by Mr. Riker will be properly fixed in the ordinance so that the latter can come before the Council in proper form.

In the regular order of business Mr. Newman moved that an electric light be placed on Rock avenue opposite the City Industrial Home. This was granted, after which the Council adjourned.

Miss Bowers, of New York, was the guest of Plainfield friends yesterday.

A LARGE store, a large experience and a large stock places us in a position to do the toy business of this community. Never before have the people of Plainfield been shown so great a variety of choice toys, selected for their attractiveness, durability and inexpensiveness. The time is now here for making your selections. Our stock is growing beautifully less day by day, and the crowds of shoppers are increasing accordingly We cannot impress upon you too strongly the importance of making your purchases now. Later on our facilities for promptly serving the rush of buyers will be greatly taxed. Not only so, but our stock will be greatly depleted.

Don't get the impression from all this that toys are the only Holiday goods we have to offer. Sensible fancy goods in variety are scattered throughout the various departments. New, original and exclusive.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

WOMEN VIEW SNAKES

HANDLE THEM IN A SURPRISING WAY AT THE SHOW.

Their Hereditary Repugnance for the Serpent Destroyed Apparently by Familiarity—Entertainment Provided by the Visitors.

The New York snake show as a wriggling rival of the horse show, made a record for itself. It was about the weirdist thing New York has seen in many a day. The snakes themselves were not so remarkable. Plenty of New Yorkers, who have occasional little snake shows of their own, have seen funnier specimens. But the exhibition at the Grand Central Palace didn't have to depend entirely on its reptiles. Women hate snakes and love horses, but they helped the snake show along with the same fervor they devoted to the Horse Show.

Some men, as before said, have grown so used to seeing queer snakes that plain common serpents, with no appendages excepting rattles, bore them. Anything less spicy than a green and violet specimen with a filbertigibbet head, sapphire wings and a fantail seems tame to their jaded appetites. These eccentric specimens are not uncommon in New York. But while plenty of men know a snake when they see it and even when they don't see it, not one man in a million has ever beheld his wife amiably juggling with the serpents he saw or with those he thought he saw. He had to go to the snake show in order to realize this vision. After he had seen his wife tickle the boa under the chin and heard her talk baby talk to the cannibal king, he wanted to ask some body to introduce him to her so that he could get acquainted all over again.

The hall where the exhibition was held suggested a warm summer day in Tophet. Thermometers were not provided, but any one especially anxious to be on the safe side would have guessed that the mercury would hustle up to 90 degrees without loss of time. The snakes liked it. The fifteen baby rattlers stood on their tip tails and stuck out their tongues in the friskiest kind of way. In the middle of the afternoon the big snakes got a live rat apiece and testified their appreciation of the favor by acting their prettiest. But the most interesting exhibit was the crowd. At first the men and women peered into the boxes saying "Ugh!" and "Oh, my!" and tapping on the glass to rouse the snakes inside. Pretty soon some woman says to Mr. Higby:

"What kind of a snake is that big one?"

"A boa constrictor."

"Oh, my! How long is he?"

"Eight feet. He is getting ready to shed his skin. That's the reason he's so dull."

"Oh, my! How can you tell when he is going to shed?"

"By his eyes," and Mr. Higby calmly opens the case, which contains the boa with four smaller snakes, slaps the others lightly in the face to make them keep away, and hauls out the great coils of the constrictor.

The crowd stares and when Mr. Higby lays the big snake on the floor the people edge respectfully away. The other day when the boa was put on the floor a man was standing at another case with his back to the crowd. The movement of the people back of him as they edged away in a circle made him turn around and brought him face to face with the constrictor, which was perfectly free. The man didn't make a sound, but plunged madly through the crowd, almost upsetting two or three men who happened to be in his road. Of course, everybody laughed and the man came back rather sheepishly.

An incident like this generally started the real show, and from that time some of the snakes were scarcely inside of their cases. Men and women walked about in the crowd with the serpents twined about their arms and necks, or holding one in a mass of knots among the fingers of one hand. It was the commonest thing to see a well dressed woman go up to a snake which some one was holding and stroke it with her bare hand.

"Did you ever touch a snake before now?" the reporter asked such a woman.

"No."

"Why do you now?"

"Well, if it won't hurt this man it won't hurt me."

"But how about the repugnance women are supposed to have for snakes?"

"Well, I was curious to know how it would feel, and I suppose my curiosity overcame my repugnance. Really it isn't unpleasant to touch them," closing her fingers around the snake and passing her hand up and down. "It's cold, but it is perfectly dry. I always had an idea they were slimy."

"Doesn't that beat all?" a man said as the woman turned away. "What gets into women, anyway? Why, I brought my wife and my little four-year-old boy here yesterday afternoon and inside of half an hour my wife was patting the boa on the head while my boy was pulling its tail."

The manager of the show stood around beaming placidly.

"This is the easiest show I ever had to run," he said. It just runs itself. Let some of the women play with the snakes and the men and the rest of the women stand around and watch, and it's all they ask. I hadn't any more idea that this was going to turn into a sort of free-for-all affair than I had that the snakes would grow feet and walk around the hall. The only trouble is to keep enough of the snakes in the boxes to have a few for people to look at that way. I've had to label the rattlers and copperheads 'Danger.' If I didn't, people would be inviting a Coroner's inquest by trying to pick the rattles off the tails for souvenirs.

"Well, I have one other trouble: that's so. You see, we have to give the snakes live rats to eat, and some people raised a howl about it. It is kind of pitiful to see one of the little fellows crouched down in a corner, his hair just standing on end, waiting to be made a meal of. But, you see, I'm between two fires. I've got to let the rats be killed and eaten by the snakes or I've got to let the snakes starve to death for lack of the rats. And there you are."

THE DEPARTMENT STORE OCTOPUS.

Book Dealers the First to Be Driven Out of Trade in the Metropolis.

The great revolution which the department store has made in the dry goods trade is indicated by the publication by one of the largest dry goods houses in New York of a bulky catalogue of books which it offers to its customers. This company, as is well known, has long been foremost among the great wholesale dry goods houses of the country.

A frontispiece in the fat octavo pamphlet is a photolithograph of the company's "publishing or book section," and it depicts a wareroom which in the size and the magnitude and multiplicity of its contents is exceeded by those few of the greatest publishing houses of the country. The preface to the catalogue announces that this company, only lately confined to the dry goods business, will supply "every book issued by any publisher."

This is a revolution which affects not merely the dry goods trade, but also and seriously the trade of the retail bookseller in all parts of the Union. It is practically driving him out of business, for the department store, with many varieties of goods from which to make a profit, has advantages over him with which he cannot compete. He complains that the department stores, as purchasers of great quantities of books, get special discounts from publishers, but that is inevitable. Such large buyers obtain them in every trade. The manufacturer, always eager to sell his wares, is ready to make concessions on purchases of so great magnitude, more especially when, as it is so often the case with the department stores, they are for cash. Moreover, the margin of profit a small and special dealer must charge in order to keep his head above water is not required by the great and miscellaneous dealer. This gives the department store peculiar advantages in the matter of books, for in their wholesale prices the discount from the nominal retail price is unusually large. If then, the large buyer obtains a further discount because of the magnitude of his orders, he can get his full average of profit even after cutting prices considerably below the list prices advertised by the publisher.

That a great dry goods house of wholesale supply should have made the distribution of books one of its most important features, suggests that the retail bookseller is likely to be utterly driven to the wall by this revolution and evolution of trade. It suggests also the fact that, because of the small profits now obtainable from dry goods alone, the large variety of wares offered by the department store has been made necessary for a dealer seeking anything approaching a large aggregate of profits.

A Blackbird's Strategy.

Most birds are very courageous, and when the young birds are threatened with danger, the old birds will do all in their power to aid and protect them. A lady who takes a great interest in birds and their doings, relates a touching story, which well illustrates this characteristic.

"Early one morning," she says, "I was called to the window by a great noise among the bird folk of the garden, and saw the following scene: A young blackbird was standing, fascinated by a cat, who was crouched under a bush ready to spring on him. An old blackbird, on a maple tree close by, was uttering loud and agitated cries, and there was a general chirping of anger and sympathy from other birds all around. After a few seconds the cat sprang on the young bird. At that instant the old bird came down on the cat. There was a moment's struggle, the bird beating her wings violently in the cat's face and pecking at her eyes. Then the cat jumped back to her bush, the young bird made off with long hops, and the old one flew up to the maple, amid a jubilant chorus of commendation, which lasted some minutes. I never saw this before, though I have seen a robin come quite close to a cat stalking another bird, and scold and flap his wings in her face."—Golden Days.

Merely a Matter of Yesterday.

Mr. Gladstone had such a good memory himself that he was inclined to be impatient with those who had not. At a dinner in London a few years ago he was sketching, to the delight of the company, a stirring scene in the House of Commons in the early forties. Lord Granville was a guest at the dinner, and was in the Commons at the time of the events to which Gladstone referred. "Did you take part in the division?" asked Mr. Gladstone of Lord Granville. "I'm sure I don't know," replied Lord Granville. "I can't remember whether I did or not." "Not remember," fairly shouted Gladstone, "why, it was only forty-eight years ago!"—Syracuse Standard.

SATIN ONE OF THE COMBINATIONS.

White Lace Arranged With Scarf Effect on the Bodice.

(By special arrangement with the N. Y. Sun.)

Certainly if variety is one of the charms of dress, then fashion has more than it usually has to recommend it this season. There are hardly two gowns alike in every detail, and fancy seems to range anywhere between a long redingote and a short jacket or a quite round waist. Bodices with plain backs are coming into favor again, and some of the models have the old-fashioned number of seams; but these are the rare exception as yet.

Satin matching the cloth in color is one of the season's combinations, the lower part of the skirt being entirely of the satin. One thing which is very evident in the detail of trimming and finish generally is that nothing except cream lace is so universally used as the black and white effects. This is especially true of red gowns, which almost invariably have some touch of this popular combination. A piping of black satin with one of white set close to it and a row of black braid sewn close to one of white are both effective ways of producing the desired result. A wide collar of white satin covered with lace, or of white cloth is very striking on red gowns and quite as stunning on black costumes. Rows of stitching are the usual finish for the cloth collars and the satin ones as well when no lace is used. In fact, stitching is the latest and most chic of all the modes of trimming without regard for the elegance of the material.

A dark heliotrope with a touch of pale blue in the trimming on the bodice is another fashionable combination. The use of pale blue, especially in miroir velvet, seems to be very general. Persian effects in embroidery are used on cloth gowns and satin waists alike, with charming effect in both cases. A very effective substitute is produced by rows of feather stitching outlining narrow white satin bands and dobe in crewels of different colors. The feather stitching is spread out in a sprawling fashion, each vine being outlined with a strong contrasting color. The Persian embroidery is a white silk waist is charming.

YOU'RE READING THIS?

CERTAINLY!

Well, Mr. Merchant-who-thinks-of-advertising, this is only one of the many corners in THE DAILY PRESS—it isn't the best located one, either; we can give you better—and if this attracts your attention in our endeavor to tell you how good advertising will get you a hearing before the purchasing public, doesn't common sense teach you that if you were having people reading your trade story instead of you're reading our argument about it, that it would be better for your business. THE DAILY PRESS reaches the purchasing public that makes the profits for the merchant.

We can give you big or little space—but in advertising it is'nt always economy to be sparing in your appropriation.

A SEARCH FOR SANTA CLAUS.

A bitter night—a squalid street—
A basement bleak and bare.
A hungry child with bleeding feet
Alone sat waiting there
All day amid the surging throng.
She'd wandered far and near—
All day had sung a feeble song
That none had paused to hear.

But as she sang she caught the name
Of Santa Claus, and how
On Christmas night he often came
To hungry children now.
And so she waited in the dark
For Santa Claus to come
Till in her breast the feeble spark
Of hope grew faint and numb.

She thought because she had no light
He failed to bring her share,
And crept at last into the night
To lead the good saint there.
And Christmas morning came, and lo!
Her dead face smiled, because
Amid a whirling drift of snow
Her little weary soul I know
Had found its Santa Claus.

ON CHRISTMAS EVE.

When the gate creaked that October night, Marion Hartley, wife of the unsuccessful author-playwright, was torturing her wits afresh for a way to secretly induce some theatrical manager to recognize her husband's genius. Her flush faded as she heard admitted a man with a slow voice and a deliberate step. Both were unpleasantly familiar.

"Good evening," he said, bowing studiously. Tall, broad and prefectly dressed, he possessed a face only spoiled by its expression. "Is he accessible? Ah, yes, I see his light in there. Afraid I must disturb his inspiration, then."

"Indeed? He is very busy," she simply said.

"Of course." He sat down. "Er—may I ask how the great play progresses?"

No answer. It had come back that morning for the fourth time—declined. She pretended to sew until the position grew unbearable, and then rose and tapped at the door of that inner room in which her husband spent more hours than she liked to total. No reply.

"Gilbert, dear, don't start," was whispered fearfully. He is here again—that Mr. Mainwaring. What shall"——

Why, he was not scribbling away feverishly. His head had fallen forward—asleep? When she touched him, he slowly roused to stare past her with eyes so dilated that she almost shrank.

"Gilbert, don't!" She was unconsciously on her knees now. "Oh, give it up, if it's killing you! I'll work, husband!"

"Eh? There! I was dreaming—my plot was just coming to me, and you—you disturb me so!" he said, putting her arms away. "If I lose grip of it this time, it—it—may mean madness! Marion, it was sublime! Only go away—do!

He found his pen and started. Awed, apprehensive, too, she hung there as though hesitating whether to obey or snatch his precious manuscript away. Finally she stole out and stood guard at his door.

"My husband cannot see you tonight."

"Oh, very good, madam! Half this house was furnished with the £100 he coolly borrowed through me—before I knew, of course. Sympathy means forbearance. As you don't want it, I'll sell him up now!"

"You—you will not!" She ran and caught his arm. "I did not know it. I simply say—if you but knew how he has slaved and tried! Let me tell you something. Wait—and his play will be accepted. Yes! To-night he has found his plot—the great idea he has missed for months. There!"

"Found his plot?" He stared incredulously, appearing to weigh the chances. "Bah! That was to have thrilled creation long ago. I will call once again next week, and then"—— He went out without finishing it.

In a sort of stupor Marion sat down and waited—waited hour after hour. Then at last Gilbert came groping out, one hand pressed to his head, his face haggard, but ecstatic. Not even her white and hopeless face struck his attention.

"Done it!" he gasped. "I was coming to wake you. They—they say that every man is capable of one stroke of genius. Listen to this—but the room seems—why, Marion, I—I"——

The manuscript fell. She realized something and sprang forward. He had swayed and then toppled down.

Twelve hours later found him in the heat of unmistakable delirium. And the play! It was lying neglected upon his study desk. Weeks would pass, the bluff old doctor said, before his sanity could return. It meant that the home must vanish, bit by bit—but what of that? Night and day she hovered over him. He had tried and failed. Only to save his reason! And then she would try, herself.

In the first excitement she quite forgot Mainwaring, and his last veiled threat, until, precisely seven days after his previous visit, the girl informed her that that gentleman and a "friend" were waiting in the sitting room. Both frightened and desperate, she went down as far as the doorway.

"He is ill," she said, her face a study in supplication. "He knows nothing—perhaps never will again."

"There!" Mainwaring's teeth snapped. "What did I say? A planned affair! My friend here wants his money—or some equivalent. There is the agreement. I stay until I see your husband."

Marion managed to get "Then you must stay" past the lump in her throat. Then she ran back and locked the bedroom door.

"They've gone, ma'am," came through the keyhole at last. "They mumbled away for a time, and then they were suddenly quiet. I think they were frightened. They almost crept out."

Marion, sitting back from Gilbert's wild stare, found temporary relief in a stream of tears.

The first gleam of sunshine came at the end of three awful weeks. Hartley, physically safe, could cross his bedroom. Only it terrified her to realize that he was but a living automation. Six weeks, and the mysterious stupor showed no signs of lifting. And when he crept down stairs again it was only to sit staring vacantly through the hours and Christmas was close at hand—dear, joyous Christmas!

"It's most strange," said the doctor, one day. "I've been thinking—what mild excitement would be likely to rouse him."

"Oh, the theatre—the play," she answered mechanically.

"Then take him. Here. There's a matinee advertised for to-morrow at the Jollity—some new and wonderful drama to be tried. The very thing!"

Gilbert, never seeming to wonder where the money came from, assented, and accordingly that next day, Christmas eve, found them both seated in the Jollity. If this failed—

The play commenced, but Marion herself had not come to be thrilled. holding her husband's hand tightly, she sat stealthily watching for a sign of dawning comprehension. In vain. During the first and second acts his expression remained all but lifeless. Suddenly, however, Marion almost cried out. His thin fingers had been quivering. Now, half way through the last act, they closed upon her own crushingly. The lights were low, but she could see his eyes dilating. Only too thankful that every one appeared engrossed by the play, she whisperingly implored:

"Try, try and keep calm, dear! It's nearly over."

"My plot—my play!" he said. "You—you have let them steal my brains!"

For the moment she was stupefied. Then, "Nonsense, dear," she whispered back. "It is safe."

"My very words," he gasped, not heeding. "Let me go. I've been robbed—robbed! I'll shout it all over the city!"

Then, indeed, she stared and tried to realize the play, but he was struggling past. There would be a scene. So, holding his hand still, she followed him out into the corridor. Before she could prevent it he had gripped an attendant's shoulder.

"Your manager—at once!" he breathed. "Your manager!" he repeated, as a swell of applause drowned the man's reply.

"The manager is in the box over there. What name shall I say?"

"Gilbert Hartley, the author of this play!"

They followed him 'round winding corridors an up to the door of a box. Two gentlemen were just emerging laughingly when the white-faced man and whiter-faced woman barred their way.

"I WROTE IT."

"Not yet! I demand," said Gilbert, pointing, "the identity of the man who writes himself the author of that play."

"Why," said one, coolly, "I happen to be the author. Anything amiss?"

"You!" Hartley, looking like one just risen from the grave, put out two working hands. "Come here! Look me in the face. I wrote it—almost as it stands. If my manuscript is gone you—have stolen it."

The finale was at hand. The audience, little dreaming of that side drama, sat spellbound. Then a crazy, unmistakable cheering rose to the roof.

"Author! Author!" went up. The situation was critical, the manager stupefied.

The "author," with Marion's wide, pleading eyes upon him, hesitated. Then he blurted out:

"No fraud at all! I bought that manuscript in a crude state from a man who claimed to have produced it. There is nothing discreditable——"

"His name?"

"I—I cannot give it. He was here just now. Prove that he stole it and I am willing to divide all——"

The cries for "Author" were growing deafening, when Marion gave that little scream of realization and said:

"He was here—Gilbert, look—Mainwaring! He came for his money that day! He stole the papers for spite thinking that you might never know. Deny that name if you can!" she finished breathlessly, staring into the other man's eyes.

"Madam, I can't." Swallowing a lump, he gripped Hartley's hand. "Sir, my reputation is at stake. I must appear with you as joint author, but I promise you two-thirds of all royalties."

* * * * *

The audience was upon its feet, staring about in wonderment when the curtain waved. Two men stood bowing in the footlight glow, and the foremost was Gilbert Hartley. Neither ventured a speech, and not a few people were puzzled afresh when next day a joint authorship was publicly announced, but the play itself was unanimously voted a thrilling success, and that was enough.

Enough—yes! Later that day, when the bells were pealing, Marion crept up behind her husband and placed a twisted sprig of holly upon his tired head.

"Laureled!" she whispered. "A little alliteration, dear—my king, my king, crowned on Christmas even!"

And Mainwaring? Well, they simply allowed him to slip into oblivion. A long way up the ladder of literary fame, and climbing still, Gilbert Hartley can easily afford to be merciful to the man who tried to topple him off the first rung.

His Thankfulness.

Askins—What makes you look so cheerful, Lanks?

Lanks (who boards)—Why, three of my fellow-boarders were taken suddenly ill while eating their Christmas dinners—one with a stroke of paralysis, another with heart disease, and the third with a fit.

"Great Scott! What cause for rejoicing is there in that?"

"Why, don't you see? I ate their share of the dinner, along with my own, and so managed to fully satisfy my appetite."

Reminder of an Old Custom.

Hundreds of old country people, especially of Irish birth, will remember the Christmas candle which is lighted and placed in the window at midnight of Christmas even and allowed to burn there on the successive nights until it is all consumed. It is one of the most interesting of all the customs associated with the religious celebration of the Christian festival. It is symbolic, of course, of the "Light of the World," but some hold that with the mistletoe, the holly and the festive practices of the season it goes back to Druid or pagan origin and is derived from some olden symbolism of the returning warmth of the sun. However this may be, it is not generally known that the custom has been preserved in Canada to this day by a few old country people, comparatively speaking, to whom Christmas would not bear its holy message without the tall wax candle shining in their window.

Christmas Flowers.

The Meteor rose is the favorite flower to go with holly, as its red is of much the same tint as that of the holly berry. Many person, however, do not stop to consider harmony of color and will combine orchids or any other flowers which they may fancy with the Christmas greens. But the latter always predominates in Christmas decorations, because these are intended to last throughout the entire week. Flowers, of course, would fade, but the inexpensive greens remain fresh.

Girls Limited to Dolls.

Girls are not ambitious in the matter of toys. Dolls, and all that go with them, constitute almost the only class of toys especially for girls. With all the other toys, excepting perhaps the animals, the idea of a boy is indelibly associated. And, while everything else in the line of toys has advanced, dolls have remained stationary. They are more elaborately dressed, of course, but they could roll and open and shut their eyes, and even say "Papa" and "Mama" years ago.

Most of the dolls, particularly the fine ones, are of foreign make—that is, in the flesh. When it comes to dressing them France and Germany stand aside for America. Over here we want our doll to appear neither clumsy, as the Germans dress her, nor flashy, as the French will have her.

Mistletoe and Holly.

Mistletoe is the most expensive of the decorations identified with Christmas, for the best mistletoe comes from England and France and has to be imported at considerable expense. The best holly comes from Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, and goes under the name of Virginia holly. Most of the Christmas trees come from the Berkshires and Maine.

HE GOT A LESSON IN SPANISH.

Chicago Student Who Mastered the Mystery of the "J."

One of the students of the University of Chicago went to a restaurant on Jackson street with two friends who had fought with the First regiment at Santiago. Naturally they talked of the war, and although the student showed considerable knowledge of the campaign, his pronunciation of Spanish proper names was bad. Invariably he gave the Spanish "J" its English sound.

His companions who were better posted on the Castilian tongue, stood it as long as they could, and finally one of them said: "See here, if you want to talk war with us you must pronounce those Spanish words as they should be. Say 'San Huan' and 'Montcho,' and remember that 'Hunta' is proper. Don't give the words the 'J' sound. There is no 'J.' It's pronounced 'H'—always."

"[illegible]," returned the student, [illegible] sneer of sarcasm, for he was [illegible]g angry. "Then I suppose your [illegible] is 'Hohn,' not 'John,' as it used to be before you went to Cuba; and perhaps you want me to tell you that this restaurant is on 'Hackson street.'

The derisive laugh that followed so angered the student that he leaped to his feet.

"I want you to understand," he shouted, "that I am a 'hentleman! Hump onto me, you hackasses and I'll show you this is no hoking matter. By the humping Herusalem, you haven't any more sense than a hackrabbit. If you insinuate that I'm a country hake, I'll break your haw. By Himiny, I'm going."

And the indignant student put on his hat and stalked out.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Brakemen as Amateur Oculists.

The ease with which brakemen on railroad trains remove from passengers' eyes cinders which fly into them every time the engine sends out a puff of smoke is a cause for comment. On a New York Central train running between here and Niagara Falls is a young man who is a genius as an oculist, and his services are in great demand. It is whispered among the train hands that his income is very largely increased through his ability to operate on passengers so afflicted, and that gratitude after the removal of the disturbing cinder is not measured and his largesse is real and in proportion to the pain borne by the sufferer.

A young man who wore the uniform of the New York Central service with whom the writer talked recently while on a train for Niagara Falls said that he was kept busy after the train had crossed the Harlem Bridge in removing cinders.

"They accumulate in the tunnel," he said, "and I always walk through the train after we leave the 138th street station and relieve the sufferers. By that time they have succeeded in rubbing the cinder into a bad corner and are ready for any kind of treatment. When I first went to railroading I discovered that it would be a good thing to know something about removing cinders, so I went to an oculist and took a course of lessons. As a result I am able to remove the most stubborn one without trouble or pain to the patient. Yes, I have earned the amount I paid the oculist for the lessons many times over."—New York Herald.

Wise Forethought of an Elephant.

One winter, at St. Louis, two elephants were stabled in an outhouse near the writer's rooms. One warm, bright day early in the spring one of these creatures was brought out into the alley behind the stable, in order that it might be given a bath. A horse attached to a loaded coal cart became frightened and ran at full speed down the alley toward the elephant. The latter heard the nois and saw the horse rushing toward him. He seemed to take in the situation at once; for, dropping to his knees, he drew in his trunk beneath his body, drew in his legs, and bowed his head. The horse, in his mad rush, ran completely over the elephant, dragging the heavy cart with him. Beyond a few slight scratches and bruises the elephant was uninjured. Had it not been for his wise foresight and his efficient method of self-protection, he might have been severely injured perhaps killed, by impact of the maddened horse and heavy cart. In this instance there was an undoubted manifestation of correlative ideation. The immediate adoption of the only efficient means of avoiding injury clearly demonstrates the truthfulness of this assertion, especially so since there was nothing instinctive in the action of the elephant. In a state of nature, elephants are not confined in narrow alleys, neither are they charged by runaway horses.

Story of Ben Butler.

An old friend of General Butler tells a new story of the soldier lawyer. According to it, toward the close of his career, when he ranked well toward the top of the bar for criminal cases, Butler was sent for by a prisoner charged with murder. Upon his arrival in the cell of the accused man, a distressing scene was enacted. The prisoner at once became hysterical and implored the lawyer's assistance. "General," he cried, "I want you to defend me. You must defend me. I'm in danger of being hanged, and I know you can get me off if anybody can." "Are you guilty or are you innocent?" calmly inquired the general. "Oh, I am innocent, entirely innocent," protested the prisoner with tears. "Then you don't need me," quietly responded General Butler, rising and reaching for his hat. "Innocent men are not hanged in Massachusetts. Good day, sir."

TO BE PUT TO A VOTE.

forced to the conclusion that consolidation without change of county lines is both impracticable and undesirable because it would secure but the shadow of the unity desired, and place the new community in a condition which must of necessity produce constant internal dissension and unrest. The cure would be worse than the disease.

A discussion of the report followed but the members of the committee could not fail to see that while they might have the form of a consolidation, the reality would not be unless the county lines were changed.

The necessity of starting an agitation in behalf of the movement was pointed out and several of the members thought that the best way to accomplish that was to introduce a bill into the next Legislature changing the county line so that both city and borough would be in either Somerset or Union county. This was strongly opposed on the ground that as yet there was no public exhibition of feeling in favor of consolidation and that consequently the Legislative representatives from all over the State, whose support might be secured if there was a united demand from the people, would be forced to take sides against it.

The committee was given to understand that at present Somerset county, outside of North Plainfield, was strongly opposed to consolidation in either of the two counties and that consequently the representives of that county in the Legislature would be forced to oppose it if an attempt was made now to get a bill through.

It was finally decided that it would be better to give the people a chance to express their opinion first. As a result, Mr. Saunders introduced the following resolution which was adopted:

Resolved, that a committee of three members be appointed by the chair for the purpose of submitting to the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield at the next election a proposition for the consolidation of the two municipalities and if such proposition is favorably received this committee is authorized to prepare a bill for submission to the Legislature.

Chairman Gilbert appointed S. St. John McCutchen, Wm. L. Saunders and Frank W. Runyon as the committee of three. They will also look after the formation of a literary bureau to bring before the people of city and borough the advantages of consolidation. It is understood that the proportion will be by changing the county line one way or the other.

WESTFIELD AVENUE REPORT.

Commission to Present it in Court in January.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, Dec. 10.—It had been arranged that the report of the commission appointed to condemn lands along Westfield avenue should be made before the court yesterday, but the programme was altered and a new date has been set. The report will now be presented at the first day of the January term.

The commissioners have had their report completed and ready for presentation to the court for several weeks. A day was arranged for its presentation several weeks ago, but Judge VanSyckel, to whom the report must be made, was unable to come to Elizabeth, and so postponed the time until today, but several days ago it was discovered that this would not be a very convenient day either for the Judge or some of the commissioners. Therefore the time was again postponed.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Music World.

Flushed with his triumphs won in Philadelphia last week, when he gave the initial performance on any stage of "Rupert of Hentzau," that talented young actor, James K. Hackett, will make his first appearance in this city as a star this evening. Mr. Hackett will be seen at Music Hall surrounded by the original company, scenery, costumes and auxiliaries which made "Rupert of Hentzau" such a very great success in the Quaker City. This play is by Anthony Hope, who also wrote "The Prisoner of Zenda," one of the greatest dramatic successes of modern times. "The Adventure of Lady Ursula," and is the author of the much discussed and celebrated "Dolly Dialogues." "Rupert of Hentzau" is in four acts and six scenes and it is not too much to say that it is fully as strong a drama as its predecessor, "The Prisoner of Renda." Mr. Hackett's fine presence, deep toned, and melodious voice, excellent physique and easy, graceful carriage, particularly fit him for the portrayal of romantic roles such as Rassendyll, the young Englishman in "Rupert of Hentzau." The role he plays is really a dual part for he also appears as King Rudolph V, of Ruritania. His leading lady is Katherine Grey, who will play Queen Flavia, and her work was greatly praised by the Philadelphia press, where the company appeared last week. Others in the cast who play important roles are Charles B. Pope, as Colonel Sapt; Arthur Hoops, as Rupert; Brigham Royce, as Fritz; Duncan Preston, as Bernenstein; George Allison, as Rischenheim; Sydney Price, as the Chancellor; E. W. Thomas, as Bauer; Longley Taylor, as the English servant; George W. Lynch, as Simon the King's chief huntsman; Edward Donnelly, as Herbert, the King's forester; Mabel Amber, as Rosa Holf; Gertrude Rivers, as Helga and Evelyn Carter as Mother Holf. The engagement will be for one night only.

* * * * * *

Two hours and a half of solid fun; two hours a a half of farce comedy, abounding in bright lines and comical situations; a comedy so liberally punctuated by the laughs of the audience that it is almost a mass of punctuation marks, and that's "What Happened to Jones." This farce by George H. Broadhurst is said to be a most pleasing surprise and will undoubtedly receive hearty welcome at Music Hall next Wednesday night. When Jones arrives on the scene and the things commence happening to him and they happen so fast and in so many unexpected ways, one's sides ache with laughter. There is a man with the uncommon cognomen of Jones, "Just Jones," as he says. He and the master of a certain residence, together with a young man affianced to the master's daughter, get into a scrape owing to the fact that they went to a prize fight. The three of them escape the police and seek refuge in the house of Goodly. The latter's brother, who is a bishop, is expected from Australia and a suit of new clothes has just come. In order to hide his identity Jones, with the consent of Goodly and his prospective son-in-law, dons the clerical garments and impersonates the bishop, taking all the liberties of a relative. Then the real bishop arrives on the scene and some more things happen to Jones.

PAID AT "TUNLAW" ACCORDING TO AGES.

Tea and Birthday Party Given by Miss Wilson.

TO AID REDEEMER CHURCH.

PROFITS TO INCREASE THE BUILDING FUND.

The Home of Mayor Wilson Made Resplendent With Choice Decorations, With Pink the Prevailing Color—Large Attendance of Guests, Many Being From Out of Town—Those Who Assisted.

One of the delightful social events of the season was the tea and birthday party given Saturday afternoon from 3 until 7 o'clock by Miss Minnie Wilson at her beautiful home, "Tunlaw," in the borough. It was very largely attended by people from this city and borough, as well as many out-of-town people, including many of the local clergy. In fact, nearly every church was represented.

The affair was given for the benefit of the Church of the Redeemer building fund, and from a financial and social standpoint it was in every particular a success. Miss Wilson arranged and gave the entire affair, and she had the assistance of many of the ladies from the Church of the Redeemer. The home was resplendent in choice decorations, the principle color being pink. The decorations consisted of nature's rarest and choicest flowers, arranged in a way that brought forth the admiration of everyone present. The same flowers that were used for decoration were sold during the set hours and a handsome profit was realized therefrom. Of course the greatest profit was realized from the receipt of the birthday sacks, in which the recipient had placed cents to represent as many years as they were old. These sacks were displayed after the money was removed and it presented a very pretty sight. It is thought that the receipts will be considerable over $100.

Miss Wilson received the guests and she was assisted by Mrs. W. M. Downey, wife of Rev. Mr. Downey, rector of the church. Everyone present remarked the entire absence of formality, and the hospitality of the hostess was proverbial.

Those who poured tea and bouillon were Mrs. Maurice Audsley and Mrs. Frank Rowley, while those in the dining room included Miss Barlow, Miss Moore, Miss Edith Clapp, Miss Faber, Miss Dora Waring, Miss Phillips, Miss May Audsley, of the borough, and Miss Wisner, of Brooklyn. The very handsome flower booth was in charge of Miss Helen Phillips, and the supply of flowers was entirely exhausted.

The money received will be added to the church building fund which at present is assuming large proportions. The lot upon which the church will be erected has been secured and paid for, and before the edifice is started a goodly sum is desired. That amount is rapidly being reached and before a great while the work of erecting the new church will be started. These teas will be continued during the winter at frequent intervals.

Accused of Attacking Shrager.

John Lines was arraigned before City Judge Stillman this morning charged with being one of the gang that attacked John Shrager, the Madison avenue tailor, the evening of Saturday, Nov. 19th. Lines admitted he was there, but his father demanded a trial for the lad. Lines was held in $100 bail, which was furnished by his father.

Bachelors' Club Disbands.

The Bachelors' Club, an organization of young men of this city, has been dissolved by mutual consent of its members. It was the custom to meet weekly and play whist. Several of the members have left town, others have lost interest and it was deemed best to give up the whole affair.

THE TROLLEY EXTENSION

F. E. KINSMAN WRITES SHARPLY ON THE SUBJECT.

He Says That He is Unable to Criticize the Proposed Ordinance in Detail Because of No Definite Information.

To the Editor of The Daily Press.—It is with great reluctance that I again feel compelled to take up the question of the extension of the Plainfield street railway. One of my personal friends said to me: "Why do you oppose it any longer? The Council have made up their minds to pass the ordinance and you are simply running your head against a stone wall." The Council alone can say whether he was right or wrong; as to my head, I will take care of that. There is not the slightest doubt but that I am running up against one of the shrewdest promoters in the State, but as far as promoters are concerned I have no fear. I run up against more or less of them almost every day. They are as numerous and as musical as the Jersey mosquito, and like that product of nature, the large majority are after the life blood of its sleeping victim. The streets of any city and town are the arteries, and that which passes through them is the life blood of the community.

Gentlemen of the Council, keep control of your arteries, keep your fingers on the pulse, that you may regulate its ebb and flow. Unfortunately, I am unable to criticize the proposed ordinance in detail for the reason that so much of the Council's time was spent in private interview with the chief promoter of the extension plan at the last public hearing, that the hour got so late, and the pressure of other business before that special meeting of the Council was so great that I was ruled out of order when I arose to ask when and where the public could see the ordinance upon which we are supposed to form an opinion and if possible express our views tonight. I sincerely hope that Mr. Riker and his brother will come out in the open, and give their reasons for being so quickly and profoundly impressed with the importance and wishes of the Board of Trade. I feel confident that the kind-hearted and indulgent people of Plainfield will forgive them if they should make more terrible threats provided they will repent when asked to by the Board of Trade.

F. E. Kinsman.

CONDE DIDN'T COME.

But His Dusky Acquaintances Did and Were Fined by Judge Stillman.

Patrolman Totten arrested two colored women and a white man Saturday evening for being disorderly on Front street. They were afterwards released by Sergeant Kiely to appear this morning before City Judge Stillman. The colored women, Mary Walker and Annie Parker, were arraigned this morning. Jacob Conde, of Manson place, failed to appear.

The circumstances were told and the Judge found both women guilty according to their own statement. He offered them their choice between a fine of $3 or ten days in the county jail. Both said they had no money.

Funeral of Miss French.

The funeral services of the late Miss Adelia H. French were held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Bird, on Park avenue. Rev. Dr. Yerkes officiated and spoke eloquent words concerning the exemplary Christian life of the departed. During the service Mrs. J. H. Manley sang impressively "Rock of Ages," and "Lead Kindly Light." The interment was in Hillside Cemetery and those who acted as pall-bearers were C. Frank French, N. W. French, Morgan Bird and L. E. Hart.

In Charge at Washingtonville.

Miss Florence G. Hawkins, president of the Local Union Christian Endeavor, and Thomas A. Cuming, took charge of the service at the Washingtonville Memorial chapel last night. Miss Hawkins delivered a fine address, and Mr. Cuming sang two solos.

NEW CITY OFFICERS TAKE OATH OF OFFICE.

Were Sworn in by Mayor Fisk Saturday Afternoon.

HIS HONOR WAS FACETIOUS.

GAVE EACH ONE OF THEM A KINDLY WORD AT THE TIME.

All the Officers-elect, Except Mr. Rockfellow, Were on Hand—The Latter Had Taken Oath of Office a Few Days Before—Thirty-third Time That Constable Moffett Has Taken Oath of Office.

Mayor Fisk's office on Park avenue was an interesting place to be last Saturday afternoon when all of the new city officials presented themselves before him to take the oath of office. All appeared except Mayor-elect Rockfellow, who took the oath last week. As each one appeared and went through the form His Honor had a pleasant word to say. The first to take the oath was Collector James A. Martin, and after him the following appeared: Councilmen R. I. Tolles, George P. Mellick, Frank H. Smith, B. Frank Coriell; School Commissioner W. R. Richards; City Judge Wm. N. Runyon; Justices of the Peace J. E. Mosher, Adam Young, John Naegel, H. C. Corsa; Constables John Gjetleesen, Amos Moffett, P. V. Weaver and John Sheehan.

The Mayor extended to each a hearty handshake and stated that it afforded him great pleasure to perform the deed that installed them into office. Constable Amos Moffett was sworn in for the thirty-third time.

Justice of the Peace John Naegel informed the Mayor that he had not tried a case since he first took the office, but was hoping that things would come his way soon.

The Mayor told Constable Weaver that he was pleased to swear in a good-looking member of the Citizens' ticket. And so on through the list everyone was congratulated by the Mayor.

Many of the officials sworn in expressed regrets that Mr. Fisk was not going to remain in office to look after the city as he has in the past. The Mayor thanked all for their kind expressions and stated that he would be pleased to watch the doings of the officials from the outside.

SEVEN YEARS HERE.

Anniversary of Seventh-Day Baptist Endeavor Society.

The seventh anniversary of the organization of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church was observed Saturday morning with appropriate exercises. The service took the place of the regular morning service in the church. Miss Luella Clawson, president of the society, presided.

The report of the secretary, Asa Randolph, was read by him giving an interesting sketch of the year's work. He showed that in the seven years of life, the society had contributed over $1,400 toward missionary and tract work. There are now 72 active members, a net increase of 4 over last year. The entire increase amounted to 14. The society is educating a girl at Alfred University and contributing toward Salem College.

The report of the junior superintendent, Orra Rogers, showed that there were 35 children in the junior society from 27 families.

The address was made by Rev. Geo. B. Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church in New York. His subject was "The Bible From a Literary Point of View."

SAY HE ABUSES HIS WIFE.

Serious Charge Made Against a Man in the Borough.

George Benson, of the borough, was arrested last Saturday by Marshal Wise on a complaint made by his brother-in-law, Frank Hull, a former night-watchman. The complaint charges that Benson ill-treated his wife Thursday last. In default of bail Benson was confined in the borough lockup until yesterday morning, when Councilman Woolston, for whom Benson works, furnished bail for his release to appear for trial this morning 9 o'clock.

This morning when Benson was arraigned before Recorder Long he pleaded non vult and asked for time to secure a lawyer. This concession was granted and Lawyer Frank Blatz was employed. Mr. Woolston continued as bondsman, and the trial was set down for this afternoon.

Daniel C. Main, student in Hahnemann Medical College, Philadelphia, has gone there today to take some examinations in the hope of keeping up with his class, notwithstanding his absence while in the army.

M'CUE IS A SPRINTER

CAPTURED JACK FILMORE AFTER A LIVELY CHASE.

He First Ran the Unlucky Young Man Through Green Brook—Filmore Was Troubling His Wife, 'Tis Said.

John Filmore, commonly known as "Jack," learned two facts yesterday. Experience was his teacher. He discovered that the water of Green brook were a trifle chilly at this time of the year and he also made the discovery that Patrolman Tom McCue is a sprinter.

Jack went out yesterday afternoon. His wife and his mother in law say he was drunk and Jack admits the fact. He claims his wife sent for him. Now Filmore and his wife don't live together. She abides with her mother, Mrs. Veremule, in the little cottage on Watchung avenue, between the mill race and the Green brook. He boards wherever he can.

He went to the house yesterday afternoon and demanded admittance. His mother-in-law met him and told him to go away. Then Jack forgot himself and made insulting remarks about his wife. His abuse grew so vile that his wife slipped out and went for Patrolman McCue.

When Jack sighted the bluecoat he departed hurriedly. He went in the opposite direction without much regard to where it led him. Green brook happened to be in his path and he waded through. That took him into Somerset county, a free but chilly man.

Half an hour later McCue saw him go into Margentino's store on Park avenue to warm up. McCue followed. Jack departed by the back door with the officer in pursuit. They ran through Tier's alley into Park avenue and thence to Front street. Jack ran fast, but the policeman ran faster and won the race.

After hearing the story Judge Stillman fined Filmore $5, with the privilege of taking ten days in jail.

TO VISIT PALESTINE.

DR. RICHARDS TO JOURNEY THROUGH THE HOLY LAND.

He Will Accompany the Tour Being Arranged by A. V. D. Honeyman—Several Other Notables to Join Party.

Rev. William R. Richards, D. D., pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church of this city, has received the unanimous consent of his church session to take a three months' vacation next spring to visit the Holy Land. The session heard that the doctor had a desire to go at some time in the future, and of their own accord met last week and passed the resolution named above. They expressed themselves as greatly gratified that he thought of visiting Palestine, because the impressions he would bring back would serve to enrich his sermons for a long time in the future. The doctor expects to go with the party conducted by A. V. D. Honeyman, of this city, who is a member of his congregation.

Mr. Honeyman, on being interviewed this morning as to the prospects of his Palestine excursion and who otherwise were going, stated that the party already numbered fifteen and would not exceed twenty, that being a convenient number to handle in Oriental countries. Rev. T. E. Davis, the well-known Christian Endeavorer, of Bound Brook, has announced to his people that he is to be one of the party and so he may be named, but otherwise Mr. Honeyman said that he was "not permitted to publish names, some people not liking it. It is enough to say that there will be two ex Judges, several clergymen, several business men and at least ten bright, intelligent ladies. We go to see the most possible in three months and expect to take along a library of fifty books, have the best obtainable couriers and give plenty of time to Greece and to Egypt as to Palestine."

The party will start February 25th and will visit Southern Italy, spend a week in Greece, and there will be a side trip to Constantinople. The three weeks in the Holy Land will include Easter Sunday at Jerusalem and a regular caravan trip through that country from north to south. They will then spend two weeks in Egypt and the following two weeks in Italy, reaching home May 31st.

Arcanumites to Have a Good Time.

Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, will meet tonight at 7:30. It is expected this will be the best meeting of the year. The grand regent and staff will be present. There will be vocal and instrumental music and election of officers. Wm. N. Runyon and others will sing, and at the close of the evening refreshments will be served.

—Peck's store will be open evenings until Christmas.

REED TO WIELD GAVEL IN THE STATE SENATE.

Senator Ketcham, of Essex, Out of the Race.

JOHNSON TO BE LEADER.

BERGEN COUNTY MAN WILL BE IN LINE FOR PROMOTION.

It is Understood in State Political Circles That Senator Reed Will Be Out of the Senate After the Next Session—Senator Johnson Would Then Be the Logical President at Next Session.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 12—The Presidency of the Senate being the only bone of contention of any consequence, the Republican politicians feel out of their element because they have nothing else to talk about. The contest for that office now lies between Senators Johnson and Reed, the prevailing opinion being that Senator Ketcham is virtually out of the race.

The Republican Senators, while they are willing to listen to the advice of the leaders of their party and do whatever is deemed necessary to promote its interests, yet with regard to the Senate office in question they do not see any good reason why they should forego their personal choice and vote for a presiding officer at the dictation of one county alone. In other words, they do not care to be coerced into voting for a man, no matter how qualified he may be for the office, when no special political purpose is to be served, and when their personal inclinations are for another. It is not that they dislike Senator Ketcham at all that they oppose him, but they prefer either Mr. Reed or Mr. Johnson.

It would seem that so far Mr. Reed has the call. He is about to enter upon the last year of his term, and his friends say he will not be a candidate for re-election. This, then, perhaps would be his last chance to become President of the Senate. Mr. Johnson is about to enter upon a new term of three years, and by withdrawing from the present contest an understanding could be arrived at by which he could get the office in 1900. Probably such an arrangement may meet with favorable consideration.

THE ELDER BROTHER.

Second of Series of Sermons to Young Men at Hope Chapel.

The second of the special sermons to young men was preached at Hope chapel last evening by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel. His sermon was on "Jesus and the Brotherhood of Man. Our Elder Brother." His text was from Genesis 37:27, "For He is Our Brother in the Flesh."

He pointed out that Christ came on earth and became human and went through all the temptations that the rest of man has to meet. He further spoke on the principles that Christ expounded and how nothing would now meet with success unless it contained those same principles. The instruction to love your enemies, he pointed out, was illustrated in the recent war with Spain when the wounded and prisoners were humanely treated instead of being murdered as in conflicts in past centuries. He spoke of various organizations and said that they which lacked the principles of Christ had not and never would succeed. He talked of communism and pointed out that it had selfishness at its very root which would prevent its ever being successful. He closed with an appeal to follow closer in the steps of "The Elder Brother."

DR. BONDY ARRESTED AGAIN.

Accused of Fraud in Connection With a Chattel Mortgage.

The authorities at Bayonne sent a warrant here Saturday for the arrest of Dr. Bondy on a charge of fraud in connection with a chattel mortgage. Chief Grant and Roundsman Flynn arrested the doctor late in the evening at the home of Mrs. Huffman, of Terril road. He was arraigned before Justice Nash who held him in $500 bail for his appearance in Bayonne.

Chief Grant and Justice Nash, when seen this morning, did not recollect the name of the party who makes the complaint but he lives in Bayonne. The doctor is charged with giving a chattle mortgage on his belongings when there was already a mortgage on them for their full value. The prisoner was just released from the Jersey City jail after having settled up accounts with John Keely, J. A. Blatz, Robert Guttridge and others whom he bunconed out of money during the past few months and now is in difficulty again.

JENKINS DIDN'T HIT HIM.

IF HE HAD, THE CITY JUDGE WOULDN'T HAVE BEEN NEEDED.

Pugnacious Little Charlie Wyett Objected to His Wife Sitting at Table With Another Man—Trouble Followed.

The Wyetts celebrated their wedding anniversary in the City Court this morning. Six years have they been married, and it is now decidedly evident that marriage in their case, at least, has proved a dismal failure. It was the conclusion of a little drama in which Charles Wyett and his dusky spouse and one tall and powerful Sherman Jenkins were in the leading parts. It happened thuswise.

Wyett works at Aller's restaurant, Newark, and has been coming home every two weeks. On each and every occasion, there has been trouble before he departed.

"It isn't the drink alone," his wife told Judge Stillman. "But it's the devil that's in him."

Sherman Jenkins is a large and sturdy son of Ham who is employed by T. J. Carey. He has been boarding at the home of Mrs. Ceasar Peterson, of 507 East Sixth street. Mrs. Peterson's daughter, Mrs. Wyett, lives with her. After working late Saturday afternoon, Sherman came to the house and began a substantial meal. Mrs. Wyett sat at the table with him.

Wyett is rather tiny but with a wildly ferocious moustache that might awe a lesser man than Jenkins. He entered and demanded to know why this was. Jenkings despatched a large potato and paid no attention. Then the irate husband began to swear. Still Jenkins' eyes were riveted on his plate. Then Wyett waved his hands about and in the face of the diner. His actions grew so unpleasant that Jenkins finally rose in his seat and gave Wyett a push. He finally removed the husband from the room.

"If I'd hit him once, Judge," remarked Jenkins, "there wouldn't have been any need of you." The Judge fined Wyett $5.

"Why can't he stay away and leave me be?" exclaimed the wife. "I don't want him." Then the Judge exclaimed that he didn't have anything to do with that.

LAST NIGHT OF THE FAIR.

Sons of Veterans End a Successful Week's Event.

The last of the fair which has been conducted by the Sons of Veterans during the past week, was seen Saturday night when the bazaar closed with a grand sale of everything left, and a general cleaning out of the hall. The attendance was very large, and the weather having been so favorable to them all the week it is estimated that the proceeds will amount to $250.

Saturday night ended the contests, too, and the prize winners carried away the prizes. The contests were for collecting money, and George Wilson received the camera outfit. Miss Emma Naylor won the gold watch, but Miss Porter was such a close second that the committee decided to reward her in some way, and gave her a silver watch.

John Higgins, of the West End Hose Company, ran against Charles Smith, of Plainfield, for the fireman's hat and won it. Miss Maggie Kennedy won the gold watch chain. It is to the efforts of these workers that the amount raised is so large.

AT HOME TO CONGREGATION.

Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Main Entertained Their Parishoners.

Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Main gave a charming "at home" to the congregation of the Seventh Day Baptist church Saturday evening from 7 to 11 o'clock at their home on Central avenue. They were assisted in receiving by Rev. and Mrs. George B. Shaw, of New York.

The affair was very largely attended by the people of the congregation. Tea and wafers were served under the direction of the Misses May Tomlinson, Ida Randolph, Ida Spicer, Ernestine Smith, Elizabeth Allis and Mabel Maxson. They were assisted by the Misses Bessie F. Randolph, Mertie Randolph, Ethel Titsworth, Ethel Williams and May Ross; and J. Stanley Mosher, Harry Rogers, Frank Maxson and George Main.

A phonograph, under the charge of W. H. Rogers, entertained for part of the evening.

Epidemic in the Schools.

For several weeks past there has been a skin disease of a contagious nature prevalent among the pupils attending the public schools. It generally broke out on the hands or face, though sometimes it appeared all over the body. The medical name for it is impetigo. Local physicians say that it is dying out now.

—VanEmburgh & Son have a phonograph in their store to entertain the customers and clerks.

CHANGES THAT OCCUR WITH CITY FATHERS

Record of the Council Members That Will Retire.

CORIELL FOR PRESIDENT.

COUNILMAN-ELECT FROM THIRD WARD WILL PROBABLY PRESIDE.

Mr. Barrows Does Not Care to Occupy the Chair, as He is Inclined to be too Aggressive on the Floor—Caucus of Republicans With Mayor Will Shortly be Held—Mr. Andrews May Resign.

Regarding the Common Council for 1898 there are some interesting features. Those of the present Council that hold over include Messrs. Barrows, Andrews, VanHerwerden, Hetfield, Homan, Liefke and Buckle, while President Baker and Councilmen Newman, Moffett and Runyon go out. Mr. Baker has served but one term in the Council, but he has made an excellent presiding officer. His decisions have in general been accurate and he has not allowed the members on the floor to get too far away from the business to be transacted.

Councilman Runyon has served but two terms, but he has made a good record in the various departments that has engaged his attention. He has closely attended to business and by faithfully looking after everything that has come under his observation he has gained a deal of experience that will guide him in no small measures as City Judge, for he will know much of the work that engages the attention of the Council and City Judge. As for Mr. Moffett, he has been a faithful attendant at all meetings and has attended to his duties. He has tried to serve the city well and conscientiously. Mr. Moffett has served the Council several terms, but will now probably retire permanently from the political field.

Mr. Newman has served two years, and while his duties have not been great, he has looked after everything that has been given him and has been a good city father.

The new Council will be composed of the following persons: Messrs. Andrews, Barrows, Homan, Van Herwerden, Liefke, Buckle, Tolles, Smith, Mellick, Coriell and Hetfield. The chances are strongly in favor of B. Frank Coriell being the president of the new Council. He has served the city and Council before in such a capacity and is fully acquainted with the duties of a presiding officer. Mr. Barrows has been suggested for the presidency, but his aggressiveness will hardly permit him to accept. He has been somewhat of a leader on the floor and it is thought that he will prefer to stay there.

By the change in the Council the entire fire committee retires. Who will compose that committee next year it is hard to tell. There will be good material to draw from and no doubt every committee will be an efficient one. Sometime during this month there will be a caucus of the new Mayor and Council to prepare for next year's work so far as the arrangement of the committees are concerned.

It would not be surprising to the friends of Mr. Andrews if he should resign from the Council during the coming year. He has threatened several times this year to retire, but has been prevailed upon to continue. He is likely, however, to retire early in 1899.

JUDGE STILLMAN ON THE BENCH.

Had His First Active Work in the City Court This Morning.

City Judge William M. Stillman, who was appointed to fill the unexpired term of the late Judge DeMeza, had his first active work this morning in the City Court. City Judge-elect W. N. Runyon was also present and was given a place on the bench where he could see how it was done.

Judge Stillman had quite a batch of offenders on which he had to pass sentence. None of the cases were particularly aggravated and no serious punishment was meted out. Judge Stillman has had practice on the local bench before so the routine of the court was not new to him.

Lacerated Her Scalp.

Last Saturday evening Helen Wooley, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Wooley, of West Front street, fell down at the corner of Front and Grove streets and received a severe laceration of the scalp. She was taken to the office of Dr. Adams, where proper treatment was given. The doctor was obliged to take several stitches in the cut. Although the little one suffers much pain, the injury is not a serious one and will heal in a short time.

A POPULAR MISTAKE

Regarding Remedies for Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

The National disease of Americans is indigestion or in its chronic form, dyspepsia, and for the very reason that it is so common many people neglect taking proper treatment for what they consider trifling stomach trouble, when as a matter of fact, indigestion lays the foundation for many incurable diseases. No person with a vigorous, healthy stomach will fall a victim to consumption. Many kidney diseases and heart troubles date their beginning from poor digestion; thin, nervous people are really so because their stomachs are out of gear; weary, languid faded out women owe their condition to imperfect digestion.

When nearly every person you meet is afflicted with weak digestion it is not surprising that nearly every secret patent medicine on the market claims to be a cure for dyspepsia, as well as a score of other troubles, when in fact, as Dr. Worthier says, there is but one genuine dyspepsia cure which is perfectly safe and reliable, and moreover, this remedy is not a patent medicine, but is a scientific combination of pure pepsin (free from animal matter,) vegetable essences, fruit salts and bismuth. It is sold by druggists under name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. No extravagant claims are made for them, but for indigestion or any stomach trouble Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are far ahead of any remedy yet discovered. They act on the food eaten, no dieting is necessary, simply eat all the wholesome food you want and these tablets will digest it. A cure results, because all the stomach needs is a rest, which Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give by doing the work of digestion.

Druggists sell these tablets at 50c per package. Circulars and testimonials sent free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. 12 12 14-16

FEDERATION OF LABOR

Some Big Problems Awaiting Settlement at Kansas City.

GATHERING OPENS TO-DAY

A Resolution Will be Introduced to Abolish the Employment of Women by the Government; Also One Requiring Overpay from Excess of Eight Hours Labor in Navy Yards and Arsenals.

Kansas City, Dec. 12.—At Kansas City to-day the American Federation of Labor, the greatest organization the workingmen of America have, meets in annual gathering. It moreover promises to be an exceedingly lively gathering, for the recent trouble in connection with the lapsing of the miners has aroused much opposition to all the officers.

James O'Connell, president of the Machinists' Union, and D. Douglass Wilson, editor of the Chicago Federation organ, will contest for the office of the presidency with the incumbent, Sampel Gompers.

Among other resolutions to be introduced is one stating that woman is physically incapable of continual manual labor without injuring herself, and eventually coming generations, and that her rightful place is the home for which she is intended and best adapted. The convention will be asked to draft a bill to be introduced into congress to remove all women in the employ of the government, and thereby inaugurate a precedent for the removal of women from the every day walks of life and relegate her to the home.

FRANK MORRISON, SECRETARY.

In view of the many labor laws that have been decided as unconstitutional by the courts, the barbers will ask the convention to draft a bill for Congress and also for state legislatures to the effect that all bills on their introduction to a legislature should be referred to the supreme court of the United States or of the state to determine as to their constitutionality before action is taken by the legislative body.

The National Steel and Copper Plate Printers' Union will demand that all United States paper money, securities, notes, bonds, checks and revenue stamps shall be printed in the highest style of the art of plate printing from hand roller presses, so as to secure the government and the public against loss by wear and by counterfeiting.

The International Association of Machinists has a resolution to ask the United States government to allow extra pay to all employes who have worked over eight hours a day in navy yards and arsenals.

The silver men will also try to influence the convention in its favor. The Federal Union of Ouray, Colorado, will introduce a resolution stating that the world wide attempt of the money power to fasten the single gold standard of currency upon the people of all nations has proved disastrous in practice and unwise in theory, and has been inimical to the producing classes, and demanding that the United States shall no longer be a party to the conspiracy of the wealthy classes, but return without delay to the just and equitable standard adopted by the founders of the government.

JAMES O'CONNEL, CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT.

William Thorne of the Gasmen's Union, and general secretary of the National Union of Gasworkers and General Laborers of Great Britain, and Ireland, accompanied by William Inslip of the Boot and Shoe Makers' Union of England, are delegates to the convention. Thorne comes to this country as the representative of 1,250,000 English trade unionists to urge the formation of an international union.

The threatened schism in the ranks of the Federation, brought about by the formation of the Western Federation of Labor, which contemplates the amalgamation of all unions west of the Mississippi river, also gives promise of causing the convention much worry.

A novel proposition submitted by one of the local unions provides for doing away with the boycott, and in its place to have all local unions levy a fine on members purchasing non-union made goods. It is claimed that in many cases the boycott is illegally used and used against those whom it should not be, and that this indiscriminate use has had a tendency to weaken the cause of organized labor. It is contended that the same ends could be reached by buying nothing but label goods, which would guarantee that they were the product of union labor.

THE CYCLE RACE ENDED.

Miller Wins Breaking the Six Day Record and Wede.

New York, December 12.—Charles W. Miller of Chicago won the great six-day bicycle race that closed at Madison Square Garden Saturday night at 1 P. M.

He not only won the race; he broke his own and the world's six-day record made by himself at the Garden last year, and won a bride as well, for he was married to Miss Genevieve Hanson, of Chicago, in Madison Square Garden yesterday in the presence of a great crowd.

Last year Miller rode 1,938 miles and 183 yards, doing practically no riding during the last six hours of the race.

In the race just finished he covered 2,007 wiles and 704 yards, and could easily have covered 2,025 miles or more. But he could not be beaten, he took matters easily yesterday. He even devoted one hour to getting married.

Thirty-one men started in the race and twelve finished. None of the twelve who finished changed his position on the score board yesterday. Eleven of them covered more than 1,500 miles.

The winner gets a prize of $1,500, with $200 added for breaking the record. Waller, the second man, who also has broken Miller's record of last year, gets a prize of $1,000.

The prize for the third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth men were $600, $400, $300, $200, $150 and $125, respectively.

All the racers left the track at 9 p. m., but returned at 9.50 p. m. to give the 10,000 persons present a chance to cheer them ten minutes before the contest officially closed.

Miller was in fine condition, all things considered, at the finish.

GEN. MILES BRINGS SUIT.

He and His Artist Remington Sue for Infringement of Their Copyright.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 12.—General Nelson A. Miles and Frederic Remington, the artist, have commenced suit in the United States circuit court against the Werner Company of Akron, Ohio, and Richard P. Marvin, receiver of that company, because of an alleged infringement of a copyright

General Miles says in the petition that he is the author of a book entitled "Personal Recollections of General Nelson A. Miles; or From New England to the Golden Gate," embracing the story of his Indian campaign and illustrated with pictures by Frederic Remington and other artists.

General Miles alleges that he secured a copyright of the book on March 4, 1897, and that the copyright included reproductions of original sketches by Remington, who had an equitable interest in the copyright.

Werner & Company had a contract to publish the book, but under the agreement the illustrations were to be used solely for that book.

The plaintiff alleged that the defendants have unlawfully published a volume under the title of "Remington's Frontier Sketches," which is an infringement upon the copyright, for the reason that the identical reproduction of Remington's sketches are reprinted in that book. Judge Ricks granted a temporary restraining order against Werner & Co.

Strange Flood in Brooklyn.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 12.—For several hours yesterday an area of twenty blocks in the Twenty-eighth ward in this city was inundated by raging waters, which washed out the foundations of houses, tore down trolley and telegraph poles, prisoned people in their houses and nearly drowned some who were caught by the flood.

Indeed three persons were rescued as if at sea, with life lines, and it is the opinion of the police and water works officials that had the flood come a few hours later some lives would surely have been sacrificed. The damage may reach $500,000.

The flood was caused by the bursting of a water main four feet in diameter at Court street and Central avenue.

The noise made by the rushing torrent was as great as that from a battery of big guns and jarred the houses for blocks around so that the window panes were broken.

The streets were swept by a flood that carried with it wagons, poles, uptown cobblestones, cellar doors and a miscellaneous mass of debris that the water gathered in its course.

For the first hour 1,500,000 gallons, it is estimated, rushed through the streets, and there was little diminution for three hours, when the pressure of the Ridgewood reservoir was withdrawn.

To Don Peace Paint.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—Admiral Dewey's warships and the warships of the North Atlantic squadron will be painted white in the next few weeks.

The discontinuance of the drab paint will cost the department about $75,000. Heretofore, when the paint was rubbed from a vessel's side the ship was retouched.

Under the present orders all retouching must be done with white paint, which will necessitate the repainting of the entire ship.

Van Wyck Resumes Law Pratice.

New York, Dec. 12.—Augustus Van Wyck, late Democratic candidate for governor, has resumed the practice of law at No. 149 Broadway, after fourteen years as supreme court judge in Kings county. Notices were sent to his friends Saturday.

His offices are on the sixth floor of the Singer building at the corner of Liberty street. He has three large rooms, handsomely appointed.

He declares that their circumstances are deplorable; that alarming destitution prevails along the whole coast line, and that prompt assistance is necessary to prevent wholesale starvation.

Suspected Murderer Caught.

Biddeford, Me., Dec. 12.—Detective John R. Saville of Boston has arrived in Saco, having in custody George B. Dreikin, who is charged with the murder of Ivory F. Boothby of North Saco on the night of Sept. 14.

PEACE TREATY SIGNED

Seventy-one Days Taken to Complete the Document.

IT CONTAINS 17 ARTICLES

The Ceremonies Attending the Signing of the Document Were Impressive. A Bitter Moment for the Spaniards. The Work of Engrossing Caused Delay.

Paris, Dec. 12.—The treaty of peace was signed at 8.45 p. m. Saturday.

It has seventeen articles, it having been found advisable to substitute two or three of the articles in the draft agreed upon at the last meeting.

The commissioners signed it in duplicate. Each copy has the English and Spanish text in parellel columns. The wording had been approved previously by the commissions without a joint meeting, so there was no controversy on that subject.

The document was prepared by Secretary Moore for the United States commission and by Senor Villaratia on account of the continued illness of Secretary Ojeda of Spain.

There was a great contest among the families and friends of the American commissioners for the pens with which the signatures to the treaty were written.

Some American envoys were provided with handsome pens bought for the purpose.

The Spaniards appeared to be unaffected by the souvenir craze and contented themselves with the ordinary quill pens strewn on the table.

Arthur Ferguson the interpreter of the American commission, asked Senor Montero Rios to give him his pen, saying:

"Have you any desire to preserve the pen with which you will sign?"

"Not in the slightest" said the Spaniard, with a courtly bow.

The Americans arrived at the foreign ministry at 3.30 p. m., the Spaniards reaching there half an hour later.

Senor Rios, president of the Spanish commission, bundled up in a fur coat, ascended the steps leaning on a cane.

The Americans shook hands with the Spaniards when the latter entered the conference hall, but the faces of the representatives of Spain were exceedingly solemn. Apparently they thought it a funereal occasion.

The treaty was laid before the commission in sections in the hands of the engrossers before it was completed.

After being photographed the commissioners listened to the reading of the treaty until 5.55, at which hour they took a recess until 7 p. m., while awaiting the last sections of the treaty.

The long afternoon session and the subsequent recess were due to the facts that each article had to be carefully read and compared in Spanish and English, and that the engrossing of the last article in Spanish was incomplete.

This finished, two copies were passed around the table, the commissioners signing them in the order of their rank.

Judge William R. Day, Senator Cushman K. Davis, Senator W. P. Frye, Mr. Whitelaw Reid and Senator George Gray; Senor Montero Rios, Senor Abarzuza, Senor Garnica, Senor Villarutia and General Cerero y Sanz—each commission signing its opponent's treaty. Both were tied with the Spanish and American colors.

When the seals were prepared to be affixed, attendants were sent scurrying for ribbons of the French tricolor, with which the documents were sealed as a compliment to the French hosts of the commissions.

Many officials interestedly watched every detail of the proceedings.

The last seal being impressed the commissioners rose and without formality each member shook the hands of all his antagonists and exchanged assurances of sincere personal esteem. The Spaniards afterwards commented acridly upon what they termed the bad taste of the Americans in mustering a crowd of attaches to gloat over the consummation of their downfall and to scramble for relics.

The signing was finished at 8.45. At that time the door of the chamber opened and Senor Villarutia appeared and exclaimed to a group of correspondents who were waiting in the corridor: "C'est fini."

The other members of the Spanish commission followed Senor Villarutia and hurried silently through the vestibule to their waiting carriages.

The American commissioners strolled out chatted complacently and as they descended the steps the lights in the chamber were darkened.

Sagasta's Fall Expected.

Madrid, Dec. 12.—The position of the cabinet is critical. The resignation of the ministry is expected now that the peace treaty is signed.

Commercial circles have discounted the cabinet's collapse owing to the dull state of business and the heavy taxation.

The Imparcial hopes the government will unreservedly approve of the energetic conduct of the Spanish commissioners, and adds:

"Other nations must not think we are thorough cowards and will accept all kinds of humiliations. We congratulate the Spanish commissioners on rendering a great service to the nation, which owes them deep gratitude."

A Milk Trust in Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—The Record says: The milk trust, with a capital stock of ten million dollars, is now an assured fact, and application will be made within ten days for articles of incorporation.

L. Z. Leiter and William C. Selpp are to be the largest stockholders, and each will be interested to the extent of $2,500,000.

"After milk has been sold for low prices until every rival has closed his shop and sold his wagons, the trust expects to regulate the price of milk on the price of butter.

It will then retail for five or six cents as the Elgin butter market may be up or down.

It is not yet decided whether Joseph Leiter or one of the Bowmans of the Bowman Dairy Company will be the manager.

TO TUNNEL A MOUNTAIN.

Coal Road Will be Built from the Lackawanna River to the Hudson.

Port Jervis, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Residents along the Delaware and Hudson canal who were depressed over the proposed abandonment of this coal carrying waterway, are encouraged by the news of the great railroad project of the Scranton, Honesdale and Eastern Railway to tunnel the Moosic mountain, a distance of one and three-quarter miles, and construct a coal road from the Lackawanna river to the Hudson.

The road will be 138 miles long and will be the only railroad the grades of which will permit the hauling of a long train of coal cars from the coal regions to theti de water or to the New England states without breaking bulk.

The road will be down grade all the way. It is proposed to reduce greatly the selling price of coal to dealers along the Hudson river, and all the towns along the route will be benefited by the cheaper rates and railroad facilities.

The Scranton, Honesdale and Eastern Railroad will have a capitalization of nine million dollars and is now being organized under the laws of Pennsylvania. The same corporation will organize under the laws of New ork state.

A contract for the construction of the Moosic tunnel has been given to a Chicago firm from specifications of the London Railway Construction Company, limited. The tunnel will be 8,-842 feet long and fourteen feet high, with a width of fourteen feet.

It is proposed to complete the tunnel within one year from January 1, 1899, for $421,730, being $65 per lineal foot.

Work will be commenced simultaneously at both ends. The number of workmen required will be four hundred. Twenty years ago the cost of such a tunnel would hove been $1,500,-000. The London Railway Construction Company will build the road.

TELEGRAPH LINES IN CUBA.

Gen. Greely Now Has a Large Force of Men Putting Up Wires.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—General Greely of the signal corps is preparing for a practical experiment in the government operation of the telegraph, and to this end Colonel Dunwoody, one of the most experienced and scientific officers in this branch of the service, has been ordered to Cuba to take charge of the extensive network of telegraph lines on the island.

He will leave next Wednesday and will make his headquarters at Havana. There are about two thousand miles of telegraph connecting the various main points to the island all owned by Spain and to be left behind when the evacuation is completed.

Eventually it is presumed these lines will belong to the Cuban government, but during the United States' military control of the island these two thousand miles of wire must be cared for and operated by the United States forces.

The regular force of the signal service will conduct the skilled work of operating the lines and Cubans employed on the rough work of repair and construction.

Several lines have been constructed in Santiago province and Pinar del Rio, and a detachment is now at work building a line from Puerto Principe to the coast. There are companies of signal service men at Santiago, Puerto Principe, Pinar del Rio and Havana, but this force will have to be considerably augmented when all the lines of the island come into the control of this government.

Big Tobacco Concern.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 12.—Articles of incorporation of the Continental Tobacco Company have been filed with the secretary of state in this city. The capital stock is $75,000,000, one-half of which is to be preferred with seven per cent. non-cumulative dividends, payable quarterly.

The company is authorized to cure leaf tobacco and manufacture tobacco in all its forms.

The incorporators are James B. Duke, Pierre Lorillard, Jr., John B. Cobb, Harrison J. Drummond, Mark Leopold, Frank R. Ray, Herbert L. Terrell, Oliver H. Payne, Thomas Atkinson, James B. Hughes, Paul Brown, Carel Doehroeffer, G. B. Schley and Oren Scott.

Late Saturday afternoon a meeting of the incorporators was held at Newark, N. J. The following officers were elected:

President—James B. Duke.
First vice president—Harrison I. Drummond.
Second Vice President—Frank H. Ray.
Third Vice President—Oren Scotten.
Treasurer—Pierrey Lorillard, Jr.
Secretary—David Kellar.

This is the outcome of the negotiations which opened last January for the amalgamation of the plug tobacco interests in this country.

New Yorkers Coming Home.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 12.—The latest instructions from the war department are that the New York regiment shall be transported to New York as a whole and not in battalions, as heretofore stated.

This will necessitate the postponement of the departure of the first battalion until the arrival of the balance of the regiment from Honolulu.

It will depend a great deal on the general health of the New orkers as to whether or not they will be sent home in time for Christmas.

A Battleship Damaged.

New York, Dec. 12.—The battleship Massachusetts, which left the navy yard for the Tompkinsville anchorage Saturday forenoon, prior to sailing for Hampton Roads, ran aground just off Governor's island and received injuries which not only necessitated her being towed back to the navy yard, but which will in all probability keep the vessel in dry dock for two or three months.

Still Another for Leiter.

New York, Dec. 2.—Joseph Leiter, by a deal completed Saturday, acquired complete control for foreign countries of the Hoadley-Knight compressed air patents, which were formerly owned by the International Air Power Company.

He is organizing an English syndicate and it is now almost completed.

A CANAL REPORT SOON

Nicaragua Commission to Submit Statement to the President.

ESTIMATE ON FOUR ROUTES

The Difficult Points in the Maritime Canal Company's Line Are to Be Avoided. The Work Can be Completed in Six Years.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—It is understood that the Nicaragua canal commission is preparing a preliminary report of its work, which it will submit to the president, probably in a few days.

This report will be immediately presented to Congress and will contain facts and figures which will be of great value in connection with the consideration of government aid for the proposed water way.

The report will submit estimates for four routes and canals with different numbers of locks. The variation in the route lies on the eastern side of the lake, it being necessary from the topographical character of the country to adopt the Maritime Canal Company's route from Brito to the lake, and through the lake to the San Juan river.

An important feature of the commission's report will be the recommendations it will make to avoid the Ochoa dam and San Francisco basin.

It will be recalled that the Ludlow board suggested that the Ochoa dam problem was the greatest that would be met, but in the opinion of members of the present commission the San Francisco basin contains much more serious difficulties.

The commission has, therefore, considered the practicability of avoiding the Ochoa dam and San Francisco basin, and has arrived at the conclusion that it would be cheaper or at least more advantageous to run the canal around Ochoa and the San Francisco basin, and thus avoid the dangers that exist at these two points.

The commission will find the canal practicable in all its details. Even the Ochoa dam and San Francisco divide can be crossed, though at heavy expense.

Estimates are submitted for a canal of thirty feet depth. No width is mentioned, but the canal in some places will be one hundred feet wide and in others it will be greater, dependent of course on the nature of the soil and the topography of the country through which it runs.

The commission will further find that the canal can be built in six years.

The final estimates as to cost have not yet been fully determined, but it is thought that the estimates on each of the four lines will not be less than $100,000,000, and will range above that figure considerably, though $115,000,000 is given as the mean.

Reinforcements for Dewey.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—Admiral Dewey's fleet will be strengthened shortly by the addition of some serviceable gunboats.

The Bennington, now at Honolulu, has been ordered to proceed to Guam in the Ladrone group and make a survey of the harbor with a view to the establishment there of a naval station. This done, she will join Dewey's fleet. By that time, or before the Helena will have arrived at Manila, and the Concord and the Petrel, now cruising around in Chinese waters, will have returned, and altogether the Admiral will have a sufficient force of small vessels under his command to carry out the president's policy respecting the Philippines, and to bring into submission any of the islanders who may prove refractory, and to release any Spanish prisoners held in confinement by the insurgents.

The navy department is now convinced that it will not be practicable to carry out a project it had entertained at one time, looking to a considerable reduction of the United States naval force on the Asiatic station and has settled down to the conviction that the fleet must rather be considerably reinforced if the attempt is to be made to maintain law and order in the 1,200 Philippine islands, and still afford proper protection to the important interests of the United States along the great Asiatic coast line.

The combined naval forces of Great Britain and the United States in these waters will largely exceed those of any other two nations in that quarter of the world.

Bryan Ready to Quit.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 12.—Colonel William Jennings Bryan of the Third Nebraska regiment has either forwarded his resignation to Washington or is about to do so.

Of this there seems to be no doubt. Saturday he called upon General Lee, commander of the Seventh corps, and General Keifer, commander of the Second division of the corps, of which Colonel Bryan's regiment is a part, and is understood to have announced his intention of quitting the service. General Lee is to sail for Cuba on the transport to-day and Colonel Bryan is believed to have hastened his decision in order that he might acquaint his corps commander with his intention prior to his departure for the island.

Neither of the commanding generals would discuss the matter and referred to Colonel Bryan as the source to get any news.

Scenes in Hungary's Diet.

Budapest, Dec. 12.—There were stormy scenes in the lower house of the Diet Saturday, and the session was suspended after a quarter of an hour owing to the opposition's uproar.

On the resumption of business Baron Banffy, the premier, rose to speak, and an opposition member named Kubik rushed at him.

The supporters of the premier clustered around him and all present in the house shouted and gesticulated.

The premier, however, remained calm, and did not move amidst the clamor until Kubik had disclaimed any intention of attacking him.

After this the premier announced that, owing to the illness of the president and vice president of the house, he had consulted with the king and was awaiting his decision as to the adjournment of the house.

GEN. GARCIA DEAD.

The Brave Cuban Leader Passes Away in Washington Sunday.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—General Calixto Garcia, the distinguished Cuban warrior and leader, and the head of the commission elected by the Cuban assembly to visit this country, died here Sunday morning shortly after ten o'clock at the Hotel Raleigh, where the commission has its headquarters. The sudden change from the warm climate of Cuba, with the hardships he had there endured, to the wintry weather of New York and Washington is responsible for pneumonia which resulted in his demise. He contracted a slight cold in New York, which did not assume an alarming stage until the early part of last week.

On Tuesday night General Garcia, in company with the other members of the commission, attended a dinner given in his honor by General Miles, and it was a result of the exposure that night which culminated in his death.

In the twelve hours or more preceding dissolution General Garcia was unconscious most of the time. At intervals he recognized one or more of those about him. In his dying moments as all through his active life, his thoughts were for his beloved country and its people, and among his last words were irrational mutterings in which he gave orders to his son, who is on his staff, for the battle he supposed was to occur to-morrow and in which he understood there were only 400 Spaniards to combat. Just before he died he embraced his son.

General Garcia, whose name will be ever linked with those of other patriots who have fought against unequal odds for the freedom of his country, had a most active and varied life, much of which had been spent in fighting for the cause of Cuban liberty, which he had the satisfaction of seeing accomplished, so short a time before his death. He was a man of culture and refinement, of splendid education and came from a distinguished family of Jiquani of Santiago de Cuba province. He was born in Colquin on October 14, 1839, and was, therefore, in the 60th year of his age. General Garcia was educated in Havana and Spain.

PICQUART ON TRIAL.

The Court Martial of the French Soldier to Begin To-day.

Paris, Dec. 12.—The court martial of Lieutenant Colonel Picquart is scheduled to begin to-day, although the court of cassation may even at the last moment interfere and grant him a civil trial.

The charges against Picquart grow out of the Dreyfus case and are based on the disclosures which he made to the Dreyfus adherents. He is also charged with forgery of military documents, but this accusation will probably not be pressed. The court martial of Lieutenant Colonel Picquart is to be conducted by a secret military tribunal, and Paris looks for sensational developments during its continuance. In fact there are those who believe that both the Dreyfus and anti-Dreyfus adherents will bring about popular demonstrations which may end in a sanguinary conflict and the enactment of scenes like those of the commune of 1870.

LIEUT. COL. PICQUART.

Novelist William Black Dead.

London, Dec. 12.—The death is announced of William Black, the novelist.

The late William Black was born at Glasgow in 1841. His youthful ambition was to become an artist, and he studied for a time in the government school of art, in his native city, but eventually he drifted into journalism, becoming connected with the Glasgow Weekly Citizen before attaining his majority. In 864 he came to London and wrote for magazines. He was attached in the following year to the staff of the Morning Star, and was special correspondent for that paper during the Prusso-Austrian war of 1866, scenes from which appeared in his first novel, "Love or Marriage," published in 1867.

The author's next work of fiction was favorably received. It was entitled, "In Silk Attire," and a considerable portion of it was devoted to descriptions of peasant life in the Black Forest.

He has written a large number of successful novels.

Gov. Black Coming to New York.

New York, Dec. 12.—Black, Olcott & Gruber will be the new sign on the door of a large suite of law offices in the American Surety building, No. 100 Broadway, after January 1. Governor Frank S. Black will be the senior member, and associated with him will be Judge W. M. K. Olcott, who has declined an appointment as judge of general sessions, preferring active practice, and Abraham Gruber of the successful law firm of Gruber & Bonynge. Mr. Bonynge will enter the new firm as junior member. It is understood that the new firm will handle all kinds of legal business, with especial preference for commercial and corporation law.

Judge Showalter Dead.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—Judge John W. Showalter of the United States district court died Saturday. He had been ill with pneumonia. Judge Showalter was born in Kentucky in 1844. He was a graduate of Yale.

Give the People a Chance.

There seems to be a general understanding among those versant in municipal affairs that the Common Council is likely to pass an ordinance on first reading this evening granting to the Plainfield Street Railway Company the right to construct and operate a trolley extension to the eastern limits of the city. So far as we know only those on the inner circle or in the extreme confidence of the city officials and the street railway people understand the exact terms of the franchise, except from what can be learned from indirect sources. Such information as has been secured with reference to the proposed franchise indicates that it is to be of ninety-nine years duration, subject to two readjustments in terms—one at the expiration of fifty years and again twenty-five years later.

Presuming that this information may be correct, and it probably is, it would seem that the members of the Council, in whose power it is to determine the various essentials of the ordinance, are going directly contrary to the sentiment expressed at public hearings within a few weeks anent the same franchise.

Until the people learn from direct sources what the terms of the proposed franchise are to be they are unable to express intelligent or effective opinion upon the bargain which the city is likely to enter into under the administration of its chosen representatives. While it is possible for men to get up and express their sentiments upon public franchises in general at any time, it is not fair for the Council to hold a hearing on the application of the Street Railway Company for an inestimably valuable franchise without the people knowing exactly on what terms it is intended the city shall secure, especially when it is only a matter of terms that interests the people—the trolley extensions being welcomed heartily if the people are protected.

If the ordinance should be introduced and passed on first reading tonight, we suppose that some of the Councilmen would say that that constituted a virtual bargain with the street railway promoters and that no matter how much opposition developed against the ordinance after the people had something substantial to work on they would be forced to support it in honor bound to themselves and the city likewise. Such action would be precipitate and unreasonable. The Councilmen are there to represent the people, and yet how are they to know the mind of the people if the latter are not provided with information on so important a matter as a public franchise previous to its being called up for official action. To read the ordinance tonight and then pass it on first reading a short time after would be a burlesque on a fair hearing.

The proper thing for the Common Council to do is to have the proposed ordinance read for the information of the public, then published as a corporation notice once, so that everyone may know of its provisions, and then hold a public hearing to learn what the people think of it. In that way public opinion of some weight and influence may be secured, but to "rush" the ordinance through this evening and officially endorse its provisions as a first passage would do, would smack of "star chamber" proceedings as well as misuse of power.

So far as we know there is but one man in Plainfield who but a short time ago opposed the granting of a long term franchise to the Plainfield Street Railway Company and now has changed his mind. He is Councilman VanHerwerden, the last man that should be expected to do such a thing. Councilman VanHerwerden two months ago opposed the granting of a franchise for a longer term than fifteen years; now he favors one for ninety-nine years.

Councilman Barrows expressed profound satisfaction some time ago in having the people attend the public hearings of the Common Council. When Councilman Barrows turns a public hearing into an hour and a half private conference, leaving the people to amuse themselves as best they can, he does not show much consistency.

Michael Higgins, one of the original Citizens' men of the Fourth ward, was a candidate for Street Commissioner in the event of Mr. Lounsbury's election as Mayor. Michael was taking time by the forelock and before the votes were cast had a petition in circulation urging his selection. There is nothing slow about Michael.

Chandler Riker stated before an Assembly committee last winter that twenty-five years was long enough to grant a franchise to a street railway company. Why don't the Common Council give Mr. Riker a dose of his own medicine that he prescribed as proper for traction companies.

It should be the duty of every man who feels an interest in the welfare of the city to attend the public hearing on the trolley franchise in the Common Council chamber tonight, and to urge the Council not to take hasty and precipitate action upon the proposed ordinance.

To the Common Council: Don't endorse an ordinance granting so important a thing as a trolley franchise, by passing it on first reading, until the people have at least had a little chance to know what the exact provisions are.

General Garcia, the Cuban patriot, is dead. He lived, however, to see his country relieved of its oppression, and therein he was happy.

If you want to be a perfect man after the first of January commence practicing on writing 1899 now.

We wonder what the chances of the Plainfield Councilmen would be in Chicago these days?

Now cometh the time when the letter carrier is overworked and overloaded.

We celebrate Christmas two weeks from today.

MAD MULLAH'S PLIGHT.

(Written for The Daily Press.)

There is war again in Swat,
All about—I don't know what;
And the tribesmen now hurrah
For the conquering Mad Mullah.

But they soon will cease their whoops—
Day by day the British troops
Nearer and still nearer draw,
Seeking for the Bad Mullah.

They for him will make it hot:
They will teach him what is Swat;
When he feels the Lion's paw
He will be the Sad Mullah.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The returns of the municipal election in Plainfield Wednesday contain but little consolation of Democratic or independent residents of Union county, and serves to substantiate the assertion that for hidebound partisanship no county in the State is populated by a narrower brand of Republicans than Union. Even on local elections, with no serious party issues or principles involved, they can be relied upon to vote the party ticket without a mark or scratch.—Summit Record.

* * * * *

Senator Charles A. Reed holds views of a nearly similar character. Speaking the other day in a general way about the neglect of decent, intelligent people to do their duty at the polls he said: "It is incomprehensible to me how little value some people put upon the franchise—upon the right to say who shall manage the affairs of their municipality, State or Nation—a right for which their great-grandfathers offered up their lives. I believe that the way to make these people appreciate the importance of the franchise is to deprive them of it for a time. Then they'd miss it. I'd like to see it fixed so that if a man didn't vote at this election, say, he shouldn't be allowed to vote at the next election, but should have the franchise returned to him at the succeeding election after that. If all citizens were compelled to vote the corrupt element would not then count for so much. Certainly something must be done soon to cure the prevalent indifference among voters."—New York Tribune.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

It has been suggested that the members of the Park Club purchase some winter clothing for the piece of statuary that stands close by the clubhouse. This cold weather is very trying and passersby express feelings of sympathy for the statue.

—Already most of the new councilmen have received communications and petitions from their constituents asking for some favor.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 12—Mrs. C. D. Taylor has returned from a visit with her mother in Paterson.

Miss Folsom, of Greenbrook, is still confined to the house with a sprained ankle. Several months ago she met with a slight accident in which she sprained her ankle. It was not thought very serious at first, but so far it has refused to heal properly, and after so many weeks she is still unable to use her foot.

The towerhouse at the Prospect avenue crossing of the Central Railroad, has been moved from the north to the south side of the tracks. This change was made so that the gateman can see up and down the tracks better as the new freighthouse will obstruct the view from the north side.

A union temperance service was held last night in the Methodist church. The service was participated in by all the churches here, and was well attended. Rev. C. E. Jamison gave the address which was on temperance, and the other pastors also took part in the service.

An entertainment and reception will be given Monday night, January 2, under the auspices of the Ladies' orchestra. The entertainment will be given in Apgar's Hall.

Miss Addie Fenner, of Pluckamin, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. H. J. Swackhamer, has gone to New York on a short visit before she returns home.

Brakeman Charles Hock, who met with an accident last week which compelled him to lay off for a few days, is recovering the use of his limb.

Mrs. Deets, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Samuel VanArsdale, has returned to her home in Flemington.

John McCall has returned from Providence, Rhode Island, where he has been attending the funeral of his brother.

Joseph Stark, of Pennsylvania, has been spending a few days with his brother, Bernard Sirisky.

Mrs. Philip Harman has returned from a two weeks' visit in Somerville.

Mrs. E. P. Ruckel is spending a few weeks in Brooklyn with relatives.

A side track is being laid to the new freighthouse.

Mrs. James Martine is quite ill at her home.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 12—The funeral of the late Jacob V. Coles was held from his late residence Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The house was filled with the relatives and friends, who had come to pay their last respects to one they had learned to love and respect. Dr. Parks preached the funeral sermon and spoke words of comfort to the sorrowing family. The pall-bearers were John Robison, Wm. VanWalkenburg, Samuel Field, George B Nichol, Robert Walpole and Joseph Clark, all old friends of the deceased. Interment was made in the North Plainfield cemetery.

The Saturday Night Club, of Fanwood, gave the second of its weekly hops in the Fanwood firehouse Saturday evening. The feature of the evening was dancing, but for those who desired, card playing was provided, and with the two a very pleasant evening was spent by all attending. The club, which is composed of all the leading residents of the borough and their families, is to be the leading feature in the social life of this place during the winter season, and the weekly hops are well attended and looked forward to by all with pleasure.

Miss Salame, a native Syrian, who is prosecuting a course of study at the Baptist Training School in Philadelphia, gave an interesting talk on the religion, customs and manners of the people of her country in the Baptist church Sunday evening. Miss Salame kept her audience interested throughout her address, which at times was so amusing that the audience was obliged to laugh.

A special meeting of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company will be held in the company's rooms this evening to elect representatives to the Relief Association.

The quarterly conference of the Methodist church was held in the church Saturday afternoon. Presiding Elder Smith, of this district, was present.

Mrs. Charles W. Brown, who has been quite ill at her home, is reported as improving very nicely.

Miss Hattie Wilcox, of Brooklyn, was the guest Sunday of her mother, Mrs. Nancy Wilcox.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Need of Safety Valves.

A high pressure life calls for protective measures, and the woman who engages mind and heart in her purpose, even though she may not be classed among public workers, instinctively seeks her safety valves. These are peculiar to her individuality, and suit, as she imagines, her needs; but sometimes they are not altogether chosen wisely, and are often overused. The intense nature with the greatest need of letting off steam is the one who will make the mistake in this direction. Action and reaction will be equal with her. The home of such a woman is often a place where tragedy is frequently enacted. Her nervous system, wrought up to a point bordering upon frenzy, her mental and physical energies following its lead, there comes a moment when the strain must be relieved or mind and body will give way under the great weight.

It is not an easy thing to acquire the habit of withholding the worst from the dearest friend and showing him only the best, but is possible when the heart is right and the purpose has even a germ of strength. One brave, gentle woman, full of the fire that would have early consumed her but for her wise use of safety valves, confided to a friend her experience in trying to relieve the tension of mind and spirit without giving discomfort to those whom she loved. Her piano became her abiding friend whenever she felt the need of letting herself down from a too highly strung condition. She played off her feelings and gradually found herself calmed and rested. And there were times when a favorite poet offered herself as guide into the realm of restfulness, and step by step led her on to the heights where she found repose. The woman with mental resources and with wise discrimination will learn to choose her safety valves with reference to the comfort and peace of the home, and will thus find a gain in self-respect and in strength of will.—M. E. Baldwin, in Home Life.

A Cheerful Room for Nursery.

The nursery ought to be the prettiest and most cheerful room in the house, says a writer in Woman's Home Companion, with ample receptacles for toys, some attractive pictures and a pleasant outlook from the windows. A small aquarium is an object that gives great enjoyment, and it is easily managed. I prefer a tightly drawn, well-tacked-down tapestry carpet upon the floor, if it can be taken up and steam-cleaned semi-annually, and properly cared for between whiles; for children are always tripping over rugs and hurting themselves. For the reason that sharp angles furnish dangerous points to fall against, tables and chairs should have rounding edges. The first considerations are health, safety and comfort, after that, prettiness. Clear space for running about is most essential, for there are many fall and winter days when outdoor exercise is an impossibility; and on these days it is well to put on the little one's bonnet and coat, open the windows for half an hour, and invite him to a brisk game that requires plenty of running and jumping. Provide a low table and chair, where he can sit at ease with his toys, imagining himself lord of a little realm. This conceit is one that children delight in, and it is a very harmless delusion—not altogether without opportunities for wholesome lessons in the way of hospitality and kindness to others.

Nervous Children.

A word about nervous children. Never scold them nor "make fun" of them. They suffer enough without your threats or sarcasm. Pretend not to see their awkwardness when in company, nor their grimaces when alone. A case was reported the other day of a boy of ten years who, on being vexed, and often without any apparent provocation, would clench his hands and make the most frightful contortions of the muscles of his face and head until his poor mother feared he was idiotic. By no means. He was the brightest boy in his class at school, but was of a highly nervous temperament, and had not been taught to control the little wires, so to speak, on which he was strung. This is no single case. There are thousands of children who give way to their nerves in similar fashion. Talk to them about these curious little fellows that should be their servants, not their masters. Never whip them. The man or woman who whips a nervous child is on a level with brutes that have no reason. Encourage them. Help them. Be patient with them. They are the making of our future successful men and women, for they will work hard at whatever they undertake. Brace up your own nerves first, and then be indulgent toward the capers of your over nervous children.—New York Ledger.

How Pens Are Made.

Pens are made by machines which seem almost to think. The steel is cut into ribbons as wide as the length of one pen, and these are fed to machines which cut out the blanks, then fashion, stamp them, split the points, and place the maker's name on the backs.

Mrs. Short—Here's an invitation to Mr. Long's wedding. What on earth can we send them?

Mr. Short—He lost a $10 umbrella of mine a year ago. I'll make him a present of it.—Brooklyn Life.

Such a Surprise.

"This is our last nice day together," said Eric, disconsolably.

"But I can't see why it should be," persisted May. "She may be a very nice little girl."

"But she won't. She's a girl, and all girls are silly."

"I'm one, too," objected May demurely.

"But you're not like other girls. You like running about and building castles in the sand, and all that sort of thing. That one likes dolls!" with supreme contempt. "I asked papa, and he said she was very fond of dolls."

"But so am I, Eric. One can't always run about, and when I'm indoors I love my dollies."

"Anyway, you're different. You're nice, and I'm quite sure she'll be nasty," Eric insisted.

Poor Eric could not remember his mother at all, and as his papa, though very fond of him and very kind, was almost always busy, his had been a very lonely life. But it was all to be changed now. A few weeks ago his papa had told him that he was going to have a new mother. Eric did not mind that. He had often longed for a mother. But what Eric did not like was that this lady had been married, too, and had a little girl. Eric did not like girls; he thought it beneath his dignity to play with them.

Then, about a fortnight ago, papa had told Eric that, after his wedding, he and the new mamma were going for a little journey, and Eric was to spend that time at the seaside. So he and his nurse had come here, and, living in the same house, they had found a litle girl who was staying there with her governess. The two children speedily made each other's acquaintance, and were now fast friends.

Papa had in the meantime got married, and that very evening he and his wife were to arrive, to take Eric home with them in a few days.

After a short pause the boy began to speak again.

"It's not only the girl I mind, May; I'm a little tiny bit afraid of the new mamma, too. Perhaps she won't be as nice as a real one."

"Oh, but she will!" said May, quickly. "All mammas are nice. You should see mine!"

"I wish I had seen her," Eric said wistfully; "then I'd know perhaps, how to behave to mine. I do want so much to make her like me."

"I'm sure she likes you already. I'm sure she began to love you as soon as she knew you were going to be her little boy," May said, with the happy confidence of a child who had a mother and knew a mother's love. "All the same I wish mine were coming. I had a letter from her yesterday, and she says she is coming soon, and has got a great surprise for me."

"Master Eric! Master Eric!" called his nurse's voice, and he had to run in.

That same evening Eric's parents arrived. Papa caught his boy in his arms and kissed him; and then Eric felt another pair of arms round him, and was kissed, oh, so tenderly; and, looking up, he saw such a sweet face bending over him that he knew immediately he should like the owner of it.

"I hope you and I will grow very fond of each other, Eric," she said.

"Yes," he answered. He longed to say more, but he was too shy; so, to change the subject, he asked:

"And the little girl?"

"She is not here this evening," papa replied.

Eric went to bed a very happy boy that night. He felt that he would love his mother very much, and when he came to breakfast the next morning and found only his papa, he was quite disappointed.

"Where is mamma?" he asked.

"Gone out," said papa. "We are to meet her on the beach after breakfast."

Accordingly, after breakfast, papa and Eric set out together; and as they were walking along, papa said:

"You see, Eric, I was very sorry that you hated the idea of your new sister so much, and so I sent you here because I thought you would surely get to know some nice little girl who would cure you of your prejudice. Now, your friend May, whom you told us so much about last night, is a girl, and is nice, isnt she?"

"All girls aren't like her," Eric signed. "She is—oh, there she is, papa, coming to meet me."

May came running toward them, her long hair flying behind her.

"Eric, Eric!" she cried. "Just fancy! My mamma arrived in the night, while I was asleep. Do come and speak to her. She is sitting over there, on that bench."

Eric looked in the direction she pointed out. A lady was sitting on a bench, and Eric's papa had just sat down beside her. He said something to her, and then they both turned round and looked at the children.

"Why, that's my mamma," said Eric.

For a minute they stared at each other. Then, all of a sudden, they understood.

"Why, Eric!"

"May, are you——"

And then they flung their arms round each other's necks and hugged each other.

SPANISH EXECUTIONERS.

And a Story of an African Slave Who Would Not be Hangman.

When the court-martial that Don Alessandro O'Reilly, the second Spanish Governor of Louisiana in 1769 had organized to convict, brought in a verdict of death against Lafreniere and six of his companions as the leaders of the Louisana revolutionists against the authority of Spain, to which country Louis XV, of France had ceded the colony, O'Reilly sought in vain among whites and blacks in Louisiana for a man who would perform the abhorrent work of serving as hangman at the execution of the patriots. Not a man of the colony would answer the call. In this emergency O'Reilly was compelled to assign the congenial task of slaughtering the helpless Creoles and Frenchmen to regular Spanish soldiers whom he had brought with him from Spain, and, instead of being hanged, Lefreniere and the others were shot to death by a platoon of grenadiers in a space of ground near the site of the present United States mint, in New Orleans, which at that time was in the rear of the military garrison of the post. The failure of O'Reilly to secure a hangman in the case of these unfortunate men recalled to old French residents of New Orleans of that day the interesting story of Jeannot, an African slave of the Mississippi company, or company of the West, which 50 years previously had control of the colony of Louisana, under a charter granted to the regent of Orleans. The company offered Jeannot his freedom on condition that he would serve as public hangman of the colony. Jeannot appeared to agree to the proposition, but he afterwards repaired to a secluded place and cut off his right arm with a hatchet. By this self-inflicted mutilation Jeannot avoided the repulsive duties of hangman for the colony, but he also lost his opportunity for freedom. However, the agent of the company, not knowing in what way to utilize Jeannot as a laborer, appointed him overseer of all the slaves belonging to it. Poor Jeannot was rewarded for his sense of humanity and consciousness by receiving the respect and esteem of all the inhabitants of the colony during the rest of his life.—New Orleans Picayune.

EDIBLE BIRDS' NESTS.

Great Care and Risk Taken to Secure This Delicacy.

The edible bird's nest is formed by a swiftlet, known as Peale's swiftlet. The birds build a great number on the precipices and the caverns of the steep islands of the limestone series which form one of the characteristics of the gulf, and fragments of which occur at Mergui, on the west coast, in the Malay Archipelago, and in Tonquin. Each of the islands under Praya Chaiya has a guard of men upon it, living in small cottages high up in some nook of the limestone rock, like a Norwegian hut, or down on the spotless sand of the single little cove, beneath a palm or two. The collecting of the nests is effected by these men three times a year—in the hot season and at the begining and end of the rains. Great care has to be exercised that the nests should be taken at the moment when the birds have just finished building, and before any eggs are laid, for if this has happened the birds are said not to build again.

The collection of the nests is risky, owing to their inaccessibility, but it is profitable, owing to the high prices they fetch, about 50s. a pound for white and 25s. to 30s. for the inferior or red-colored nests,) and not a little poaching is indulged in by the crews of boats navigating the gulf. The consequence of this is that the guards are all armed, and open fire on any boat they see approaching their island nearer than 100 yards without further explanation being needed, and many a boat blown off the land and sorely in need of shelter or fresh water has to sheer off again with a little extra ballast on board in the shape of buckshot or Snider bullets.—Geographical Journal.

A Natural Fog Horn.

At the Farallenes the erosive agents have worked with queer caprice. This rock, being granite, has been acted upon by the sea at all levels and throughout the long period when it has been rising out of the water depths. Through a long, narrow hole, slanting and communicating with the ocean, there comes at intervals a terrific stream of air, forced by the spasmodic heaving of the waves against the lower orafice. The goverment, which uses this island for lighthouse purposes, enclosed the upper end with the nozzle of a fog horn, and every few seconds there was blown an earsplitting brawl, which was heard far out to sea and above the din of the breaking rollers. It was allowed to roar only in foggy weather, but it was eccentric in that it would only sound at high tide. When the tide was low, although the weather might be thick, the thing was silent. For lack of its warning, a ship went ashore upon the island rocks, and then it was that the government abandoned its location on the wind hole and erected a steam siren, or mechanical fog horn, which has since very faithfully performed the necessary services.—Harper's Magazine.

How to Persuade Things.

"It would be impossible for a man to make a greater mistake," said Mr. Staybolt, 'than to sit down and wait, under the delusion that things will come his way some time. They never will, not even to his funeral.

"The only way to make things come our way is with a club."—New York Sun.

Bingen. Das neu erbaute Technikum wurde hier unter entsprechenden Festlichkeiten eröffnet.

Mainz. Eisenbahndirektionspräsident Breidenbach hat hier eine Eisenbahnschule in's Leben gerufen, in der jungen Beamten Gelegenheit gegeben ist, sich in allen Zweigen des Eisenbahnwesens heranzubilden.

Bayern.

München. Der Landrath von Oberbayern genehmigte die Einverleibung der Landgemeinde Nymphenburg in die Stadtgemeinde München.—Wie aus guter Quelle verlautet, soll der mittelfränkische Dahrlehnskassenverein hier eine genossenschaftliche Schlächterei errichten wollen. Es sollen zunächst wöchentlich 200 Schweine geschlachtet und auch Wurstwaaren hergestellt werden.

Abensberg. Hier wurde die Ausgrabung und gerichtliche Sektion der Leiche des kürzlich verstorbenen Schneidermeisters Josef Merkl angeordnet, weil das Gerücht ging, daß er keines natürlichen Todes gestorben sei. Die Sektion hat jedoch keinerlei Anhaltspunkte hierfür ergeben.

Nach Errichtung zweier landwirthschaftlicher Winterschulen in Oberfranken hat die Frequenz der seit 1863 in Bayreuth bestehenden Kreisackerbauschule so nachgelassen, daß der Landrath beschloß, diese Anstalt aufzuheben und auf ihrem Gelände Gebäude für etwa 100 gutartige Geisteskranke zu erbauen, um die überfüllte Kreisirrenanstalt zu entlasten.

Deggendorf. Der Taglöhner Beit und sein 18jähriger Sohn waren kürzlich damit beschäftigt, einen großen Kahn mit Kies über die Isar hierher zu bringen. Mitten in dem reißenden Flusse ging der Kahn unter und Vater und Sohn waren den Wellen preisgegeben. Nach großer Mühe gelang es dem Sohne, seinen des Schwimmens unkundigen Vater an's Land zu bringen und ihn von dem sicheren Tode zu retten.

Erlangen. Verhaftet wurde hier ein Hochstapler, der durch gefälschte Zeugnisse in Schweinfurt die Anstellung als Bauassistent erschlich. Anderswo trat er als Geburtshelfer auf; hier lebte er seit vier Wochen unter falschem Namen als Stud. med. Er war auch Heirathsschwindler und seit einem Jahr von München und anderen Orten steckbrieflich verfolgt. Er fälschte zuletzt wahrscheinlich den Haupttreffer der Münchner Ferdinand-Lotterie und erhob darauf in Nürnberg 8000 Mark. Der Verhaftete heißt Feichtmeier und ist der Sohn eines Rentbeamten aus Pottenstein.

Gladheim. Hier erstach der Gastwirth Töppler in der Trunkenheit seine 20jährige Tochter, als sie auf seine Aufforderung hin nicht sofort Bier aus dem Keller holte.

YOU'RE READING THIS?

CERTAINLY!

Well, Mr. Merchant-who-thinks-of-advertising, this is only one of the many corners in THE DAILY PRESS—it isn't the best located one, either; we can give you better—and if this attracts your attention in our endeavor to tell you how good advertising will get you a hearing before the purchasing public, doesn't common sense teach you that if you were having people reading your trade story instead of you're reading our argument about it, that it would be better for your business.

THE DAILY PRESS reaches the purchasing public that makes the profits for the merchant.

We can give you big or little space—but in advertising it is'nt always economy to be sparing in your appropriation.

CHRISTMAS GLADNESS.

Children faces gleam to-day;
Hearts are happy, glad as May;
Gifts surprise us with their cheer;
Earth is heaven, for heaven is here
When the year is fading slow,
Angel pleasures mortals know;
In our hearts and homes we find
Eden lingers yet behind,
When the soul God's Gospel feels,
Paradise about it steals,
And it never goes away,
Life itself is Christmas Day!

THE TALKING PIG.

"None of my numerous Christmas experiences have been sad ones," remarked the famous old clown, Dan Rice, who chanced to be in a reminiscent mood the other day.

"It was on a holiday," he continued, "that I accidentally determined to be a showman. While walking on the outskirts of Pittsburg, Pa., I paused to admire a pen of fine pigs by the roadside. Now, a pig is not the least intelligent of animal creation—that is, he knows enough to eat whenever he gets a chance. I was a fairly proficient amateur ventriloquist at that time, and the owner of the pen was astonished to hear me maintaining an animated conversation with a sleek, fat porker as he approached the sty.

"'Pig, you know you ate that pullet, feathers and all,' I accusingly exclaimed.

"'Dan, you know you lie and the truth ain't in you,' came the angry response from within the sty.

"'Phwat the divil's got inter me pigs?" their owner wonderingly inquires.

"'The divil take ye, ye Oirish nagur!' a sqeeking voice replied from the pen. 'Dan, swot 'im in th' smeller.'

"'I'll do nothing of the kind, you ungrateful beast!' was my indignant reply. 'You've got the devil in you.'

"After a few minutes' conversation the Irishman was convinced that a certain black and red pig was possessed of a devil, and he was sorely perplexed thereby. He was greatly puzzled to know how to get rid of both pig and devil at the same time. At last I kindly volunteered to take the duo, and he offered me a small consideration for so doing.

"Within two weeks I was making a neat sum of money on the road by exhibiting an educated, talking pig, which proved a great drawing card. So well did I prosper with it that the next Christmas I lavishly entertained a host of old, as well as new, friends with the best the country afforded.

"From thence on my career was singularly successful, and eventually I became proprietor of the first circus in which I had ever appeared as a clown. The word clown, according to Webster, means a churl, a man of coarse manners, an ill-bred man. But I found it paid, just the same. As the original Shakespearan clown, I drew a salary of $10,000 a season, and endeared myself to a discriminating and fun-loving public.

I'LL DO NOTHING OF THE KIND.

"Another memorable Christmas I spent as a prisoner in Blue Eagle jail, charged with the heinous offense of providing the general public with amusement, entertainment, and instruction, in the form of a circus. Now, one of my objections to prison life is that it is too confining, but, just the same, I was Santa Claus to the prisoners, and visitors at the jail that day. We had a fine dinner of roast pig and fowl, with cranberry sauce and mince pies. That day I, for the first time, sang before a select audience my famous song of 'The Blue Eagle Jail,' which subsequently revolutionized public sentiment against showmen.
